Horrible as the plan seemed and though she shrank from touching the hair of the dead man, Stellara steeled herself and did as Tanar bid. Little by little, Tanar applied pitch to his face and Stellara placed the hair upon it until presently only the eyes and nose of the Sarian remained exposed. The expression of the former were altered by increasing the size and bushiness of the eyebrows with shreds of Bulf's beard that had been left over. Then Stellara stood away and surveyed him critically.

"Do you think I can pass as a Korsar?" he asked.

"No one will suspect, unless they question you closely as you leave the palace."

"We are going together," said Tanar. "But how?" asked Stellara.

"I have been thinking of another plan," he said. "I noticed when I was living in the barracks that sailors going toward the river had no difficulty in passing through the gate leaving the palace. In fact, it is always much easier to leave the palace than to enter it. On many occasions I have heard them say merely that they were going to their ships. We can do the same."

"Do I look like a Korsar sailor?" demanded Stellara.

"You will when I get through with you."

"What do you mean?"

"There is Korsar clothing here," said Tanar; "and there is still plenty of hair on Bulf's head."

The girl drew back with a shudder. "Oh, Tanar! You cannot mean that."

"What other way is there?" he demanded. "If we can escape together, is it not worth any price?"

"You are right," she said. "I will do it."

When Tanar completed his work upon her, Stellara had been transformed into a bearded Korsar, but the best that he could do in the way of disguise failed to hide entirely the contours of her figure.

"I am afraid they will suspect," he said. "Your figure is too feminine for shorts and a skirt to hide it."

"Wait!" exclaimed Stellara. "Sometimes the sailors, when they are going on long voyages, wear cloaks, which they use to sleep in if the nights are cool. Let us see if we can find such a one here."

"Yes, I saw one," replied Tanar, and crossing the room he returned with a cloak made of wide striped goods. "That will give you greater height," he said. But when they draped it about her, her feminine figure was still too evident.

"Build out my shoulders," suggested Stellara, and with scarfs and handkerchiefs the Sarian built the girl's shoulders out so that she resembled a short, stocky man.

"Now we are ready," said the Sarian.

Stellara pointed to the body of Bulf. "We cannot leave him lying there," she said. "Someone may come to this room and discover him and when they do, every man in the palace—yes, even in the entire city—will be arrested and questioned."

Tanar looked about the room and then he seized the corpse of Bulf and dragged it into a far corner, after which he piled bundles of hides and baskets upon it, and over the blood stains upon the floor he dragged other bales and baskets.

"Now," he said, "is as good a time as another to put our disguises to the test." Together they approached the door. "You know the least-frequented passages to the garden," said Tanar. "Let us make our way from the palace through the garden to the gate that gave us escape before."

"Then follow me," replied Stellara, as Tanar opened the door and the two stepped out into the corridor beyond. It was empty. Tanar closed the door behind him, and Stellara led the way down the passage.

They had proceeded but a short distance when they heard a man's voice in an apartment to the left.

"Where is she?" he demanded.

"I do not know," replied a woman's voice. "She was here but a moment ago and Bulf was with her."

"Find them and lose no time about it," commanded the man, sternly. And he stepped from the apartment just as Tanar and Stellara were approaching.

It was The Cid. Stellara's heart stopped beating as the Korsar ruler looked into the faces of Tanar and herself.

"Who are you?" demanded The Cid.

"We are sailors," said Tanar, quickly.

"What are you doing here in my palace?" demanded the Korsar ruler.

"We were sent here with packages to the storeroom," replied Tanar, "and we are but now returning to our ship."

"Well, be quick about it. I do not like your looks," growled The Cid as he stamped off.

Tanar saw Stellara sway and he stepped to her side and supported her, but she quickly gained possession of herself, and an instant later turned to the right, and led Tanar through a doorway into the garden.

"Good!" whispered the man, as they walked side by side after quitting the building. "If The Cid did not know you, then your disguise must be perfect."

There were a number of men and women in the garden close to the palace. Some of these scrutinized them casually, but they passed by in safety and a moment later the gravel walk they were following wound through dense shrubbery that hid them from view and then they were at the doorway in the garden wall.

Again fortune favored them and they passed out into the barracks yards without being noticed. Electing to try the main gate because of the greater number of people who passed to and fro through it, Tanar turned to the right, passed along the full length of the barracks past a dozen men and approached the gate with Stellara at his side.

They were almost through when a stupid-looking soldier stopped them.

"Who are you," he demanded, "and what business takes you from the palace?"

"We are sailors," replied Tanar. "We are going to our ship."

"What were you doing in the palace?" demanded the man.

"We took packages there from the captain of the ship to the Cid's storeroom," explained the Sarian.

"I do not like the looks of you," said the man. "Wait here until the captain of the gate returns. He will wish to question you."

The Sarian's heart sank. "If we are late in returning to our ship, we shall be punished," said he.

"That is nothing to me," replied the soldier.

Stellara reached inside her cloak and beneath the man's clothes that covered her own apparel, and searched until she found a pouch that was attached to her girdle. From this she drew something which she slipped into Tanar's hands. He understood immediately, and stopping close to the soldier he pressed two pieces of gold into the fellow's palm.

"It will go very hard with us if we are late," he said.

The man felt the cool gold within his palm. "Very well," he said gruffly, "go on about your business, and be quick about it."

Without waiting for a second invitation Tanar and Stellara merged with the crowd upon the Korsar street. Nor did either speak until they had left the palace gate well behind.

"And where now?" she asked at last.

"We are going to sea," replied the man. "We are going fishing."

Along the banks of the river were moored many craft, but when Tanar saw how many men were on or around them he realized that the plan he had chosen, which contemplated stealing a fishing boat, most probably would end disastrously, and he explained his doubts to Stellara.

"We could never do it," she said. "Stealing a boat is considered the most heinous crime that one can commit in Korsar, and if the owner of a boat is not aboard it you may rest assured that some of his friends are watching it for him, even though there is little likelihood that anyone will attempt to steal it, since the penalty is death."

Tanar shook his head. "Then we shall have to risk passing through the entire city of Korsar," he said, "and going out into the open country without any reasonable excuse in the event that we are questioned."

"We might buy a boat," suggested Stellara.

"I have no money," said Tanar.

"I have," replied the girl. "The Cid has always kept me well supplied with gold." Once more she reached into her pouch and drew forth a handful of gold pieces. "Here," she said, "take these."

Questioning the first man that he approached at the river side, Tanar learned that there was a small fishing boat for sale a short way down the river, and it was not long before they had found its owner and consummated the purchase.

As they pushed off into the current and floated down stream, Tanar became conscious of a sudden conviction that his escape from Korsar had been effected too easily; that there must be something wrong, that either he was dreaming or else disaster and recapture lay just ahead.

Borne down toward the sea by the slow current of the river, Tanar wielded a single oar, paddlewise from the stern, to keep the boat out in the channel and its bow in the right direction, for he did not wish to make sail under the eyes of Korsar sailors and fishermen, as he was well aware that he could not do so without attracting attention to his evident inexperience and thus casting suspicion upon them.

Slowly the boat drew away from the city and from the Korsar raiders anchored in mid-stream and then, at last he felt that it would be safe to hoist the sail and take advantage of the land breeze that was blowing.

With Stellara's assistance the canvas was spread and as it bellied to the wind the craft bore forward with accelerated speed, and then behind them they heard shouts and, turning, saw three boats speeding toward them.

GAVE TEN YEARS' SERVICE.

The Editor,
Peterborough Examiner.

Dear Sir: Reading in your issue of May 8th I see my name mentioned therein in the dismissals from Trent Canal and the cause continued unsatisfactory service. This I beg to state is a most untruthful statement. Does Mr. Killally want the public of Peterborough to believe that a man with 10 years' service continuous was given unsatisfactory service all that time? If such is the case, the public have been wasting money and Mr. Killaly has been sadly neglecting his duty in not discharging me long before now. I should also like to know where Mr. Killaly got this information from and how he formed this opinion of me during my close on 10 years' service.

I have seen him but five times on the canal; in fact, I was there some considerable time before he knew who I was. Mr. Killaly also has the laborer foreman on three months' probation; considering that the same man has held the position for three years or more, is there not a nigger in the wood pile there? I may also mention that when the assistant superintendent brought my last pay cheque I asked him then if there was anything detrimental to my character or work which would cause my discharge. He said no, that I always gave him satisfaction; he would be in touch with me and my work daily.

I sincerely hope, Mr. Editor, that you will publish this letter as it is only fair to me that I should clear myself of such an untruthful accusation. I beg to remain Very respectfully yours,

JOHN M. ALLEN.

What To-day Means To You.

"TAURUS."

If May 12th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., from 2:15 p.m. to 4:20 p.m. and from 8:45 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger hours are from noon to 1:45 p.m. and from 6:10 p.m. to 8:25 p.m.

A child born on this May 12th will as a result of precociousness promise much and generate great hopes. As maturity approaches, the flame will disappear and only a flicker will remain. It will develop along mediocre lines, but its disposition will be affectionate.

Born on May 12th, you have a romantic disposition, and are always investing "common-places" with a glitter that they do not possess. An incident becomes an adventure, while a trifle becomes a thing of importance. In this way, you magnify, not only pleasures, but troubles. It would be better for you to be able to measure action and thought at a just value, in order to avoid excesses of optimism or the despair of pessimism. Normalcy is always preferable to exaggeration.

You lack a sense of humor, and take yourself altogether too seriously. It is well to form and to hold strong convictions. There is not need, however, to air them in public, unless the occasion is propitious. Your ideas may mean much to you as an individual but they at times bore others.

You, when you feel like it, are a quick and hard worker. You are not, however, a steady one. Your nature is an affectionate one, and you are very appreciative of, and grateful for, kindness. There is no malice in your "make up"; you over-rate the virtues of your friends and underestimate their weaknesses. You, by your temperament, are more fitted to work in association with others than "go it on your own."

CARS COLLIDE.

Mr. I. Free of West Seymour, Has Smash-up Near Vanvolkenburg Farm.

TRENT RIVER, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — Two cars were badly damaged by a collision at the crossroads just south of Mr. George Vanvolkenburg's farm, on Saturday morning.

Mr. Isaac Free, of West Seymour, was travelling east on the concession road and on reaching the main road collided with a sedan car going south; the front wheels of both cars were broken off and the fenders of both cars were badly bent. This is a dangerous part of the road for traffic as the wooded land is very thick on the north side of the concession road, thus obstructing the view of traffic travelling on the main road.

TWO VESSELS COLLIDE

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., May 12 — (CP)—The United States shipping board steamer, Wytheville, bound from Rotterdam to New York, arrived here during the night with a big hole in her bows and mattress and bedding clinging to the twisted plates.

The vessel collided in a dense fog off the Isle of Wight with a French oil tanker, the Rhea. Two of the Rhea's crew were injured and one was reported missing. No one aboard the Wytheville was hurt.

MODERN SERVICE AT THE EMPRESS

Peterborough's Big Hotel Fills Every Requirement as Metropolitan Hostelry.

MOTTO IS SERVICE

The modern hotel is becoming more and more a necessity in the realms of commercial activity. Men and women in ever increasing numbers are making the hotel their home away from home. Also people coming from nearby towns and farms find it more convenient to stay over night at a modern hotel, that maintains reasonable rates, than to make the trip home and back again to complete their business. Every city that can boast of such a hotel as the Empress Hotel is sure of recognition not only in the surrounding territory, but throughout the entire country.

Messrs. George N. and C. G. Graham, the owners and managers of the Empress Hotel, have realized that to receive patrons from every walk of life that the rates must be within the reach of all. That in every way they render a most satisfactory service is evidenced in the fact that when a local hotel is mentioned, the Empress is first thought of. All rooms there are comfortably furnished and tastefully decorated, have plenty of ventilation, and with bath, either hot or cold, they offer the advantage of excellent service of the highest character, providing for most any desired want. There "Guest is King," meaning that when you register at the Empress they are at your service as long as you wish to stay—be it just over night or for months. A home resident of Peterborough is just as welcome there as a traveling salesman.

At the Empress Hotel they have in connection a modern dining room where you will find foods well cooked, wholesome and deliciously appetizing. The prices on all meals are very reasonable. In every way the Empress Hotel have proven themselves an ideal home away from home. Do you know the various rates at this modern hostelry?

$3.00 cash prizes given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Six in to-day's issue).

Active Living

Spring was a busy time for Mrs. Baxter. Holiday visits to plan — summer arrangements—outings for the children's "mid-year" — and many other things, meant constant activity. "I'd simply be lost without the telephone!" she admits. "I use Long Distance whenever I want to find out something. It's such a time-and-worry-saver!"

Old Oriental Set of Scales is Seized By Inspector of Weights and Measures

A curious and primitive set of Chinese scales, of the type used in Asia and Egypt more than four thousand years ago, were being used along George Street this morning by a Chinese vegetable peddler coming from Islington, Ontario. They were seized by F. J. Hart, inspector of weights and measures, as not conforming to the Canadian standards of weighing.

The beam was like a round mahogany yardstick, beautifully inlaid with Chinese brass symbols and graduations. The system of weighing was carried out by the use of four string loops at the top, with a solid turned brass goods pan suspended by three ropes about eighteen inches long. There was a typically Oriental iron weight to balance it. The method of determing the weight of vegetables was to place them in the pan and move the crude balancing iron along the rod until an approximate balance was secured.

Inspector Hart said that it was very unusual and interesting to find one of these outside of remote parts of the Far East, where such curious emblems of the past are still said to be in use. This particular set of scales will likely be sent to the Weights and Measures Museum in Ottawa.

The pedlar protested volubly against the seizure, promising not to use it again if allowed to keep it. But, as such an instrument was illegal, he was forced to give it up.

NEW YORK CENTRAL DECLINES 4 POINTS TO AN 8-YEAR LOW

Short Covering Causes Moderate Upturn in Early Afternoon at New York.

SOME MINOR LOSSES.

(By Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 12.—News that one of the leading trunkline railways failed to earn its fixed charges in the first quarter of the year gave Wall Street another excuse for gloom to-day.

Share prices slid slowly downward, but selling was in meagre volume, and short covering caused a moderate upturn in the early afternoon.

New York Central, which reported a small deficit for the first quarter, sold off about 4 points to an 8-year low. Atchison and Union Pacific dropped about 5. Missouri Pacific preferred tumbled more than 6, and the common half as much. Miscellaneous issues losing 2 points or so included Baltimore and Ohio, New Haven, Southern Pacific, U.S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, International Harvester, Dupont, and Columbia Carbon. Allied Chemical and Eastman lost about 4.

U.S. Steel alter cancelled its loss, and other declines where modified. Case sold up 4 points in short covering, and Chicago and Northwestern firmed on declaration of the regular dividend.

FREIGHTER AGROUND

WINDSOR, Ont., May 12. (CP)—The 450 foot collier J. E. Savage, upbound and loaded with coal went aground on Bob Log Island to-day. The ground took place during a heavy fog. The tug Harding is making an effort to release the ship without removal of any cargo.

COOK COMMITTED

BRAMPTON, Ont., May 12. (CP) William Cook, owner of a roadhouse on the Hamilton highway, was committed for trial on a charge of shooting with intent to maim, as a result of a fracas at the Chicory Inn on April 19, when Oscar Campbell received a bullet wound, when he appeared in police court to-day before Magistrate L. J. C. Bull.

PIONEER PASSES AWAY

WINDSOR, Ont., May 12.—(CP)—Victor Marentette, 76, died suddenly today as result of a heart attack. He was a native of Windsor and for more than 50 years conducted a stationery and book store on Ouelette Avenue.

Funeral services to to be held on Friday.

FRENCH NAVAL PROGRAM APPROVED

PARIS, May 12. (AP)—The Government's 42,000-ton naval building program for 1931-32 was approved to-night by the naval affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies. One battleship of 23,333 tons is included in the major program. The bill will be debated in the chamber early in June.

Chicago Grain Prices Hold Steady To-day

CHICAGO, Ill., May 12 (C.P.).—Unusual steadiness characterized grains early to-day. Word that the Federal Farm Board had disposed of practically the 35,000,000 bushels of wheat which it announced recently would be sold failed to have any immediate influence, being largely offset by positive reports that the 1931 domestic wheat crop would be marketed through usual trade channels. Opening 1-8 cent off to 1-8 up wheat afterward kept near to the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to 1-8 higher and subsequently made additional upturns.

"BENNETT" LOAN GREAT SUCCESS

More Than $150,000,000 of $250,000,000 Issue Been Subscribed Already.

BONDS RENEWED.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 12.—(C. P.)—The Canadian conversion loan being negotiated by At. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister and Acting Minister of Finance, is an immense success. More than $150,000,000 of the $250,000,000 issue, it was estimated at noon to-day, has been subscribed.

A total of $50,000,000 alone in bonds to be cancelled and renewed in the new issues have reached the Finance Department. From Montreal $26,000,000 has thus been received; from Toronto approximately $16,000,000, while the remaining $9,000,000 in bonds have been turned in direct to the Government. These largely represent yesterday's business. Returns have yet to be received from the offices of the assistant receiver generals at Halifax, Saint John, Charlottetown, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Victoria and the offices of the Bank of Montreal in New York and London which are ex-officio assistant receiver general offices.

Throughout the whole country, the reception to what was termed in Montreal last night as the "Bennett Conversion Loan" is excellent. Everywhere, the reaction in reports received is described as most favorable.

General List Decline On Montreal Exchange

MONTREAL, Que., May 12 (C.P.).—Losses were general on the Montreal stock exchange this morning. The opening was weak, and the list dropped steadily throughout the forenoon, six new lows were made with the banking issues the heavy sufferers.

Bank of Montreal was off 2 points to a new low at 272. Bank of Nova Scotia sold off a point to a new low at 315. Royal Bank lost 2 points to a new low at 263. Niagara Wire lost 1½ points for a new low at 11, and Asbestos was off a point to a new low at 5. Brazilian Traction dropped 1¼ points at 15 5-8 and Nickel was off 3-8 at 14 3-8, Canadian Pacific lost ½ at 29¼.

Winnipeg Review

There was little or no feature to the wheat market yesterday, trade being small and largely local. Prices during the first half of the day being fractionally lower right from the start and on the extreme dip sinking to ½ under the close on Saturday. The Liverpool market was easy, closing 1-8 to ¼ lower, prices paying no attention to the advance on this side on Saturday while exporters confirmed only a small business worked over the week end. Offerings were not heavy at any time and during the latter part of the day a little buying of October developed that was credited to Continental houses, and prices recovered, climbing fractionally over the close on Saturday. Otherwise there was very little doing. There were some light showers in Manitobas on Saturday, but the weather was generally clear throughout the west over the week-end. Some rains were received in American spring wheat territory and this caused Chicago to be weak with prices half to ¾ lower most of the day while Corn was also lower. Bulges were difficult to hold both markets again falling off to the low spots in the final trade. The demand for cash wheat in the local market was rather quiet, and while there was no no particular pressure of offerings, the spreads were about unchanged. The flour business was generally slow with perhaps a slight improvement in the domestic demand. North American shipped last week 99,996,000 bushels out of a total world shipment of 19,689,000, the largest in many months, but the On Passage supplies showed a large increase of 6,376,000 bushels. The Canadian Visible supply showed a sharp decrease of 5,604,000 bushels and the U.S. Visible decreased 1,860,000 bushels. On the dips there is very little pressure on this market and some export of one kind or another appears to develop. Winnipeg futures closed unchanged firming up at the finish.

Coarse Grains. The future markets were more or less quiet with price a little easier. No export was confirmed but there was a fair domestic demand for certain grades of Oats. Flax dull and featureless, trade small.

Liverpool Cables due ½ higher based on Winnipeg.

WALKERS LOSES FRACTION POINT

Brazilian Sells Under 16 For Single Point Loss in Second Hour Trading.

ALL LEADERS DROP.

TORONTO, Ont., May 12.—(CP)—Several of the leaders in Toronto stock exchange came down rather sharply at the opening this morning. The losses, however, were recorded with a minimum of disturbance and scarcely any stock was forced out at the lower levels.

Walkers, which last night had sold at 6¼, lost the fraction this morning as the stock eased consequent upon the announcement of a reduction in the annual dividend rate from $1 to 50 cents share. There was very little pressure, however, as with the stock on a 16 per ce nt basisa reduction in the dividend was the natural expectation. Plenty of stock appeared to be wanted at 6. Distillers eased slightly with Walkers, selling under 11 to-day.

Brazilian in the second hour sold under 16 for a net loss of more than a point International Nickel and Noranda lost ¼ and ½ point respectively. Ford of Canada was easier, some of the oils went lower in light turnover. Union Natural Gas lost 1½ points and De Forest Crosley, another curb issue, lost ¾ of a point.

Conditions In Japan Told Young Women

The Trinity Young Women's Auxiliary Association met last night at the home of Mrs. F. J. Allin, Sherbrooke street. In the absence of the president, Mrs. A Parker, the vice-president, Miss I Giles presided.

A motion was made and carried unanimously that the talent money system be used this year.

A number of paper were given by various members. "The Watch Tower on India" was given by Miss Edith Preston, and on "Japan" by Miss Nina Edwards. Mrs. George Richmond sang "Trees" in her usual pleasing manner. A very interesting paper on "Social Life and Social Problems of Japan" was given by Mrs. Ray Brown.

The family in Japan is the chief institution with the father as the head. Now, youth is demanding the right to choose their own life partners. The missionaries do much there, not only through preaching, but they have reformed prisons and attended lepers. The Japanese Christians now help the missionaries. They have furthered prison reforms and built orphanages. It is very difficult to enlist the aid of the government, but when the latter does help, it will go to almost any length. Christianity is supplying the force needed in Japan, but more workers are badly needed. Once they get the spirit of it, the Japanese are as loyal to Christianity as they are to family ties.

After the meeting last night, the ladies spent an enjoyable social half hour, before breaking up the gathering.

STANDARD LIST LACKS FEATURES

Majority of Movements Though Confined in Scope Downward in To-day's Trading.

HIGHER GOLDS HOLD.

TORONTO, Ont., May 12.—(CP)—Though confined in scope, majority of movements were downward on the mining market in the forenoon to-day. The list lacked featuring issues among the golds and oils, and the base metal section reflected April month-end copper statistics showing a substantital increase in stocks of refined metal.

Wright-Hargreaves was strong on the opening but sold off 4 to $3.10 around noon. Granda eased 5 and losses of a cent or so appeared in Sylvanite, Siscoe, Columario, Eldorado and St. Anthony. Hollinger firmed 10 and other higher-priced golds were holding.

Noranda was under light selling pressure and down a half to $22.40 at midday. Nickel eased a small fraction to $14.50. Sherritt Gordon sold up 3 in one sale and balance of the Lindsleys were quiet.

Acme Gas was up a point throughout the period but rights were unchanged at 7-8. Ajax oil sold off 5 to $1.25 and Homestead a point. Petrol and Nordon were in fair demand.

One of the prisoners is General Damaso Berenguer, former Premier, whose family had feared that the mob might attack him. He is detained under a vague charge of "falsification," and the Government, beyond assuring that impartial justice would be administered, has declined to comment on his case.

The capital was almost normal this afternoon although soldiers were in the streets keeping the crowds on the move when they stopped to look at the charred wreckage of the Catholic buildings.

Provinces Quietening.

Reports from the Provinces indicated that the excitement was subsiding there. Seville was quiet: there were no disorders in Toledo, and Barcelona, often a hotbed of political disturbance, was calm.

Business was at a standstill, however; banks were closed and the Stock Exchange probably will remain closed for the rest of the week. The peseta dropped to 9.97 to the dollar as compared to 9.8 before the riots began.

This afternoon a soldier shot a man caught looting one of the burned buildings. The wound may be fatal.

The Cabinet, which was in emergency session almost all night, has announced that it is determined to go ahead with the general elections next month when the people will choose a national assembly legalizing te present Government.

Piquant Dorothy Janis says: "I always use Lux Toilet Soap . . . it keeps my skin so wonderfully soft and smooth."

And vivacious Pauline Starke says: "This delicately fragrant white soap keeps my skin so beautifully smooth."

Petite Louise Lorraine tells us: "Lux Toilet Soap lathers so quickly . . . and it's so gentle to the skin."

And Belle Bennet, the charming explains: "A star's skin must always be satin-smooth. Lux Toilet Soap keeps it that way."

Olive Tell, whose skin has the soft smoothness of a flower, says: "Lux Toilet Soap has such soothing, caressing lather."

Vivacious Maria Alba always guards her skin with Lux Toilet Soap. "Its lather is so soothing, it leaves my skin like velvet," she says.

Joan Crawford, M.G.M. star, is never more irresistible than when the revealing close-up brings her radiant beauty near. "Lux Toilet Soap is wonderful for the skin," she says.

Bebe Daniels, Radio Pictures' fascinating star says: "It's wonderful for keeping the skin smooth and soft."

Mary Brian, the Paramount star whose radiant beauty never fails to captivate millions of hearts in the revealing close-up, says: "To keep my skin flawless I always care for it regularly with Lux Toilet Soap."

Bessie Love, petite M.G.M. star, says: "I always use Lux Toilet Soap to guard my skin. It is a lovely soap."

Alice White, triumphantly appealing First National star, says: "I always use Lux Toilet Soap. Smooth skin is necessary to pas the close-up test!" Do YOU pass the test of close, adoring eyes?

Clara Bow, scintillating Paramount star, tells: "Just notice the way people cluster around a girl who has lovely skin! . . . Lux Toilet Soap is such a help in keeping the skin in perfect condition!"

Fascinating Lila Lee explains: "In Hollywood we call exquisite skin the close-up complexion. Lux Toilet Soap is my favorite beauty care."

Anita Page, charming little M.G.M star, says: "I use Lux Toilet Soap, and never fear the close-up."

Ruth Chatterton, the Paramount star, who has endeared herself to the hearts of millions, faces the blazing close-up lights with a skin of alluring beauty. "Every screen star knows the power of lovely skin to win adoration. And, of course, no girl can pass the close-up test without it. I always use Lux Toilet Soap to guard complexion beauty," she says.

Betty Compson, Radio Pictures' star, says: "Such a delightful way to guard complexion beauty!"

Of the countless [illegible] Broadway, European [illegible] this soap, some have the [illegible] inclined to dryness some [illegible] that tends to be oily; some the in-between skin.

SLIGHT INCREASE.

WARKWORTH, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—A special meeting of the Municipal Council of the township of Percy met in the town hall May 7th to meet and confer with the commissioners of the Police, village of Warkworth in reference to the diversion between them of the township toll money received by the levy for township purposes in each and every year.

W. J. Baker, reeve, was in the chair with all members present. The police village commissioners were also present namely J. A. Armstrong, B Buchanan and C. O. Dudley.

After a careful perusal and checking up of the auditor's reports of the receipts and expenditures of the Municipal Council for the year 1930 it was resolved that, whereas a petition or petitions have been circulated and have been largely signed by the ratepayers of the village of Warkworth on the one hand and by several ratepayers of the township of Percy just outside and along the boundaries of the said police village of Warkworth, and whereas it has been suggested by certain ratepayers of the township of Percy that there should be a readjustment in the division of the township rate which according to the original agreement was 75 per cent for the said police village and 25 per cent to be reserved in favor of the township of Percy to meet the expenses of salaries etc. Be it therefore resolved after due consideration and discussion by and between the Municipal Council of the township of Percy and the police village of commissioners in joint session that the said division of the said township rate shall now be on the basis of 68 per cent for the police village and 32 per cent for the township of Percy in connection with the said township rate.

Moved by W. J. Baker, seconded by James Lamey that the above agreement re township of Percy and police village of Warkworth be accepted by this council, carried.

FIRST ST. JOHN'S TROOP.

As usual last Friday the Scouts of the First St. John's Peterborough Troop held their weekly meeting in the Parish Hall. The turnout of the boys was a little below standard and an improvement in attendance next week is looked for.

After the usual opening and patrol inspection, Mr. Tompkins of the St. John's Ambulance Corps gave the boys some practical instruction in artificial respiration. This work is being stressed by the Scout Association throughout the Dominion this year.

When this period was completed the boys went to their "corners" where they carried on with their usual work.

The recreation period, under the troop leader, took the form of a route run from the Parish Hall to Park Hill road and back. At this time it was discovered that some of the leaders were not very strong runners.

During the short camp fire period two important announcements were made. The first was to the effect that Dr. Blagrave, troop chaplain, had invited the troop to attend church in a body Sunday morning, May 24th, Empire and Victoria Day. A similar invitation has been extended to the rest of the troops of the city through the District Commissioner. The second important announcement referred to a troop camp this summer, arrangements for which are rapidly being completed.

At this time also, reference was made to the fine showing made at Stratford by the St. John's Boys' Choir, whose membership includes some half dozen boys from the troop.

The meeting was closed in the usual manner.

The boys are asked to remember that if their "open night" is to be a success they must be on hand every Friday to help prepare for it. This "open night" has been scheduled for May 29.

KEENE.

CHURCH LADIES ENJOY BANQUET

PLEASING PROGRAM.

Following the special Mother's Day celebrations on Sunday, the mothers and daughters of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, met around the festive board last night, under the auspices of the Girls' Club. To the number of one hundred and twenty-five these young ladies and matrons enjoyed a supper par excellence, and "mere man" in the form of members of the Men's Association, plied deft hands to wait upon the diners The whole affair was capably arranged, reflecting, also, credit on the Ladies' Aid Society in preparation of the edibles.

During supper, Clara Patterson, sprightly song leader, and Velma Strong at the piano, conducted the assembly in the old favorites, everyone entering into the affair with a will. This led to the program of several interesting items as follows:

Toast to the King; to Our Mothers, Sybil Jackson; reply by Mrs. Fred Rowan; solo, Mrs. Richard Cowan; Whistling solo, Mignon Mayneord; Toast to the Daughters, Mrs. Flitton; reply by Isobel Deyell.

The expressions of each speaker were couched in filial regard and respect for the mothers, eulogistic of the part played by them, and a touch of the memory of those who have passed on.

The principal item on the programwas an address by Miss E. McVannel, secretary of the Y.W.A. of Peterborough Presbytery, W.M.S. Her talk of forty-five minutes was expressive of the part played in daily life between daughter and mother, of the need of co-operation and confidence in the problems which confront them. The speaker stressed the plan of a happy and cordial understanding ,giving Biblical instances of mothers and daughters who were historic figures in those bygone days, and who could be emulated to advantage at the present day. Miss McVannel urged this spirit to be shown among her hearers, and thereby reap the blessings which are the outcome of such confidence. Church work was urged upon the young women as a great means to make their talents become known.

The address was filled with rich advice and rare enthusiasm, and received an appreciative hearing and applause.

Mrs. Jack McNabb, as chairwoman of the gathering, welcomed the guests, and called votes of thanks to all who had taken part in the entertainment, Ladies' Aid, and Men, and these were moved by Miss Nina Davidson, seconded by Mrs. Harry Morgan. The Mizpah benediction was the final act of the evening.

See Canada First

It has often been proven that the people of one section of Canada know but very little, from first-hand knowledge, of the other sections of the country. With transportation systems as they are, there is little excuse for this condition, for it is of vital importance to the well-being of the Dominion that this condition of ignorance regarding the whole country be overcome.

An admirable opportunity for seeing Canada as a whole, and forming an estimate of its varying conditions in different sections, is provided in the annual tour across Canada and back, which is now being organized by Dean Sinclair Laird, of Macdonald College, Quebec. For the last seven years, Dean Laird has been organizing these tours, which, starting from Montreal and Toronto, extend through the prairie provinces to the far Pacific coast and back by the Canadian Pacific Railway. There is a wealth of educational possibility in the trip, as well as a prospect for an enjoyable holiday within the boundaries of Canada. The trip lasts three weeks, and embraces all that is worth seeing and knowing of the western half of Canada. Surely such a trip deserves the consideration of those who every year plan extended holiday tours. The lure of other lands as holiday haunts must always take second place to the lure of the beauty spots of the west, and of the new cities which have arisen on the western plains, of the Canadian Rockies, the lakes of British Columbia, and Alberta, and the glories of the Pacific Coast.

In the last seven years, these tours have been wonderfully successful, and have drawn enthusiastic comments from those who participated in them. With the added merit of helping to dispel sectional misunderstandings which have hindered the true development of Canada and of enabling the Canadians of the east to see and understand the west, the Dean Laird Across Canada Tour should have a wide appeal, and to those who might be going to other countries for a summer trip, it suggests the slogan "See Canada First."

Calgary Council Meet Is Stormed By Reds

CALGARY, Alta., May 12 (C.P.)—Sixty Communists who swarmed into the council chamber last night to protest against police interference with their May-Day demonstration, were threatened with further police contact by Mayor Andy Davison before quiet was resumed at the council meeting. There were no arrests, though police entered the room at the Mayor's call and stood ready to quell any disturbance.

Council voted to resume the direct relief of two meals and a bed a day to single unemployed men who were on the city relief lists when assistance was cut off April 30.

NOTED VIOLINIST DIES IN BRUSSELS

IN 73RD YEAR.

BRUSSELS, May 12 (AP)—Eugene Ysaye, who broke most of the traditions of the violin to become one of the world's great masters of that instrument, died at 4:30 a.m. to-day after a long and wearing illness. He would have been 73 years old July 16.

As early as the middle of 1923 Ysaye was suffering from diabetes phlebitis, and a year later had to undergo amputation of his right leg. He seemed to recover but late in 1930 became ill again. At the time of presentation of his opera he was thought to be on the road to recovery but recently took a sudden turn for the worse from which he never rallied.

Ysaye was married twice, his first wife dying in 1924. His second wife was a United States girl, 24 years his junior, Miss Annette Dixon, daughter of Dr. Herman Dincin of Brooklyn. He took her first as a pupil and later married her at Le Zoute, a Belgian seaside resort.

Ysaye was known for the original style of his playing and sometimes was called a musical colorist. He terminated his engagement as conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra in 1919 after dissension had arisen among the members at alleged favoritism to certain musicians.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

MARLENE DIETRICH IN "DISHONORED"

Marlene Dietrich, the new German actress who is said to be dislocating Greta Garbo's nose quite permanently, is also considered to be the possessor of the most shapely pair of legs in Hollywood. They form the first and last exhibit in "Dishonored," although it isn't that sort of a picture at all. They are merely items in a production that goes in for subtle effects.

This lady certainly creates interest. Her pictures hold the attention permanently from the first to the last "dissolve," as they term those overlapping scenes that have such an odd presentation in this story. It is a production that reminds one of that saying by Neitzsche, "Women are like cats, essentially unpeaceable but capable of assuming a peaceable demeanour." X27, as the heroine is known, for she happens to be an Austrian spy, assumes a peaceable demeanour throughout—and takes it out on the piano.

"Dishonored" has a perfectly logical but unhappy ending. The lady informs on her lover, has him arrested as a Russian spy, and then helps him to escape, while she bears the brunt of such treachery, with a smile. These super-women that the talkies are introducing lately are marvellously strong females, but they are just a little trying on the nerves. After all, perhaps the clinging vine is the proper feminine caper.

It has all the elements of excitement—a street-woman turned overnight into a successful spy, using her lure to trap men to their death-scenes of glamour, like the carnival with the "Blue Danube" music echoing throughout—the cat and mouse episode with the enamored Russian colonel—then the swift finale and the firing party at dawn. Victor McLaglen makes a perfect foil, with his insolent daring and his courage. Warner Oland is the Russian spy who gets caught by the woman, and commits suicide. One of the most striking minor parts is that of the black cat with its brilliant eyes, and Dietrich brings with her the little dolls that she regards as mascots and that appear with her in every picture. It is an absorbing and unusual production with this unusual woman as the star.—Jeanette.

MANUFACTURERS GIVEN POINTERS BY PRINCE ON S. AMERICAN TRADE

POOLS EXPERIENCES.

LONDON May 12. (By Thos. T Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—In speeches at Birmingham last evening and at Manchester today the Prince of Wales told British manufacturers little they have not already heard more or less casually from less distinguished and less authoritative sources. But the Prince spoke so candidly that his speeches are certain to remain the most memorable he has yet made.

He struck a sympathetic note at the outset with the remark: "I want to pool my experiences with yours in an effort to determine how we can keep the place we hold in South America and how best to prepare to take any advantage of the first signs that the clouds are lifting." And he did not hesitate to refer to his travels as a justification of his present utterances.

Main Pointers

Striking remarks by His Royal Highness were the following:

"People to-day want cheaper goods because they have got into the habit of wanting to change for the sake of change. Our foreign competitors are supplying these."

"The South American mentality calls for bright colors."

"Don't send our subordinates to study markets. Let your representatives learn to speak Spanish. I learned a little myself."

"As a nation we are behind in advertising. I have heard many Englishmen say that the American way of boosting their goods is very vulgar. Nevertheless our friends in the United States 'get away with it'."

"South America suffers from a surfeit of news in the way of North American newspapers. This is where I would like to say a word to my newspaper friends. You really should do something better to establish more efficient service of British news in that continent. The present generation knows something of the political and commercial relations with Britain and of our best achievements, but the younger generation cannot possibly understand these things in the same way, and it is their outlook that we must endeavour to affect if we are to arrest what I know is a decline in our prestige in South America."

Travelled by Air

"With one exception my brother and I did all our travels in the Argentine by air and in English machines all the time. Argentine is one vast aerodrome. There seems to be a real opportunity for railways who will be confronted by this competition to initiate some form of air service in co-operation with the railway system."

Fourteen hundred business men gathered at Birmingham to hear the Prince last evening, and, making his first public appearance since his return from South America, he received an ovation. He flew to Manchester for his engagement there to-day.

McDougall Is Given Three-Month Term

McDougall was living with Isabelle Edwards in Lindsay as man and wife and in order to carry the situation through he forged the marriage certificate, Crown Attorney McElderry told the court to-day. "McDougall is a married man with two children and both the girl and her mother knew that before the girl went away wth him," Mr. McElderry concluded.

EXILE'S REMAINS BURIED AT DREUX

SPENT LIFE EXPLORING.

DREUX, France, May 12 (A.P.) — While Republican France discussed to-day the chances of Paul Doumer and Aristide Briand at tomorrow's election in Versailles, a few staunch Royalists, a number of whom bear historic names and titles gathered here this forenoon for the funeral of a man who might have been the nation's king.

More than five years after his death at Palermo, Sicily, the remains of Philip, Duke of Orleans, were brought here yesterday in the utmost secrecy. This morning at 11 a.m., the coffin containing them was borne reverently into the historic chapel of Saint Louis, and a solemn Mass of Requiem sung for the repose of the exile Prince's soul. Then the bier was taken to the chapel crypt, and the long-wandering Pretender to the throne was at last laid at rest beside the illustrious dead of his famous family.

Chief among the mourners was the Duchess of Guise, sister of the royal exile, and wife of his cousin, the present Pretender to the French crown.

Suffered in Exile

Philip suffered extremely during his years of exile, and at the outbreak of the Great War endeavored to be allowed to serve in the French army, or failing that in an Allied one. He appealed in a personal letter to President Wilson to be allowed to serve in the United States forces, once that country entered the conflict, but the Allied leaders, bowing to the objections of the French Government, were adamant, and Wilson had to decline. He who might have been Philip VIII of France spent his life in explorations in the Aretic and Africa, and died at Palermo, March 28, 1926, with his hands clasping a little sachet containing earth from France.

DOUKHOBORS ASK PARLEY ON PEACE

Contend All Violence Is Performed By Radical Sons of Freedom Sect.

WILL EXPLAIN PROBLEMS.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 12.—Peace conference between British Columbia Doukhobors, Provincial Police and Canadian residents of southern interior has been arranged at a meeting between Assistant Police Commissioner J. M. Dunwoody and Peter Veregin, Doukhobor leader. Advices to police headquarters state the conference will be held at Thrums Friday. Representations of all Doukhobor districts will attend.

The assistant commissioner said in a telegram to police headquarters that he attached much importance to the conference. The precise purpose of the meet is not definitely known. It was proposed by Veregin and the community Doukhobors, who told Mr. Dunwoody they wanted to explain their problems and their program to the Canadian residents of the southern interior. Besides police officers, leading Canadian citizens of the Doukhobor district will attend.

The Doukhobors' contention is that all violence among the community's settlements is attributable to the radical sect, Sons of Freedom ,and that the great majority of the colonists desire to live in peace and in conformity with Canadian laws.

W. A. FRASER, M.P., ADDRESSES CAMPBELLFORD ROTARY CLUB

Gives Graphic Description of Business and Economical Conditions of To-day.

OUTLINES RUSSIA'S PLAN

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — A fine graphic description of business and economic conditions in Canada and a side line on the Russian situation was given by W. A. Fraser, Federal member for Northumberland, at the weekly meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club held yesterday, when many visitors were included in the large audience that gathered for the occasion. The club president, H. N. Carr, occupied the chair.

Mr. Fraser prefaced his remarks by saying that none of his statements had a political bearing nor was he a pessimist, but that he was portraying conditions as they were. "Business conditions as they existed today in the world are passing through a period of reconstruction which is affecting all concerned" he said.

This period he said was not one of depression as had affected the country before, for the conditions were different from other such periods, and it was questionable whether it would lead from the present democracy to a state of socialism or centralization. "Minds in all countries were trying to fathom the reasons for these conditions and find a cure for them." The 1921-22 depression period was caused from the aftermath of the war he pointed out, explaining that since that time the developmen of science had aken up the slack of the industry in connection with radio, the stabilization of the auto trade and the improvement of machinery. At the present moment there was no possible expansion in the future. Capitalization and the condition created by it was bound to bring on the present condition, some of the big problems of the day upon which the minds of the world were working being the cancellation of war debts, revision of tariff barriers, the length of working days, and the gold and silver standards.

Russian Situation

Mr. Fraser outlined the Russian revolution which caused a change in the country from an autocracy to Bolshevism and where the country passed through stages of re-construction within the course of a few months altering the status of all the people. The Soviet scheme was tried, but in 1924 Lenin formulated a policy which after his death was acted upon by Stalin, who the speaker described as "the man of Russia." After two years' study of internal conditions and five years concentration on ouside phases of the situation, during which time intelligence departments were established in every large center in the world for the purpose of making a study of the social, economical and agricultural conditions, a definite plan was adapted known as the "Five Year Plan."

"Russia had the most futile, human soil to work on" stated the speaker" and 78 per cent. of the population were illiterate. The first think that was done was to universally improve the status of the people. They also limited the export of gold and concentrated on the three natural resources that were easy to obtain and of which they had a plentiful supply, wheat lumber and coal.

"Then the human field was scrutinized and over 10,000 experts from the United States were employed by Russia to handle certain phases of her development. Professor Day of the United States also went to the country in charge of the educational situation and such policies were formulated as the compulsory teaching of the English language. It was a known fact that villages of over three hundred population not only had their own schools but also their community hospitals.

Scheme Will Work Out

"There is no question that the Russian Soviet scheme is working out and will work out for many years to come" declared Mr. Fraser.

"Russia is the most serious menace that Canada has to face at the present time" said Mr. Fraser. He thought that the United States was to a great extent responsible for this because it had drained the world of its gold by forcing payments of war debts and had established credits in Russia and sold to them and had so been responsible for the Five Year Plan. "It would not be advisable to condemn Russia" he said, "economically we had to accept her but to be very careful." He believed Canada had to do business with Russia or other countries would. He was not interested in the religious phase he stated but the business aspect. "We must have the cancellation of war debts" the speaker declared "and the reconstruction of internal and external debts."

The only hope for Russia as far as Canada was concerned the speaker thought, was that with the success of the present plan the workers would demand improved living conditions which would necessitate more wages, whereby the system would become modified and a gradual state of evolution commence. He thought that it was absolutely imperative that through dire necessity trade within the Empire and with the Motherland must become possible, and in conclusion urged upon all to make a study of the situation giving it as the duty of every citizen to do so.

S. H. Neale and R. Smith moved a vote of thanks to the speaker which was conveyed to him by the president.

BORLAND'S CARRY FINE DRUG LINE

STOCKS IS PURE

Borland's Drug Store offers to the people of Peterborough and vicinity a supply of purest drugs, sundries, medicines, candies and photographic supplies. The stock is complete at all times and they represent one of the city's most reliable institutions. Speaking of drugs or prescriptions is synonymous with the name of the Borland Drug Store. People have learned this and know that there is no need of substituting. They know that at Borland's there is always a qualified druggist on duty to serve them.

The proprietors of the Borland Drug Store, Messrs. Homer and Gilbert A. Borland, are both registered pharmacists, so one may be well assured of getting their most intricate prescription properly filled at that store. If you are living in the rural district and need drugs or other supplies and are not able to get into town, you may telephone or write them your order and they will send it to you promptly by parcel post. This parcel post delivering of drug sundries, prescriptions, sickroom supplies, toilet articles, candies, etc., is a strictly new and modern feature. At Borland's Drug Store you will also find kodaks, films and every photographic supply, and they are glad to give you every assistance that you may get the best results in amateur photography. Then, too, you will find the film printing and developing turned out by them to be clear and permanent, yet promptly done, and inexpensive. They also carry high grade, popular brands of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos, from which you may chose your favorite smoke.

The management of Borland's Drug Store is to be commended upon their efficient business methods, and the people of Peterborough and surrounding territory may well be proud of having such a progressive drug establishment in their midst. Do you know the approximate number of rolls of films that are developed by Borland's in the month of June?

INSTITUTES ATTEND MILLBROOK SERVICE

Rev. John Riddell Addresses Members of the Women's Institutes.

MILLBROOK, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—A service of peculiarly solemn import and impressiveness was held at Grace Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, the occasion having a double significance since it was not only the last time Rev. John Riddell would appear before his congregation in the relationship of pastor and people, his removal to his new charge at St. Mary's taking place this week, but it was also the time chosen for the annual church attendance of the Women's Institutes of the district, over one hundred of the membership being present.

Beautiful foliage plants and blossoms were banked within the altar, and the special music by the choir, with Miss Grace Johnson presiding at the organ, included an anthem, "The Lord is In His Holy Temple," and a solo, "My Mother's Prayer," by Miss Eileen Hunter. The Institute members met in the church basement and proceeded upstairs to the auditorium at 7.30 p.m., with Mrs. T. A. Skitch, the District President, and Miss Ada Richardson, the first president of the Institute when it was organized at Millbrook thirty years ago, heading the line of march. Besides the local branch, there were representatives from Bethany, Baillieboro and Cavan included in those present on Sunday evening.

Rev. Mr. Riddell extended a warm welcome, on behalf of himself and his congregation, to the visiting organization, a printed Order of Service, with hymns, responsive scripture readings, and prayers making up the ritual, being supplied throughout the church so that everyone present had opportunity of taking part in the praise and worship.

The text was chosen from Genesis 3, 16, "Unto the women he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; in sorrow shalt thou bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee," and in his discourse the minister began with the words, "This is the judgment of God upon woman," and continued with facts concerning the struggle between the patriarchal and the matriarchal systems as shown in the Old Testament.

Contrasting the position of women as set forth in Old Testament times, and her privileges and opportunities since the coming of Christ, the speaker emphasized the fact that "there is only one religion which has placed woman on an equality with man, and that is the religion of Jesus. No wonder opposition grew as He propounded His new views of human relationships, eventually to His death on the cross."

Mr. Riddell made a brief reference to the severing of the relationship which had happily existed between himself and his people during the past five years, thanking them for sympathy and support, and wishing them God speed in all their undertakings, before pronouncing the benediction.

EMIR ABANDONS HOPES OF THRONE

Amanullah Leaves For Suez After Pilgrimage to Moslem Holy City.

TRIP ENTIRELY PIOUS.

SIMLA, India, May 11. (AP)—If former King Amanullah of Afghanistan had any intention of going back to Kabul after his pilgrimage to Mecca and making a bid for his former throne he apparently has given up the idea.

He was reported to-day to have left Jeddah for Suez Saturday after having completed his trip to the Moslem holy city and it is understood that he is returning to his family in Italy.

When the former Emir set out upon his pilgrimage last month it was reported here that he was planning to make his way secretly through Afghanistan in an effort to reclaim his throne. Now, however, there seems little doubt that his object in journeying to Mecca was entirely pious, he hoping thus to put himself right in the eyes of orthodox Moslems, who had been greatly disturbed by rumors that he contemplated adopting Christianity.

Diamond's Girl Friend Indicted For Assault

CATSKILL, N.Y., May 11.—Marion Roberts, show girl friend of Jack (Legs) Diamond, was indicted for assault in the second degree to-day as a Green County Grand Jury which returned a total of nine indictments against Diamond and his gang.

She is charged with assault in connection with the Grover Parks torture case. Parks, a Cairo truckman, was kidnapped, beaten and tortured after he refused to answer questions about a load of cider he was hauling along a mountain road.

Miss Roberts, according to Parks, was present when he was dragged from his truck, taken to a patch of woods, beaten and tortured.

MARMORA UNITED CHURCH.

MARMORA, May 11.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Mothers' Day and Rally was observed in the United Church Sunday school with the school assembling at 10.30 a.m. instead of 10 a.m. and uniting with the regular service at 11 a.m. when a special program appropriate for the occasion was rendered by the school.

At St. Paul's morning service the rector, Rev. A. B. Caldwell, spoke on "Motherhood," his text being "Son, Behold Thy Mother."

PREMIER SILENT WHEN QUERIED

Govt's Intention as to Placing Cereal Growing on Sound Basis Not Enlarged.

ANSWERS UNSATIFACTORY.

LONDON, May 12 (C.P.)—Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald again refused to be drawn when questioned in the House of Commons this afternoon on the Government's intentions in regard to the placing of cereal growing on an economically sound basis.

The questioner gave notice that owing to the unsatisfactory nature of the Prime Minister's answer, he would raise the matter on motion of adjournment when opportunity offered.

The Prime Minister had been asked whether he intended to defer announcement of his proposals to put cereal growing on an economically sound basis until after the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference, and whether he would give an undertaking that an announcement would in any case be made before the end of September in order the farmers might be aware of its terms before they sowed their next crops.

The Prime Minister said he regretted he had nothing to add to his previous statement on the subject. Some days ago he had referred a questioner to the statement of policy last August, that the Government intended to place cereal growing on an economically sound basis, but he declined at that time to say whether the Imperial Conference of last autumn had had any affect on the Government's policy.

APPLE BLOSSOM TIME

QUEENSBORO, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—The comedy entitled "Apple Blossom Time" in three acts was staged in the Orange Hall on Friday evening under the auspices of the Queensboro L.O.B.A. No. 465. The actors were twelve young people of the Tweed Anglican Church under the direction of Rev Mr. Wright, the pastor of the congregation. There was an abundance of humor and each character was well played.

Bob Matthews, an unwilling visitor at the crossroads was acted by Fred White. Bob seemed to have a peck of trouble and at times was rather unhappy due somewhat to his unwillingness to yield to the entreaties of one Betty Ann Stewart, a rather crafty but persistent young lady represented by Frances Carleton. Bob was knocked down by Betty Ann who drove a flivver somewhat recklessly and just at the time he was going to bring the young lady to time for her unruly conduct the village constable arrived in search of a fellow who [illegible] in a car. Betty learned that Bob was the man sought by the constable, Gal Pickens, who was represented by Walter Leal and to save herself she threatened to expose Bob.

Charlie Lawrence represented by C. D Wilson was a peace maker and the one who always was able to discover an easy way of escape from every difficulty. Spud McGlosky from Sunshine Alley acted by Stanley Tufts found a life partner in Annabel Spriggins, the village old maid, who was represented in Velma White.

Mickey Maguire, also from Sunshine Alley, represented by Rupert Stewart, was the fellow who was always out of luck and each time came upon the scene a little too late. He was arrayed in plug hat and fine attire but generally came around just when another chap had secured the young lady he sought to have accompany him to the garden party.

Ruby Tufts played the part of Nancy Prescott a pretty neighbor, and was rather fortunate, coming in for considerable praise and was readily chosen as was Loretta Harris, the prettiest girl in the village, who was represented by Helen Hogerman.

Mrs. Richard Young took the part of Polly Biddle whose work was to take care of the Forrest home which was one of grandeur being very expensive and costly.

Laura Thompson represented Malvina Kurtz, a young lady whose apparent only ambition was to secure a beau but who was most unfortunate in her quest. She and Mickey were the left overs.

Mrs. Fred Leal acted the part of Mrs. Forrest, the haughty sister-in-law of Tad Forrest. She was bound to assert the death of Tad and claim his property. She tried upon two occasions to prove her claims and was determined to put Tad's family out of the home. Charlie the peace maker came to the rescue and things were finally adjusted.

Lunch was served to the visitors from Tweed.

MOTHER'S DAY IS WELL OBSERVED

Very Appropriate Program Conducted in Millbrook United Church.

BAPTISMAL SERVICE

MILLBROOK, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual Mother's Day service was fittingly observed in Saint Andrew's United Church at morning worship on Sunday, a union of the Sunday School and congregation being held at 10.30, with the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., and the superintendent, W. Fred Fallis, in charge.

The pastor conducted a baptismal service before the sermon, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Merton Thexton, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Sutton, and Mr. and Mrs. Allie Fallis bringing their babies for this solemn ritual. Russel David Sutton, Velma Luella Thexton, Herbert Wilberforce Ball, and Herbert William Fallis were the four children for whom the impressive rite was performed.

A reading, "The Cap That Mother Made," was given by Miss Dorothy McDowell, and Rev. Mr. Jones' illustrated talk specially to the boys and girls was particularly helpful and interesting.

Rev. Mr. Jones made fitting reference to the graduation of Ernest L. Burnham, "a member of this church and Sunday School," from the University of Toronto, results of the examinations having appeared on Saturday; and also to the intended departure of Mr and Mrs H. W. Johnston for an extended holiday, wishing them a "happy trip and a safe return," and mentioning how keenly they will be missed from the choir and the church in the weeks ahead, while they are at the Pacific Coast.

By special request the quartette, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," was sung by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. M. McDowell, following the sermon, and the service closed with the Benediction repeated in unison. The secretary's report showed 239 teachers, officers and scholars present, and an offering of ten dollars for the O.R.E.C. fund.

MOURNING WARDROBE

"A death occurred in our family and I had to go in mourning. I could hardly afford to buy all black clothes, so decided to dye what I had. I consulted our druggist and he advised using Diamond Dyes. Everything came out beautifully; coats, wool dresses, stockings and all. I have since learned to appreciate the excellence of the black Diamond Dyes. I tried another black dye and the results were impossible. I had to get Diamond Dyes and do the work over. Recently I have tinted my curtains a beautiful raspberry shade and dyed a rug a lovely garnet with Diamond Dyes. They are real money savers—the finest dyes money can buy—I truly believe."

PRESENTATION MADE REV. JOHN RIDDELL

Pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church at Millbrook is Leaving Community.

MILLBROOK, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—Rev. John Riddell, who has been the minister of Grace Presbyterian Church for the past five years, and has won for himself many warm friends during that period, was presented with a purse of gold at a largely-attended congregational gathering held in the church basement on Thursday evening, Mr. James H. Paul tak ing the chair.

Mrs. Riddell was remembered with her husband in the gift, both being invited by the chairman to take seats on the platform, Vernon R. Hunter reading an address voicing the appreciation of the church members and officials in the fine work accomplished throughout the years of the relationship as pastor and people, the purse being presented by Mr. James Kennedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Riddell each replied briefly, and all joined heartily in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." A number of those prominent in the church life spoke during the evening, keen regret being generally felt at the severance of the relationship which has happily existed through the years of pastoral service.

A short program featured community singing, a solo by Mrs. John Thompson, a duet by Mr. V. R. and Miss Eileen Hunter, a reading by Mr. W. E. Belch, and also by Miss Audrey Larmer.

Refreshments were served at the close and a pleasant social hour enjoyed, the singing of "God Be with You Till We Meet Again" expressing what was undoubtedly the sincere wish of every heart.

King's Wharf Y.P.L. Plans Annual Banquet

Committee Appointed to Look After Program—Several Readings Given.

KING'S WHARF, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of the Young People's League of St. John's United Church was held Friday with a good attendance.

The secretary, Miss Irene Humphrey gave the marks for attendance on each side since league began last August, devotional winning, Missionary second and literary and social being tied for third place.

Business was then discussed and it was decided to hold the annual banquet next Friday night. A committee namely, Miss Mabel Hunter, Effie Killaby, Carmen Killaby and Bobby McIsaac was chosen to look after the program for that night.

The program was then left in charge of social convener, Miss Dorothy Ranson. The scripture reading from 1st Peter, 4 chapter, verses 8-16 was given by Miss Mabel Hunter. Bobby McIsaac gave the explanation of the lesson. A reading "Housecleaning" was given by Mrs. William Embury. Mrs. Sandy Millage and Mrs. Embury sang a duet accompanied by Mrs. James Campbell on the organ.

Rev. M. L. Hinotn, pastor, then gave a very fitting address. A game Bible baseball was then played. The president, Mrs. Campbell treated the league to popcorn and candy.

A number from here attended the special services at Trinity United Church, Bobcaygeon, last Sunday also the supper and concert on Monday evening. Rev. W. B. Craw assisted Rev. Mr. Hinton both on Sunday and on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Hunter were business visitors to Lindsay last Saturday.

Mr. Gayton Kimble visited friends here on Thursday.

Dr. A. F. Kinnon, V.S. made a professional visit to this district last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred White were the guests of friends in Lindsay Saturday.

WARKWORTH

The meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Paul's Church was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. Harper, Thursday afternoon. The program which was interesting was in charge of Mrs. Harper and Mrs. E. W. Gordon. At the close of the meeting a dainty lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Chislet and Mrs. Whaley have returned to Rochester after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker.

Mrs. James Angus returned Friday after spending the winter with relatives in Rochester.

GALT GIRL PREPARES TO SPAN ATLANTIC BY AIR

The sketch reproduced here shows Miss Edith McColl, a young Galt, Ontario, stenographer, against a background of the airplane in which she plans to fly the Atlantic in July. Miss McColl, although a typist of necessity by profession, is an aviatrix at heart and by training. It is her wish, so she says to prove the safety of present-day flying. This she hopes to accomplish by alighting at Croydon airdrome, London. Miss McColl received her instruction in flying in Hamilton and Toronto since 1928.

SURPRSE PARTY.

Havelock Couple Are Made Presentation on Eve of Departure to Vinelands.

HAVELOCK, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — A large number of friends met in the Havelock Mission hall on Wednesday evening to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Sam. Southward, who are leaving town in the near future to take up residence in Vinelands. The event was kept a secret from Mrs. Southward until the last moment and everything was carried out most sucessfully. A nicely planned musical program was a feature of the evening's entertainment, and in the intermission Mrs. Southward was called to the platform and presented with a beautiful clock and lamp, the gift of the members, and a morocco-bound hymn book, the gift of two other friends. Messrs. A. Smith and S. Snell made the presentation, which was accompanied by an address read by Mrs. Chase.

Mr. D. Garner acted as chairman, and the following program was much enjoyed: Recitation by Gordon Vance; musical selection, Mr. Kinnaird and Mrs. Southward; duet, "The Church by the Side of the Road," Mrs. Chase and Mrs. Southward; short address by Mr. J. O'Neill; pianoforte solo by Maurice Williams; quartette, "I Lay My Sins on Jesus," Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Southward and Messrs. O'Neil and Garney; reading by Mrs. Watson; musical duet, Mrs. Kinnaird and Mrs. Chase; children's chorus, led by Mr. O'Neil; musical trio, Mrs. Kinnaird, Mrs. Chase and Mrs. Southward; solo, "There's a Mother Always Waiting for You at Home," Mrs. Chase; solo, "His Eye Is On the Sparrow," by Mrs. Southward; closing hymn, "God Be With You 'Til We Meet Again." The meeting closed with prayer and a delightful lunch was served.

BREDIN'S BREAD IS HEALTH FOOD

Made of Finest Ingredients Under Modern Sanitary Conditions.

WHETS THE APPETITE

The popularity of Bredin's Bread is strongly and surely attested in the large and rapidly increasing patronage of the Bredin Bread Company. Success and happiness depend upon health, and health depends upon the quality of the food we eat. Today the responsibility of making good bread has been placed upon the baker. Recognizing this responsibility, the Bredin Bread Company, backed by their long and continued efforts to make an ever better bread, furnish the people Bredin's Bread, which is a bread to satisfy the taste of the most discriminating and satisfy the most hearty appetite.

Nothing is used in the process of making Bredin's Bread but the very best grades of flour, pure milk, sugar, salt and other ingredients, mixed and baked by means of scientific, clean, sanitary equipment, which is operated by thoroughly experienced and skilled workmen. Their long untiring efforts have been crowned with success by the production of this bread of unusual merit. The satisfying goodness of Bredin's Bread is a joy to every member of the family. As a consequence Bredin's Bread Company finds their business spreading far and wide over this section of the province. All goods are sold only in the freshest condition and their unequaled and superior service has brought them much commendation.

The first requisite in the making of good bread is to equip the plant with the latest and most approved machinery, and this firm has spared no effort in fully equipping to produce the best of the "Staff of Life." In fact, it is just the kind of plant you would want your bread made in. By means of automatically operated machines the bread is scarcely touched by human hands during the entire process. Add a loaf or two of Bredin's Bread to your next grocery list. It contains a heavy percentage of nutritive elements and is the best food for the kiddies—at lunch or meals. Do you know the approximate number of loaves of Bredin's Bread that are consumed in this section daily?

$3.00 cash prizes given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Six in to-day's issue).

DATES FOR DELEGATE'S VISIT ANNOUNCED AT MILLBROOK MEET

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong is Hostess at Annual Meeting of Women's Institute.

OFFICERS ELECTED

MILLBROOK, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. H. J. Armstrong was hostess for the annual meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute, the gathering, which was exceptionally well attended, being held at her home, Union street, on Saturday evening, the retiring president, Mrs. T. G. Harkness occupying the chair.

Correspondence read by the retiring secretary, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, included replies to letters of sympathy from a number of members in whose families bereavement had entered; replies from outside branches regarding the church attendance of the East Durham Institutes on Sunday, May 10, at 7.30 p.m. and a letter from the District Secretary, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, thanking the branch for flowers and birthday cake sent during her illness, and also for individual gifts from some of the members.

Announcement was made of the visit of the official delegate in June, the dates being: Charlecote June 24; Elizabethville, June 25; Millbrook June 26; Bailleboro, June 29; and Cavan June 30; three branches will probably unite at Cavan, Bethany and Mount Pleasant being the other two.

Mrs. Jas. Paterson will be the speaker this season, and choice may be made from the following subjects: Gardening for Profit and Pleasure; Poultry, Culling, Blood-Testing, and Dry Plucking—demonstration, Thrift-Making things Count, Curing and Canning of Meats and Vegetables and Fruits, Worthwhile Life Purposes, The Institutes—Where Canada's Natural Resources are being Developed.

Reports Read

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, showed total receipts for the year of $710.93, this amount including a balance carried over of $490.06; members' fees of $31.; and piano rental of $36.50; total expenditures were $379.35; balance in bank $331.58.

The secretary's report showed 124 members in 1930-31, and 104 already enrolled for the current year, the largest number yet recorded at the beginning of a new year; eleven regular and one special meetings were held, with a total attendance of 398; eight papers were given at the meetings, and an interesting and instructive program always supplied.

Mrs. T. H. Aiken and Mrs. J. L. Byam were apointed a committee to secure the flowers for the Cenotaph this season, and representatives to the district annual meeting include: Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mrs. T. H. Aiken; Mrs. C. C. Garside, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mrs. J. W. Hilton, Mrs. R. Brown, Mrs. T. G. Harkness and Miss Burnham.

The president reminded the members of the attendance at Grace Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, May 10, and on motion, it was decided to hold the annual attendance of the Institute in a body at divine worship each year on the evening of the Mother's Day Sunday. On motion it was decided to donate the usual prizes for the Rural School Fair of five dollars for the best collection of flowers, and also of vegetables; the prize money in each case is divided into $1.50 for first place and $1 for second, and the secretary was authorized to so notify the Agricultural Representatvie, E. A. Summers at Port Hope.

A handsome quilt made by Mrs. John McBride, one of the senior members of the local W.I. branch, was passed round and much admired, and Mrs. McBride was made the recipient of a black morocco handbag as a token of the appreciation of the officers and membe.s for her efficient services, willingly given, in connection with the quilting activities of the organization. Later Mrs. McBride and Mrs. Harkness were appointed to secure necessary supplies for the quilts, and look after the work being done. Miss Margaret Whyte, Mrs. W. E. Ball, and Mrs. R. J. McKnight were the committee named for the June meeting.

Offiicers Elected

The election of officers resulted in a complete change of the previous year's slate, the names being as follows: President, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong; vice-presidents, Mrs. J. L. Byam and Miss E. Grandy; secretary, Mrs. George Fallis; treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Garside; district director, Mrs. T. G. Harkness; auditors: Mrs. W. McKee Bingham and Mrs. Archie Lunn. Directors responsible for assisting the regular officers with the meetings: Miss M. Christie, Mrs. Aiken, Mrs. Harry Armstrong, Mrs. R. Brown, Mrs. L. J. Morton, Mrs. Wesley Brown, Mrs. Suttle Pritchard, Miss Burnham.

Mrs. W. McKee Bingham addressed the meeting regard ing proposed renovation of the Town Hall concert auditorium, and Mrs. Harkness and Mrs. Garside were appointed to represent the Institute at the business meeting to be held on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Bingham asked the Institute to consider being responsible for the new curtains for the stage and windows.

The retiring officers, with the hostess, served a delicious lunch during the social hour at the close, and a very pleasant time was enjoyed, the thanks of the gathering being extended to Mrs. Armstrong, and her daughter, Miss Alice for the hospitality of their home for what had proved an important and interesting meeting.

Von Bulow's Memoirs Are Held Up By Peer

LONDON, May 12 (C.P.)—Publication of the memoirs of Prince Von Bulow, who commanded a German army corps during the Great War, was suspended yesterday temporarily by the publishers after Lord Lonsdale notified the company that he would hold it responsible for libelous statements the book contained.

Reviews appearing in yesterday's papers say that the book refers in a derogatory manner to Lord Lonsdale who is one of Great Britain's famous sportings peers.

Bethel Church L. A. Holds Regular Meeting

The members of the Ladies' Aid of Bethel United Church on the Warsaw Circuit held their regular meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Herman Payne when the meeting opened in the usual manner, followed by reports of the secretary and secretary and treasurer.

There were several items of business, the main one being that of making preparations and plans for the Sunday School convention which is being held at Bethel on May 20.

At the close of the meeting, a social hour was spent by the ladies a contest and dainty lunch being enjoyed.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 11 (C.P.)—Confidence that when the present depression ends the Welland Canal district will be among the first to participate in new industrial development, was expressed here to-day by John E. Jones, Commissioner of Industries for the Welland County Ship Canal Industrial Area Commission. Mr. Jones, who has been interviewing banks and industrialists, said he found them optimistic concerning Canadas' industrial future.

FALSE TEETH ARE A GREAT INVENTION BUT KEEP YOUR OWN AS LONG AS YOU CAN

Humanity has good reason to fear pyorrhea

False teeth often follow pyorrhea, which comes to four people out of five past the age of 40.

MANY people are self-conscious and uncomfortable today with false teeth who might have been spared the loss of their own.

Pyorrhea, which comes to four people out of every five who pass the age of forty, can rob you of your teeth and break down your very health if permitted to go unchecked.

The first symptoms are tender gums that bleed easily when brushed. As it progresses, it makes gums soft and spongy until teeth often loosen in their sockets and either fall out or must be extracted.

But don't wait for these symptoms. Many people hav the beginnings of pyorrhea in their mouths for ten years before outward signs appear. To be safe, see your dentist at least twice a year and brush your teeth twice daily with Forhan's.

A notable addition to the musical ranks of the city is that of Mr. Arnold Phillips of Manchester, England, who has come to Canada to live. Mr. Phillips is the son of Mr. Thomas Phillips, organist at St. Andrew's United Church and conductor of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir. He is a composer, organist and pianist of repute and has appeared in the principal cities of Great Britain on the concert platform, and also over the radio. He passed the examinations of the Royal Academy of Music with a standing of ninety-eight per cent. and his phenonmenal technical and memory powers attracted the attention of Grundy of Manchester, a musician of international fame, who became his teacher in 1924. Though still young, Mr. Phillips is remarkably versatile. At a very early age, he was organist and choirmaster of a prominent Manchester church. In addition to organ and piano, he also plays the violin and flute, and is a mathematician of no mean order.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

It is always advisable to serve one uncooked vegetable with a dinner.

• • • • • • •

This is especially true during the warm months of the year. It is a convenience as well as a health-promoting thing to do.

• • • • • • •

It takes so little time to prepare a vegetable that is not to be cooked and the system is better off when they are eaten.

• • • • • • •

Salad greens are the chief summertime vegetable. These include every variety of edible leaf and foliage that is palatable without cooking, from little tender dandelion greens and pepper-grass that are found in lawns and field, to the finest cultivated endive.

• • • • • • •

Cucumbers and tomatoes are favorite vegetables and celery, when it is obtainable.

• • • • • • •

Grated raw carrots and fresh young peas can be included in vegetable salads. These supply color and a delicate flavor to the dish.

• • • • • • •

Water cress is a delicious vegetable to serve with fish. It can be dressed with French dressing or be served without any dressing. It has enough piquancy to give a little zest to the fish, especially if lemon slices are an edible garnish for the fish.

• • • • • • •

The same is true of parsley.

• • • • • • •

Fresh cabbage should be served as is iceberg lettuce, either shredded or sliced across so that the firm and fibrous leaves are in small sections.

• • • • • • •

Some housewives like to add a little shredded cabbage to a salad in which another salad green is the basis. Iceberg lettuce is akin to cabbage.

• • • • • • •

On the continent of Europe, radishes are cut and spread lightly with butter when eaten. They may be served whole or sliced. The butter relieves the biting taste enough to make the gay little tubers more delicate.

• • • • • • •

Here in Canada we usually dip radishes in salt or eat them plain.

• • • • • • •

Whatever the kind and there are many vegetables that are delicious eaten raw, be sure to have one at least with hearty meals such as dinner and a substantial luncheon.

Our Mail

Conducted by ANNE WILCOX

Dear Anne:

Your children are returning one by one. We are not going to throw down our shovels because the springtime has come, but rather we are picking them up to dig ourselves out of the rut we have got into.

I have intended writing e'er this but what are good intentions worth if not put into effort. Sure I could make all kinds of excuses for not writing before, but excuses are not reasons and when folks make excuses to me, I wish they would tell the real truth and say they lacked interest.

"Where there is a will there is a way." To be sure with some of us there are absent children to be written to once a week and friends once in a while, numberless duties at this season of the year and when one is simple-handed and not over strong, we can easily persuade ourselves that the "page" can wait but we all like to read the letters, especially when they are so few and far between and the "daily chats" are all good and we have no fault to find.

I was glad to see a letter from Ad Infinitum. I always like her letters, I suppose because she is different for I like folks who are not just like someone else. I once had an aunt whom I respected highly (she was a maiden lady) tell me that I was different though I did not know 'how,' but she saw something, I suppose.

Now about the problem of Ad Infinitum. I would not descend to the other person's level but I would let them know in some way that they had fallen in my estimation. We should encourage the good all we can and also be brave enough to reprove the selfish and evil. There was a time when I would let selfish folks make a doormat of me. For instance, I would perhaps be in the bank or some such place and it being my turn next some bumptious dame would look at me almost disdainfully and step in ahead, but now if I see the least sign, I give them a look which says: 'my turn next' We have not got to meekly submit to tyrants but with dignity hold our own against injustice and wrong. What say you, neighbors? I have over half a centruy at the back of me, sufficient to have learned a little wisdom in my stay here.

I wonder if the neighbors are reading Gordon Sinclair's articles in The Examiner? They are real good, interesting, amusing and instructive. I often have to laugh at the way he writes and his experiences. Oh, dear, I'd rather that he be in Morocco than me. I am averse to smells, snakes and skeiks and the rest. Thanking you, Anne,

Yours very truly, Water-Lily.

That is a delightful letter, Water Lily, and I am so glad that the neighbors are starting to write again. It makes the page so much more interesting, doesn't it? Yes, Gordon Sinclair's articles are interesting and no doubt the majority of the readers appreciate them. Perhaps I shouldn't be so selfish in always expecting the neighbors to write to the page!

MISSION WORK PAPERS READ

Mission Circle of Gilmour Memorial Church Holds Regular Meeting.

PLAN SEWING BEE

BRIDGENORTH, May 12. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The regular meeting of the Mission Circle of Gilmour Baptist Church was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. T. R. Mann, of Smith, with an attendance of about thirty ladies.

The Scriptural lesson, Psalm 46 was given by Mrs. Harvey Sanderson.

Papers on Mission Work in New Ontario and North West were given by Mrs. T. Telford, Mrs. J. Mann, Mrs. Bruce Bell and Miss Gladys Blewett and Margaret Mann.

Rev. Mr Wright also spoke on North West Missions. A letter from the open Board meeting held in Toronto was read by Mrs. A. I. Edmison. Mrs. Metcalfe, of Peterborough, contributed a solo, which was very much enjoyed. Lunch was served by the group in charge.

It was decided to hold a sewing bee for the White Cross work in India on Tuesday, May 12, at the home of Mrs. Max Archer.

BANK CLUB AT RE NO RIVALS FAMOUS MONTE CARLO CASINO

Play Any Kind of Game From Craps to Roulette Wheel.

BUT COLOR LACKING

(By Frank Chamberlain.)
(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1931)

RENO, Nevada, May 12 (SNS).—The Bank Club, of Reno, Nevada, is a gambling establishment almost as well known throughout the world as the Casino of Monte Carlo.

At the Casino one expects to find elegance, fine clothes, laughter and excitement. Instead, he finds a grim silence, a lack of color, people with determined sad faces sitting around tables.

In the same way one expects to find at the Bank Club gorgeous gowns, people flashing rolls of money, flashes on hips, life, color excitement. He does'n't find that. He finds a motley assortment of human beings in search of quick money, thrills and the great joy known only to the gambler of risking one's entire wealth—it may be $1,000, or it may be fifty cents—on the chance turn of a card or the roll of dice.

He finds floaters from the mines, leather-skinned cowboys, with huge hats, sheep herders, professional gamblers, divorcees and divorcons and here and there a tourist from Los Angeles or San Francisco, visiting Reno to find out what all the excitement is about.

Not Much Excitement.

There isn't much excitement. Gambling is an inward pleasure and rarely finds expression in outward joy. Most of those who have been participating in the games of faro, craps, roulette wheel of fortune, draw and stud poker and keno during the five evenings I visited the Bank Club have played their games as one would play a serious game of bridge.

Now and then there is a cry of "Atta Boy" or "That's it I've made it." Sometimes there is a quiet dispute between a player and the operator. Nobody pulls a gun. The operators have instructions to give the player the benefit of any doubt which might arise. Operators at the Bank Club are internationally known for their honesty and straightforwardness, one hears in gambling circles at Reno.

The Bank Club is open 24 hours every day of every week. The doors are wide open. Unobstructed windows face the street. Visitors may play what games they wish, or may remain in the establishment all evening without playing, if they so desire.

An electric keno board has been erected in the club, at a cost of $3,000. Here 500 players may play at one time, each paying ten cents entry fee, the house contributing a $5 prize in addition to the sweepstakes. The house takes 10 per cent. of the money taken in. I was informed by the manager when I sought details of the games at 4 a.m. to-day. It was the only hour the manager could see me. He was busy all the rest of the day.

Race-track entries are listed on a huge blackboard at the end of the room. Here one may bet against the house or in the well-known pari-mutuel way. There is no limit to the size of the bets on horses.

Stud and draw poker attract large numbers of players. Three players play for table stakes, $2. to $5, a game being the average sum wagered. Now and then a group of players decide on high stakes, and in such game the sky is the limit.

There are three tables of faro. The limit is $25 to cases and $100 to doubles. Cases give a percentage to the house, but there is no percentage on doubles, and quite naturally this game is the most popular in the house. In the majority of games, the players know that they have a dead even chance of winning on all their money, knowing that the house doesn't get a share.

Even African Golf.

Three tables of craps games go on all day and night. $25 is the limit. Crap games are crap games all over the world, and there is nothing unusual about the games at the Bank Club, excepting that the player don't play on the floor but on a green-velvet table. All dice must be thrown against a wall built around the table.

Roulette wheels, three in number, are whirling constantly. Red or black numbers, and odd or even, pay even money. There are 18 red holes and 18 black ones and two green. Special spaces on the wheel pay 35 to 1 on money wagered.

Four tables of a card game known as "Twenty-one" prove popular. The dealer gives each player two cards and keeps two himself. Face cards count ten and spot cards count their own value. The one holding cards amounting closets to 21 wins. The open limit is $25.

Youths Barred.

The house pays license fees for every card table and every gambling game. State fees are, $25 a month for card games, $50 a month for devices, and $10 a month for slot machines. City fees are $15 a quarter for the big games, $7.50 a quarter for the card games and $4 per quarter for punch games. Fines of $1,000 or six months in jail, or both, threaten license holders who admit youths under 21 to their houses, and those who are found attempting to defraud players. The State allows the County of Washoe 75 per cent. of its income from license fees.

RHEUMATISM GOES Swollen Joints Vanish

How to End Rheumatism in Less Than a Week

If you suffer from torturing rheumatic pains, sore muscles or stiff inflammed joints, it's because your system is full of the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism and make thousands helpless.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine now sold by all druggists; that acts directly on the liver, kidneys and blood, and helps expel through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatism.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is the one rheumatism remedy guaranteed by McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store to free muscles and joints from all painful stiffness, swelling and lameness, or nothing to pay.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

DRUGS AND SLEEP

Dr. Osler, the greatest of modern physicians said some time before his death that he had reduced the number of drugs in his practice to fifteen. He thought that the time would come when he would have them reduced to three; in fact it might actually happen that in some future time he could do without drugs entirely.

I've often wondered just what the three drugs were. I guessed that opium (morphine) would be one for the relief of pain, digitalis for the failing heart, and perhaps some drug to cleanse the intestine in an emergency.

Now I believe we'll all agree that there are times when drugs are necessary—terrific pain from cancer or from a burn or injury; when an individual is suffering from shock and so forth.

However the use of drugs, which are quite properly used in the above emergencies should never be used to render you unconscious, simply to get you off to sleep. These drugs act by actually giving your sensibilities a blow or knock, for the time being, but nature makes you pay for this afterwards.

I'm not criticising the individual who finds the need for some sleeping potion and takes it once in a great while, but to turn to these drugs any and every time you feel a little restless and uncomfortable, and with a lack of desire for sleep can easily mean an undermining of your nervous system and your general health.

In other words it is the continued use, the "habit" formed of using drugs, that is so dangerous.

If you can't sleep, look about you and find out the cause. It it is not due to some worry or anxiety it is due to some underlying cause which may or may not be serious.

If your doctor finds no organic trouble then try to live a life that will build up your entire system. This means foods that do not cause too much gas in the system—onions, cabbage, starchy foods—outdoors enough each day to get your wastes burned up by the oxygen in the air, and enough exercise, walking for instance, to bring about a natural tiredness that will induce natural sleep.

Remember then that drugs are for emergencies and thus have their uses, but to settle down to the habit of taking a drug "regularly" to put you to sleep, is injurious to the functions of the body—your ability to think, your digestion, the action of heart and lungs; in fact every function.

PRESENTATION MADE MISS FREDA AVERY

Young People's Club of St. John's Church, Madoc, Hold Final Meeting.

MADOC, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Young People's Club of St. John's Church, Madoc, held their closing meeting for the season on Thursday evening, making it also the occasion for bidding farewell to one of their number, who has been president for the past year, and who is to enter training for the nursing profession in the near future.

The evening was spent in games and music, after which the secretary read the following address and on behalf of the club, Mr. R. Hardwick presented her with a Parker Fountain pen, and Rev. P. Gatley Reynolds, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Reynolds, presented a beautiful prayer and hymn book.

To Miss Freda Avery,

The Young People's Club of St. John's Church, Madoc, have gathered here tonight to say good-bye to you, and to wish you every success in the work you are about to undertake.

We are sorry to see you go, and we shall miss you very much. The success of the Young People's Club last winter was in a great measure due to your painstaking work as president; and we thank you very much for your help.

We ask you to accept this gift as a small token of our esteem and affection, we trust it will be helpful to you in your work, and when you use it, it may serve to remind of those by whom you will always be kindly remembered."

Wins Silverware.

The chest of Puritan Silverware given away free by C. R. Johnston, druggist, recently, was won by Mrs. P. Gatley Reynolds. The prize was awarded to the customer saving the most coupons which were given with each 25 cent purchase, from March 22nd to May 2nd.

Successful Dance.

Madoc Women's Institute held a very successful dance and progressive euchre in the Madoc Armouries on Friday evening, with the music furnished by a five-piece orchestra under the capable management of T. Byrnes, of Belleville.

A good crowd was in attendance. A dainty lunch was furnished by the ladies. The prizes of the evening were won by Mrs. James Irwin and George Avery. Proceeds of the evening amounted to $102.00.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., May 12. (CP) A verdict of accidental death was returned to-day by the coroner's jury investigating the death of Miss Bertha Lewis, well known player in Gilbert and Sullivan operas, who died on Friday last from injuries received in a motorcar accident on May 5.

MRS. RIDDELL RECEIVES GIFT

2ND PRESENTATION MADE

MILLBROOK, May 12. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The May meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian church was held at the home of Mrs. John Armstrong, Eighth Line, Cavan, on Wednesday afternoon, the hostess extending cordial welcome to the several car-loads of guests who were present for the gathering.

The president, Mrs. (Rev.) John Riddell, occupied the chair, for the last time it was regretfully felt, the removal of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Riddell to their new home at St. Mary's taking place in the early part of the week.

Miss Jean Syer had prepared the paper on the study of "Ruth," Mrs. A. Coyte reading the paper for Miss Syer and all benefiting from its carefully-arranged and instructive material. A vocal duet was contributed by Mrs. Harold Hubbeard, and Mrs. John Thompson, and was much enjoyed.

A feature of peculiar interest, at the close of the business session, was the presentation of a handsome wicker standard for holding a large plant, to Mrs. Riddell, Mrs. Thompson reading the appreciative address, and Mrs. Milton Fallis and Mrs. J. N. McGill presenting the gift. Little Miss Jean Riddell was also remembered, Mrs. Harry Ball on behalf of the Bible Class of Grace Church Sunday School, presenting her with a dainty lamp for her dressing-table, following the reading of an address by Mrs. Coyte.

Mrs. Riddell, who has made a very capable president for the Auxiliary, and who will be sadly missed from its monthly gatherings and activities, made suitable reply, voicing her thanks for the lovely and useful gift, and also for her little daughter's remembrance. The latter said 'thank you' in her own way very prettily.

The hostess served refreshments during the social hour at the close, and was heartily thanked by the guests for her generous hospitality before the homeward trip was made.

Presentation Made To Choir Leader

MILLBROOK, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. F. H. Smith was hostess for the weekly choir practice of Saint Andrew's United Church, the well-attended gathering being held at her home, King street, on Thursday evening.

A feature of peculiar interest was the presentation of a morocco-bound copy of the new Hymnary of the church, containing both words and music, to the popular and efficient choir leader, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mrs. P. Stinson making an appropriate address, and Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, presenting the gift.

Mrs. Johnston made a suitable reply, expressing her grateful appreciation of the pleasant surprise, and her pleasure in the association with the choir members, and in the harmonious manner in which their work in connection with the worship of song is carried on together.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston are leaving shortly to spend three months at the Pacific Coast, largely with a view to the improvement of the former's health. They will be greatly missed in the church and particularly in the choir, the members of the latter organization emphasizing their regret at the prospective absence, and their earnest wish that return will not be delayed beyond the, at present, specified time.

A pleasant social hour was enjoyed at the close of the practice during which the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Bernice, served a delicious lunch.

EFFICIENCY LEAGUE IS PLANNING SOCIAL

Trent River Society to Discontinue Meetings for Summer Months.

TRENT RIVER, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of the Efficiency League was held Friday night with an attendance of 67. R. W. Umphrey, president, had charge of the opening exercises. Some discussion was taken up regarding closing the meetings for the summer and it was decided to discontinue after May and hold a hard times social evening on Friday night, May 22. Mr. Umphrey read Psalm 26 and Rufus Redden then took charge of the following program:

Scriptural lesson by Bessie Inkster; quartette, "In the Garden," by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Robson, Miss Doris Robson and Rufus Redden; Miss B. G. French played the organ accompaniments; talk on the world's largest Bible class and its leader, Denton Massey, by Milton Hawley; recitation, "Half an hour till train time," Clifford Chaplin; the quartette again favored the gathering with a second number, "Confidence," both numbers being most acceptably rendered; reading, Bessie Inkster; the different colors formed in groups and Miss Helen Scott conducted a bird contest in which the Blue side scored the highest number of points. The topic for Friday night, May 15th, will be "Missions," and a collection will be taken up.

Celebrates Birthday.

Miss Gayle Pollock, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Pollock, celebrated her fifth birthday on Saturday afternoon, when she invited a number of her little friends to a birthday party. The afternoon was spent in playing games. A delightful lunch was served at the tea hour. The following little guests were present: Vaughan Brown, Jirene Brown, Kenneth Chaplin, Clara Chaplin, Phylis Ellis, Laurina Wight, Murray Wight, Bruce Cook, Billie Pollock, Loraine Scott. Mrs. Pollock was assisted by her mother, Mrs. R. Campney, of Havelock, Mrs. Ken Green, of Havelock and Mrs. James Cook, of Trent River.

SKEETERS GIVE BUFFALO BISONS 5 TO 1 DRUBBING

"Tony" Cotelle, Purchased From Wings, Hero of Victory at Herd Home Field.

BEARS BEAT ROYALS.

Batting Attack Against Falk Nets Winners Four Runs and 6 to 4 Victory.

BUFFALO, May 12. — The Jersey City Skeeters had no difficulty giving the Buffalo Bisons a beating here yesterday by a score of 5 to 1.

Tony Cotelle, outfielder, just purchased from the Rochester club, broke in and proved the star of the game for the Skeeters, driving home three tallies through the medium of a home run and a single. The Skeeters have played errorless ball against the Bisons in three successive games, during which 29 innings have been played. Clarke Pittenger, at shortstop, had 13 chances yesterday.

BEARS PUNISH ROYALS.

MONTREAL, May 12.—The Newark Bears captured the third game of their series here yesterday afternoon when they drove Chester Falk, elongated Texan southpaw, out in the second inning with a four-run attack to win 6 to 4 after each side had used four pitchers. It was a long-drawn-out battle, with Bobby Stevens saving the game in the eighth, starting a fast double play that ended the Royals' last chance for victory. Tom Gulley hit safely yesterday in his nineteenth consecutive game. Cohen and Hargreaves each hit a brace of doubles for the Bears.

DELORO ENTERS SOCCER LEAGUE

Making a Five Team Schedule —Game on Thursday Night and Saturay Afternoon.

SOCCER NOTES.

With the full assurance that Deloro would be an official entry, into the Peterborough and District Football Association in a few days, was the enthusiastic statement of George Brooks who represented the Smelter boys, last evening, at the regular meeting, held in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms.

They have made arrangements so that the games will not conflict with any other sport and will play all their Tuesday and Thursday evening games in the city. They requested that they have Saturday games to start at four o'clock prompt. It will be three o'clock city time because they go on daylight saving this Saturday, then it will revert back to four when the city changes over to the summer hours. At present, they have stipulated that they would complete the full league schedule with the promise that the cup ties would receive consideration but wanted the privilege of playing in the Phelan Charity cup.

Definite information would be given after they hold the athletic meeting tonight in Deloro. It means that the local teams will only travel outside the city twice to the Deloro boys sixteen times for league tussles only. Other minor details were discussed so as to create co-opertion from all angles.

A Minute Silence Recognized

In recognition of the late Jack Cross, who was a local soccer player, the association paid their respects with a minute silence and a letter of condolence be sent.

Players Registered

Gordon Langhorne, signed for Brinton; Jack MacCullum of Lakefield, for the Caledonians; William Bruce and George Lovatt for the Canadian General.

Games This Week

The first week night game is scheduled for Thursday evening when the C.P.C. meet the Caledonians, on King Edward Park. Kick off at 6:15 prompt. Referee Alex McKinley.

Saturday's game is Canadian General vs. Caledonians on King Edward Park. Kick off at three o'clock. Referee Jack Hodson.

The examining board of the local executive examined all the official referees on the practical points of the game which proved very interesting. All the referees reaching a proper understanding on the correct interpretation of the decisions which will make them correspond. The committee recommended that J. C. Russell receive his official O. F. A. certificate along with Alex McKinley and Jack Hodson who are in possession of same.

Two benefit games will be played in the near future on behalf of a very worthy object that has the full co-operation of all the teams in the league.

Caledonians will not hold a practice game Wednesday night, owing to the game next evening. The committee will meet at the home of President Gilmour to select the team.

Canadian General players will have a practice game on Wednesday night in preparation for the Saturday encounter.

Softball Notes.

Two new entries in the softball league will tangle tonight at Central School grounds when All Saints and the Examiner hook up.

Both outfits are reputed to be strong and the fans will be given an opportunity to see how these two aggregations compare with the Westclox and Sugar Bowl.

The game will start at 6.15 sharp and will be in charge of "Scotty" Galbraith.

Wednesday night will bring another new entry to the league, the Canadian Woolens against the strong Sugar Bowl outfit.

Sugar Bowl Wins Opening Softball Game

CANDYMEN COUNT ELEVEN RUNS IN SEVENTH FRAME TO GARNER 17-3 VICTORY FROM BIG BENS

Both Teams Provide Smart Exhibition of Softball Until Heavy Hitting Spree.

NEW BALL IS "FAST."

R. M. Glover, Ex-Mayor W. H. Taylor and Jack Sullivan Assist in Opening Ceremonies.

Nothing was missing from the official opening game of the City Softball League's 1931 season at Central School grounds last night. Fans who thronged out to get their first fare of the summer pastime saw six innings of snappy, even, brilliant, play; then watched George Dormer's Sugar Bowl nine march out and crash their way to 11 runs in the seventh frame after two were out, and finally swagger off the diamond with a 17 to 3 win.

R. M. Glover, ex-Mayor W. H. Taylor, and Jack Sullivan, former president of the local softball league, participated in the opening ceremony. Mr. Sullivan hurled the first ball, but it never crossed the plate. As it drifted down the groove, Mr. Taylor met it neatly with the bat, hitting a single back of first.

The memory of the late Ray Darling, star pitcher for the Westclox team last year who lost his life in a motor accident, was fittingly recalled with one minute of silence before the start of the game.

The new 12-inch proved last night that it is going to be a big factor in the game this year. The ball speeds up the play, and lifts it far out of the category of a "parlor game." (If you don't believe that go out and let some one throw one at you). The outfielders were camping on the hill in left field and in the very shadow of the school in the other gardens and at that the new ball time and again was crashed over their heads.

Collect 17 Hits.

The Bowl nine took kindly to the new ball to collect 17 hits, six of them for extra bases. "Bud" Weese gained fame when he slammed the ball up onto College street in the fourth frame for the only home run of the game and naturally the first of the season.

Up until the seventh innings when the Bowl men unlimbered their heavy artillery it was a smart exhibition, and the Big Bens had taken a most conspicuous part in the play. The score then was 4-3 for the Bowl, despite the fact that the Westclox had tossed away a run, or maybe two, in the first innings by wild base running. Each team helped themselves to one in the first innings. Then in the second the Westclox took a two-run lead which the Bowl was not able to overhaul until the fourth, when Weese tied the score with his big drive.

A triple by Gillespie and a roller to short by Weese, to score "Shires", gave the Bowl a one-run lead in the sixth. In the seventh with two out and two on the runways the landslide of hits broke out. Before it was over the fans were goggle-eyed watching the boys run the pathways and eleven had crossed the plate.

With darkness setting over the diamond, the Bowl added two more in the eighth when Umpire Galbraith, somewhat tardily, decided to call it.

Snappy fielding on the part of the Bowl nine completely muffled the Westclox hitters. Bradshaw, at third, and Wilshaw, St. John's hockey player and last year with Harrison's, were especially prominent with their fielding endeavours.

Women Softballers Organize New Body

Miss Spalding, of Preston, Heads Independent Provincial Association.

TORONTO, May 11.—That many centres in Ontario are not satisfied with the manner in which the softball affairs for women are being conducted was evinced at a large meeting held at Central Y.M.C.A. on Saturday evening when over forty representatives of teams and leagues decided to form a softball association which would operate independent of the existing governing body, the Ontario Women's Softball Association.

It was apparent that the recent investigation into affairs of the Toronto Women's Softball Association during which the officers of the latter body came in for a scathing denunciation by the officials of the Ontario Athletic Commission and the A.A.U. of C., Ontario branch, would eventually result in a change of softball affairs in the Province.

Representatives were present from Preston, Galt, Guelph, North Bay, Owen Sound, Oshawa, Belleville and Dundas, while letters were read from Belleville and Brampton endorsing the formation of the new association and requesting affiliation. It was the most representative gathering of women softballers ever held in Toronto and an air of enthusiasm and optimism pervaded the meeting. Toronto was represented by delegates from the East York, Beaches, Queen City and St. Clair-Spalding Leagues.

Too keen competition has at times deprived athletics of one of its greatest virtues, namely, sportsmanship. There are however many instances when sportsmanship meant more to a competitor than victory. A striking example of this occurred in the running of a cross country race at Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario. One of the runners, Goforth, by name, took an early lead but unfortunately made a wrong turning, he was immediately hailed by a runner behind him and informed of his mistake. He turned back, gave his fellow runner a lead and they fought it out to the finish.

SAMUEL HARDY IS U.S. TEAM LEADER

Non-playing Captain of Davis Cup Team Playing in Europe.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 12 (C.P.)—Samuel Hardy of New York has been selected by the United States Lawn Tennis Association to serve as non-playing captain of the United States Davis Cup team in Europe, granting that it successfully passes its two remaining tests on this side of the Atlantic.

The United States team still must face Canada at Montreal, May 21, 22 and 23, and, in the event of victory there, Argentine, South American zone champions, at the Chevy Chase Club in Maryland, May 28, 29 and 30. Bernon Prentice will be the non-playing captain for both these contests.

Hardy was captain of the United States team that brought back the Davis Cup from Australia in 1920, when "Big Bill" Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnston began their country's seven-year reign in cup competition.

Softball League To Open Tuesday, May 19

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The first of the softball games in Campbellford Town League sponsored by the Campbellford Softball Association will be played on the High School grounds on May 19 at 6.30 p.m. when the old rivals, the Clerks and St. Andrew's will meet in the opening game.

Four teams are entered in the league this year, Clerks, St. Andrew's, Hydro, and the Mill.

HASTINGS CLUB IS RE-ORGANIZED

PLAN ANNUAL DANCE.

HASTINGS, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — The standing room only sign was hung up at the Star Office on Monday night for the local baseball meeting. The championship team were nearly all present and were enthusiastic over the prospects of again bringing the Sam Clarke Trophy to Hastings for the second year in succession.

Clarence Gillespie, secretary for last year, read the reports and showed the club to have a deficit of about $50.00. The boys in 1930 did not, by any means, draw the gates they should have had for the class of ball they played in winning both cups in the Northumberland League. Different means of raising money to pay off the amount were discussed. It was finally decided to hold a dance in Lynch's Hall on Friday, May 22, from nine till one, the Excelsior Orchestra furnishing the music. Messrs. P. Lemoire, C. Gillespie, and L. Scriver were appointed a committee to sell booster tickets for the dance.

Delegates who attended the Northumberland League meeting reported what took place at the meeting. At the present time the league will operate with the same teams as last year with the exception of Balleboro namely Roseneath, Alderville, Harwood, Baltimore Precious Corners and Hastings. Applications were also received from Smithfield and Welcome but were left over till a further date. Welcome not being in Northumberland county would not be eligible for the Clarke trophy but would add interest to the league.

The Northumberland League in not affiliating with the O.B.A.A. this year came in for a very thorough discussion and the meeting was very strong for staying with the O.B.A.A and playing under their ruling. The past year the league played under these rules and it certainly worked to advantage.

Replace Old Back Stop

The old back stop that has been a land mark on the local diamond for years will be replaced this year with a modern cage. This will be of great interest to the fans as many an accident was narrowly averted in past years by the old one falling.

Nelson Scriver who has been doing the catching for a number of years and who retired this year from active service was persuaded to take on the managership.

The following officers were elected for 1931:

President—A. J. McKinty.
Vice-President—W. W. Knight.
Secretary-Treasurer—C. Gillespie.
Manager—Nelson Scriver.

The boys will have their first workout on Wednesday night and will open the league in Roseneath on Monday, May 25.

MADOC

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Craigmyle and little son, of New York are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Kincaid, Madoc Township.

Mr. and Mrs. McNeil left on Sunday afternoon for their home in Lansdowne after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse M. Reid.

A very extensive program of church and memorial services, parades, games and dances is being prepared for the Madoc Old Boys' Reunion to be held on August 1, 2, 3, 4.

BASE CLOUTS WHEN HITS COUNT ENABLE PHILS TO STOP CARDS AFTER 8 STRAIGHT VICTORIES

"Chuck" Klein's Sixth Homer of Season Paves Way for 2-1 Victory.

CARDS RALLY IN THIRD.

Pirates Bump Vance for Four Singles in Fourth to Cop Off 4-2 Win.

(By Gale Talbot, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

Manager Burt Shotton has his Philadelphia Phillies using an entirely different system this season, and they are getting surprisingly good results.

Last year the Phils went in for bushels of hits, including doubles, triples, and home runs, but they didn't score in proportion. The result was they led the National League in hitting and were a strong eighth in the final club standing.

This year, however, Shotton has his boys going at it differently. With such sluggers as Lefty O'Doul and Fresco Thompson gone, the 1931 Phillies are not getting as many hits, but they are getting them where they count, leaving fewer men on base and winning more ball games.

For instance, they collected only five hits yesterday, but they cut off the eight-game winning streak of the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 1. Chuck Klein hit his sixth home run of the year to tie the score in the sixth inning. Then big Buzz Arlett got on second and Les Mallon, rookie infielder, brought him in with a lusty double. With Phil Collins turning the Cards back round after round, that was all the Phillies needed. Wild Bill Hallahan was the victim of the Waners' concerted attack.

Their loss to the Shotton men reduced the Cardinals' lead over the New York Giants to a single game. Cold weather at New York kept the Giants and Chicago Cubs indoors, and gave Manager Rogers Hornsby of the western team an opportunity to speculate on what had happened to his hitters. He admitted that being held to eight hits in two games with the Giants was bad business but denied a rumor that he planned to bench Hack Wilson, the hard-hitting outfielder.

Braving the chill winds on the opposite bank of the East River, the Pittsburgh Pirates and Brooklyn Robins got in the day's only other National League contest. Heinie Meine let the Robins down with five hits to give the Pirates their second straight victory, 4 to 2. The invaders bunched four hits off Dazzy Vance to score three runs and sew it up in the fourth.

Senators Beat Tigers.

Only one American League tilt survived the epidemic of rain and cold, the Washington Senators burying Detroit under an avalanche of hits, 14 to 4. Ossie Bluege led the 18-hit assault on four Tiger pitchers with a home run, a double, and two singles. Kuhel had a double and two singles and Joe Cronin a homer and a single. Carl Fischer went the route for the Senators to score his third victory.

ASSOCIATE BOWLING MEMBERS ENJOY CLUB HOUSE PRIVILEGES

Farmers From District Will Be Asked to Form League on Local Greens.

EXCHANGE MEMBERSHIP

That citizens of Peterborough who do not indulge in lawn bowling never the less feel that the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club is a distinct asset to the city and therefore should be supported, is shown by the fact that individual citizens have approached the directors recently and voluntarily offered to become associate members, and to pay dues on that basis. At a meeting of the directors held last week these offers were considered and it was decided to accept as associate members any persons who pay $5 to the club. Such members will have the full privileges of the Club House without bowling privileges.

The secretaries of all the lawn bowling clubs in the recently organized Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association, will be notified by the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club that any time any of their members are in Peterborough, the privileges of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will be open to them. It is hoped that in this way arrangements will ultimately be entered into with all these Clubs and possibly with other out-of-town clubs as well, for exchange membership privileges. This will enable Peterborough lawn bowlers, when away from home, to drop in at any of these other points and feel that they are members of these clubs as well as of the Peterborough Club and free to bowl. This will make membership in the Peterborough Club of more value for commercial travellers and others who are out of the city a good deal during the summer.

When the Deputy-Minister of Agriculture, J. B. Fairbairn, of Toronto, was speaking in Peterborough last fall to a group of men, he advised farmers to engage in some recreation and stated that he had enjoyed lawn bowling. In this direction it is interesting to note that a considerable number of the members of the lawn bowling clubs at points like Lakefield, Norwood, Warkworth and other points, are farmers and that some of them are rattling good bowlers. The Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club has decided to invite farmers adjacent to Peterborough to visit the Club House some evening early in the season and enjoy an evening's bowling in order to enable them to experience for themselves the pleasure of the game. A number of well-known farmers near the city will be asked to act as rink captains and to co-operate with the committee from the Club in arranging the details for the evening's play.

Any parties who are intending to join the Club should do so without delay as a few days ago only three places were left unfilled to complete 41 rinks. As all the names of those playing on the rinks will be printed shortly on a schedule, it is necessary that names shall be entered without delay in order to get on these rinks.

This year the Club House will present a greatly improved appearance. It was not possible last year to finish the grading of the lawns and greens adjacent to the Club House. This work is to be completed this spring which means that the appearance of the Club House will be greatly improved.

GORDON NINE WINS S.H. LEAGUE OPENER

Large Number of Errors Contribute to Rather High Score 14-11.

The Sacred Heart School League opened its schedule yesterday with the junior teams, Gordon's and Gilbert's tangling, the former winning out 14-11. A fair crowd of fans were on hand, and they saw some heavy hitting on the part of both outfits. A number of errors contributed to the large score, and smart base-running on each side marked the game. The teams:

WEST END NINE COLLECTS FIVE RUNS IN FIFTH

Hold Seventh Inning Rally By Queen Alexandra Crew to Win 11-7 Victory.

'GARNER 10 HITS TO 6.

Winners Score Six Runs in the First, Third and Fourth Innings.

The Prince of Wales nine went wild in the fifth inning to garner five runs, and then withstood a seventh inning rally by the battling Queen Alex crew, to win out 11-7 in a Public School League game at the Oval last night.

The winners deserved their victory, getting 10 hits to their opponents' 6, and receiving better pitching. McIlmoyle struck out 11 Queen Alex batters, and only in the first and seventh was he touched for many hits. The losers' worked two pitchers, Clark and Ash, but neither could do much with the heavy-south-enders. The errors were frequent and costly for both teams, Prince of Wales being guilty of 8, and the Queen Alex bunch shooting the ball 9 times.

The Wales outfit scored twice in the first, twice in the third and got another pair in the fourth. Their big inning, the fifth, saw them collect five runs, on four hits, a single, two doubles and a triple. They were helped by a couple of errors, also. The last two frames found the Queen Alex infield going great to blank them. In the sixth, with the bases loaded and none out, the infield retired the side safely. Again in the seventh, a smart double play helped a lot.

Get Three in First.

The losers' crossed the plate three times in the first and once more in the third. Then McIlmoyle's got his curve working and mowed them down almost in order, assisted by good fielding on the part of his teammates. However, in the seventh the north end team threw a scare into the others, scoring three times before they were retired.

None of the three pitchers had the best of control, and a number of walks and wild pitches figured in the scoring for both sides. The teams:

Prince of Wales: Williams, ss; Kingdon, c; Menzies, 1b; Roberts, lf; Rusaw, 2b; Platt, cf; Abramson, 3b; McIlmoyle, p; Hope, rf.

Queen Alex: Clark, 0; Heard, c; Ross, c; Ash, 1b; and 0; Morrow, 2b; Elliott, 3b; Derrington, ss; Willison, rf; Heard, rf; Bradley, cf; Dainton, lf.

Baseball Gossip.

The Crescents are working out tomorrow night at six o'clock down at the Exhibition Grounds, and all players are urged to be on hand. It is hoped that a number will be signed up at this time.

The Cogs are working out to-night at six o'clock down at the Exhibition Grounds, and again on Thursday at six on the same diamond, and all players are requested to be out. At to-night's practice, both the Cogs and the senior players will workout together.

"Scotty" Maudsley's Juveniles will practise to-morrow night at six at the King Edward Park diamond Players are requested to be on time for this workout.

The Kiwanis Juniors are working out to-morrow night at the James Stevenson Park at six o'clock, and Manager Jack Deannard wants to see a good turnout.

Manager "Shocky" Mein will have his Kinsmen Bantams practising at the King Edward School diamond to-morrow evening, beginning at six. He still has a few positions open and invites all bantam players to be on hand.

CASUAL COMMENT

Aint we got fun? That is as far as the C.O.B.L. is concerned. First of all, Peterborough announced its entry, followed closely by Belleville. Oshawa refused to come in, but finally Kingston was persuaded to join. Then the Petes droppe out, and Oshawa came in. And doggone it, now the Petes are back again, and Oshawa has withdrawn.

• • • • • • •

What a mixup, what a mixup? We just gave this little outline of the tangle to show that we're still able to keep track of it But one or two more changes, and we won't be responsible.

• • • • • • •

However, the three original teams seem to be definitely in now, and that's the main thing. The old Central League will function again, and better ball than ever should be the result, as the winning team may get a chance to go to Los Angeles next year for the Olympics.

• • • • • • •

Al Heckman and "Shiner" Johnston will be looking the players over this evening down at the Exhibition Grounds. Every player in town who wants a tryout, should be on hand. It is hoped that the Petes will field a strong senior outfit, as the Ponies and the Nationals are both figuring on classy teams this summer.

• • • • • • •

You've got to hand it to the Rays. They've had their name in local baseball leagues for ten or eleven years now, and yet for the sake of putting a senior team in the C.O.B.L. this year, the Raybestos outfit are dropping their identity and doing everything they can for the Peterborough seniors. That's sportsmanship.

• • • • • • •

General approval of the Petes' return to the fold was heard around town over the week-end. And more than one fan thought that if the schedule is half as interesting as the organization of the league was, they'll be turning them away at the gates. Well, the race ought to be a wow, all right.

• • • • • • •

If the weather is okay for the next two weeks, the team should be in good shape, as most of the players have been working out some two weeks, all ready.

• • • • • • •

The Bonner Worth girls who were thinking of entering a team in the Girls' Softball League have had the entry date extended until this Wednesday. After that the schedule will be drawn up for either seven or eight teams. Opening game will be played May 20th.

• • • • • • •

The city has done all right by the various sporting organizations this spring, in the way of fixing up grounds, anyway. There was a lot of work to be done on James Stevenson Park, the Bowl, Central School grounds, and the Exhibition Grounds diamond.

• • • • • • •

All of these places have been fixed up to some extent by the city. In some cases, there was too much expense involved to do much, but at least the grounds were put in fair playing condition.

• • • • • • •

A good crowd witnessed the opening of Men's Softball League game at Central last night. It was a snappy contest until the fatal seventh when the Sugar Bowl crew took the tick out of the Westclox. Tonight, The Examiner crew takes on All Saints' at 6:15 on the same diamond.

• • • • • • •

Three big innings was all the King George School nine needed for their 14-4 victory over Queen Mary yesterday. It was only a five inning affair, and they were blanked in the third and fourth. The losers were improving right along, helping themselves to three in the final frame.

• • • • • • •

But the Prince of Wales team took some healthy cuts at the turnip to smack two Queen Alex pitchers hard enough for an 11-7 win. All three hurlers were wild as hawks.

• • • • • • •

McIlmoyle, on the winners' mound, pulled a balk in the last inning when he stepped into the box without having the ball. A runner was waved on from second to third, and Mac was so peeved that he struck out a couple of batters. That ball was just whistling!

A number of local boxers are keeping in shape these days so they'll be fit when the Lindsay boxing show starts Saturday, May 23rd. There'll be scrappers from all over present with Lou Marsh refereeing.

QUEEN MARY OUT FIT FALLS UNDER 14-4 DEFEAT AT HOME

Cricket

A practice will be held at the Oval at 6 p.m. sharp on Wednesday evening next, after which a meeting will be held for the purpose of forming a second eleven team.

The executive of the club extend an invitation to all interested in cricket to attend this meeting, as this will be the means of fielding two teams throughout the season.

Winners Tally in Every Frame But the Third and Fourth.

MISPLAYS COSTLY.

The heavy-hitting bunch from King George School hit the ball hard and often to batter the Queen Mary squad under a 14-4 defeat in their game at the westerners' grounds yesterday evening.

The weather wasn't the best, and the game only went five innings, but the large and noisy Queen Mary crowd of homesters were satisfied to see it stopped. The winners had little trouble crossing the plate, only being held off the scoresheet in the third and fourth frames.

They hit freely and took advantage of numerous errors to get their runs, crossing the pan four times in the first, six times in the second and four more times en the fifth. Eleven hits, aided by ten errors accounted for the final count.

The Queen Mary team collected five hits, and took advantage of the same number of misplays to get all their runs. They had considerable difficulty in solving with any success the slants served up by the East City twirler Williamson, White, their own pitcher, went good at times but was inclined to be either wild, or else he was tossing them down the groove. However, his support was not the best.

While othere was nothing in the way of spectacular plays, both teams showed some classy fielding in spots, the winners excelling on defensive play.

N. H. L. DRAFTS FOUR PLAYERS

Young, Martin, Lever and Jackson to Join Major Hockey Loop.

NEW YORK, May 12.— No startling developments were on the cards to-day as a result of the annual meeting of the Board of Governors of the National Hockey League held here Saturday.

The question of whether or not Ottawa and Philadelphia would have teams in the league next season remained unsettled. President Frank Calder announced the granchises of the two teams would be retained, but said it was impossible to tell at this stage whether the teams would play in the same cities as last year.

Quain Becomes Director.

Only one change was made in the directorate of the league. William Foran of the Ottawa Senators, resigned and was replaced by Redmond Quain, formerly legal adviser to the Senators.

The meeting adopted a ruling which provides that the sale of players from club to club shall become effective as soon as the sale is recorded with the President of the league.

Four players were drafted from minor league teams and will play in the National League series next season. They are: Young, of the Cleveland team of the International League, drafted to Philadelphia Quakers; Martin of the Buffalo International team, to the Detroit xlcons; Lever, Windsor International Club, to the Maroons and Jackson of the Vancouver team in the Pacific League, to the Chicago Black Hawks.

Lester Patrick, manager of the New York Rangers announced he had acquired 3 recruits from the Springfield team of the Canadian-American League. Of these, one only has been definitely signed. He is Earl (Cy Seibert, a defenseman, whose home is in Kitchener, Ont., the other two, Orville Heximer of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Ehrhardt (Ott) Heller, Kitchener, both forwards, will come to the Rangers on probation.

Gate Receipts Increase.

In his annual report, President Calder showed that the league as a whole had made a record profit during the past season despite general depression in business. The total gate for last year was about 7 per cent in excess of that of the previous year, which had heretofore been the high mark since the league came into existence. Chicago, Mr. Calder reported, had become the hockey capital of the world, while New York attendance showed the game was gaining interest here.

There was a rumor at the gathering that Gus Rivers and Alex. Cook of the Canadiens, would be offered for sale before the start of next season. Leo Dandurand, who represented the Canadiens, could not be induced to confirm this report, although he was said to have offered the players to Colonel John S. Hammond of the New York Rangers. Colonel Hammond is reported to have declined the offer.

TENNIS.

TORONTO, May 12.—Canada's Davis Cup team has been selected. In an official announcement issued by Garnet H. Meldrum, President of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, to-day Marcel Rainville and Dr. Jack Wright, Montreal; Gilbert Nunns, Toronto, and Walter Martin of Regina are named as the four players who will meet the United States team in a series which commences May 21.

Alan C. Dunlop, Montreal non-playing captain of the squad, will decide just which of the four will compete against the United States team. Just two of those selected may take part in the matches, or three, or all four.

Three of those named are veterans of the courts. Dr. Wright has made the cup team ten successive times. Gilbert Nunns has represented Canada on four occasions, and Rainville has played in the Davis Cup matches three times. Martin is making his debut in the matches.

Members of the team will leave for Lucerne-in-Quebec early this week for training, and will proceed to Montreal in time to acclimatize themselves before the United States series commences.

"HEAVY" CONTRACT SIGNED.

CLEVELAND, O., May 12.—(C.P.)—Any doubt that the heavyweight championship fight between Max Schmeling and W L. "Young" Stribling would not be held in Cleveland's new municipal stadium July 3 was removed to-day.

The contract was signed last night.

More apartments were built in Stockholm, Sweden, in the last 12 months than during any of the preceding three years.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess.)

SOMEONE AT HOME.

To say the least it is most rude
Where not invited to intrude.
—Elf the Owl.

Very early every morning Farmer Brown's Boy and Flip the Terrier were out to see what they could find in this desert land which to them was so strange. Later in the day it would be too hot to move about. The curious giant cactus plants were a source of much interest to Farmer Brown's Boy.

more so since he had discovered Cactus Bill the Flicker making a home high up in one. After that discovery Farmer Brown's boy looked for holes in every one of these plants he saw nadhe was surprised to find how many had holes. He discovered a cousin of Cactus Bill's, known as the Gila Woodpecker, leaving a hole, and suspected that he had made that hole and had a nest there, and in this he was right.

The more he saw of these holes the more he wanted to examine some of them. It was provoking to see one, perhaps no more than twenty feet above his head, and not be able to get to it. But it would have been just as sensible to stroke Prickly Porky the Porcupine the wrong way as to try to climb one of those spine-covered plants, even had there been branches low enough for him to reach.

'I suppose those eggs of that Flicker are white and look about the same as the eggs of Yellow Wing at home," said Farmer Brown's Boy as he looked up at one of those holes. "It is just because I can't that I want to see them and examine the inside to one of those holes. It is queer how we always want the thing we can't have."

Flip the Terrier looked up at his master and grinned while at the same time he panted for breath. He knew just how Farmer Brown's Boy felt. He hadn't yet learned that he hadn't a chance in the world of catching Antelope Jack, the big long-legged cousin of Peter Rabbit, and couldn't resist the temptation to chase him every time he saw him.

But if Flip couldn't catch Antelope Jack his master was to have his wish gratified. He discovered a hole not so high as the others he had seen and he remembered that at the ranch where he was staying he had seen two ladders, which could be lashed together. He borrowed a car and with the two ladders lashed to the side of it he returned to the big cactus in which he had discovered the lowest hole he had yet found. Cousin Tom came with him to help him raise the long ladder made by lashing the two together. It was just 'ong enough and no more.

While Cousin Tom steadied it and Flip looked on, barking excitedly, Farmer Brown's Boy went up it until he could reach that hole. He thought it probably empty, but he meant to have the satisfaction of finding out. He had seen no bird in or near that hole since finding it, so he had no expectation of finding anything inside. He would, however, be able to find out what one was like inside and this was his real purpose.

It was all he could do to squeeze his hand through the opening. Once it was in he felt of the wall and was surprised to find how hard it was. Then he reached down to find out how deep it was. The tips of his fingers touched feathers, and then Farmer Brown's Boy let out a yell that caused Cousin Tom to grin.

'There must be someone at home,' said he, and grinned again as Farmer Brown's Boy, forgetting where he was, clutched at the prickly cactus with his free hand as he tried to withdraw his other hand. This brought forth another yell, whereat Flip began to bark.

'Ouch!" cried Farmer Brown's Boy ruefully as he tried to withdraw his hand from that hole. 'Someone at home is right, and that someone apparently doesn't intend to let me go."

'Steady, there!" cried Cousin Tom. 'If you dance about on that ladder much more you'll get in worse trouble than you are now. Have you got hold of whoever it is in there?"

"No. Whoever it is has got hold of me, and believe me, it hurts," replied Farmer Brown's Boy.

Cousin Tom unfeelingly chuckled. 'Serves you right for intruding where you wasn't invited and wasn't wanted," said he.

OLD TIME SOCIAL AT RUSH POINT

Splendid Program of Music and Song is Put on by Efficiency League.

HAVELOCK, May 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—A real old time social was held in the White Church on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Literary and Social group of the Rush Point Efficiency League, of which Miss Beavis is third vice-president.

The program was opened with a short address by Rev. Mr. Archer and the Lord's Prayer in unison. "A sweet bunch of daisies" was delightfully rendered by Miss Luella Keating, dressed as an old time maiden. A recitation, "The Deacon's Courtship," was given by Miss Sargent. This was followed by a harmonica solo by Mr. Gavin Buchanan. Little Clarence Pollock, dressed as a darkie, sang "Old Black Joe." "Silver Threads among the Gold" was well represented by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pollock. Miss Helen Buchanan rendered a violin solo, "Whispering Hope," which was enjoyed by all. A musical selection on the violin and guitar was given by Messrs. Carl and Murnie Barton. Mr. Hewllit favoured the audience with an accordion solo. A comical selection was then given by Miss Mabel Petherick and Murnie Barton. This selection was entitled, "No, Sir." Miss Jean Pollock sang "The Eloise," and accompanied herself on the ukelelee. One of the most enjoyable events of the evening was Miss Clara Menzie, representing an old lady and Gavin Buchanan, who sang, "When You and I were Young, Maggie." Mrs. Herbert Hoard dressed as an old maiden, and carrying an armful of books, recited, "My School Books." Another musical selection by Murnie and Carl Barton was enjoyed. A novelty number, "Solomon Levi" and "A Spanish Cavalier," sung by Misses B. Beavis and V. Buchanan, and Messrs. G. Buchanan and Carl Barton. A humorous reading, "Sixty Years Ago," was then given by Mr. Herb Hoard.

Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., tendered a vote of appreciation to the two teachers Miss Tait and Miss Beavis for their interest taken in the league work and all joined in a hearty applause to which both young ladies responded. Messrs. Carl and Murnie Barton supplied music while the refreshments were being prepared, and Mr. Bob Dennie sang, "Memories." A delightful lunch was then served and the evening was brought to an appropriate close by singing, "God Save The King."

Diocese Of Niagara Reviews Year's Work

HAMILTON, Ont., May 12.—With Rt. Rev. D. T. Owen, Bishop of Niagara in the chair, the Synod of the Diocese of Niagara began consideration of business to-day. Seated on the platform with His Lordship were Ven. Archdeacon Pery of Lincoln and Welland; Ven. F. G. Scovil, Archdeacon of Wellington and Halton; Ven. A. C. Mackintosh, Archdeacon of Wentworth and Haldimand; Very Rev. L. W. B. Broughall, Dean of Niagara; Chancellor H. J. Ingersoll, Rev. W. L. Archer and W. M. Logan, the latter two being honorary secretaries representing respectively the clergy and the lay delegates

All parishes in the diocese were represented, the total attendance being 250.

The financial statement revealed the amount asked for diocesan apportionment was $20,340, and the total contributed by congregations was $:9,043.07.

Work accomplished by the Church of England in the diocese during the year was reviewed by Bishop Owen.

British Union Presses For Canuck Affiliation

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 12.— (C. P.)—The British Columbia Rugby Union reaffirmed its stand to press for direct affiliation with the Canadian Rugby Union at the annual meeting of the Provincial Union held las tnight, It was decided that the delegate to a get-together-meeting of football officials to be held soon somewhere in the Middle West, at which the Western Intercollegiate, the Western Canada, the C. R.U. and the B. C. Union will be represented, should make every effort to secure affiliation.

LIBERAL WOMEN

tory contributions being received were only about one-third of what the fund now found itself obliged to pay out, she went on.

2,000,000 Getting Benefits.

Yet there was no mass movement of fraud, Mrs. Masterman said. Of the two and a half millions on the fund, about two millions were drawing benefits, to which they had paid contributions. Approximately 400,000 were receiving transitional benefits, the cost of which was borne entirely by the Exchequer. Mrs. Masterman argued those who were unemployed through no fault of their own, and had run out of the benefit should not be allowed to starve. And the conditions surrounding the granting of such assistance should not be so humiliating that the self-respecting would not accept it.

Dr. Betty Morgan, prospective Liberal candidate in Sunderland, seconded the resolution. She stressed the further point that 30 per cent. of those insured under the unemployment scheme had paid contributions without receiving any benefit whatever. If the fund was allowed to lapse into complete bankruptcy they would lose all their contributions.

She suggested limitation of assistance; the unemployment benefits should not be equal to what the worker could secure in normal employment, Dr. Morgan added. Secondly, the unemployed should be required to accept work which they were reasonably capable of performing, on unemployment relief schemes.

Thirdly, she said that work, rather than maintenance, should be the policy kept in mind.

Coupled with the dole resolution was one urging positive measures for unemployment relief, such as afforestation and slum clearance.

THE SON OF TARZAN No. 62 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

A year passed quickly for Meriem in her new home. "Bwana" and "My Dear," as she had first heard the white man and his wife addressed and the names which she still called them, became as father and mother to her. She was sixteen now, though she might easily have passed for nineteen, and she was very good to look upon, with her black hair and her tanned skin and all the freshness and purity of health and innocence.

Yet scarce an hour passed that did not bring its recollection of Korak and its yearning to see him again. No longer did she talk of him though, for Bwana had sent his men away in a month's search for Korak. They had found Kovudoo's village as Meriem had described it but not a single native was there. Nor were there signs of ape or ape-man and Meriem knew that "My Dear" and "Bwana" believed that Korak had never existed.

It was a long year for Korak, alone in the deepest jungle. He had no hope that Meriem lived after he had failed to find her in Kovudoo's village. He filled his day with labor and excitement that he might forget his misery in exhausted sleep. A year he led his solitary roaming life. Occasionally he fell in with Akut and his tribe, hunting with them for a day or so, or he would travel to the hill country where the baboons always welcomed him.

But most of all he was with Tantor, the elephant; the great, grey battleship of the jungle. The life of the huge beasts interested and amused Korak, taking his mind from his own grief and he came to love them as he had not loved even the great apes. One gigantic tusker in particular was his favorite. He came when Korak called, and, at a gesture, would wind his trunk about the youth's body, lifting him affectionately to his broad neck.

ROOMS CLOSED.

The relief distributing bureau over 435 George Street is closed for the season. All men having saws out are asked to return them to the rooms on Thursday afternoon, when they will be open for that purpose only.

HANDS SEVERELY BURNED.

The Fire Department received a call yesterday at 12.14 p.m. when a truck owned by the Cooney Cartage Company caught fire through a short circuit, at the yard on Simcoe street. Two tanks of foamite were used in extinguishing the blaze which caused a certain amount of damage to the cab. George Degan, trying to put out the blaze before the Fire Truck arrived, had his hands severely burned, and his face scorched

The Examiner wishes to acknowledge with much gratitude to the management of the Regent Theatre the receipt of $198.15 for its Cheer Fund, which is affiliated with the Peterborough Relief Association, being the proceeds of its share, twenty-five per cent., of the picture "Dracula," shown at the Regent Theatre. The local theatres have been most generous in their contributions to this fund, and The Examiner is very grateful for the kindness.

OBITUARY

MRS. W. W. LANG

POPULAR POINT, Man., May 12—One of the most largely attended funerals of this district was held last week when Mrs. W. W. Lang, formerly of Peterborough, was laid to rest. Prayers were offered at the family residence followed by a service in the United Church at which Rev. G. Hambly of High Bluff officiated. The casket was banked with several beautiful floral contributions.

The pallbearers were: G. Tait, J. P. Bend, C. Evans, M. R. Gowler, D. Murray and A. B. Jewison. The following acted as wreathbearers: Robert Dyer, Keith Calverley, Clifford Braden, Lloyd Lee, Earl Calverley, Errol Treleaven. Interment was later made in Poplar Point Cemetery.

Mrs. Lang had been a resident of Poplar Point for thirty-four years, coming there with her husband from Peterborough. She had made a wide circle of friends, and took a great interest in various organizations. She was a prominent worker in the Methodist Church, and later in the United Church, until her health compelled her to give up the church work. She was a life member of the W.M.S. of her church. Death came to her at the age of 61, after a long illness.

Surviving Mrs. Lang are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. F. Webster and Mrs. Burgess and six grandchildren, all of Poplar Point, two sisters, Mrs. Ada Watson of Fenelon Falls, Mrs. Nellie Warner of Hastings, and two brothers, John Swanton of Fenelon Falls and Tom Swanton of Vancouver.

Stolen Goods Found Hidden Around Farm

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 12.—(C.P.).—The largest haul of goods to be recovered in several years was taken last night by Chief Harold of Thorold Township, assisted by Provincial police, at the home of Frank Savage, a mile south-west of Turner's Corners, in a raid on the small farm. Materials missing from Porter Bros., ship canal contractors, and the township, included a Lister engine, motor pump and blacksmith's blower, and 14 rolls of fence wire, concealed in various sections of the place, including the strawstack, the total value being estimated at $1,200. The engine had been repainted and stored in a barn, the pump was found in a pit, while the fence wire had been dropped down a well.

Savage, when arrested, stated that he had found the stuff in a bush. He will be arraigned in the Township court at Thorold South this afternoon.

CONVICT ARGUES WAY FROM PRISON ONLY TO DIE BY GANGSTERS' GUNS

Sloane at Time of Death Was Out on Bail in Attempted Theft Case.

INTERESTING TRIALS.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 12.—Roy H. Sloane, 30, ex-convict, who acted as his own lawyer in successful efforts to get out of Sing Sing, was killed in front of a cafe early to-day by shots from a passing automobile.

Sloane, who at first was identified as John McDermott, dragged himself along the streets for about 150 feet before he collapsed at a police man's feet. He died in Jewish Hospital without regaining consciousness.

A man and a woman in the cafe told police that four men drove up in a large sedan, shot Sloane and dashed away before they could obtain the license number.

Sloane, police said, stole automobiles to obtain tuition for college. He was sent to Sing Sing for theft, studied law in prison and by legal technicalities obtained a new trial. He won himself an acquittal but before the case was decided prison keepers found brass knuckles in his possession.

Given Seven Years More.

He was sentenced to seven years more for an attempt to escape from prison and demanded release on grounds that he could not have tried to escape from prison when he was illegally incarcerated. The court of appeals granted him a new trial, arguments being made by regular lawyer retained by his mother, Mrs. Anna B. Sloane, author and lecturer.

The escape case was then dismissed and he received a suspended sentence for possession of concealed weapons which meant his freedom.

Two months after his release, he and Jack Giller were arrested in a building where they had attempted, police say, to steal $25,000 worth of diamonds. He was out on bail in that case when shot.

Sloane at one time was a student at Columbia University and Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pottsburgh, Pa.

HAPPY MEMORIES HELD BY PRINCE

Japanese Couple Wire Appreciation for Hospitality to Governor-General.

WIRE ANSWERED.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 12.—(CP)—In a telegram to the Governor-General, Prince Takamatsu on his departure from Canada, thanked the Earl and Countess of Bessborough, as well as the government of Canada, for the hospitality the Japanese Prince and Princess received while in the Dominion. The telegram dated at Windsor, Ont., to the Earl of Bessborough follows:

"At the moment of leaving the Canadian soil the Princess and I wish to offer Your Excellency our heartiest thanks for all the warm receptions and kind hospitality accorded us during our sojourn in Canada by you and Lady Bessborough and by the Government and people of the Dominion. We are very happy to say that we are taking away with us many recollections, both pleasant and instructive. We would on this occasion ask you to accept our earnest wishes for your health and for the continued prosperity of the Canadian people."

The Governor-General replied: "Have received Your Imperial Highness' telegram with great pleasure. Its contents will be appreciated throughout the Dominion for all Canada deeply regrets that your Imperial Highnesses have left us. We hope that it may some day be possible for you to re-visit this Dominion where your stay will be long remembered. Meantime Lady Bessborough and I wish you and the Princess a happy voyage and safe return to Japan."

HOLLAND WINS MEDAL HONORS

Unknown Golf Professional Scores 141, One Stroke Better Than Turnesa.

TWIN IN TIE FOR SECOND.

SOUTHPORT, Eng., May 12.—(AP)—Len Holland, little known professional from Gerrard's Cross, to-day won medalist honors in the $7,5000 Southport professional tournament by scoring a 69 for a two-day, 36-hole total of 141, one stroke better than Joe Tuenrsa, of Elmsford, N.Y.

Turnesa and Horton Smith, of New York, also scored 69s to-day but they had 73 and 78, respectively in their first rounds yesterday.

All four United States players qualified among the 100 who will compete at 72 holes medal play the next three days, Joe Kirkwood getting 156 and Tony Manero, also of Elmsford, 155.

Marco Churio, one of four Argentine golfers, competing in the tournament, scored a 74 to-day for a two day total of 149, placing him up among the leaders.

Percy Allis, British golfer who is pro at a Berlin club, took second place behind Turnesa in the qualifying field, with 144, Rufus Stewart, an Australian and Alfred Perry were tied for third at 146.

Other scores: Fred, 148; Henry Cotton, 149; Archie Compston, 149; W. H. Davies, 149; Ernest Whitcombe, 150; A. J. Lacey, 15.

Within 24 hours after he had been inaugurated fire department superintendent of Manchester, England, D. D. Sloan directed the fighting of 17 blazes.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12. (CP)—Six eligibles for the Kentucky Derby which have been training Kentucky were entered to-day in the derby trial, at a mile and a sixteenth, with Charles T. Fisher's Sweep All, a non-winner this year, favorite because of recent fast workouts.

Knebelkamp and Morris' Spanish Play winner of the Louisiana derby was second choice. The other entries were Pittsburgher, twice a winner as a three year old; Prince D'Amour, the Mongol and Major Lanphier. Sweep All, Spanish Play and Pittsburgher carried top weights of 115 pounds.

DR. HARRY HOBBS COACHES U. OF T.

Mentors of Other Varsity Rugby Squads Will Be Appointed at Later Date.

IS FORMER PLAYER.

TORONTO, May 12.—As intimated a few weeks ago, Dr. Harry Hobbs has been appointed as honorary coach of the University of Toronto Intercollegiate Union senior football team. Mentors for the Ontario Union seniors and the Intercollegiate Union intermediates and juniors will be appointed at a later date, and, undoubtedly, they will be U. of T. graduates.

In addition to playing quarterback for the Torontos in 1919, Dr. Hobbs starred in the same position for the Blue and White in 1920, '21 and '22. In the last-named season he was the captain, and a popular one at that.

Hobbs gained his first experience as a coach with Oakwood C. I., and after that tutored Balmy Beach seniors for several years. In 1927 he guided the Beachers to the Canadian championship, the Hamilton Tigers being beaten in the final here by 9 to 6.

While some may criticize the directorate for their refusal to change the policy that has been in existence since the Queen's Parkers first entered football, it must be admitted that is is strictly University of Toronto's own business.

Few will disagree with the appointment of Dr. Hobbs, whose record speaks for itself, but those who wished to have the policy altered were convinced that only a man who could give all his time to the team would get winning results. Perhaps Dr. Hobbs can do this, and, as far as the success of the team is concerned, it is hoped that he can do so. In the matter of strategy it is hardly likely that he will be found wanting. An ardent follower of the sport for years, he knows his football from A to Z.

Sussex Wins Out Over Lancashire

LONDON, May 12 (C.P. Cable) — Sussex defeated the champion English cricket club of Lancashire in a county match which finished to-day at Manchester. Sussex won by four wickets. Scores being: Lancashire, 252 and 153; Sussex, 268 and 139 for six wickets.

Middlesex won from Glamorganshire in another county match.

Yorkshire beat Essex by an innings and eight runs at Leyton.

PREDICT BRIAND NEW PRESIDENT

Balloting Takes Place Wednesday for Coveted French Office.

BACKED BY PRESS.

PARIS, May 12 (A.P.)—Aristide Briand, veteran French Foreign Minister, to-day seemed slated for election to the French Presidency by the National Assembly upon the first or second ballot to-morrow.

Friends of M. Briand and of Paul Doumer, the President of the Senate and his principal opponent engaged to-day in wide canvassing in an effort to secure voters for their leaders, but it was not believed generally that Senator Doumer could stave off beyond the second ballot the absolute majority necessary for Briand's election.

The candidacy of Jean Hennessy wealthy French distiller, a member of the Chamber of Deputies and forme. Minister, was not considered in political circles as affecting the situation He and other possible dark horses, however, may poll enough votes on the first ballot to prevent either M Briand or Doumer attaining a majority.

The Paris press, largely predicting M. Briand's election argued that so shrewd and experienced a politica strategist would not have consented to yesterday's announcement of his candidacy unless after careful calculation of all the elements in the race he believed himself certain to win.

If M. Briand is elected, he will be the thirteenth President of the third French Republic.

Shoot to Kill, Order Given Troops

RIOTING RENEWED IN MANY CITIES, SEVERAL KILLED

CATHOLICS BLAME REDS.

Attorney General to Issue Indictment Against Prominent Monarchists Including Alfonse.

MADRID, May 13. — (AP) —Order to shoot to kill were passed out today by the month-old Spanish Republic to troops guarding Roman Catholic property as the wave of anti-religious enthusiasm spread. There was renewed rioting in many cities, more churches and convents were burned, and there were many casualties.

A mob which formed during the evening at Cordoba raided ammunition stores and fought with civil guards defending the Convent of Santo Gayetanomx. Four rioters were killed and between 20 and 30 wounded gravely. The civil guard saved the convent from being burned and when martial law was declared the situation quietened.

Will Issue Indictments

In Madrid, Attorney General Galarsa announced that the Government would issue indictments against prominent Monarchists, including former King Alfonso at Paris, charging them with plotting and provoking the disorders in an attempt to embarrass the Republic.

(The correspondent of the London Daily Express quoted Galarsa as saying Alfonso's extradition to answer the indictment, which has not yet been issued, would be sought.)

In many quarters Galarsa's announcement was considered an attempt to appease some of the intense anti-Monarchial glamor which has marked the rioting of this week.

The bodies of the dead at Cordova were taken to the Mnicipal Hall. The streets uwere filled to-day with soldiers who paraded with fixed bayonets.

Disorders was widespread over the country, although Madrid, ruled by troops, was quiet. The Salesian Convent at Canepello, near Alicante, was burned by a mob. Two convents and the offices of a Catholic newspaper at Murcia, were set afire. The Capuchine Convent at San Lucar Barrameda was completely destroyed after a mob had fired it, the friars escaping to the homes of friends.

Tourists Stopped.

Three churches at Algeciras were attacked and images taken outside and burned in the streets. The mob attacked the asylum for the poor and some houses of priests at Algeciras but there was no bloodshed. Communist bands patrolled the roads to Gibraltar and stopped cars, even those containing tourists. Clerical refugees were beaten, deprived of their belongings and their cars burned, but others were not harmed.

The Civil Government at Valencia resigned early to-day, despatches not making entirely clear the reason for the action. All church institutions at Valencia were abandoned as a precaution. Intervention of Govern-

TWO NOMINATED IN RUTHERGLEN

Election Necessitated Through Death of Labor Member in House.

POLLING ON MAY 21.

GLASGOW, Scotland, May 13. — (CP)—Two candidates were nominated today to contest the by-election in the Rutherglen Division of Lanark County, necessitated by the death of William Wright, Labor member of the House of Commons. The candidates are David Hardie, Labor, (a brother of the late Keir Hardie), and Captain, Moss, Conservative.

William Allan, prospective Communist candidate, did not make an appearance when nominations were received. The Scottish Nationalist party, which made a good showing in the recent St. Rollox, Glasgow, by-election, when Labor retained the seat, decided some time ago not to contest Rutherglen.

Polling will take place on May 21, the same day as the voting in Stroud, Gloucestershire, and the result will be declared on the following day.

William Wright, who captured Rutherglen from the Conservative party in 1922, was re-elected in the last general elections with a majority of 5,239 in a four-cornered fight. The voting was as follows: Wright, Labor, 17,538; A. P. Duffes, Conservative, 12,249; J. D. McDougall, Liberal, 2945 and A. B. Moffat, Communist, 842.

PARMOOR STATES CABINET FAVORS QUOTA ON WHEAT

Action Assures Wheat Growing Dominions Certain Portion of British Market.

CLAIMS PROJECT FEASIBLE.

Details Cannot Be Disposed of Until After Parley at Ottawa.

LONDON, May 13 (C.P. Cable). — Lord Parmoor, President of the Council in the Labor Cabinet, to-day gave in the House of Lords a statement that the Labor Government had approved the general principle of a quota for Empire wheat. This would assure the wheat-growing Dominions a certain proportion of the British market, as suggested at the last Imperial Conference.

If the project is found impossible it will have to be dropped. Lord Parmoor added. But he did not see why it should be impossible.

Details Undecided.

"The difficulty is one of detail which cannot be disposed of until after the forthcoming conference at Ottawa. The Dominions do not think it is impossible and neither does the Government. Whether the Dominions can formulate a scheme which will be satisfactory, only time will tell."

A quota on wheat grown in Britain was a different matter, Lord Parmoor said. He believed it could not be used to benefit the farming industry without adding to the burdens of the taxpayer.

ARREST IS MADE IN MURDER CASE

Wishart Police Refuse to Reveal Charges or Suspect's Name.

FARMER FOUND SHOT.

WISHART, Sask., May 13. (CP)—Unravelling of the mystery surrounding the slaying of Pete Daday, 30-year-old farmer of the Wishart district, shot early Tuesday morning, has led to the arrest of a person whose name police refuse to reveal. Charges on which police are holding the suspect are also unknown.

The arrest made yesterday, followed the empanelling of a jury by Dr. William Brawley, Corner of Wynyard, opening of an inquest into Daday's death and a post mortem by Dr. Harry Little of Wishart. To allow police time to collect evidence, the inquest was adjourned until next Monday.

Daday, found dead in the barnyard by his wife and the hired girl shortly after they had returned from a dance in Wishart, was shot in the back.

DOUMER ELECTED 13TH PRESIDENT FRENCH REPUBLIC

VOTE, 504 TO 334.

Aristide Briand Defeated on First Ballot Withdrew His Candidacy.

VERSAILLES, France, May 13. (C.P.). — Paul Doumer, 74-year-old President of the Senate, to-night was elected thirteenth President of the French Republic.

Victory came on the second ballot after Aristide Briand, who trailed Doumer on the first ballot, had withdrawn his candidacy.

The official count gave Doumer 504 votes to 334 for Senator Pierre Marraud, who had the backing of the Socialists.

Before he left the hall after withdrawing from the contest, Briand stopped to exchange a few words with Doumer and to shake his hand as though conceding the election.

Briand Backs Marraud

Aristide Briand, defeated on the first presidential ballot withdrew his candidacy and threw his support to Senator Pierre Maurraud as the second ballot began. Marraud was the most formidable opponent to Doumer. The Socialists announced their votes would go to Marraud.

Briand's defeat was interpreted by some as a blow to his prestige and in the lobbies there was free discussion as to who would replace him as Foreign Minister.

Briand had told the Cabinet in conference, however, that he would go to Geneva tomorrow as he had planned, for he did not consider the presidential vote had any effect on French foreign policies.

Jean Hennessy former Minister of Agriculture, who polled 14 votes on the first presidential ballot, withdrew his candidacy in favor of Doumer before the second ballot began.

Candidate In 1905.

Paul Doumer, who narrowly missed election to the Presidency in 1905, is a dignified white-bearded gentleman, seldom loquacious, usually austere after the manner of Raymond Poin-

Leinster Regiment Mess Plate Saved

KINGSTON, May 13 (Special to The Examiner).—Among the treasure safely carried out of the Royal Military College, during the fire, was the mess plate of the Prince of Wales Leinster Regiment, 100th Foot (Royal Canadian). It was kept in a strong room behind iron bars in the tower of the Administrative Building. This regiment was recruited in Canada, served in Ireland, India, Africa and Canada. Elephants of Burmese silver, typical African figures and huge silver punch bowls, made the collection a unique one. The Regiment was disbanded in Ireland when the Irish Free State was proclaimed. The mess plate was sent to the Canadian military authorities for safe keeping, and a special room was made for it at the Royal Military College.

GASOLINE PRICE REDUCED IN CITY

PRICE NOW 22 CENTS.

Tank car competition by service stations having railway siding facilities finally resulted this morning in a general cut in the price of gasoline to enable the other dealers to meet the price of 22 cents a gallon.

Sales managers of all the leading oil companies were in the city this morning, evidently in agreement on the day's reduction which had been preceded by intimations and signs of a move downward.

Some dealers in Peterborough are in a position to buy gasoline in tank car lots, securing delivery of it into their service station pumps. Other dealers not so fortunately situated in relation to either of the railways have had to buy their gasoline in truck car lots, which are delivered at their service pumps from the storage tanks of one or another of the oil companies.

A tank car of gasoline contains 8,500 gallons. Conveyance of that quantity by motor truck entails seventeen trips, whereas the service station with a railway siding buys its 8,500 gallons and escapes the local trucking and other handling costs. These dealers have had an obvious advantage over the others, and as a business lure they cut their price to seventeen cents a gallon, plus the five cents a gallon Ontario Government tax.

The other dealers who were buying their gasoline supplies in motor truck quantities have been for the most part helpless against this competition, but the price slash announced to-day puts them in a better position to meet the tank car trade. This morning their quotation was down to the twenty-two cent level.

TO INVESTIGATE WHEAT PROFITS DURING THE WAR

SURPLUSES IN '17-'18.

Trade With China is Discussed By Minister of Trade and Commerce.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 13 (C.P.).—Rumblings of the war years when Canada's grain crops were marketed under Government supervision, were heard in the House of Commons yesterday. Did the farmers receive all the money owing to them through the sale of wheat to Allied countries by the Board of Grain Supervisors, was the question propounded by Opposition members.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, promised to fortify himself with all available information and suggested the particular item in the departmental estimates be allowed to stand until this had been secured. The item dealt with administrative costs of the Canada Grain Act.

Fixed Price Set Down.

First-hand information as to how the scheme worked during the war was given by Hon. Robert Rogers, who was a minister in the Borden Government. A fixed price of $2.21 was set both by Canada and the United States, he said.

There had been unsupported rumors and indirect charges that the members of the ministry of the day, or the Government itself had sold 50,000,000 or 75,000,000 bushels of wheat on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at prices above the set figure, Mr. Stevens said. These innuendoes were false, but he believed the whole situation needed clarifying.

Correspondence written by Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Borden Government was interjected into the discussion by Dr. T. F. Donnelly (Lib., Willlow Bunch) and John Vallance (Lib., South Battleford). Sir George had admitted surplusses existed after the 1917 and 1918 crops were marketed, they claimed. How much were they and what had become of them? asked the Western members. Information on this point was promised by Mr. Stevens, who agreed also to consider referring the whole question to the Agricultural Committee of the House. Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture, made the latter suggestion.

To-day was the last Wednesday of the session to be devoted exclusively to legislation sponsored by private members.

After to-day Government business will take precedence over motions

Former Minister Of Crown Passes Lengthy Illness

Hon. John S. Martin, Former Grand Master of the Masonic Grand Lodge in Ontario, and Former Minister of Agriculture Passed Away To-day at His Home.

HAD WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION AS POULTRY BREEDER KNOWN THROUGHOUT AMERICA AS WYANDOTTE KING

Premier Henry and Other Members of the Ontario Cabinet Pay Warm Tribute to Deceased Member of the Legislature—An Illustrious Citizen.

PORT DOVER, Ont., May 13.—(CP)—Hon. John S. Martin, M.L.A. for Norfolk, former Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario government and former grand master of the Masonic Grand Lodge in Ontario, died this morning at his home here after a long illness. Mr. Martin's death was not unexpected but fluctuations in his condition during the last few weeks raised some hopes for his recovery. He was in his 58th year. Mrs. Martin survives.

Mr. Martin had been unwell for some years. In July 1929 down he was in a motor accident and had two ribs broken. He was unable to participate in the Ontario general elections, but was re-elected member of the legislature for Norfolk by a majority of 1,403, for his third successive term in the house. He returned to his office as Minister of Agriculture in November, 1929. In the cabinet reorganization last September he retired on account of ill-health. He was unable to attend the session of the legislature this year.

Mr. Martin had a world-wide reputation as a poultry breeder in which business he was engaged for many years. He was known as the "Wyandotte King" making a specialty of that class of poultry. His entries took many prizes at various fairs throughout North America.

Premier Pays Tribute

TORONTO, Ont., May 13. (CP)—Premier Henry and other members of the Ontario Cabinet paid warm tribute to the public service rendered by the late Hon. John S. Martin. The entire cabinet with the exception of Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, who is in the south on a holiday, will attend the funeral.

Premier Henry said: "I have known Mr. Martin ever since we were undergraduates at Varsity and I have always had the very highest regard for him. His activities in raising pure bred poultry and his wide success in that particular field did very much to advertise not only Ontario but Canada in many foreign countries and made a worthwhile contribution to our national life. For several years he gave his best in the promotion of better agricultural conditions. When he resigned from the cabinet I felt a real loss in his departure as a colleague. His Masonic activities are well known and will draw forth deserved tributes from all who were associated with him. To Mrs. Martin and the family the Government desire to extend its sincere sympathy."

Illustrious Citizen

Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, declared Mr. Martin's knowledge of agriculture had been an outstanding contribution of farming and poultry breeding.

"The province has lost one of its illustrious citizens," said Col. Price.

Hon. T. L. Kennedy, successor to Mr. Martin said: "If ever there was a real Christian gentleman, it was John S. Martin, a man of outstanding achievements, who worked long hours on behalf of the Province. It is my wish to further the policies which he inaugurated."

The Wyandotte King.

Entering the Ontario political field for the first time in 1923, Hon. John Strickler Martin immediatley became minister of agriculture in the cabinet of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson; but despite this rapid rise to cabinet rank, he probably was better known throughout the North American continent as "The White Wyandotte King."

Originally a graduate of the University of Toronto and a high school teacher, Mr. Martin shelved his pedagogics early in this century to devote all his time to the rearing of pure-bred chickens, and ranked highest among the Wyandotte exhibitors at the national and international shows on this continent.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO MINING EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Ont., May 13 (C.P.).—Activity and strength in Noranda and firmness among higher priced golds were the only features of an otherwise dull mining market to-day. Balance of the list retained its irregular to lower appearance.

Touching a high of $24.50 in the afternoon, Noranda sold down in the last half-hour under profit-taking to close around $24 for a gain of a point and a half on the day. Sherritt-Gordon was off 5 to 80, but other base metals were holding. Nickel eased a quarter to $14.25 in odd-lot trade.

MONTREAL CURB.

MONTREAL, Que., May 13 (C.P.). —Stocks moved within an exceptionally narrow range during the quiet trading of this afternoon's session on the Montreal Stock Exchange. The sales volume was at a low level. The majority of the leading issues continued to display a steady trend. Only in a few cases were the morning losses extended.

Brazilian Traction continued firm, reaching a high for the day at 16¼ and closing at 16 for a net advance of ½. Early losses in such stocks as Canadian Pacific, National Breweries, International Nickel, and a few others were fairly well reduced.

The Royal Bank broke through to 260, a new low level, and a loss of three points for the day.

Price Brothers equalled its low at 32, off ½ from the previous sale. International Power Preferred gained two at 65.

DYING BULL GORES TO DEATH BRAVE YOUNG SPANISH MATADOR

Twenty-Year-Old Boy on Brink of Fame Made One Slight Error.

GOES DOWN FIGHTING

(By Gordon A. Sinclair)

LA LINEA, Spain, April 12 (Special to The Examiner, Copyright, 1931)—Fernando Naranjo, a slim young matador with a promising future, died a horrible death in the bull ring at La Linea this Sunday because he grew impatient.

Not only was Naranjo killed but the other two matadors of the day were both injured in a wild and exciting afternoon.

La Linea lies a quarter mile across neutral territory from Gibraltar and although a small smelly village it boasts a big league bull ring. To this ring come the newly professionalized matadors. The youths who have just taken their "alternative" and are ready to strut forth and show the world just how bulls should be brought down with one twist of a powerful wrist.

From the beginning, to-day, things went wrong. The first matador in his opening encounter with the furious toro was tossed higher than a house. Luckily he landed among the spectators and except for the immed-

60 Per Cent. Of Cars Are Found Defective

Police state that the need for the check-up of brakes on local cars was clearly proven yesterday, when it was found that 60 percent. of the cars tested had defective brakes.

Old cars will receive special attention in the check-up which will continue throughout the summer, since it is considered that the veteran vehicles are more apt to have defective brakes. Car owners are given 24 hours after the test to have their defective brakes brought up to the proper standard.

British Warships To Visit Dominion

LONDON, May 13.—(C. P. Cable) —Several vessels of the West Indies squadron of the Royal Navy will be in Canadian waters throughout the summer, C. G. Ammon, Parliamentary secretary to the Admiralty, stated in the House of Commons this afternoon.

D. G. Somerville, Conservative member for East Willesden, had asked whether the Government was considering the desirability of a visit of naval vessels to Canadian waters during the imperial economic conference at Ottawa in the autumn.

The West Indies squadron comprises five "b" class cruisers under Vice-Admiral V. H. S. Haggard, whose flagship is the Despatch, 4,650 tons, armed with six 6-inch guns,

EIGHT SUMMONED FOR AUTO THEFTS

Smart Detective Work By New Hamburg Chief Credited For Solution.

PARTS DISTRIBUTED.

NEW HAMBURG, Ont., May 13.—(CP)—Smart detective work by Chief of Police Scherer of this town, it is believed, will lead to the breaking up of an alleged ring of car thieves in the rural district north and east of this place. Eight men from St. Agatha, Phillipsburg, Josephsburg and Mannheim have been summoned to appear in Kitchener police court Saturday.

Finding of a piece of cardboard, cut to fit a radiator for winter driving, in a bush near Josephsburg led to the solution of a car theft which occurred last November. Chief Scherer found that the stolen car had been dismantled in the bush where the cardboard was found and that the parts had been built into other cars, scattered over a wide area. He claims one man had the chassis, another the motor, a third the body, a fourth the bumpers, radiator shell and bumperettes, a fifth the cushions and a sixth the wheels, starter and generator.

Archbishop O'Brien To Restore Garden

KINGSTON, May 13 (Special to The Examiner).—Thomas McGuire, New York, a former resident of Kingston, has presented the parish of St. Mary's Cathedral with a gift that will total approximately $5,000 or $6,000. The money is to be used in building a stone fence, with a ornamental railing to encircle the grounds to the west of the Archbishop's palace. The large plot is to be transformed into a floral garden and will be extremely picturesque. In the early seventies, Bishop Horan had the most artistic garden in Kingston on this site, but after his death, it gradually disappeared. It is to be re-established in accordance with the artistic taste of Archbishop O'Brien.

DETAILS GIVEN ON LAND TAX BILL AS PROPOSED BY PHILIP SNOWDEN

Cost of First Valuation For Taxation Purposes Likely to Cost $5,000,000.

EXEMPTIONS LISTED.

LONDON, May 13 (C.P. Cable).—Details of the Government's proposal to tax land values were forthcoming to-day when the Financial Bill, in which they were embodied, was made public. The proposed tax on land values, at a rate of a penny in the pound on capitalized value, was the outstanding feature of the Budget recently brought down by Right Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

A memorandum accompanying the Bill states the cost of the first valuation of land for the purpose of the tax cannot be precisely estimated, but that it is estimated additions to staff, office expenses, and remuneration of the "referees," the body to hear appeals for revision, will amount to at least $5,000,000, and may approach $7,500,000. This expenditure will be spread over the next three financial years.

Exemptions.

Exemptions from the tax will include lands not subject to lease for a term of fifty years or more, owned by the Crown, a Government department or any public body on behalf of His Majesty and used for Government purposes; lands owned by any local authority (municipality); lands used for charitable purposes, burial grounds, lands for purely agricultural purposes, lands included in the national trust, lands owned by religious bodies for public religious worship, and lands used for public undertaking.

8-Year-Old Child Fatally Injured

STRATFORD, Ont., May 13 (C.P.)—Without regaining consciousness, 8-year-old Bobbie Somerville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Somerville of Blanchard Township, struck by a car while on his way home from school late Monday afternoon, died in the General Hospital here last night. The cause of death was a severe fracture of the skull and other injuries received when the lad was hit by the car in charge of B. G. Westcott of Kingsville, who was charged with criminal negligence in Police Court yesterday.

An inquest into the death of the lad was opened this morning in St. Mary's, in charge of Coroner Dr. T. J. McGinnis.

PASS $200,000,000 MARK

MONTREAL, Que., May 13 (C.P.) —Sir Charles Gordon, chairman of the 1931 Conversion Loan Committee, to-day stated that applications had passed the $200,000,000 mark at noon and that subscriptions to the Government's $250,000,000 Conversion Loan were still pouring in from all parts of the country.

MUTINEERS ARRESTED

VILLA REAL DO SANTO ANTONIO, Portugal, May 13 (A.P.) — Mutiny broke out aboard the Spanish warship Lauria to-day and the leaders were taken ashore, where they were imprisoned. Later the Lauria sailed for San Fernando.

150 Are Fighting Cochrane Bush Fire

CALGARY, Alta., May 13 (C.P.).—Close to 150 volunteers are fighting a severe bush fire between Morley and Cochrane, west of Calgary to-day. Reports indicated the fire covers an area of 25 square miles.

One transmission line of the Calgary Power Company was thrown out of commission, but power is being brought to the city on two other lines from plants at Kananaskis and Ghost River.

Many cattle are believed to have been suffocated in the blaze.

ALL DRIVING CARS TO GET NO RELIEF

Stratford Decides Liquor Permits Must Be Handed in Also.

UP TO CITY COUNCIL.

STRATFORD, Ont., May 13. (CP) All those men who are working on the city relief scheme of those who are drawing relief from the city in any way must, within the near future, turn in their liquor permits and their automobile markers or be cut off the list of the city's relief officer.

This was the decision reached at the regular meeting of the relief committee held in the committee room at the City Hall last night. The committee will make this recommendation to the city council at its regular meeting on Monday night. The members held rather a lengthy and entirely confidential discussion last night, in going over the personnel of the men who are working on the relief scheme. The discussion brought out certain stories which were to the effect that some of the men on the relief lists were driving cars some of the time and some held liquor permits.

SOCIALISTS SPLIT ON FINAL CHOICE POLICE ON GUARD

Struggle Narrows Down to Personalities of Two Veteran French Parliamentarians.

Choose President To-day.

Versailles Patrolled Heavily to Prevent Any Election Disturbance.

VERSAILLES, France, May 13 (A.P.)—The French Senate's 120 Socialists meeting briefly at noon today failed to agree upon support as a body for Aristide Briand in this afternoon's election of a new French President. It was understood, however, that most of the Socialists favored the Foreign Minister.

As a matter of fact the Socialist indecision was expected to work for M. Briand, since it robbed the Doumer opposition or what would have been a forceful cry: "Bar the route to the Reds."

Personalities

As the hour of balloting approached to-day the struggle appeared to have been stripped of any political significance and to have been narrowed down to the personalities of the two veteran parliamentarians, the stern old Spartan father Doumer, who lost four sons in the Great War, and the silver-tongued Briand.

Some enemies of Briand placarded the automobile road from Paris to Versailles to-day, charging that voting for him was equivalent to voting for "Blumis, Malvy and the Nunciature." Blumis, the Socialist leader; Malvy, the former Minister of Interior who was banished in 1918 for neglect of wartime duties but since has been rehabilitated and is now chairman of the Chamber finance committee.

The reference to the Papal Nunciature in Paris seemed to indicate that the placarding was the work of the Royalist Party, or Action Francaise, which the Pope formally condemned in 1926.

Versailles Patrolled.

The heavy shoes of French plainclothesmen to-day pounded the sylvan paths at Versailles where Louis XIV.'s red-heeled and dainty dandies once sauntered.

Most of the principal thoroughfares leading to the palace were closed to traffic by cycle policemen.

Almost the only election disturbance thus far occurred last night when police charged a group of 50 Royalists who were demonstrating against M. Briand in the Paris Latin quarter. Five were arrested.

The streets of the suburb were crowded with soldiers in uniforms ranging from the dark blue of the Alpine Chasseurs to the tan of the Colonials and the familiar horizon blue, but they were not on guard. Almost all the local garrison and troops at the nearby airport were granted leave to make merry at the annual fair which is being held near the palace in the Rue Sadi Carnot.

CADET WOUNDED WHILE DRILLING

Lindsay Cadet Drill Ends in Junior Student Being Shot in Arm.

USING OLD RIFLE.

LINDSAY May 13.—When the collegiate cadets were drilling after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Keele Gregory, one of the junior students, was shot in the arm.

He took off his coat, and three fellow-cadets fainted when they saw the flow of blood.

Jack Dunk, also a junior cadet, was reported responsible for the shooting, which was purely accidental. The gun was a .22-calibre rifle, used by the younger cadets.

The firing pins had been removed from all the regular rifles, and, it was supposed from the smaller rifles also. The weapons had not been in use for several years.

Twenty Place Names On Presidential List

VARSAILLES, France, May 13 (C.P.).—Premier Laval to-day received twenty requests of individuals outside the French Parliament for their names to be placed on the official ballot for to-day's election of a new French President.

The candidates, all of whom had their wish granted, included butchers, bakers, railroad employees, and clerks. One Parisian workman wrote:

"I have not big hopes but you never can tell."

PRINCE SUGGESTS BRITAIN REFORM SALES METHODS

Would Build Factories in Foreign Countries Where Tariff Barriers Exist.

MAKE CHEAPER GOODS.

Speech Creates Widespread Discussion in Business Circles.

LONDON, May 13 (C.P. Cable).—The Prince of Wales' speech at Manchester yesterday has been cordially received in every department of trade and commerce and industry. His remarks on the necessity for reform of British sales methods, and more especially on the need for meeting foreign tariff obstacles by establishing manufacturing plants abroad and within those tariff walls, were the subject of widespread discussion in business circles to-day.

Sir Gilbert Lyle, former President of the British Chambers of Commerce Association, declared the Prince's speech would undoubtedly be a tremendous stimulant and very helpful. "But there remains," said Sir Gilbert, "the tremendous difficulty of producing in England goods comparable in both price and value with the goods of other countries.

Endorses Plea.

Edward Symonds, President of the British Fashions and Fabrics Bureau, heartily endorsed the Prince's plea for goods of attractive appearance, and pointed out that British textile materials recently produced in Lancashire and Yorkshire were of such an attractive and bright appearance they could not be surpassed by continental makes.

The Prince's Manchester speech was much along the lines of his address to business men at Birmingham on Monday. In both, he was outspoken in his comments on the necessity for modernizing British sales methods; on the necessity of meeting the world-wide demand for cheaper goods.

But at Manchester he incorporated

Campbellford Rate Likely Be 50 Mills

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—A lower tax rate is anticipated for the town of Campbellford for the current year when at a meeting of the Finance committee held this week it was decided to present to a special meeting of the council a 50 mill rate for their approval.

This, if it meets with the council's sanction, will be a decrease of two mills over last year's rate, and falls in line with the decision of the 1931 council for a period of retrenchment. It is understood that allowances have been made to meet the increased county rate which is expected.

Doctors pretty well agree that (barring germ diseases) most illness and headache, are due to failure or inability to keep "clean inside."

In blaming this condition for most of our sickness, so they agree also on the safe way to relieve it—keeping clean inside by the Nujol type of treatment. Nujol is not a medicine at all. It contains no drugs. It is not absorbed, and therefore cannot make you fat.

Two things you have to remember if you want to enjoy "Nujol health."

One: Don't expect results over night. This is nature's own method.

Two: Be sure you get Nujol. Your druggist has this pure and drugless product in a sealed package, trademarked "Nujol" to protect you.

FORMER MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE FOR THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO DIES

Born on the family farm in the Township of Walpole, Haldimand County, Ont., Oct. 11, 1875, his love for poultry was early inherited and when he was 10 years old, the inventory under his bed included a basket of eggs and a sitting hen. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, his father being an Englishman and his mother, formerly Clara Strickler, a descendant of United Empire Loyalist stock who went to Ontario after the American War of Independence.

In 1893 his father brought "Jack" his first pure-bred chickens, Light Brahmas. Since then he experimented with practically all breeds of chickens and his farm at Port Dover contained numerous other breeds besides the White Wyandottes on which he specialized.

Given his early education at Caledonia and Port Dover high schools, Mr. Martin enrolled at the University of Toronto in 1893, choosing science. The following year he transferred to arts, following up with a term at the Ontario Normal school at Hamilton where he graduated in 1898. He immediately returned to Port Dover to teach high school, moderns and classics. He was soon made principal of the school, only, however, to retire from school teaching for his early hobby, poultry breeding in general and White Wyandottes in particular. Shortly after his appointment as principal of the Port Dover high school, Mr. Martin, in 1901 visited the Pan-American Exhibition, where he saw and studied for the first time practically all the various breeds of poultry under one roof. It was here he decided to specialize in White Wyandottes, and after a short time experimenting he decided to attempt to improve the species' egg-laying qualities. The demand for bred-to-lay stock had increased considerably and Martin now made up his mind to make use of the trap nest to get the records of his best layers.

One chicken, hatched in February, began laying early in the fall. Its record for the first year was 241 eggs. He named the chicken Dorcas and decided to use her to build up a flock of heavy layers. Mated to a fine vigorous cockerel, bred from a hen with a record of 205 eggs in one year, this Dorcas hen became the basis of all the Martin stock and of his successes with the Dorcas-Regal strain. The superiority of this strain was proved a few years ago by the United States Government when several tests for adaptability and stamina were conducted with a view to stocking the United States Government farm at the Panama Canal zone. For its high record egg-laying propensities the Martin strain was chosen.

On his farm, Lakeview, Mr. Marin had an immense collection of cups, shields, bowls, medals and other trophies testifying better than many words of the excellence of his White Wyandottes. In 1907 for instance, the poultry representative of the Imperial Japanese Government at the Boston show awarded Mr. Martin a handsome bronze vase in recognition of his showing of the best bird in the entire exhibition. As a result the Japanese Government's Department of Agriculture became one of Mr. Martin's best customers, and many individual Japanese followed suit.

Great Prize Winner

He has won prizes at the Sesquicentennial Exposition at Philadelphia (practically all prizes in the classes in which he entered went to him) and the first year he exhibited at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, in 1927, he took both first, second, third and fourth for individual birds, and first, second and third for pens, exhibited. He has won all the leading prizes at the New York State fairs at Syracuse, and in 1926 was presented with a silver cup by the fair in recognition of his winning the White Wyandotte championship for the 21st consecutive year. He has also secured the leading prizes at Madison Square Garden, New York, the Heart of America Show at Kansas City, Mo., Maine laying contest, Canadian Championship Laying Contests, and several other shows.

"There is no magic about winning prizes," Mr. Martin once said. "It is only a matter of hard work, and the power to look at your own birds as critically as the show judges do."

The interest he took in his native countryside was always keen, although so many of his waking hours had become monopolized by his new profession. For a number of years he was counsellor and later deputy reeve in the Norfolk County Council. He was chairman of the hydro commission, and in 1915 he was on the board of education, and he was a member of the Norfolk County Board of Trade. In 1922 and 1923 he was Reeve of Port Dover and in June of 1923 he ran in South Norfolk for the Ontario Legislature and was elected. He was immediately given the agricultural portfolio in the cabinet. In the 1926 provincial election he was returned with a majority double his first one, and on Oct. 30, 1929, despite the fact that he was sick and unable to conduct a campaign he was again elected. He is a through and through Conservative but was an all-round "dirt-farmer." He has always believed in Ontario as a farming province. His earnest endeavors in the cabinet and on the floor of the House have always been towards effecting better and closer understanding between country and city. He has also often emphasized the need for education among the farmers themselves, as to better methods and higher standards on the farm.

Mr. Martin is an Anglican, a member of the General Synod, an Oddfellow, and a Mason. In the Grand Lodge he has held the offices of District Deputy Master, he has been on the executive of the board of general purposes, and was electeb Deputy Grand Master in 1926-28 and Grand Master 1928-29. In 1905 and 1906 he was president of the Canadian White Wyandotte Club, in 1910 and 1911 of the National Wyandote Club, was a member of the executive of the American Poultry sAssociation from 1925 on, was later on the board of directors of the same organization and latterly was chairman of the finance committee of the body.

He married Lillian Else, of Williamsport Pa., Sept. 18, 1909. There are no children.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS NAMED BY LIEUT.-COL. R. E. BIRDSALL

Thirty-Five Per Cent. of Those Named Returned Men or Wives of Returned Men.

INSTRUCTION CLASSES

For the information of the people in the census district No. 115, comprising the Federal electoral district of Hastings-Peterborough, Lieut.-Colonel R. E. Birdsall, census commissioner for that district, has given The Examiner the list of enumerators whom he has appointed as his assistants.

At least thirty-five per cent. of the enumerators are returned soldiers or the wives of returned men. In some municipalities all the enumerators are men who saw war service. Classes of instruction will be held this month at Bancroft, Marmora, Madoc, Havelock, and Apsley for the purpose of explaining to the enumerators all the details of their work.

Asphodel Township — Lieut.-Col. Hilliard Neilson, Hastings, R.R. 3, and R. C. Brackenridge, Westwood.

Wicklow and McClure—Claude W. Goodwin, Maynooth.

Bangor—George Boyle, Centreview.

Belmont—Hugh W. Brown, Havelock, R.R. 1; James W. Russell, Havelock, R.R. 3; Ross Barrons, Cordova Mines; A. A. Wilde, Havelock, R.R. 2.

Methuen—Shell Wallbridge, Havelock, R.R. 4.

Carlow—William McWhirter, Jr., Fort Stewart.

Queen Pays Tribute To Eugene Ysaye

BRUSSELS, May 13 (A.P.)—Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians to-day paid a last visit to Eugene Ysaye, Belgian violinist, who died yesterday, going to his bier where she left a wreath. She was accompanied by a maid of honor. Intensely moved, the Queen expressed to the violinist's sobbing widow her deep sympathy and sorrow.

Ysaye's funeral will be held Friday. There will be a Mass for him at Trinity Church, which will be sung by the students of the Brussels Musical School where Ysaye for the last fifteen years acted as professor.

In accordance with Ysaye's wish, there will be no funeral address. He will be buried at Ixelles Cemetery.

Australian Senate Defeats Bank Bill

CANBERRA, Australia, May 13 (C.P.).—The Australian Senate to-day by the overwhelming vote of 21 to 4 defeated the Commonwealth Bank Bill which provides for shipment abroad of £5,000,000 of the gold reserve to meet debts due.

The opposition Senators decided to oppose the Bill since they were unable to find any way of satisfactorily amending it.

Last week Sir Robert Gibson, chairman of the Commonwealth Bank, asked to give his opinion on the Bill, declared that the board of the bank did not approve of the gold shipment, believing it would adversely affect confidence in the Australian note issues.

CAR IS STOLEN FROM GARAGE

New Automobile is Taken From Showrooms of John Trudeau, Tweed.

HAS TRANSIT LICENSE.

TWEED, May 13.—A smooth theft in the small hours of Saturday morning cost John Trudeau, local Ford agent, a new maroon coupe. He had received the car a short time ago, and had it on display in his showroom. Friday night he locked his store and garage around twelve o'clock, and when he opened for business Saturday morning there was a gaping space where he had left the new coupe.

The thief must have been more or less expert as a mechanic for the car was lacking the high tension wires which he obtained from Dr. Doyle's car that had been left in the Trudeau garage over night. He removed the wires from the one car to the other, picked up a few batteries and other handy stock, backed out the rear door and disappeared without a trace. The coupe carried only the transit license. Enquiries up to Tuesday had failed to track the trim maroon car.

MAYOR CLASHES WITH THE COURT AND IS EVICTED

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Chief of Police is Asked to Put Mayor Out of Court Room.

ORILLIA, May 13. — Startling scenes, in which the principal figures were Mayor J. B Johnston and Police Magistrate Daniel McCaughrin, were witnessed by an amazed throng in the Orillia courtroom yesterday afternoon, when the Magistrate was forced to order the police to eject the Mayor from the room

The trouble arose at the outset of the trial against William Ainsworth on a charge of assaulting C. L. T. McKenzie, school teacher

Magistrate McCaughrin, at the beginning of the hearing, read charges against Ainsworth. By the Crown, Ainsworth was charged with "assault with intent to commit grievous bodily harm," and by the Orillia Board of Education with "creating a disturbance by interrupting proceedings in a public school." These charges were laid against Ainsworth following an alleged violent physical encounter between him and Principal Cecil L T. McKenzie of the West Ward School last Friday morning, after which Principal McKenzie had to be removed to the Orillia Soldiers' Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Ainsworth refused to elect or plead, asking that he be given time to summon his counsel, Boulton Marshall, who would represent him at the preliminary hearing. He explained that his friends had retained another lawyer, who would also assist in his defense. Magistrate McCaughrin admitted it was reasonable that Ainsworth be given every opportunity to establish his innocense, and said he would grant him time to send for the lawyer.

Reading Plans

In the interim Mayor Johnston and a companion, a contractor named Boyd Saunders, had spread out in the courtroom some plans and blueprints in which they appeared to be interested. The Mayor was apparently demonstrating something to Saunders. Several times the Magistrate glanced in Mayor Johnston's direction. The Mayor took no notice of the Magistrate.

"Mayor Johnston we do not allow the exhibition of blueprints while court is in session" said the Magistrate, firmly.

The Mayor made some remarks to those near him in a lower voice.

Magistrate McCaughrin again remonstrated with the Mayor, saying that it was essential to preserve the dignity of the court. No one was permitted to come into a courtroom and raise a disturbance, he declared, with some firmness.

"You'd better make a Methodist Sunday school out of your courtroom," were words heard.

"What did you say?" asked the Magistrate.

"I didn't say a thing" rejoined the Mayor.

"I thought I heard you make some observation about a Sunday School," retorted the Magistrate.

Ordered to Leave

The Magistrate insisted that the Mayor had made some remark about some school, while the Mayor was equally insistent that he had not said a word. Finally, seeing what was likely to take place, the Magistrate told the Mayor that he had better leave the courtroom for insubordination. The Mayor continued to hold forth, in his corner, to those about him.

"Your Worship, leave this courtroom" ruled the Magistrate.

"I haven't done a thing" said the Mayor.

The Magistrate repeated that the

FIRE DAMAGES LINDSAY HOME

Campbellford Resident Suffers Property Loss in Tuesday's Blaze.

BRIGADE CALLED.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). Fire which broke out at the residence of Joseph Lindsay, Campbellford, just before midnight on Tuesday caused considerable damage to one wing of the house, burning up from the kitchen into a bedroom and through the roof.

The fire, which was thought to be caused by an overheated stove pipe, was first noticed by two daughters who were in the kitchen at the time. They immediately started to remove what furniture they could, considerable of which was saved. Mr. Lindsay, who was out at the time, noticed the flames coming from what he took to be his residence and immediately rushed home, arriving at the same time as the fire fighters, who were able after a short while to get the blaze under control.

The flames, however, spread to the roof and some difficulty was experienced in extinguishing them. Some of the contents of the bedrooms were burned, the main portion of the house which is a frame structure, being saved however. No insurance was carried.

Taximen Summoned Advertised Cut Rates

TORONTO, Ont., May 13 (C.P.).—Summonses have been issued to a number of local taxicab firms because they displayed placards announcing a cut in the rate of taxi fares.

Three independent taxi operators upon whom the summonses were served will appear in court to answer charges they had displayed these placards which did not have the approval of Chief Constable D. C. Draper before being put in use.

"We were offering a thirty-cent rate on short trips because the public is demanding cheaper fares," said Wallace Purdue, one of the owners. "We were told by the police we would have to take our cards down, but we decided to make it a test case and refused to remove the cards, and so received the summonses."

BILL SUBMITTED

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 13.—(AP)—The wheat growers' conference here today submitted to the minister of markets suggestions for consideration at the forthcoming world conference at London. They included the creation of an international marketing organization representing the wheat exporting countries and control of the sale of all exported wheat.

When the new Polish-German commercial treaty becomes effective Poland will have the right to export 3,840,000 tons of coal a year to Germany.

To the Holders of WAR LOAN AND VICTORY BONDS

A Statement by the Minister of Finance

IN THE dark days of the War, Canadians loaned to the Government of the Dominion many hundred millions of dollars to enable the operations of the Allies to be carried to a successful conclusion.

When Canadians loaned their money to the Government, they received bonds which were promises to repay them the sum loaned with interest at the rate of 5% or 5½% per annum. On the 1st of October next, $53,000,000 of these bonds become due; on the 1st of November, 1932, the maturity will be $73,000,000; on the 1st of November, 1933, $446,000,000; and, in 1934, $511,000,000 must be provided for.

It would not be prudent, either in the interest of the security holders or the country itself, to wait until these loans become due before providing for their payment or conversion. Action must be taken well in advance of the due dates to protect the credit of the country. The Government believes this an opportune time to afford Canadians the opportunity to exchange the bonds, which they own maturing in the next few years, for new bonds of the Dominion of Canada carrying interest at the rate of 4½% per annum, which is a very attractive return. Prior to the maturity date of the present bonds, those who accept this offer will, of course, continue to be paid interest at the rate as provided by the bonds they exchange.

Canadians who have always shown confidence in their country are earnestly invited to exchange the bonds they now own for bonds of the new issue. By so doing, they will render less difficult the task of providing for the future finances of the country, will enhance its credit and will greatly assist the Government in the present period of world-wide readjustments.

No money will be asked for and no new bonds will be sold at this time. It is proposed to limit the present conversion to $250,000,000, but the Government has the right at its discretion to increase the amount if Canadians indicate a general desire to continue their investments in the securities of their Dominion. The subscription books will close on the 23rd of May.

I earnestly seek the active support of my fellow Canadians in making this conversion, which is one of the largest financial operations our country has undertaken in recent years, creditable alike to Canada and its citizens.

R. B. Bennett

CASH AWARDS OFFERED DAILY BY THE E XAMINER

Six "Do You Know" Contest A rticles Appear in This Issue—Rules Ar e Simple.

Several stories regarding dependable business institutions or individuals are appearing each day in The Examiner with the object of educating the people of Peterborough and vicinity with some of the real metropolitan services that we have in our midst.

The last sentence in each of the stories asks a question, beginning "Do you know....". The questions pertain to the firms that the story describes and it is necessary to call that firm to get the answer.

A three dollar cash prize will be paid every day by The Examiner to the reader who submits the best set of answers to the questions in any one issue. By way of example, there are six "Do You Know" stories in this issue. It is necessary to look through the paper, find the articles, call each of the six firms that the stories tell you of, and send in the entire set of six answers.

This is not a guessing contest. You must call the firms for the answers. The prize winners are selected from those whose answers display the most originality or cleverness in construction. You may arrange your answers in any way you wish; written with pen, pencil, typewriter—with or without pictures accompanying them—as an essay—as poetry—in artistic fashion, color with crayons or water colors, or in any way you may wish. It is not necesary to follow any of these ideas, however. Arrange your answers however you wish, and bring or mail them to the "Do You Know" editor at The Examiner.

To assist you in locating the "Do You Know" articles there is a footnote at the bottom of each story which reads: "$3.00 cash prize given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. (Six in today's issue)."

Get in the game. Test your ability. You'll find it profitable and educational—and it only takes a few moments of pleasant work.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 13. — The local butter market weakened yesterday, and prices slumped below the recent steady low levels to 20c to 20½c for No. 1 creamery solids, and 19c to 19½c for No. 2. The local situation was influenced considerably by the Montreal trend, which during the past few days has been downward, and yesterday was reported to have reached new low levels. The weakness at the Quebec city showed signs of continuing, and Toronto brokers were only able to secure small sales on the 20c for No. 1, and 19½c for No. 2, as buyers were meeting immediate requirements only.

Cream

Cream prices held firm at the decreases reported Saturday, and the range, which includes Toronto and outside quotations, was as follows: Special 21c to 22c; No. 1, 20c to 21c; and No. 2, 17c to 18c, f.o.b. country points

Cheese

Prices for new cheese were down another ¼c per pound; brokers quoting 9¼c to 9½c for new large, 9½c to 9¾c for twins, and 9¾ to 10c for triplets. Trade was very slow, and further decreases seem possible this week. Wholesalers were quoting the trade steady prices at 11½c for new large, 11¾c for twins, and 12c for triplets.

Eggs

The egg market showed a real strong trend due to lighter receipts for current requirements. Brokers were able to secure prices at ½c to 1c better than previously, and were quoting graded eggs, in free, used cases, at 17½c to 18c for extras, 15½c to 16c for firsts, and 13½c to 14c for seconds, with export packed 1c per dozen higher. Western eggs, in new cases, were commanding 19c for extras, 16c to 17c for firsts, and 15c for seconds. Prices to country shippers were steady at 15c for extras, 13c for firsts, and 10c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned. Retailers were able to secure supplies at unchanged levels at 21c for extras, in cartons, 19c for extras loose, 17c for firsts loose, and 15c for seconds loose.

TORONTO LIVESTOC

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Upward tendencies developed in grains yesterday, helped by reported progress in disposal of grain stabilization corporation wheat holdings and by continued drought news from Canada. European advices stressed need of liberal imports, especially by France, Germany and Great Britain.

North American wheat export trade, however, lacked volume, and a leading crop authority after a trip in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, raised his 1931 domestic winter wheat harvest estimate to 650,000,000 bushels from 632,000,000.

Wheat closed irregular at a shade decline to 7-8c advance; corn, ¼c off to 7-8c up; oats, unchanged to ½c higher, and provisions, 5c to 7c down.

LIVERPOOL QUOTATIONS

LIVERPOOL, May 13.— Wheat — Spot not quoted. Hams.—Long cut, 12 to 16 lbs. 79c; short cut, 12 to 14 lbs., 73c 6d; extra skinned 99c picnics, 5 to 8 lbs., 52s 6d. BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., May 13 (C.P.).—Hogs 800; rather slow; 5 to 10 over Monday's average desirable 120 to 220 lbs, $7.85 to $7.90; 220 to 240 lbs, $7.50 to $7.65; 240 to 260 lbs, $7.25 to $7.50.

Cattle 75; steady; medium to good steers $7.75; cutter cows $2.50 to $4.

Sheep 25; market nominal.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 13. — Encouraged by reports of a total absence of precipitation in the Prairie Provinces with no relief promised in the next 24 hours, the bullish element in the wheat pit here yesterday pushed the prices up ¾c to ⅞c above Monday's closing. The market lacked export demand and outside interest.

Overnight export business was a big disappointment. Practically no sales have been made this week. Shippers intimate that U.S. winters are on a cheaper basis than Canadian wheat and competing quite keenly with our northern grades in Europe.

The May future closed at 62⅞c with July at 63⅞c, each advancing ¾c, while October rose ⅞c to close at 65⅝c to 65½c.

Cash grain demand was limited with spreads unchanged. In the coarse grains section rye featured with gains of more than 2 cents. Trading in other grains was featureless.

Oil Gusher Breaks In Cellar of Bank

GLACE BAY, N.S., May 12. — (C.P.). — A miniature oil gusher has made its appearance in the basement of the Bank of Nova Scotia here, as tests of water in the basement yesterday showed thirty per cent. gasoline content. Workmen were excavating in an attempt to get at the root of the trouble, the belief being that a leak from one of the gas filling stations in mid-town is responsible, though the theory of a Cape Breton oil field has also been raised.

BENSON SERVED FIFTEEN YEARS

Store is Kept Scrupulously Clean and Sanitary Throughout.

QUALITY PROCURABLE.

For over fifteen years the Benson Grocery and Meat Market, owned and operated by Mr. Ernest Benson, has served the people of Peterborough and vicinity. This experience, together with their inherent ability, assures you of receiving only the fresh produce, fruits, vegetables, butter, eggs, cheese, fancy poultry and meats. At Benson's you can always secure your favorite cut of beef, veal, pork or lamb, with the assurance that it is of the highest quality procurable. Here's a Room that PAYS ITS OWN RENT

... ONCE upon a time it wasn't a room at all. It was just waste space beneath the roof. Then we learned how easy it was to make use of such places with TEN/TEST and we converted it into a recreation room.

But it was afterwards that the big surprise came. In building the room with TEN/TEST we had put insulation between the roof and the rest of the house. Heat no longer escaped. The house at once became more comfortable and the coal bill came down.

Now, every year the saving in fuel represents a nice tidy rent from the room, and we have the room too.

We killed two birds with one stone . . . we got another room and we reduced our fuel bill by practically one-third. Not bad for TEN/TEST.

COUNCIL PLACES BAN ON ALL DOGS IN N. MONAGHAN

Owners Are Not Allowed to Permit Their Dogs to Run at Large.

COUNCIL MEETING

The North Monaghan Council held its regular monthly meeting at the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday last with all the members present. M. H. Johnston came before the council and requested it to have the township stone crusher moved into one of the fields on his farm to crush stone for the Springville line. Mr. Johnston agreed to furnish the stone and to give the town a road in and out of the field free of charge. A resolution was passed that the council make an inspection of the Springville line with the object of complying with Mr. Johnston's request, to have the line covered with crushed stone.

Edward Dillon came before the council and a letter was read from Alderman Daniel Holland requesting to have the culvert repaired, the drain opened and a few loads of gravel placed on the T.A.S. park line. Benjamin McCoy came before the council and asked for four and a half hours' time for digging snow out of the ditch near his property. The road superintendent had allowed Mr. McCoy three hours' time and the council did not interfere in the matter.

A resolution was passed appointing Reeve McIntosh and Councillor William Whitfield a committee to have a wire fence built on the north and west sides of the park at Crawford's Grove and that they also have the land levelled and grass seed sown on the part not now in grass.

A resolution was passed that Deputy Reeve Waterman be authorized to interview the Provincial Police in regard to having all dogs stopped from running at large. The clerk was also instructed to publish a notice forbidding all ratepayers to allow their dogs to run at large.

T. B. Henry, township relief officer, presented the following charity accounts for payment:—A. E. Saunders, groceries, $10.46; Saunders, groceries, $2.42; Saunders, groceries, $10.16; Saunders, groceries, $10.56; Saunders, groceries, $3.84; Albert Cheyne, milk, $9.10; T. J. Hunter and Sons, groceries, $6.02; Hunter and Sons, groceries, $2.52; Hunter and Son, groceries, $2.22; Hunter and Son, groceries, $3.25; Hunter and Son, groceries, $2.07; William Lunn, groceries, $5.87; William Lunn, groceries, $2.32; William Lunn, groceries, $1.87.

A resolution was passed that Frank Flagler be paid $2.00 for providing for Mr. and Mrs. Munro.

A resolution was passed that the Court of Revision be held on Wednesday, May 27, at 2.00 p.m. in the Court House, Peterborough.

A resolution was passed that the county clerk be and is hereby authorized to remove from his books the arrears of taxes on the following lots as shown by the 1931 returns. These lots having been required by the township and sold:—39 feet west of east 95 feet 6 inches, lot 3, plan 40; east 39 feet 6 inches, lot 6, plan 40; west 40 feet, lot 17, plan 40; 117 feet west of east 117 feet 6 inches, lot 17 plan 40; lot 227, plan 45; lot 231, plan 45; lot 242, plan 45; lot 260, plan 45; lot 285, plan 45; lots 50 and 51, plan 47; lot 11, plan 49; lots 23 and 24, plan 49.

Archie Paterson, road superintendent, presented the following accounts for payment. William Hamilton Company, wrench, $5.95; William Hamilton Co., sharpening teeth, $8.20; Dominion Road Machinery Co., grader blade, $12.83; A. Paterson, express, $2.15; Imperial Oil, $6.50; J. J. Duffus, repairs to grader, $11.60; Herbert Stinson, car service, road inspection, $7.00; Archie Paterson, 247½ yards of gravel, $37.13.

A resolution was passed that the council extend to the Canadian Johnson Outboard Motor Company their thanks and appreciation for the services rendered at the fire at Mrs. Sage's house on Cameron street.

A resolution was passed that Messrs. Peck, Kerr and McElderry be paid $100 for additional services rendered in the issue of debentures for sidewalks constructed in 1930.

The next regular meeting will be held in the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday, June 8, at 10 a.m.

The district of which Everett Birdsall is census commissioner is an exceptionally wide expanse of country ranging over parts of Peterborough and Hastings Counties. It requires arduous work by political campaigners at election time, and presents no easy task to Lieut.-Colonel Birdsall. The above list indicates that he has completed his preliminary details, and is almost ready now for the actual taking of the census. With the instruction meetings he has arranged for central points in the two counties the last of his preparatory duties will probably be completed.

AN OLD POLITICAL DISEASE.

This trouble called political partisanship must be of such a nature that it totally unfits a man for office or work. We get that impression from reading Hansard.

One question was asked by Mr. Veniot: How many wharfingers and lighthouse keepers were dismissed between the 7th of August, 1930, and the 27th of April, 1931, and what were the reasons assigned for such dismissals?

The answers given contained this information: Eleven wharfingers had been dismissed, one for neglect of duty and 10 for political partisanship.

In the lighthouse business it ran like this: Neglect of duty, eight; in public interest, one; farming out duties, one; political partisanship, 36.

So out of 57 dismissals in these two particular branches of public service, this trouble, "political partisanship," had stricken down 46. This is an old disease, and generally makes its appearance after there has been a change of government.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

CANADA'S NEW BONDS.

While Premiers Taschereau of Quebec and Henry of Ontario urge holders of Canadian war bonds to exchange them for the new conversion issue as a patriotic duty, leading financiers recommend such an exchange as a most desirable financial transaction.

With participation in the new bond issue both patriotic and profitable, it is not surprising to learn that one-half of the $250,000,000 appealed for was taken up on Monday, the first day the conversion loan was offered to the public.

The new bonds, it should be understood, are available to all holders of War Loan and Victory Bonds falling due in 1931, 1932, 1933 or 1934.

They will extend the term of your investment for another 25 years after the maturity of your War Loan Bond, and for the first fifteen years of that period are non-callable.

At the same time the present interest rate and tax-free privileges of the War Loan Bonds will be retained until the latter mature, after which the new bonds will provide an interest rate that is considered a most desirable return in view of the expected tendency of long-term bonds toward lower yields.

In view of the fact that such desirable financial conditions accompany this opportunity to serve Canada, it is to be expected that the new Conversion Loan Bonds will be in heavy demand.

In fact, the issue is likely to be gone long before the ten-day campaign comes to an end.

A REASONABLE TEST.

The Examiner referred to the fact yesterday that most of the deportations about which complaints were being made originated with the municipalities.

In this connection the Globe raises an interesting and most important point when it asked if these people were dependent upon charity before the present depression came.

"If not," asks the Globe, "why should they be made to suffer by conditions with the creation of which they had nothing to do?"

The municipalities are carrying a heavy burden, it will be admitted, in supplying relief to the unusually large numbers of unemployed, for whom they have had to care, and their eagerness to get rid of people who are a charge upon civic revenues is easily understandable.

At the same time, however, the Globe offers what should be the deciding factor.

If there are families in any municipality who practically since their arrival have been dependent upon charity, a request for their deportation would seem to be justifiable.

On the other hand, people who were able to take care of themselves until the pressure of unusual economic conditions swept away their income and left them in need of help should not be penalized.

They showed while jobs were available that they were willing to work and able to take care of themselves, and to deport them because of conditions over which they have no control would be most unjust.

THE CANCER COMMISSION.

The appointment by the Ontario Government of a royal commission to study thoroughly the efficacy of radium in the treatment of cancer will be generally approved, especially in view of the fact that the findings of the committee, if favorable to the use of radium, will be followed by a Government plan that will provide free treatment for those unable to pay.

The furnishing of facilities to fight the dread scourge is a matter of great importance to the people of this Province, and the Government in seeking to establish a defence against a disease that ranks among the deadliest will have public support behind it.

The personnel of the commission will command respect. It will be headed by Rev. Canon Cody, and his colleagues will be Dr. John C. McLennan, director of the physics department of the University of Toronto; Dr. W. T. Connell, professor of medicine at Queen's University; Arthur Ford, managing director of the London Free Press, and Hon. J. M. Robb, Ontario Minister of Health.

If there are any objections to the composition of the commission they are likely to be based on the fact that since the matter to be investigated is purely a technical one the presence of a preacher and a newspaper man, however high their standing as citizens, is hardly necessary.

The three technical members of the commission, it goes without saying, are capable on their own account of carrying their mission through to a successful conclusion, and in view of that fact the investigating body is nearly twice as large as it needs to be, with a corresponding increase, of course, in the expense involved.

MOTOR CARS AND TRUCKS.

The requests made by the Niagara Falls and St. Catharines deputation which waited upon Premier Henry on Monday and urged action in regard to the regulation, control and taxation of motor busses and trucks will appeal to most people as entirely reasonable.

The deputation submitted to the Premier that the Ontario Legislature should be asked at its next session to consider the following:

"1. The advisability of placing the operation of busses and trucks under the control of the Dominion Railway Board or the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, so that they may be compelled to operate under conditions, particularly with regard to rates and hours, similar to conditions under which railways are compelled to operate;

"2. That taxation be imposed upon busses and trucks which will represent a fair proportion of the cost of maintaining existing highways, widening existing highways, and building new highways;

"3. That a fair proportion of such taxation be paid to the municipalities as a reasonable compensation for the cost of the creation and maintenance of paved streets within the boundaries of the municipalities, and toward the reduction of the contributions of municipalities to suburban roads and King's highways."

As transportation conditions exist at present the motor busses and trucks, while offering direct opposition to Canada's railways, one of which is owned by the people of this country, are under no such regulations as are the railways.

They use the publicly-built highways, are responsible for the greater part of the maintenance costs pertaining thereto, and do not contribute toward provincial and municipal revenues in proportion to the use they make of highways or urban streets.

The plan suggested by the Niagara Peninsula delegation would bring about a readjustment that would seem to be very much needed.

A COMPROMISE?

Ottawa correspondents, reading the statement of the Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas in Great Britain the other day, are wondering how the forthcoming adjourned session of the Empire Economic Conference is going to make any particular headway.

* * * *

Mr. Thomas announces that the British Government will send its delegates to Ottawa "not to make a bargain," but "to make a genuine gesture to help the Dominions in their difficulties." It is useless to discuss Empire free trade, Mr. Thomas adds, because the Dominions will have none of it, and it would be equally futile to talk of preferences that would tax British food (suggested by Mr. Bennett in England last year) as the Old Country would not accept them. Where, then, is progress to be found? Where, one may reasonably ask, are the "greater possibilities for trade than are realized?"

Mr. Bennett went to the Imperial Conference in London last autumn with a definite, clear-cut proposition—one of the most straightforward proposals ever given a meeting of the kind. He declared for a system of tariff preferences within the Empire. His proposition was in black and white. All the cards were on the table. It followed, of course, that if Britain were going to give a preference to her sister nations, she would have to set up some tariff wall against other countries in order to bring about the preference. In a free trade nation such as the Motherland largely is, the only method by which a preference can be given lies in a change in existing fiscal policy.

* * * *

The MacDonald Government turned the Bennett idea down pretty flatly and the conference was only rescued from failure by a decision to adjourn it while experts studied the situation. Arrangements were made to continue the discussions in the Canadian capital this summer, and it is to the adjourned meeting that statesmen here and elsewhere are now looking forward. At the time the adjournment was taken, it seemed quite likely that general elections would be precipitated in Britain and that, in such an event, there might be a change in Parliament. These elections, due to the attitude of the Liberal group, have not yet taken place and it is more than possible that they will not be held this summer. If they do come about, Conservative chances are better than fair. If things work out this way, the adjourned meeting at Ottawa will be a success, because Mr. Baldwin, hesitant at first, is now giving wholehearted support to the Bennett plan, staking his political future and the current fortunes of the party, on his ability to sell the preference idea to the British taxpayers. On the other hand, there has been no apparent change in the attitude of the Laborites. The Prime Minister, Mr. Snowden, Mr. Graham and other members of the British Ministry raised the cry, 'We will not tax British food!" last year, and they will no doubt keep on doing so, especially in view of the fact that Mr. Baldwin has accepted the challenge and is prepared to make the Canadian offer an issue. However, there is always a chance for compromise.

* * * *

From the Bennett Government's point of view, general elections and a triumph for the British Conservatives would undoubtedly be most acceptable. There is no guarantee, however, that John Bull's family will go to the polls before the adjourned conference is held. Mr. Lloyd George likes his present position—that of holding the balance of power—and he is even now advising the public to stick to the lesser of two evils—Labor rule—until it is in a position to elect a "good Liberal Government."—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Canadians have every faith in their country, judging from the hearty response to the conversion loan appeals.

---

Fortunately, the census enumerators are not required to ask how many installments have been paid on the radio.

---

Havelock people saw a water spout in the Trent Sunday, while Smith and Ennismore "enjoyed" a fierce hail-storm. Evidently this city missed a lot of excitement over the week-end.

And now we know that by-elections in East Hamilton and Three Rivers-St. Maurice "will be brought on in accordance with the provisions of the law." Well, there's that much settled anyway.

TANAR OF PELLUCIDAR

BY

EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Across the waters came commands for Tanar to lay to. The pursuing boats, which had set out under sail and had already acquired considerable momentum, appeared to be rapidly overhauling the smaller craft. But presently, as the speed of the latter increased, the distance between them seemed not to vary.

The shouts of the pursuers had attracted the attention of the sailors on board the anchored raiders, and presently Tanar and Stellara heard the deep boom of a cannon and a heavy shot struck the water just off their starboard bow.

Tanar shook his head. "That is too close," he said. "I had better come about."

"Why?" demanded Stellara.

"I do not mind risking capture," he said, "because in that event no harm will befall you when they discover your identity, but I cannot risk the cannon shots for if one of them strikes us, you will be killed."

"Do not come about," cried the girl. "I would rather die here with you than be captured, for capture would mean death for you and then I should not care to live. Keep on, Tanar, we may outdistance them yet. And as for their cannon shots, a small, moving boat like this is a difficult target and their marksmanship is none too good."

Again the cannon boomed and this time the ball passed over them and struck the water just beyond.

"They are getting our range," said Tanar.

The girl moved close to his side, where he sat by the tiller. "Put your arm around me, Tanar," she said. If we must die, let us die together."

The Sarian encircled her with his free arm and drew her close to him, and an instant later there was a terrific explosion from the direction of the raider that had been firing on them. Turning quickly toward the ship, they saw what had happened—an overcharged cannon had exploded.

"They are too anxious," said Tanar.

It was some time before another shot was fired and this one fell far astern, but the pursuing boats were clinging tenaciously to their wake.

"They are not gaining," said Stellara.

"No," said Tanar, "and neither are we."

"But I think we shall after we reach the open sea," said the girl. "We shall get more wind there and this boat is lighter and speedier than theirs. Fate smiled upon us when it led us to this boat rather than to a larger one."

As they approached the sea their pursuers, evidently fearing precisely what Stellara had suggested, opened fire upon them with harquebuses and pistols. Occasionally a missile would come dangerously close, but the range was just a little too great for their primitive weapons and poor powder.

On they sailed out into the open Korsar Az, which stretched onward and upward into the concealing mist of the distance. Upon their left the sea ran inward forming a great bay, while almost directly ahead of them though at so great a distance that it was barely discernible, rose the dim outlines of a headland, and toward this Tanar held his course.

The chase had settled down into a dogged test of endurance. It was evident that the Korsars had no intention of giving up their prey even though the pursuit led to the opposite shore of the Korsar Az, and it was equally evident that Tanar entertained no thought of surrender.

On and on they sped, the pursued and the pursuers. Slowly the headland took shape before them, and later a great forest was visible to the left of it—a forest that ran down almost to the sea.

"You are making for land?" asked Stellara.

"Yes," replied the Sarian. "We have neither food nor water and if we had I am not sufficiently a sailor to risk navigating this craft across the Korsar Az."

"But if we take to the land, they will be able to trail us," said the girl.

"You forget the trees, Stellara," the man reminded her.

"Yes, the trees," she cried. "I had forgotten. If we can reach the trees I believe that we shall be safe."

As they approached the shore inside the headland, they saw great combing rollers breaking among the rocks and the angry, sullen boom of the sea came back to their ears.

"No boat can live in that," said Stellara.

Tanar glanced up and down the shoreline as far as he could see and then he turned and let his eyes rest sadly upon his companion.

"It looks hopeless," he said. "If we had time to make the search we might find a safer landing place, but within sight of us one place seems to be as good as another."

"Or as bad," said Stellara.

"It cannot be helped," said the Sarian. "To beat back now around that promontory in an attempt to gain the open sea again, would so delay us that we should be overtaken and captured. We must take our chances in the surf, or turn about and give up."

Behind them their pursuers had come about and were waiting, rising and falling upon the great billows.

"They think that they have us," said Stellara. "They believe that we shall tack here and make a run for the open sea around the end of that promontory, and they are ready to head us off."

Tanar held the boat's nose straight for the shoreline. Beyond the angry surf he could see a sandy beach, but between lay a barrier of rock upon which the waves broke, hurling their spume far into the air.

"Look!" exclaimed Stellara, as the boat raced toward the smother of boiling water. "Look! There! Right ahead! There may be a way yet!"

"I have been watching that place," said Tanar. "I have been holding her straight for it, and if it is a break in the rocky wall we shall soon know it, and if it is not——"

The Sarian glanced back in the direction of the Korsar's boats and saw that they were again in pursuit, for by this time it must have become evident to them that their quarry was throwing itself upon the rocky shore-line in desperation rather than to risk capture by turning again toward the open sea.

Every inch of sail was spread upon the little craft and the taut, bellowing canvas strained upon the cordage until it hummed, as the boat sped straight for the rocks dead ahead.

Tanar and Stellara crouched in the stern, the man's left arm pressing the girl protectingly to his side. With grim fascination they watched the bowsprit rise and fall as it rushedstraight toward what seemed must be inevitable disaster.

They were there! The sea lifted them high in the air and launched them forward upon the rocks. To the right a jagged finger of granite broke through the smother of spume. To the left the sleek, water-worn side of a huge boulder revealed itself for an instant as they sped past. The boat grated and rasped upon a sunken rock, slid over and raced toward a sandy beach.

Tanar whipped out his drk and slashed the halyards, bringing the sail down as the boat's keel touched the sand. Then, seizing Stellara in his arms, he leaped into the shallow water and hastened up the shore.

Pausing, they looked back toward the pursuing Korsars and to their astonishment saw that all three boats were making swiftly toward the rocky shore.

"They dare not go back without us," said Stellara, "or they would never risk that surf."

"The Cid must have guessed our identity, then, when a search failed to reveal you," said Tanar.

"It may also be that they discovered your absence from the dungeon, and coupling this with the fact that I, too, was missing, someone guessed the identity of the two sailors who sought to pass through the gate and who paid gold for a small boat at the river," suggested Stellara.

"There goes one of them on the rocks," said Tanar, as the leading boat disappeared in a smother of water.

The second boat shared the same fate as its predecessor, but the third rode through the same opening that had carried Tanar and Stellara to the safety of the beach and as it did, the two fugitives turned and ran toward the forest.

Behind them raced a dozen Korsars and amidst the crack of pistols and harquebuses Tanar and Stellara disappeared within the dark shadows of the primeval forest.

The story of their long and arduous journey through unknown lands to the kingdom of Sari would be replete with interest, excitement and adventure, but it is no part of this story. It is enough to say that they arrived at Sari shortly before Ja and Gura made their appearance, the latter having been delayed by adventures that had almost cost them their lives.

The people of Sari welcomed the Amiocapian mate that the son of Ghak had brought back to his own country. And Gura they accepted, too, because she had befriended Tanar, though the young men accepted her for herself and many were the trophies that were laid before the hut of the beautiful Himean maiden. But she repulsed them all for in her heart she held a secret love that she had never divulged, but which, perhaps, Stellara had guessed and which may have accounted for the tender solicitude which the Amiocapian maid revealed for her Himean sister.

Conclusion

As Perry neared the end of the story of Tanar of Pellucidar, the sending became weaker and weaker until it died out entirely, and Jason Gridley could hear no more.

He turned to me. "I think Perry had something more to say," he said. "He was trying to tell us something. He was trying to ask something."

"Jason," I said, reproachfully, "didn't you tell me that the story of the inner world is perfectly ridiculous; that there could be no such place peopled by strange reptiles and men of the stone age? Didn't you insist that there is no Emperor of Pellucidar?"

"Tut-tut," he said. "I apologize. I am sorry. But that is past. The question now is what can we do."

"About what?" I asked.

"Do you not realize that David Innes lies a prisoner in a dark dungeon beneath the palace of The Cid of Korsar?" he demanded with more excitement than I have ever known Jason Gridley to exhibit.

"Well, what of it?" I demanded. "I am sorry, of course; but what in the world can we do to help him?"

"We can do a lot," said Jason Gridley, determinedly.

I must confess that as I looked at him I felt considerable solicitude for the state of his mind for he was evidently laboring under great excitement.

"Think of it!" he cried. "Think of that poor devil buried there inutter darkness, silence, solitude—and with those snakes!" He shuddered. "Snakes crawling all over him, creeping across his face as he sleeps, and nothing else to break the monotony—no human voice, the song of no bird, no ray of sunlight. Something must be done. He must be saved."

"But who is going to do it?" I asked.

"I am!" replied Jason Gridley.

COMMISSION OF INDUSTRY

To The Editor of The Examiner:

Sir—I have much doubt if the Committee at Lakefield and Mr. Peck, M.P., have been so indiscreet and haughty as set out in Dr. Cameron Smith's letter. There must be some mistake.

In such cases it is customary and necessary to have a "Commissioner of Public Inquiry" sent here by the Government to decide between Mr. Peck, M.P., upon whom as member the responsibility rests and Jarrett and not only Jarrett because men state that Mr. Peck, M.P., told some of them that they were being dismissed in order to give other idle men a chance. That, of course, if true, would apply to the whole civil service including Mr. Peck, M.P. and would open the door to trickery in making party appointments of the worst description. I do not believe that Mr. Peck would lend himself to such a stupid trick and therefore he would well be advised to give the men dismissed an inquiry. In fact the people demand it.

What To-day Means To You.

"TAURUS."

If May 13th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m., from 3:45 p.m. to 6 p.m. The danger hours are from 7:45 a.m. to 9:10 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 9:25 p.m.

The planetary aspects of May 13th denote negative conditions during the day. After sunset, however, the atmosphere becomes stimulating and extremely favorable for all social efforts. It will also strengthen those who are faint-hearted and give them the necessary courage to put their fate to the test.

A child born on this May 13th will be kind, loving, sweet-tempered and extremely patient. It will not excel along the usual standardized line of study, but will be at its best in the open, where it will learn readily to appreciate the beauties of nature, and understand them.

Born on May 13th, you are sincere and very thorough. Your feelings are not variable and you stick to your friends "through thick and thin." You are very frank, and never adopt expediency to further your ends. You are, however, frank in a nice way, and, though others may not agree with you, they are always willing to concede that your opinions are based on honest conviction and not advocated merely for the sake of stubbornness. You are a very diligent one. Nothing you attempt is done in a slip-shod way: everything is done to the best of your ability.

You are fond of travel for a change, but not for a steady diet. You always long, when away from home, for the pleasures of your own family circle and for the presence of familiar household gods. You possess personal magnetism, and your ruggedness of character, combined with your charity of mind, attracts and charms.

Your horoscope denotes a fairly successful life, and, most assuredly, a happy one. You will always strive to live up to the high ideals that are continually urging you onward. Your nature is a forgiving one, and your outlook extremely tolerant.

Farm Board Wheat Likely Sold By July 1

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 13 (CP) The Farm Board expects that all of the 35,000,000 bushels of out-of-position stabilization wheat set for sale abroad will be disposed of by July 1.

Chairman Stone said to-day some wheat was being sold daily in the Pacific coast for export to the Orient. It was recently announced that the hard winter stocks held at Atlantic and Gulf ports had been sold at a price slightly above world levels. The total sales to date are believed to be upwards of 20,000,000 bushels.

The board has not decided whether it will authorize the Grain Stabilization Corporation to offer additional stocks for sale should the good foreign demand continue.

MARKET CLOSING ON EXCHANGES

day. Majority of issues closed unchanged from last night.

Noranda and Walkers were the most active issues on the dull list. Noranda closed up more than a point at 24, while Walkers sank slowly at 5⅝, a new low for the stock. Good resistance was offered at 6 yesterday despite the cut in two of the dividend but to-day the stock gave ground before selling.

Brazilian recovered to 16 and 16¼ on a small turnover. C.P.R., Ford of Canada, Page-Hersey, Loblaw "A", Massey-Harris and most of the oils were unchanged. Canada Cement was was more active than usual, buying reported from Montreal. The stock closed ¼ point higher at 109⅝.

Wall Street Close

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 13 —(CP) —Stocks rallied slowly in the afternoon trading today after an early interval of heaviness during the forenoon when rails were weak. The market closed strong. The rally started in the merchandising issues, led by Woolworth which rose more than 2 points. New York Central gained a point net after losing 2. Issues up at least a point included U. S. Steel, Westinghouse and National Biscuit. American Can, Noranda Mines, Allied Chemical, Case and Johns-Manville were up about 2. Alaska Juneau advanced 3 and Auburn Auto soared 10. Sales exceeded 1,500,000 shares.

ROUMANIA DEFEATED

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 13 (A.P.)—Einar Ulrich, of Denmark, won the opening singles match of the second round European zone Davis Cup play with Roumania to-day, defeaturing Nicholas Mishu, 6—4, 6—4, 9—7.

STOCK WEAKENS TO 5 7-8 MARK

Noranda is Outstanding Issue on Side of Toronto Exchange Advance.

GENERAL LIST QUIET.

TORONTO, Ont., May 13. (CP)—Walkers this morning finally broke through 6 and set a new record low for the year. The stock held fairly well yesterday, despite the halving of the dividend, but offerings were fairly substantialat $6 share. The opening to-day was unchanged but toward the end of the hour the stock weakened, sold at 5⅞ and then 5¾.

Outstanding on the side of the advance was Noranda. These two stocks were the principal traders on the board. Elsewhere the list was quiet with gains and losses intermingled. Although the tone was soft. This was due to the activity of some of the inter-listed issues which showed a tendency to ease with New York, Nickel, C.P.R., Ford of Canada and for the first hour, Brazilian, lost small fractions. Of the oils B.A. oil and Imperial were just under last night's finals in light turnover. International Petroleum was unchanged, Canadian Oil up a point.

NORANDA STOCK FEATURES TRADE

Movements Are Few and Far Between on Standard Exchange This Morning.

LIGHT TURNOVER.

TORONTO, Ont., May 13. (CP)—Noranda had the floor to itself on the mining market this morning. Novements were few and far between and though a slightly stronger tendency was in evidence, light turnover kept the list from showing any material change.

Accumulation believed to be based on broad statements regarding recent gold developments carried Noranda into higher ground, price touching a forenoon peak of $24 and standing up $1.25 for the day at $23.75 when taken at mid-day. Sherritt Gordon dropped 5 of yesterday's advance while other Lindsleys were holding. Lake Shore, Dome and McIntyre advance while other Lindsleys were sold in odd-lots from 10 to 30 cents higher and other dividend payers were steady. Wright-Hargreaves moved up a few cents but reacted to stand unchanged. Kirkland Lake Gold was off 3. Other changes in the cheaper golds were within a cent range.

Oils also were dull with Acme unchanged and the rights selling at a half, off a fraction from last night.

New Brunswick Power 1930 Earnings Lower

The annual statement of New Brunswick Power Co. for the year 1930, just to hand, shows that the company's earnings are lower as compared with the previous year, despite the fact that total operating revenue increased from $911,692 to $927,649.

Operating expenses in 1930 amounted to $651,945 as against $665,202 in 1929, whilst non operating revenue at $5,007 compares with $5,643.

Depreciation at $40,000 was unchanged from the previous year; bond interest at $89,000 compared with $89,571; other interest and discount increased from $37,860 to $79,130 whilst federal income tax at $3,746 compared with $5,237 in 1929.

This left net profits for the year 1930 at $68,835 as against $79,645 for 1929. After deducting the first preferred dividend, amounting to $40,000, the surplus for the past year totalled $28,835 as compared with $39,645 at the end of 1929

Operations of New Brunswick Power may be roughly divided into four divisions; power, lighting, tramways and gas. Of these, power is the major section. Just over a year ago the company brought into operation a steam generating plant, with a capacity of 9,000 h.p. costing in the neighborhood of $800,000. This brought the capacity of the plant up to approximately 17,000 h.p. In addition the company owns land and water power sites on the Magaguadabic and Lepreaux River, which have an estimated installed capacity of 19,000 h.p.

Investment interest in this company is rather limited, owing to the fact that the second preferred and common stock are largely owned by the Federal Light and Traction Company, which secured control of New Brunswick Power on April 1st, 1923.

STEEL OF CANADA LOWEST IN YEARS

Outlook of Company as Far as Earnings Concerned Hard to Predict.

The common shares of the Steel Company of Canada are at the time of writing selling at the lowest point reached since 1926. To a certain extent the present decline in these shares has been in sympathy with the big drop in the market price of U.S. Steel, but the main reason for the decline undoubtedly is the condition of business. The outlook for the company this year, as the president has already stated, is hard to predict as far as earnings are concerned. But the running record of performance is one of satisfaction. Analysis shows that 1929 represented the peak of the company's earnings when the net was equivalent to $6.70 a share on the common. Earnings on this stock have averaged $3.34 a share per annum during the last twelve years. Last year despite generally poor conditions profits were eqnivalent to $2.80 a share.

Steel Company of Canada, as its last balance sheet sets forth clearly is well able financially to maintain the current rate of $1.75 a share, should the same not be earned for some time to come. At the present rate slightly more than $805,000 is required to provide for full payments on the common stock annually and the company had available in cash assets $6,000,000 on December 31, last. Thus it will be seen that the company is well equipped to carry on in this regard.

Unless there is a sweeping change for the better, and certainly no such turn is indicated now, it is safe to assume that earnings this year may fall short of fully covering common dividend requirements. Still it is possible to go back to the time of the last sever depression in 1921 and find that Steel Company of Canada maintained its regular common dividend of $7 a share, the same as it is to-day, through 1921 and 1922, despite the fact that net profits were equivalent to but $5.72 and $6.32 a share respectively in those years on the common stock.

CANADA STEAMSHIPS.

T. R. Enderby, general manager of the Canada Steamship Lines, states that earnings so far this year have shown an improvement on account of the larger volume of grain coming down from the head of the Great Lakes.

C.N.R. EARNINGS.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the period ending May 7th, 1931, were $3,318,663.00 as compared with $4,252,358.00; for the same period in 1930, decrease of $433,695.00

BRAZILIAN FIRM IN NOON TRADING

Morning Session on Montreal Exchange is Generally Firm To-day.

M. P. IS UNCHANGED.

MONTREAL, Que., May 13. (CP)—Security prices on the Montreal stock market were fairly firm this morning. Trading generally was quiet and on a narrow front.

Brazilian Traction recovered 3-8 during the morning and sold at 15 7⅛ at noon. Dominion Steel and Coal "B" lost ¼ at 4. Canadian Pacific Railway shares dropped ⅛ to 29. Nickel sold off 3-8 to 14 1-8. Montreal Power held firm, unchanged at 55, and Montreal Tramways appeared at 170, a gain of 3 points over the previous sale. Shawinigan moved up 1-8 at 43. Power Corporation maintained an early loss of ¼ at 50. National Breweries and Quebec Power both dropped ½ in early sals and still showed the drop at noon.

MRS. M. MORROW DIES IN OMAHA

As a Girl of 16 She Saw Lincoln Carried Fatally Wounded From Theatre.

PEEPED INTO BEDROOM.

OMAHA, Neb., May 13.—Mrs. Mary Marrow, 82, who as a girl of 16, saw Abraham Lincoln, fatallly wounded, carried from the Ford Theatre at Washington into the home where she was visiting, died last night at the home of her son, F. W. Marrow.

At the time of the assassination Mrs. Marrow, then Miss Mary A. Sardo, lived in Washington. She was a chum of Louise Peterson, whose parents operated a rooming house for actors just two doors from the Ford Theatre.

On the night of the assassination, she related, she and Louise were at the Peterson home. There was a sudden commotion at the door and Lincoln was carried in. She told how later she and Miss Peterson peeped into the bedroom to catch a glimpse of the dying President.

"We always felt sorry for Booth," she told friends.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of R. J. Rawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

While there was very little export business worked overnight and early cables were unresponsive to our advance Monday, the local wheat market held very firm during the first part of the day with very little pressure in evidence. Later there was some good buying by Chicago interests against sales of their own futures and at the same time New York interest took small amounts with indications that some export business was working, all of which enabled prices to work higher, and on the extreme advance gains of ¾ to 1 cent. Sentiment is mostly friendly, but profit taking by longs checked further advances, the market getting up against the daily offers. There was no precipitation in Western Canada the past 24 hours, and no moisture was promised in the weather forecast but higher temperatures were in sight throughout the west. This is attracting more attention and unless Saskatchewan and Alberta receive good general rains in the near future a firm market is to be anticipated. Liverpool closed 1-8 to 3-8 higher, and B'Aires at noon was 1-8 to ½ higher, both markets being lower earlier in the day. The demand for cash wheat was quiet. Holders generally were not offering freely and spreads were unchanged to 1-8 lower. The flour market continues quiet with just a slight improvement in the domestic demand. The dominion Government Bureau of Statistics issued a report yesterday estimating the winter killing, giving conditions of Fall Wheat and Rye, and the progress of spring seeding. It is not likely that they will give any estimate of the reduction on the wheat acreage which is expected by the trade to be from five to ten per cent. Winnipeg futures closed ¾ to ⅞ higher.

Coarse Grains. The future of these markets was the buying of Rye against 1,250,000 bushels had been worked. There was very little doing in Oats or Barley, but these markets were firm in sympathy with the general strength. Eastern Canada continues to take a few cars daily of both Oats and Barley. Oats closed ½ to ¾ higher, Barley 5-8 to ¾ higher and Rye 1 5-8 to 1⅞ higher. Flax market made substantial gains in sympathy with the general up trend. Crushers were taking small quantities while offerings were very light. Closing prices were 3 cents to 1½ higher.

CYCLISTS CRASH ONE YOUTH DIES

Collision Occurs on Unionville streets When Hydro Power Fails.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL.

UNIONVILLE, Ont., May 13. —(C.P.).—Theodore Dixon, 16, died early to-day of injuries received last night when his bicycle collided with another driven by Charlie Church, also of Unionville. It appears the two boys ran into each other when the Hydro power had failed and the village was in darkness. The force of the impact threw both to the pavement, and Dixon was knocked unconscious. His companion, noting Dixon's condition, got to his feet and hastened to warn the youth's father of the accident. He fainted afterwards and had to be carried home.

Dixon was taken to his home first, then rushed to Wellesley Hospital, where he died this morning.

care, with a view of sympathy and understanding.

In several ways his career is similar to that of President Doumergue. Both served the Government in Indo-China, both were President of the Senate; even their names are alike.

He began his career as a newspaperman, soon switching to politics and becoming successively Deputy, Finance Minister, Governor-General of Indo-China, President of the Chamber of Deputies, Senator, then President of the Senate.

The President of the French Senate presides over the Upper House and is considered the second highest official in the Government.

He carries his 74 years well. He is the father of eight children, and during the war four of his sons were killed. The French never forget that.

He was born in Aurillac March 22, 1857.

Once before Doumer was a candidate for Presidency. In 1905 he received 371 votes, while Fallieres was given 449.

M. Doumer went to Indo-China as Governor-General in 1896. He held this port in Hanoi for six years.

In addition to his public duties Doumer has devoted much time to studying and writing. He is an authority on matters of finance and economics, and has a great fondness for mathematics.

Despite his years, he is straight and erect, and although small in stature he makes an arresting figure.

He speaks meticulously, in a thin voice, somewhat toneless, and unlike Briand is formal in his friendships and his contacts with others.

A. B. COLVILLE, K.C., DIES IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Que., May 1? (C.P.).—A son-in-law of Hon. Edward Kemp, K.C., Arthur Boucher Colville, K.C., died to-day at his home here, aged 53, after an illness of six months' duration.

Mr. Colville was born at Campbellford, Ont., on May 22, 1877, a son of Arthur Lyndhurst and Mary Frances Colville, and was educated in a private school, later at Campbellford High School, and at Trinity University, Toronto, where he graduated in Arts. He was called to the bar of Ontario in 1900, and in Quebec in 1910. In 1921 he was appointed King's Counsel. His wife survives.

SNOWDEN BACK IN BED

LONDON, May 13. (AP)—Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who left a sick bed to make his budget speech in the House of Commons recently, was ordered back to bed to-day by his doctors.

MALE VOICE CHOIR OFFICERS ELECTED

Annual Meeting of Local Association Held in St. Andrew's Church Hall.

One of the most successful annual meetings in the history of the Male Voice Choir was held last evening in the schoolroom of St. Andrew's United Church (kindly loaned for the occasion), under the presidency of F. W. Skitch.

For ten years the choir has demonstrated its ability as one of the leading musical organizations of the city, and to-day it stands higher than ever in the estimation of the citizens.

Last evening there was a full attendance, and the spirit of enthusiasm evinced augers well for the future. Unlike most annual meetings, it was cheerful in the extreme and the fact that the incubus of debt no longer depressed the spirit as well as clouded the outlook was evidenced in a marked degree. C. B. Adair was voted to the chair at the election of officers for the ensuing year.

The president, F. W. Skitch, reviewed the events of the past season and stated that the debt was nearly cleared away and it was hoped in two or three weeks time it would be a thing of the past. The treasurer, Dr. C. H. Fulford, presented an encouraging financial statement. Thanks were voted to the officers for their services during te past year, special praise being accorded F. W. Skitch for the efforts made to clear the debt.

Officers Elected.

The officers elected for the year are as follows: Hon. president, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.; acting president, F. W. Skitch; vice-president, Dave Fleming; secretary, Jack Wade; treasurer, Dr. C. H. Fulford; chairman of committees, membership, J. Worrall; Music, Goerge Chandler; social, Mr. Siddall; publicity, A. H. White; librarian, I. Parker; musical director, Thos. Phillips; assistant conductors, G. Chandler, J. W. Potter; pianist, Harry Northrop.

Arrangements were made to give two concerts in Victoria Park during the summer season and several other fixtures were agreed upon. After the meeting a social hour was much enjoyed, refreshments being served through the kindness of various friends. Special thanks were voted to the church officers for the use of the building and to J. Ridyard, for services rendered.

To close a memorable evening, the conductor, Thos. Phillips, introduced his son, Arnold, who arrived from England on Monday. The latter gave a short, but brilliant, pianoforte recital, which captivated and highly pleased the choir members.

SCHOONER SEIZED AT BOSTON DOCK WITH RUM CARGO

1,000 CASES CONFISCATED.

J. B. Magnus Alleged Ring Leader, Was Connected With I'm Alone Case.

BOSTON, Mass., May 13.—The auxiliary schooner Gertrude O., her crew of 22, and 1,000 cases of liquor, were seized by customs guards to-day as she unloaded her cargo in Dorchester Bay under cover of a heavy rain.

Dawn was just breaking as officers from the Mattapan station of the Boston Police Department and a force of nine Customs guards closed in on the city disposal plant dock in the Dorchester section. Off-shore, the Coastguard patrol boat 463 blocked the entrance to the bay.

The Gertrude O., without lights, had already unloaded 400 cases at the docks and a fleet of trucks, their sides bearing the names of prominent and reputable Boston firms, stood by in the disposal plant driveway when the officers made their appearance. The trucks were unguarded.

Crew Leap Into Bay

The crew of the schooner, most of whom were on the dock handling cases, leaped into the bay as the officers came in sight and were picked up by the patrol boat as they attempted to swim to safety.

The men were rounded up quickly, booked for violation of the National Prohibition Act, and taken to police headquarters for fingerprinting. The Coastguard began unloading 600 cases left on the schooner and took the contraband to the appraisers' stores. A guard was placed aboard the Gertrude O.

Among those arrested was John B. Magnus of Boston, alleged by police and customs men to be the ringleader of the group. Magnus was connected with the "I'm Alone" case several months ago.

Six men, found in an automobile near the parked trucks, were released by officers after questioning.

Federal Indictments Returned On Diamond

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 13. (CP)—Federal indictments returned against Legs Diamond and four henchmen for violating the prohibition law were, on the way to Catskill, N.Y., to-day where they will be served. Diamond is now under arrest on charges of kidnapping, assault and carrying firearms.

The two counts in the indictment charging conspiracy and possessing a still will be held in abeyance, until Attorney General Bennett's state charges are disposed of. United States Attorney Medalie indicated to-day.

GRADUATION EXERCISES HELD NUMEROUS AWARDS PRESENTED

Miss Marguerite McDonald, Cornwall, Wins Medal for Proficiency.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED.

The Graduation Exercises of the Training School for Nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital, held last evening on an appropriate occasion, the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale, who was born in Florence on May 12th, 1820, proved a very interesting event in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, where the large auditorium was packed to the doors with the throng of people who gathered to see the nine graduates of the school receive their diplomas and the prizes awarded annually for proficiency in various subjects.

The graduates of last evening were Miss Irene Winifred Doucette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Doucette of Brechin; Miss Florence Aolysia Shannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shannon of Buffalo, N.Y.; Miss Mary Evelyn McMurray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. McMurray of Lakefield; Miss Marguerite McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. McDonald of Cornwall; Miss Isabelle White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick White of Lakefield; Miss Frances Irene Hourigan, daughter of Mr. F. N. Hourigan of Sudbury; Miss Lorraine Helen Masterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Masterson of 23 Park street, Peterborough; Miss Rhoda Marguerite McMullen, daughter of Mrs. M. J. McMullen of Seeley's Bay; Miss Mary Stella Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Murphy of Barrie.

The valedictorian was Miss Marguerite McDonald, who received this year's medal, donated by the hospital for General Proficiency. The medal for practical work, donated by Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, was won by Miss Isabelle White; the first prize for bandaging, donated by the doctors of the staff, went to Miss Florence Shannon, and the second prize for bandaging, also donated by the doctors, to Miss Stella Murphy, while the prize for Charting, donated by the Alumnae of the hospital, was won by Miss Irene Doucette and the prize for Neatness, donated by the Corbett-Cowley Company, from whom the hospital purchase their uniforms, was awarded to Miss Irene Hourigan.

The Bishop's Address

His Lordship, Bishop O'Connor, addressed the graduates in his usual brief, eloquent fashion. He referred to the public tribute to the good work of the Sisters of St. Joseph and the nurses and assured them of his appreciation of their endeavors. Congratulations, he said, had a Latin derivation, "meaning that we are happy because you are," while "felicitations means that we are happy in your happiness and we associate ourselves with you in the joy that is yours to-night. As you go on your way through life, our best wishes will accompany and follow you and surround you. Good luck and God bless you!"

Dr. A. G. Howson, president of the staff at St. Joseph's Hospital, acted as chairman, and opened the program with a few appropriate remarks. He expressed the appreciation of the doctors for the "unfailing kindness and courtesy of the Superior and Sisters at the hospital," and mentioned the appropriate date for the excercises, in the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale. He referred to some of the pioneer nurses of Canada and went on to recount some of the problems attendant to the nursing profession, concluding with a tribute to the staff and nurses of St. Joseph's, and their "splendid loyalty, whole-hearted co-operation and delightful cheerfulness."

The distribution of diplomas and medals, the former tied with the white and gold ribbons of the Hospital colors, was made by Bishop O'Connor, while Dr. A. E. Hammond distributed the prizes, congratulating the nurses on the completion of their course of training and remarking that their annual stiff examinations entailed the capturing of a percentage of seventy-five, to allow of obtaining their diplomas.

The Valedictory, as delivered by Miss McDonald, was a very beautifully-worded discourse on the various aspects of a nurse's life. In musical language, it referred to the necessity for patience and cheerfulness, for self-sacrificing endeavors, for gentle words to the sick and weary, "so that we may be worthy daughters of our Alma Mater." It recorded the graduates' appreciation of the efforts of the Mother Superior and the Sisters, of the chaplain and the doctors of the staff.

The response to the Valedictory, as delivered by Dr. F. P. McNulty, was one of the most entertaining addresses of the evening. It was given in a mildly witty and informal fashion that was most interesting and it gave a splendid idea of the work carried on in the hospital, with a reference to the endeavors of the staff and the work done on each floor.

In endeavoring to discover which of the many onerous duties of the training nurses would be least missed, on the occasion of their graduation, the doctor said he had decided that this would be the duty of writing up the history of each patient, a task that required a great deal of perseverance to arrive at, as the doctors were usually too busy to give the desired information.

Recipe for Taciturnity

The speaker described for his audience his experience with a reticent whose health history had to be chiselled out by slow degrees, the doctor finally eliciting the information, after much trouble, that he had been troubled with inflammation. On asking the exact location, he replied that it was "in Port Hope." His lack of eloquence was, however, completely cured by an operation for appendicitis and he became one of the most loquacious of patients before leaving the hospital.

Dr. McNulty, in the course of his remarks, took occasion to pay a sincere and eloquent tribute to the work done by the Sisters.

Mayor Denne, who was present, was invited to speak, and responded with a few pleasing congratulatory sentences to the graduates, concluding with the forceful admonition: "Don't forget there is a top. Don't stay at the bottom."

The program of addresses was interspersed with a very pleasing musical program. A string orchestra from St. Peter's High School played three times: "Graduation March," "Love and Flowers" and "Our Heroes." Its members were the Misses Bernice Flynn, Marion Best, Madeline Flynn, Dorothy Young, Gladys Perdue, Joseph Nolan, Clarence Collins. Miss Veronica Scollard, at the piano, also played a bright march as a solo, and accompanied Joseph Nolan's violin solo, "Liebesfreud." Miss Geraldine Collins gave a double vocal number: "Bird Songs at Eventide" and "Wake up!" with accompaniments played by Miss Hurley, and little Miss Barbara Hickey, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hickey, was a real hit with a catchy recitation in her clear voice: "The House with Nobody in It."

The stage, arranged by the Sisters from the hospital, was very beautiful. It had a background of deep blue and old gold velvet draperies and accents in a tall piano lamp at either side, with shades of deep rose pink. There were quantities of flowers in tall wicker standards and low bowls. Yellow Joanna Hill roses were tied with bows of yellow tulle and tall vases of pink carnations had matching bows of bright pink. There were ping snapdragons, yellow and red and white roses and red and white tulips in a mass of lovely bloom that was topped by artificial roses climbing over little border trellises above the stage, and red and white electric globes. The graduates, with their crisp, spotless uniforms of white, their arms filled with bronze-pink Talisman roses tied with gold tulle in long streamers, had a beautiful floral setting.

Student nurses, in their trim uniforms of blue and white, with white caps and aprons, occupied the front rows, and many clergymen from the city and district were also present, as well as relatives and friends of the graduates from the city and from outside places.

The Catholic Women's League was in charge of arrangements for the graduation exercises, also for the reception and service of refreshments which took place in the large upper halls, on the conclusion of the program. Rick Roberts orchestra played for the dance which wound up the evening.

A great deal of assistance was given to the Sisters by Gerald McFadden, who, with Lane and Esno, kindly loaned the stage furnishings.

and bills placed on the Order Paper by private members.

Secure Chinese Market

Every effort is being made to secure the Chinese market for Canadian wheat, Mr. Stevens declared earlier yesterday. China, especially the northern provinces, offered an excellent market for Canadian grain and other products. This might not materialize in the immediate future; but it was a good prospect. It depended largely upon the return to stability of the country and general improvement in economic conditions.

Deflation of Australian currency was one factor which enabled that Dominion to lead Canada in the Chinese wheat market, the Minister of Trade and Commerce declared. Another factor was the preference of the Chinese for foodstuffs produced from soft wheat.

Proposals to increase the penalties provided for the adulteration of butter met some opposition. The House failed to give second reading during the time allotted for private bills to a measure sponsored by Samuel Gobeil (Con., Compton). The measure was "talked out" although the Government expressed its willingness to have it considered by the Agricultural Committee. It was proposed to fix a fine of $500 for a first offence and this led several members to say the bill would defeat its own purpose. The proposed penalties were too severe and magistrates had no discretion. It sometimes happened that magistrates, rather than convict a man who automatically would contract a severe penalty, dismissed the case. This might occur if the proposed amendments were passed, it was suggested.

Result in Increased Trade

Personal contacts made in South America by the Canadian Trade Mission last Winter would result in increased trade between this country and the southern Republics, predicted Sir George Perley. He was the Government representative on the delegation and gave the House a moving account of the trip, its aims and achievements. "Get into the South American market" was the effect of his advice to Canadian manufacturers.

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal Leader, took the opportunity of referring to a speech made by the Prince of Wales when opening the British Empire Exhibition at Buenos Aires. He was quoted as saying tariffs were obstacles of trade. The Liberal Leader said an atmosphere of goodwill could be established best by removing such barriers, although he believed the policy of the present Government was to heighten tariff walls and exclude trade. He commended the Prince's speech to Premier Bennett.

Headaches Are Due To Many Factors

Headache is perhaps one of the most prevalent of all ills. Hundreds of people every day suffer from headaches, not realizing that they are usually due to some deep seated organic disorder, or weakened condition of the blood and nerves.

A disturbance in the circulation of the blood may be an important factor. Anemic people may have persistent headaches. When we find headaches which appear to be toxic in origin it usually means that some body poison is causing the trouble. These troubles are very often traced to inactivity of the intestinal tract, the kidneys and bladder or disorders of the stomach and liver.

Failure of elimination of the body wastes is another factor. If the kidneys and bowels fail to function properly there may be clogged up in the body poisons which will disturb the brain. Still other causes are loss of nerve energy, or a general weakened condition of the system resulting from illness, such as influenza, grippe or pneumonia, from which the victims have not regained their normal health.

To all who suffer from persistent or even occasional headaches the advice is to have the cause corrected rather than to try to deaden the pain. For getting at most of the causes of headaches there is nothing better than Dr. French's NU-ERB. This is a powerful reconstructive, restorative medicine that quiets the nerves, quickly builds up the most rundown system and corrects disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder. Dr. French's NU-ERB will also increase the appetite and have you feeling healthier than you have for a long, long time.

MEXICO CITY, May 13. — (AP)—Assassination of President Ortiz Rubio and General Plutarco Elias Calles, police of the Federal District charged today, was planned by conspirators in a revolutionary plot just exposed. The assassinations were planned by conspirators in a revolutionary plot just exposed. The assassinations were planned as a call to Mexicans to arms to overthrow the present government.

Two retired generals, Mario S. Martinez and Julio Marques Carmona, and a former Colonel, Alvaro Lucio Alcazar, are among nine persons arrested and being held for questioning in the plot, the alleged leader of which, Luis Cabrera, former Finance Minister, was deported to Guatemala Saturday.

General Uprising

Documents seized at the plotters' headquarters revealed that simultaneous armed uprisings were to occur in Mexico City, Puebla, Oaxaca and other parts of the country on May 15, the "Cinco de Mayo" on which Mexico celebrates the battle which thrust the French from the country.

The plot was discovered by a detective who, posing as an enemy of the Government, gained the confidence of the conspirators, sat in their meetings. He obtained a copy of the manifesto which the conspirators detailed their plans, pledging themselves among other things to deliver the Mexican oil fields in their entirety to Mexican capitalists.

Planned To Close Highway

A "fight without quarter" was planned. There was to be a forced loan from Mexican banks and commercial establishments and the newly opened Mexico City-Laredo highway was to be closed since it merely opened the way for entrance of more Americans into Mexico.

Police in their raid on the plotters' headquarters confiscated a large quantity of arms and ammunition.

PETERBOROUGH'S AIRPORT

To The Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—I am often asked, how the airport is progressing. It has been surveyed and the plan filed at Ottawa. Everything but the final clean-up is ready.

Kingston is trying to get the government to establish the air-mail route, now regularly plying along the lakeshore, and have it go permanently through Kingston. Peterborough is on the straight line and would get it if applied for. It is also on the through trans-continental route

I suggested to a man in the confidence of the City Council that Peterborough should apply. It was referred to the Property Committee of the Council, which considered the matter, but found it too serious for immediate decision.

I then wrote to the Council, saying that if the Council would ask for the route, I would furnish the airport and flying-station and the Council could give me the right to use the word "Peterborough" over the flying-station.

The City Council is now considering the proposition. The Chamber of Commerce informs me that they have taken up the matter also.

POLAND BIDS FOR BACON MARKET

Poland is making a strong bid for part of the British bacon market, according to advice received from that country by the Canadian National Railway's department of agriculture. The product of 18 bacon factories in Poland is centralized and handled by a government monopoly for export to Great Britain. In January of this year, Poland sold nearly 95,000 hundred-weights of bacon to Britain.

LINDSAY WANTS CANAL FINISHED

Farmer Has Been Burned Out Three Times in Past Six Years.

WANT TAX COLLECTOR

LINDSAY, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence)—Victor E. White, of Peterborough, who was engaged as local traffic officer last year, made application to the council for the same position this year on a two day per week schedule. The aldermen, however, decided not to engage a traffic officer, but will hire a patrolman to assist the Chief of Police on Saturdays and other occasions when it is felt his services are necessary.

Want New Tax Collection

Owing to the fact that the back taxes owing the municipality are not being paid promptly as the council would wish, the Finance Committee has decided to take action with a view to securing a more agressive collector. The arrears on the 1930 tax roll amount to $41,496.93.

Town Clerk Allely has been instructed by the council to draw up a petition to be forwarded to the Federal Government urging the completion of the Trent Valley Canal.

To be burned out three times in the past half dozen years has been the experience of William Martin, of Red Rock, Verulam Township. On Sunday his brick residence was struck by lightning and totally destroyed, very little of the contents being saved. The firemen from Fenelon Falls prevented the flames from spreading to the stables and other buildings. The house was shattered by the bolt, and Mrs. Martin was rendered unconscious. The insurance carried will not nearly cover the loss.

Missing G.M.C. Barge Is Found On Lake

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 13 (C.P.). — The General Motors Corporation barge which sailed from Port Weller on Sunday for Buffalo and was reported missing, last night was located in Lake Ontario this morning. It was reported one engine had broken down. The barge was expected to reach port this afternoon.

United States coastguard cutters searched all night for the barge, and early this morning the vessel was sighted about thirty miles from Charlotte, moving at a slow rate towards Oswego.

The barge, known as the Clevelander, has a cargo of 1,230 tons of steel and a crew of 20 men aboard. It sailed from Port Weller on Sunday afternoon.

Last night Captain Martin W. Rasmussen, of Buffalo, coastguard commander, had ordered cutters out from Niagara-on-the-Lake, Sodus, Charlotte, and Oswego to search for the craft.

16 Lose Lives in Movie House Fire

TOKYO, May 13 (C.P.).—Sixteen persons were burned to death and 30 were injured in a fire during a cinema performance in a temporary shack at Shimamaki village, Island of Hokkaido, last night.

The film suddenly burst into flames, terrorizing the audience of 200, which started in a wild stampede for the exit. The fire overtook many of them before they were able to escape.

Sixteen houses in the vicinity were destroyed before the blaze was brought under control.

SPRING SHOWING OF FRIGIDAIRES

Opens To-morow, May 14, at Radio Sales and Service.

BEST OFFERINGS YET.

The annual spring showing of Frigidaire advanced electric refrigerators in this city will begin at Radio Sales and Service, Greene Building, Charlotte street, on May 14, and will continue for a ten-day period, during which the showroom will be open evenings for the reception of visitors until 10 p.m., Ernie L'Illico local dealer announced to-day. Mr. Lillico adds:

"We are featuring all-white porcelain-on-steel electric refrigerators, which are being presentel with an all-inclusive three year guarantee covering both the cabinet and the mechanism" he said. "This double guarantee is the broadest ever offered by Frigidaire Corporation" he continued, "and we have been able to institute it because of many years of experience with porcelain enameling and the manufacture of electrical refrigeration equipment.

"We believe that the Frigidaires which will be exhibited at the spring showing are the finest ever offered the public, providing as they do, lower operating cost, more ice capacity, faster freezing, an acid-resisting porcelain finish in the food compartment, more surplus power, quieter operation and all the other features which combine to make a really advanced electric refrigerator.

"The new Waldorf-Astoria Hotel at New York, said to be the finest hotel in the world, is equipped with the same type of Frigidaires. Seeking the highest quality furnishings and equipment for its ultra-exclusive tower apartment suites the management recently chose Frigidaire from among many other types of electric refrigerators."

MISSION CIRCLE PLANS OUTING

Mrs. McMillan Tells of Recent Trip to the Pacfiic Coast.

SUNRISE SERVICE.

The members of the Twilight Mission Circle held an enjoyable meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. W. McMillan, Division Street, with the president, Miss Helen Burns, presiding. The Easter thankoffering envelopes were brought in and the amount proved gratifying. It was decided to hold an outdoor meeting in June, followed by a picnic. Plans were discussed for raising money to meet their allocation, and it was decided to ask the dramatic club of the church to prepare a play to be put on early in the autumn. Mrs McMillan, who has recently returned from a trip to the Pacific gave an interesting and educative account of her journey, showing views of a number of important places visited and telling many amusing stories. She described the desert, the Grand Canyon, Beverley Hills, and Hollywood with its white stucco houses and red tiled roofs. She also described the sunrise service, where 20,000 people assembled on Easter Sunday morning at 3 a.m., to get a seat, and waiting until 6 o'clock for the service to begin. The president closed the meeting with prayer, after which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. McMillan was moved by Miss Evelyn Miller and seconded by Miss Myrtle Burns.

In Police Court

Magistrate Langley gave judgment to-day in a traffic case arising from a motor accident on the night of April 7 in which cars driven by William Matthews and Max Comstock collided. Comstock was tried on April 27 on a charge of reckless driving.

"I could not convict Comstock under the reckless driving charge, but since he has consented to having the charge reduced to one of exceeding the speed limit I must find him guilty under that section," stated the Magistrate.

However, the Magistrate said that he desired it clearly understood that he did not consider that Comstock's speed had caused the accident. Comstock was fined $5 and $9.25 costs.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., appeared for the defence and Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., for Matthews, the informant in the case

SECRET PLACES IS NEW SERIAL FOR EXAMINER

Story Has a Strongly Motivated and Unusual Plot—Dialogue Brisque.

STARTS ON SATURDAY

The Examiner will start on Saturday, May 16, a new serial story "Secret Places," which is a dramatic love-story of a young girl, whom jealously and selfishness almost robbed of happiness. She is a wistfully appealing heroine.

Joan Sutherland is an English writer of many popular best-sellers —"Challenge," "The Golden Altar," "Beyond the Shadow" and others. Her work is marked by vivid characterization, ingenious plot, and the ability to engage and hold the reader's interest from start to finish.

SECRET PLACES is ideally adapted to newspaper serial purposes. It has a strongly motivated and unusual plot. There are plentiful climaxes. Suspense is well sustained. Surprise is a striking element of the story. The dialogue is brisk and well-written.

Little Toni Wareham, modern and blithely alive, wins sympathy as the innocent victim of a crime....robbed of love on the very eve of marriage, when her husband-to-be is condemned to death for a murder he did not commit.

Most of the story's action....which is notably swift....occours in Paris, among people of wealth and social position. The characters are real, and move naturally through the many arresting situations which develop. The tale is straightforward, without descriptive or other digressions.

SENATOR DAVIS-TAKES UP CUDGEL

Terms Demands at Chamber of Commerce Parley, Bold Affront.

NEW HOSPITAL OPENED.

COATESVILLE, Pa., May 13 (C.P.)—Classing as "Gimme Boys," International Chamber of Commerce speakers who asked revision of the United States war debt and tariff policies, Senator Davis said to-day these demands were the "boldest affront of their kind ever offered to our nation."

The Pennsylvania Republican spoke at services dedicating the new Veterans' Hospital here. After summarizing the costs of the Great War, and referring to President Hoover's statement to the International Chamber of Commerce that five billion dollars was being spent annually to maintain armaments, Davis said:

"The effect of this militaristic perfection in many quarters of Europe has already intruded itself in the internal affairs of the United States, as was disclosed recently at the conference of the International Chamber of Commerce, when spokesmen for leading world Powers flatly and bluntly demanded that the United States reduce or eliminate its tariff safeguards so that our home markets may become a dumping paradise for the products of Europe. Furthermore, they insisted that the United States should cancel the war debts owed to it by European nations.

"As bait they offered our country a small foreign market in exchange for a wide open door into our home markets.

"These economic demands voiced by foreign spokesmen constituted the boldest affront of their kind ever offered to our nation or any other nation not in the vassal class."

Don't Be Skinny

Gain pounds of weight in few weeks with new IRONIZED YEAST—a special combination of dried brewer's yeast plus iron—*or pay nothing

It seems almost unbelievable how fast new Ironized Yeast has added pounds of good firm flesh—on men and women, children and old people Nervousness, tired feeling changed quick to new strength and pep; constipation, indigestion vanished.

People ask—what is the wonderful power in Ironized Yeast that has transformed sallow, lifeless, blemished complexions into fresh, smooth, lovely skin. No wonder thousands of women pour in letters praising the youthifying effects of Ironized Yeast.

Yet the answer is simple. Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—special weight-building dried brewer's Yeast and blood-enriching, strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value. Double-tested for strength, purity and potency. Used by doctors and big hospitals.

To this concentrated dried brewer's Yeast is added three kinds of easily assimilated Iron to quickly make rich, red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. By this special process Ironized Yeast is made more effective than yeast or iron taken separately. Contains no starches, flours or gas-forming fillers. That's why Ironized Yeast works so quickly. Pleasant little tablets — no nasty taste, no gas or bloating. Never spoil, safe for all.

Go to any drug store today, get a full size treatment of Ironized Yeast, and take the little tablets as directed. If after this generous trial you are not delighted with quick results, your money refunded by manufacturer.

If inconvenient to buy from druggist, send $1.25 direct to Canadian Ironized Yeast, Co., Ltd., Box 1323, Montreal, Que., Desk 2104.

Oshawa's Unemployed Increased To 700

OSHAWA, May 13—Since the relief work has been completed with the exception of a few small jobs, almost 200 men who were employed throughout the winter by the city are now jobless. Since April 30 the number of unemployed listed at the local government employment bureau has increased from 325 to almost 700.

A group of men started work this week on Hubert street, but the job will not provide steady employment for long.

The ranks of the unemployed have been swelled by a number of workmen being laid off by one local industry during the past week. City relief officers are experiencing increased demand for direct relief.

with the sword had made up for his earlier bungling.

His One Mistake

The bull swept by apparently as good as ever. He wheeled smartly and charged again. He faltered. That falter cost the matador his life. He was about to leap the barrier then thought the bull was going to crumple into a heap and didn't jump. The beast was on him with full force. His needle sharp horn went through Naranjos left eye and came out the top of his skull. The doctor was on the job again and so were the aides.

The kicking body still swung from the horn. The bull charged pell mell into the mob around the place, knocked two men sprawling and then collapsed. It was lights out for both man and beast. Both courageous. Both dead game to the last. The blood of the man and the bull made a little pool together in the sand.

HOME TOWNERS

TIDBITS INTERESTING AND HUMOROUS FROM CAMPBELLFORD

Final instructions will be given the official census enumerators for Campbellford and Seymour at a meeting being called for May 19 in the Public Library. Supplies for the work which will commence on June 1 will also be distributed at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Free of Lindsay spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Victor Free.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rowe and daughter Shirley were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hall at Lindsay over the week-end.

Mr. W. L. Webster and Mr. Reddick of Dundas and Mr. C. F. Webster of Lakefield were the guests of Chief and Mrs. G. C. Bromley over the week-end.

Miss Stella Free was a visitor over the week-end to Peterborough, the guest of Miss Winnifred Bohn.

Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Brown spent Mother's Day in Lindsay, the guests of the latter's parents.

BARE MORE SECRETS

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 12. (CP)—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, thin and haggard and apparently still highly nervous, arrived here to-day on a four months' trip around the world which she undertook to aid her recovery from a breakdown.

Members of her party said she is so ill that reports from Los Angeles that, in a forthcoming book hitherto undisclosed facts concerning her kidnapping will be published, are being withheld from her.

BETHANY COUPLE 40 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Rowan Are Honored By Children.

DAVENPORT PRESENTED

JANETVILLE, May 13—A very enjoyable day was spent by a number of friends and relatives at the home of Rev. W. H. V. Walker, Janetville for the occasion of celebrating the fortieth anniversary of Mrs. Walker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Rowan of Bethany.

After dinner was served to the guests Mr. and Mrs. Rowan were presented with a lovely davenport the gift of their children. Rev. Mr. Walker read the address while the presentation was made by Messrs Harold and Walter Rowan, sons of the happy couple. Mrs. Walker also presented a beautiful bouquet to Mrs. Rowan. Mr. Rowan made a suitable reply on behalf of himself and wife.

Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. W. H. V. Walker and two sons Jack and Rowan of Janetville, Mr and Mrs. Walter Rowan and daughters Yvonne and Lauretta of Bethany and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowan of Springville.

BREWER SALES' NEW QUARTERS

Fitzgerald Building Will Be Occupied by Brewer Motor Sales.

HUDSON AND ESSEX

Realizing that not the first cost, but the service charges, make an automobile an extravagance, the Brewer Motor Sales have gained their popularity because they keep the service charges for motorists of this section at the lowest minimum. They have shown an ever increasing volume of business and, due to this expansion, they have made preparations for more commodious quarters. The entire Fitzgerald Building at Water and Front Streets has been renovated and spacious showrooms prepared. In the very near future the Brewer Motor Sales will utilize the entire building, instead of the portion that they now use.

The Brewer Motor Sales are dealers in Hudson and Essex Motor cars. There you will find the new Hudson to be a new type in motordom. It supercedes all Hudson's previous achievements. It is a complete new car throughout, composed of new ideas, new beauties, new comforts, yet still selling in Hudson's well known price range. New contours of modernistic design have been given the bodies and the interior trim and fittings all blend in the new mode. One is forced to be impressed with the fineness and thoroughness of every detail in the new Hudson motor cars. There, too, you will see why the new Essex is the best of values. It caps the proof of greatest dollar-for-dollar value, with a pride of ownership that is distinctive in its field.

Courteous service, adequate accommodations, and the lowest cost consistent with repair work of the highest quality, has made the Brewer Motor Sales favored in their line. They maintain a free examination service, where one may have their car looked over at any time and you are told if any repair is needed. It is merely another expression of the management of this establishment to serve the public all possible. We are pleased to congratulate them on their success. Do you know how many people are given employment there?

KING EDWARD HOTEL

When a HOTEL MANAGER made a ROAD MAP

THIS GUEST was leaving early in the morning for the South. And he didn't know the road. During the evening, the manager himself made a road map for the guest. Did the guest appreciate it? He wrote back and said he never made a wrong turn.

Perhaps we're wrong in talking about such little things, when we have such big things to offer. Bigger rooms at lower prices... Roomy closets... Popular priced cafeteria or coffee shop... Central location... Even specially selected meats for all dining rooms. But somehow, it's the little extra things that bring our guests back. You'll be back, too, once you know us.

"Meet me at The King Edward Hotel" is the byword among experienced travelers who visit Toronto. The register of this world-famous hotel contains more members of royalty, leaders in the business and social worlds than any hotel in the Dominion. # DYING BULL GORES SPANISH MATADOR late need of new pants seemed none the worse off.

While some minor toreadors were teasing the bull to keep things going the pig-tail and sword man dug himself up some new togs and came back. But his nerve was shot. He was a white faced boy now and made a horrible mess of the whole show taking 25 minutes to finish the beast. The second fight saw a second matador tossed right out of the place. This chap was lucky too because he landed plump on a horse's back. It began to look bad.

Nerve Like Steel.

Up stepped Naranjo. He was good from the start. He went through all the tricks of the big shots. He walked on his knees in front of the puzzled bull. He stroked his horns defying him to charge; he leaped nimbly this way and that. He planted his feet close together and scarcely moved an inch while the infuriated animal came at him again and again. When it came time to cease fooling and get on with the business of death his nerve and aim were like steel. He brought the charging Andalusian toro down with one thrust while the crowd screamed its cheers and tossed hats into the ring.

Naranjo in that triumphant moment was the greatest man in all Spain. The crowd stamped and waved and howled their delight. There were two more fights, both poorly done and then came the last. Naranjo was again the matador, for each killer must handle two bulls.

Slip Nearly Fatal

This time he faced a wily white charger. Just a three year old bull but quick and powerful. In his first charge he flattened a minor cloak waver and would surely have killed him but for Naranjo who drew the beast away. Then the boy—he was only 20—went through his bagful of tricks again. He was superb, graceful as a ballet dancer. He was making fun of this great beast when suddenly he slipped. The bull was on him so he flattened close to the ground and the bull thundered overhead not even touching him. Before he could circle and speed back the fighter was up and over the fence. But his nerve was shaken a bit. He wasn't so cocky.

Came time for the killing. He saluted the mayor, he saluted the owner and breeder of the bull, then he went over to the cheapest seats, juantily tossed off his hat and saluted his mother. For her he would kill this beast.

Naranjo waved away his assistants. Only the biggest of the big shots do that. He would face this animal alone. He was just poising, getting ready to invite the fatal charge when the bull let loose, hoisted Naranjo high in the air and caught him again on the way down. A doctor in white, ignoring the animal, rushed into the ring, a boy all excited and white jumped into the ring and made at the bull with his coat as a cloak. The minor fighters drew the bull away and a cop rescued the lad.

Meantime Naranjo was up waving to the crowd. "Not hurt, I will kill him," he was shouting. They admired his courage and so did I but the glory of that first triumph was passed. The tall slim youth was shaking. Certainly in no condition to face a beast still full of fight. A beast with needle sharp horns and hundreds of pounds of weight. A beast that had already got his man twice. Things looked bad. I turned to the sailor next to me and said, "That boy will be killed. They shouldn't let him go on."

Determined to Finish

There was a brief delay. The tall thin boy was disappointed that his mother wasn't seeing a good show. He determined to go out there and show them. He hurried. Any spectator could see all that.

Back he went to the fight with the bull still bellowing his rage. He went through all the passes again and began to look his old self. Came time for the fatal plunge and he let go a beautiful drive sinking his sword almost to the hilt. His aides drew away. The slim young matador faced his victim waiting for him to topple into death. But instead the bull charged. The boy had neither sword nor cloak. He felt sure, and every one else in that ring felt sure, that the bull could not move three paces. But he did. He bore down fast. The boy stepped aside close to the barrier where he could jump over if necessary. He was horribly disappointed now. He felt that his deft sure stroke stick for stick with other farm dynamites.

BLASTOL

—the General Utility Explosive

BLASTOL is entirely new. You can blast with it in either wet or dry ground and its freezing point has been made low enough for you to work with it all winter.

You will find this new high powered explosive the most satisfactory you have ever used for land clearing and ditching. And don't forget that it gives you about twenty sticks more to the case and each one will blast stick for stick with other farm dynamites.

Blastol is the easy, low-cost means of putting waste land under cultivation. It blasts stumps and boulders and digs ditches more quickly and cheaply than any other method.

The new Blastol booklet tells how to use explosives on the farm in the best and most economical way. It is yours for the asking. Just drop us a post card with your name and address for your copy. Address Department "A".

AT MOUNT JULIAN

A four-act play, entitled "Cranberry Corners," was presented in the school house, in S.S. No. 1, Burleigh, on Thursday evening, by the Women's Institute of Apsley.

Miss Pickard sang very sweetly between the acts, accompanied by Miss Helen Lean, who played the guitar. Music was also provided by Herb. Lean and Miss Helen Lean on banjo and guitar.

Although there was not a large crowd present, the program was greatly enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Lean carried off the first prizes at the euchre party last week, with H. McIlmoyle and Violet McCauley taking the consolation prizes.

The next party will be held at William Mathews' home on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Albert Reid spent Tuesday in Peterborough.

Mr. Kenneth Reid, of Douro, attended the euchre party at William McCauley's home on Wednesday evening last.

The many friends of Rev. and Mrs. R. T. C. Dwelly are grieved to learn of the latter's death in Toronto on Monday.

Mr. Wilbert Bolton, of Douro, was a visitor in the vicinity on Wednesday.

Miss Viola Redpath, of Young's Point, attended the euchre party last week.

Mr. William Thompson attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Dwelly in Toronto, on Wednesday.

Millbrook Cadet Inspection Thursday

MILLBROOK, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence)—The annual inspection of the Millbrook Cadet Corps No. 403 will be held on the school grounds on Thursday, at 3 p.m. Captain M. Isbestor, D.C.O., is the Inspecting Officer, and the Corps will be in charge of Cadet Captain Henry Gray. It is hoped the citizens generally will show their interest by being present.

The medals won in the rifle competition will be presented on Thursday afternoon, following the inspection. Lieut. B. B. Brown, principal of the Public School, is the Cadet Instruction Officer.

RENDERS EVERY BEAUTY SERVICE

Capitol Beauty Parlor Adept in All Phases of Beauty Culture.

SKILLED OPERATORS

You not only feel at home in the attractive and refined rooms of the Capitol Beauty Parlor, but you are assured of most satisfactory work. They are adept in all phases of ladies' haircutting, bobbing, dyeing and shampooing, facial massaging, manicuring, treating by electricity, marcel and permanent waving. After all beauty is contour. It is symmetry that creates a pleasant sensation in our minds when we see things that are lovely. The proprietress of the Capitol Beauty Parlor, Miss Yvonne Vondette, has made a close study of types and hair for so long that she is well able to advise in these matters. The operators there wave the hair as best suits the contour of one's face, type and personality, or give the style of bob that is correct.

At the Capitol Beauty Parlor they are well skilled in the proper giving of facials. If you are tired or your face shows signs of impurities or blemishes, try having a few facials at this beauty shoppe. It is every woman's desire—and birthright—to look her best, and nowhere will you find operators better qualified to perform those little touches of feminine attractiveness than at this beauty shoppe. There is nothing pertaining to beauty culture in which Miss Vondette and her operators have not proven themselves artists, and all work there is personally supervised by Miss Vondete. They keep in touch with all new developments and you receive there that personal touch so necessary to successful beauty operators.

This up-to-date and modern beauty salon is a most valued asset to the community. Not many communities can boast of such an exceptional metropolitan service as it offered the people of Peterborough and surrounding territory by the Capitol Beauty Parlor. Do you know their prices on Permanent and Marcel waving?

FIFTY ENROLLED IN HASTINGS CLUB

Committee Announces Site Secured for New Rifle Range —Mission Band Meets.

HASTINGS, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence). — The first meeting of the Rifle Range Club since its organization was held on Friday night in Lynch's hall and was very largely attended. Secretary Knight announced that the club had now fifty members signed and prospects were thatat least twenty-five more will be signed up in the course of the coming week.

The committee appointed at the first meeting to look out for a site reported that they had secured one. The site is located on the farms of Miss Foulds, rented by J. A. Stewart, and Ernie Braithwaite on the south side of the river. Both Messrs. Stewart and Braithwaite are very enthusiastic over the club and quite readily gave their consent.

A large number of members intend going around to look over different ranges at other centres in order to get an idea of laying out the local range.

The names have all been sent in and the equipment will arrive shortly.

Mission Band Meets.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Presbyterian Church met in the school room on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The treasurer's report was read and on motion was adopted. The roll was called, fifteen responding.

As it was work-day the band was busy for an hour preparing for the missionary bale.

The meeting closed with the mission band prayer, and will meet again in two weeks.

ASPHODEL COUNCIL APPROVES OF GRANT

East Peterborough Agricultural Society Given Money for Norwood Fair Prizes.

HASTINGS, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of the council of the Township of Asphodel was held on Monday in the town hall, Westwood, with all members present.

Buck, valuing sheep, $4.25.

Council then adjourned to meet on May 25.

BUILDINGS DESTROYED

SIMCOE, Ont., May 13. —(CP)— Damage to the extent of $10,000 was caused by fire of undetermined origin which destroyed the cattle exhibition building and another small building at Agricultural park here last night. Lack of water pressure prevented firemen from doing effective work at the outset of the blaze. This fact has also been a contributary factor in the heavy losses caused by other fires within the past year.

CAMPBELL MILK INSURES HEALTH

Dairy Products of Local Company Best to be Obtained.

FROM HEALTHY HERDS

Campbell's Dairy Products buy their milk from the farmers of the surrounding territory. It is collected and brought to them in the most sanitary way possible. A large percentage of their milk comes from Tuberculin tested, Jersey cows, and they are making personal efforts to train the farmers of this section to have all their cows thus tested. They now purchase from farms as near the city as possible, and they inspect all the stables from which milk is sent to them. The milk is carefully graded for flavor and purity. As soon as the milk reaches their plant it is pasteurized. Pasteurization of milk means to heat the milk to 142 degrees, holding it at that temperature for thirty minutes, and cooling it quickly. Thus the yeast producing bacteria are eliminated and the qualities of the milk are unharmed. Those not acquainted with this process should visit their plant, where they will always be welcomed.

"A Bottle of Milk is a Bottle of Health" is an expression of today that is quite in order. Everywhere school and health authorities are insisting that milk be served at schools to the children. Serve milk at meal time and between meals, too. Milk, consistently used, builds health in the frailest body, colors pale cheeks, revitalizes wasted nerves. We suggest that you order extra milk today from Campbell's Dairy Products. It is their policy to not only produce pasteurized milk, cream, butter, buttermilk and Country Club Ice Cream that will meet with specified requirements, but to produce health products that only modern elaborate machinery and consideration for their products can produce, and pure dairy products are undoubtedly nature's safest health and happiness insurance.

Campbell's Dairy Products are indeed worthy of commendation upon their efforts to serve. The people of this section are fortunate to have them here. Do you know the average number of individal calls served daily by Campbell's Dairy Products?

$3.00 cash prize given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Six in today's issue).

PLAY PRESENTED IN NORWOOD HALL

Elgin Young People Present "Mary's Castle in the Air" to Large Audience.

NORWOOD, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence). — The three-act play, "Mary's Castle in the Air" was splendidly presented by the Elgin Young People in the Norwood town hall, on Friday evening. Every member of the caste played his part well.

The cast of characters was as follows: Mr. Jenkins, a neighbor, Gertrude Buck; Jane Jenkins, her flirtatious daughter, Edna Richardson; Bill Bronson, Jane's chauffeur suitor, Russel Buck; Lenny Task, a grocer's boy, Roy Scott; Mary Estabrook, the Air Castle Girl, Flora Metcalfe; Daddy Alden, village philosopher, John Stinson; Mrs. Estabrook, Mary's mother, Irene Richardson; Jim Ruggles, a young attorney, Max Scott; Mimi Carlysle, a rich girl, Marie Metcalfe; Edward Carlyle, Mimi's father, George Richardson; Delia, colored servant, Donna Leeper.

Fife's orchestra provided splendid music between the acts, and the young people realized the sum of $62, for the work of their Sunday School.

Nagoya, Japan, has a new municipal auditorium seating 3,000.

VOCAL RECITAL MUCH ENJOYED

Pleasing Program Given Under Direction of Dorothy Stanley-Windrim.

ASSISTING NUMBERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — A capacity audience in the Parish Hall, Campbellford, last evening delighted in a revel of music when they were privileged to listen to a junior vocal recital by the pupils of Dorothy Stanley-Windrim. The assisting artists for the evening were Mrs. Gwen E. Lewis, piano, Mrs. James Black, elocutionist, and T. W. Stanley and F. Skitch, piano. The accompanists were Mrs. Gwen E. Lewis, T. W. Stanley, and Dorothy Windrim.

Elmer Jordan, baritone, sang three numbers, "Where'er You Walk" (Handel), "Invictus" (Bruno Huhn), and "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride" (Geoffrey O'Hara).

A young lady with a future in the musical world was Fern Weatherill, who with charm of manner combined with a soprano voice of fine quality and full and rounded notes showed her very fine ability in the handling of two very difficult compositions, "Nymphs and Fawns," a pastoral idylls by Bemberg, and "Deh Vieni Non Tarda" (L. Nozze Figaro) (Mozart), the latter number being sung in Italian very effectively.

Mrs. James Black's contribution to the evening consisted of two numbers, "The Voice from a Far Country" (Susan Wilson) and "Bridget's Trials" (Adrienne Roucolle.

Mrs. Gwen E. Lewis rendered very effectively a piano solo, "Rigoletto" (Verdi-Liszt), and earned hearty approval in the way she handled her subject, with fine delicacy of touch and keen balance of tone combined with splendid musical interpretation and expression.

Master Paschendaele Seaborn was one of the delights of the evening, singing in a sweet boy soprano "When My Paw Was a Boy" (Ashford), a song with plenty of childishh humor he showed budding talent in the realm of song.

A two-piano Concerto by Mozart and an instrumental duet, Norwegian Dance, Op. 35, No. 2 (Greig) and Hungarian Dance No. 3 (Brahms) were presented by T. W. Stanley and F. Skitch, who proved themselves a musical team portraying splendid ability.

A pretty number, "Pale Moon" (Knight-Logan) was sung by C. Grace Smith, who has a contralto voice of pleasing quality.

By request, Dorothy Windrim was heard in one number, "When I Was Seventeen" (Walter Kramer), and in her usual splendid style reaped enthusiastic applause from the audience.

Concluding the program a pretty duet, "Gently Sighs the Breeze" (Stephen Glover), was sung by Fern Weatherill and Dorothy Windrim. This number was an exceptional blending of tone and vocal expression and portrayed some fine voice technique.

One pupil, Miss Ina Bowen, who was scheduled for two songs, was unable through indisposition to perform.

WOOLER SOCIETY SPONSORS BANQUET

Members of Mission Circle Are Pleasing Hostesses at Jolly Affair.

WOOLER, May 12. (Examiner Correspondence.)—A Mother and Daughter banquet sponsored by the members of the Mission Circle was held on Friday evening, when a group of the Missionary Sosiety served the delicious supper.

The tables were very attractively decorated, a yellow color scheme being used, with Marsh Marigolds in large containers and yellow and white streamers.

At 7 p.m. the United Church parlors were opened to the eighty guests which sat down to the tables. Miss Grace Mutton led the sing song with Miss Beatrice Bragg at the piano. Miss Ruth Orvis, as master of ceremonies, asked Evelyn Crews to propose a toast to the "Mothers" which she did admirably, impressing on the minds of the girls the vital importance of making Mother their confidante. Mrs. Orvis responded to the toast, emphasizing the companionship that should exist between Mother and Daughter.

Miss Hazel Thompson proposed a toast to the "Church," naming the different organizations linked together. She asked the guests to stand and sing the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds." Rev. A. Poulter responded in a few well chosen words, pointing out what the Church means to the community and personally to the Christians. As a pastor he urged the need of faithful services.

Miss Pearl Cole proposed the toast to the Women's Missionary Society, telling of the wonderful activities, the reaching out work and the duties to be performed. In response, Mrs. Clarence McMasters pointed out the Christian Stewardship. The native Bible women in the Orient are such faithful stewards of the message and are invaluable to the missionaries.

Mrs. S. L. Terrill spoke of the beautiful picture around the tables being a forerunner to "Mother's Day" an ex sion of love and companionship. She introduced Mrs. Neal, of Belleville, the speaker for the evening.

Mrs. Neal gave a message of inspiration and encouragement to the girls in their attitude toward their devoted mothers and to the mothers in giving their first and best time to their children. The speaker visualized the beautiful life of a girl and closed with an illustration of the picture seen in the heart of a Rose.

Miss Mildred McColl, in a few words of heartfelt expression moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Neal and this was endorsed by Miss Grace Mutton. Miss Orvis, president of the Mission Circle presented a lovely bouquet of tulips to Mrs. Neal.

Many well known scientists recently experimented with several leading dentifrices. In their laboratories, they carefully analyzed each. In not a single instance did they discover properties likely to cure even slight dental ills.

Thus people are only fooling themselves when they attempt to doctor or cure by using a particular dentifrice instead of visiting the dentist.

But there exists a very important function which a dentifrice can and must successfully perform. That function is the mechanical cleansing of teeth.

Colgate's has never claimed to do more. However, it does claim to do this superlatively well, because of a unique feature (low "surface tension").

If you could watch the action of Colgate's by means of a microscope, as these scientists have done, you would see how deeply it penetrates. How it reaches the recesses of tiniest crevices. There the active bubbling foam dislodges harmful impurities and washes them away in a detergent wave of cleanliness. On dental advice, more people use Colgate's today than any other dentifrice.

C.P.R. PUBLISHES NEW TIME-TABLE

Added Conveniences to All Travellers is Included in Latest Edition.

A time-table that is not a mystery or a puzzle, and not even difficult to anyone willing to be initiated. This was the objective of the Passenger Traffic Officials of the Canadian Pacific railway when they planned their new folders for 1931. That they reached their objective is attested by the numerous congratulatory comments by the travelling public and railroad officials generally.

The new time table, which was issued recently, constitutes a radical departure and improvement in its form. Opening the old time table was a task which required space, patience, and the general arm movements of an accordion player. The new time table has only one fold, and in reality is a compact and concise book, easily carried and easily understood.

Page one of the folder supplies the key to the whole publication, and plainly indicates where any desired information is to be found. It tells how to locate stations, how to determine the days on which trains run, explains the signs, and gives important and vital information on the consist of trains.

MAYOR CLASHES

Mayor was guilty of contempt of court, and ordered him to "get out at once."

"Will you leave this court at once and take your papers with you?" asked Magistrate McCaughrin.

"How do you know these papers are blueprints that I was looking at?" asked the Mayor.

"Don't argue; leave the room," retorted the Magistrate.

"I'll argue with you later; there are lots of things I will argue with you later," shouted the Mayor.

Crown Attorney Frank Evans then attempted to pacify the Mayor, telling him he was only making a scene that would be likely to cause further trouble. In the meantime Magistrate McCaughrin had sent for Chief Constable Church, who appeared from his office, which adjoins the courtroom.

"Remove his Worship the Mayor from this court" said the Magistrate to the Chief Constable. The latter advanced on the Mayor. As the Chief advanced, the Mayor retreated toward the door. By the time Chief Church reached the place where he had been standing, Mayor Johnston had retired into the corridor.

After the Mayors' departure, Magistrate McCaughrin asked the county Crown Attorney, in the court, whether or not the Bench had been justified in ordering the Mayor ejected under the circumstances. Mr. Evans declared that the Magistrate was entirely within his rights in ordering the removal of any person who in any way interfered with court procedure. "Yes, I thought it was a straight case of contempt of court" said the Magistrate.

Subsequently, the Ainsworth case was remanded for a week.

OFFICIAL KILLED.

LAHORE, India, May 13 (C.P.).—The general secretary of the Adampur District All-India National Congress Committee, Chanan Singh, was killed and the Congress member, Gurdit Singh, seriously injured when a bomb exploded at Adampur to-day. Police arrested Gurdit and searched the offices of the Hoshiapur Congress Committee.

Finger Print on Plaster Cast Reveals Murderer

Prints Fatal to Strangler in Vienna

Not long ago the body of a young man was found in a woods in the environs of Vienna, Austria. He had been choked to death. The police made use of "negacoll" an extremely plastic modelling material by which amazingly accurate masks are secured. A "negacoll" bust of the victim was identified by his relatives after the body was buried.

Examining the cast closely, the police discovered a reproduction of finger prints—evidently those of the murderer. The print was compared with the finger print records on file at police headquarters and there a similar print was found. The name and history of the owner was laid bare. He was arrested not long afterwards and convicted of the murder.

So finger prints are being used in every country to protect society from criminals.

Prints on Things you Eat Are Dangerous to You

It is not only to criminals that finger prints are dangerous. They are full of peril to honest people. For, if you are lifting a chocolate or a biscuit to munch as you read, your prints may be preparing the way for your visit to a sick bed, the victim of a germ disease. This is not mere sensation. It is the cold truth. Your fingers may be covered with germs which you have picked up from articles which other fingers have touched during the day. Those other fingers may have been germ laden.

Germs Breed Rapidly

When those germs on the chocolate or biscuit reach your mouth they may breed with amazing rapidity and spread through your system to attack it at some weak point. Do you know that the Life Extension Institute lists no fewer than 37 disease germs which may be spread by human hands?

We cannot see these germs, yet they are everywhere. Where is the way to safety? Here it is—simple and available to all—wash with Lifebuoy Soap many times a day (and always before a meal) because Lifebuoy contains a germicide.

Safety in Lifebuoy

Safety in Lifebuoy! Yes, and more—much more! A beauty soap, too, as fine as can be made because it is based on two exquisite palm oils noted for their beautifying effect on the human skin. The soft, luxurious lather of Lifebuoy penetrates deeply into the pores, cleanses them and invigorates the skin. No perfume in Lifebuoy—but a pleasant safety scent that vanishes after use.

Body odour too! Many offend at work, or at a party, without knowing it. A Lifebuoy bath keeps you safe for many hours. Children need the frequent wash with Lifebuoy, they handle pet animals and other children's playthings so joyously and carelessly! Little cuts and scratches are kept free from infection by the Lifebuoy germicide.

See what a benefit Lifebuoy can be to everyone—grown ups, young people and children. Keep a cake always on the washbasin and for the bath. Get a supply from your dealer today.

DECORATION DAY AT CAMPBELLFORD

To Be Held By Legion—Total of 35 New Members Reached.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 13 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent)—Six of the Campbellford Branch, No. 103, o fthe Campbellford Branch, No. 103 Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L. at their regular meeting held Monday evening in the Armouries, Campbellford. This makes a total of 35 added to the role since the Provincial Membership Drive started in April. Although the objective of a 50 increase has not been reached, there are a few more days in which work can be done and every effort is being made to finish the drive successfully. Many of the Warkworth comrades were present, the president, G. A. Ironside presiding.

The question of holding a Decoration Day was brought up in the constitution, and notice of motion was made to this effect. This will mean that two Sundays will be set aside for this purpose, one for Campbellford and one for Warkworth.

The second vice-president, Comrade C. Zufelt of Warkworth reported from that point in connection with the Johnson entertainers who played for three nights under the auspices of the Legion. He stated that the show was very successful and was pleased to hand into the treasurer a check for $26.25, this sum being the Legion's share of the profits. Mr. Zufelt also brought to the attention of the meeting the fact that one of the comrades at Warkworth had applied for the position of census enumerator, and although he had held the post during the last Dominion census the position this year in this district was given to a non-returned man. This matter was discussed by the meeting and the case handed over to the committee arranged for the investification of such questions.

The treasurer, Comrade A. G. Thompson reported on the financial standing of the Branch, giving as the present balance $586.24, with outstanding bills amounting to $43.

RIOTING RENEWED

ment forces at Valencia, Bilbao, Cartagena, Arcos de la Frontera, and Seville checked attacks on church property there.

Many of te largest cities of Spain were under martial law as the Government strove to restore order. Arrests of Communists and Monarch'sts continued, the Government charging the two elements, usually antagonistic, with collusion in the rioting. Roman aCtholic quarters attributed all the mischief to the Communists, and charged the Government agents with needlessly accusing the Monarchists.

In Madrid the faithful took advantage of the restored quiet to-day to show their devotion. Churches were crowded with worshippers and some priests who have been hiding from the storm appeared on the streets.

Expect Vatican to Protest.

Some church circles said that they expected a formal protest from the Vatican against the destruction of church property, but so far as could be learned the protest had not yet been received.

During the night a bomb badly damaged the Carmelite Monastery at Granada. A number of convents there were on fire to-day. Martial law was declared during the night.

Pedro Cardinal Segura Soenz, Primate of Spain, was learned to-day to have fled from Toledo yesterday in a motor car followed by a police escort. In some quarters is pastoral letter urging Spanish Roman Catholics to defend the church was blamed for the outbreaks which have resulted in possibly two-score churches and church buildings being destroyed since Sunday.

PRINCE SUGGESTS

remarks on foreign tariff barriers that aroused the keenest interest throughout Great Britain to-day. Foreign countries, he said, naturally desired to foster, by means of tariff barriers, their own manufacturers.

"This desire" he said, "increasing year by year, is seriously threatening our export trade, and I think we have come to the point where we must carefully consider the advisability, in many cases, of manufacturing in those countries, inside their tariff walls, and thus at least ensuring the flow of British raw materials."

There was general agreement with the Prince's advocacy of branch factories as a means of combating high tariffs of foreign countries.

ST. MARK'S, RAWDON

MARMORA, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence).—St. Mark's, Rawdon, was filled to overflowing on Sunday evening, the presence of nearly forty members of the Men's Club of St. Paul's Church, Marmora, greatly affecting the attendance. Evensong was taken by the rector of Marmora, Rev. A. B. Caldwell. The lesson was read by the second vice-president of the club, W. J. Cottrell. A quartette composed of J. F. Baker, G. Woodhouse, W. A. Sanderson and W. L. Rigg sang very beautifully, "Remember me, O Mighty One," and "Jesus is My Neighbor."

A stirring thought-provoking sermon was delivered by the Rev. M. J. C. Levason, rector of Rawdon, upon the text "If any man will take away thy coat, let him have thy cloke, also." The sermon was an able setting forth of the gospel of the extra. After the service, the members of the club spent an hour at the rectory, Bonarlaw, as the guests of Rev. and Mrs. M. J. C. Levason.

As a result of the depression in Italy there has been a great increase in the number of itinerant peddlers.

A New Breakfast Food

with a new delicious crispness

Three Cereals in One—Oatmeal, Corn, Wheat—Perfectly Delicious

A CEREAL that stays crisp to the last spoonful in spite of milk and cream. A cereal entirely different in flavour from any you have ever known. A cereal which, in a few short months, has won an unparalleled success wherever it is sold.

It is called Quaker CRACKELS because of its unusual crispness. It is made by an oven-blending process that crisps together the choicest food elements of wheat, corn and oats. Kept crisp by the air-tight inner seal which keeps out taint and moisture.

Thus Quaker CRACKELS has a lingering taste utterly different from other cereals. There's the rich nut-like flavour of oatmeal. The zestful tang of whole wheat. The mellowness of golden corn and the nutrition, too, of all three great food grains.

And . . . best of all . . . because of this special oven blending, CRACKELS retains a tempting, fresh-from-the-oven crispness. It crackles as you pour it from the box. Delicious as croutons, in soup—in place of nuts, in candy.

Buy Quaker CRACKELS today from your grocer. Your family will delight in this new cereal. Made in Canada, in the Quaker Mills, largest cereal mills in the Dominion.

Other products are Quaker Quick Macaroni, Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour, Quaker Natural Bran and Quaker Corn Flakes.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Judging from the number who get books from the Public Library here in Peterborough and from the many lending libraries that are in the City, the majority of people of Peterborough enjoy reading.

• • • • • • •

And reading is an excellent pastime.

• • • • • • •

Should you want to find out sometime, without actually asking, whether a person likes reading or not, just watch the manner in which he or she handles a book and you will be able to tell immediately whether that person is a booklover or not.

• • • • • • •

If the person opens a volume gently, presses the pages down with an almost caressing touch as she turns the leaves, and shuts the covers with a little pat, he is well acquainted with books and finds them companionable.

• • • • • • •

On the other hand, if the book is taken up carelessly, perhaps by one cover, the pages slapped back and forth and the covers closed with a final slam, the person is not a booklover.

• • • • • • •

Probably the person only took the book up merely to gratify the owner in an absent-minded way or nervously. The binding may be fine, the printing chaste and the contents something to be cherished.

• • • • • • •

But such things do not matter to that particular person. To that person it is nothing but a book, and books are plentiful nowadays.

• • • • • • •

Because books are numerous in this generation does not make them less desirable, less interesting nor articles to be treated without respect. Parents should help their children to realize these things and teach them to handle books correctly—especially those books which are taken from the Public Library and lending libraries.

• • • • • • •

Never set anything on a book that might mar it. The hostess at a tea recently was aghast to find a teacup and saucer set down on the authors autographed page of a valuable volume. Such thoughtlessness was one of the social mistakes that are inexcusable.

• • • • • • •

Never lay an open book face down. Never turn down corners of pages and never mark any book that does not belong to you. And do the underscoring very lightly, even on your own books.

• • • • • • •

The marks should not disfigure pages but indicate choice passages, those important to remember, or those dear to you.

• • • • • • •

Be wary about borrowing books. Cover the books with stout paper unless they are cheap editions. Paper clips slipped over the back and front covers hold the paper covers on securely.

Fish-Hook Catches In Throat Of Cat

A fish-hook caused a cat tragedy on Park street yesterday. A fisherman left the hook still baited with a small fish, in his yard. In trying to eat the fish the luckless cat got the prongs of the fish-hook fastened in its mouth. Dr. Johnston was called, and when efforts to remove the hook failed, the cat was killed.

Police desire to warn fishermen to be cautious in laying aside their equipment so that children will not get hooked.

The young people of the Dramatic Club of S.S. 11, Smith gave te play, "The Fruit of His Folly" in the basement of the Regent Street United Church, Lakefield, on Thursday evening, the proceeds amounting to about $34.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

NATURE PROTECTS THE VITAL PARTS.

Did you ever think of how Nature protects the "vital" spots in that body of yours?

The whole working of your body, whether it is the muscles, the heart, the lungs, in fact every part, is dependent on the brain. The brain directs everything.

What do we find?

That the brain is enclosed in a bony case consisting of an outer and an inner plate of hard bone tissue and a softer more spongy bone tissue between these two plates. Thus when a blow strikes the head it may dent the outer plate, but the dent goes inward against the soft cushion of bone, and in most cases springs out again.

And think of the wires or nerves (the spinal cord) that control the body, which run down from the brain to the various parts. These nerve trunks are all enclosed in the series of hard bones which form the spinal column. Any injury means paralysis of all parts below the injury.

Think also of all those other precious organs, the heart and lungs; a regular breastwork of strong bones, the ribs, which will withstand a tremendous blow.

Thus we see the brain, the spinal cord, the heart wonderfully protected.

Take another necessary structure, the eye. It is enclosed in a round or cone-shaped cavity right in the skull. It is thus protected on every side. Similarly with the ear.

But what about the abdominal organs, the stomach and intestines? Are they not as important as any other part?

Yes.

Well, why have they no bony protection?

Because Nature expected you to move the middle part of your body, for bending, twisting, helping to expel the wastes from the intestine, for necessary vomiting, for coughing, for proper carriage of the body and so forth. Therefore, Nature supplied you with a set of abdominal muscles which, if developed as they should be, will permit motion, and yet withstand as hard a blow as will the ribs or skull. A well developed man will permit you to strike a blow with all your force on the abdomen and it will not hurt him or the organs underneath.

What is my point?

Nature protects every vital part, the skull, backbone and ribs, protecting the brain, spinal cord and heart. If you will work or exercise the abdominal muscles regularly, by bending and twisting the body, the organs in the abdomen will be just as well protected.

Besides, you will attain the correct carriage or posture for the body.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

NATURE'S ARTISTRY.

How idle is the painter's task
When patiently he seeks
To show how mellow sunbeams bask
Upon far mountain peaks!

How futile is the poet's art,
His metre and his rhyme,
When he would bare the human heart,
So secret, so sublime!

For who can paint love's look divine
That on a fond face glows,
And when has poet penned one line
Like moonlight on a rose?

But Nature's artistry supreme
Waits endlessly for all
Who, vowed to Beauty, seek the gleam
Where her glad foodsteps fall.

Leo Copp Speaker At School Meeting

At the regular open meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association, held on Monday evening of this week, Leo Copp gave a very instructive talk on Northern Ontario, illustrated by lantern slides.

Mrs. C. H. Saunders gave two delightful solos. The accompanist was Mrs. Borland.

The balance of an interesting program was given by the pupils of Miss Thomas and Miss MacKay, and included recitations by Harold Matthews, Kenneth Bolam and George Brown, as well as choruses and drills.

The banner was won by Miss Thomas' room.

WHY EAT ROMAN MEAL IN SUMMER?

Why? For the same reason that one eats fruit. Both are alkaline and alkalinize the blood, which keeps one fit on hottest days.

Roman Meal is the only alkaline grain food, because it is a quarter flax-o-lin. It also moves the bowel freely, preventing absorption of bowel poisons that depress and weaken on hot days. It need not be eaten hot. I eat it uncooked, as per recipe on package, all the year round, which accounts for my youthful strength and endurance at seventy-two. It can also be served as icy-cold Brose-O, etc. (recipes on package), or as cold porridge with preserved or jellied fruit and cream or "cream substitute." Hot or cold, it is alkaline and peps one up on hot days. Write for free sample and for free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," to ROBT. G. JACKSON, M.D., 502 Vine Ave., Toronto 9, Ont.

THOMAS DUTTON GUEST SPEAKER

Series of Motion Pictures Shown at Central School Association Meeting.

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

Mrs. Wilfred Boorman presided at the Central Home and School Association meeting held in the Kindergarten room of the school on Monday evening. A good attendance of parents and friends were present, and after a short business session a splendid program was submitted. This included a series of moving pictures, accompanied by an address by Tom Dutton, and splendid instrumental and vocal numbers.

The business included the reading of the minutes of last meeting by Mrs. A. Metheral, secretary. A splendid financial report, which showed the Association on a sound basis, was given by Mrs. F. Skitch, treasurer. Mrs. J. Kingsbury, convenor of the paper collection, announced that the splendid sum of over twenty dollars had been raised on the recent collection. The attendance banner was won by Mr. Steer's room. Arrangements for the annual picnic will be made at the meeting on the 8th of June.

The musical program opened with the singing of "O Canada" and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison, with Miss Olive Rowe at the piano.

A splendid address on the making of bread, which was given by T. Dutton of Stock's Bread Company, proved very interesting, and received rapt attention from the audience. The lecture was accompanied by a series of moving pictures, showing the splendidly equipped buildings of the plant, and the processes of breadmaking in all their modern efficiency. The pictures were wonderfully clear, the operator being Alec Johns.

The following was the musical program rendered:

Russell Huggins played a violin solo in his usual efficient manner.

Vocal quartettes: "The Road of the Loving Heart," "My Task" and "Cross, Crown and Throne," were sung, unaccompanied by the Misses Muriel, Faith and Nellie Boorman and Gladys Sutherland.

Selections on the handbells were given by Mrs. Braund. These included sacred airs and English airs.

Miss Nellie Boorman gave several readings, including "Tillie's First Car Ride," "The Usual Way," and "The Kick Under the Table."

The National Anthem concluded the program.

Mrs. Boorman thanked the speaker and all the other artists who had contributed in the splendid program, and a vote of thanks was heartily responded to by all present.

FINAL COUNT 5-2.

Nolen Richardson, of Toronto, Makes Five Hits in as Many Times to Bat.

TORONTO, May 13.—A hit or two at the right time would have won a ball game for the Maple Leafs at the Stadium yesterday afternoon. But they couldn't get them, although they collected plenty at other times. Consequently, the Orioles had no difficulty annexing the final game of the series by 5 to 2, which gave them the edge on the three games played by 2 to 1.

The Leafs collected thirteen single-base drives off Beryl Richmond, Oriole southpaw, and forced him to the showers in the ninth with the bases filled and two out. Monte Weaver then strolled on to the hilltop and struck out Ken Strong to end the game. It was the second time that Strong had struck out with runners waiting, although he made two hits on other occasions and drove in the Leafs' first run.

Richmond was highly effective in the pinches, and he had to be. The Leafs left eleven runners stranded. Nolen Richardson, who scored the only Toronto run, made five hits in as many trips to the plate, but, unfortunately, whenever he came to bat, there were no runners in a scoring position.

Mills Last for Six Innings

At Mills pitched the first seven innings for the Leafs, and for six frames held the Baltimore batters to four hits. However, their penchant for producing extra-base knocks proved his undoing. They amassed a double, a triple and a single in the seventh, to score two runs and obtain a lead which the Leafs could not reach. The Birds made six extra-base hits in their total of nine—three doubles and as many triples. Ernie Proffitt, who pitched the eighth and ninth for the locals, making his first appearance here since joining the team, yielded the last run, a double and a triple in the eighth greeting him.

Richmond got seven of the Leafs on strikes. He caused Billy Rogell to whiff on two occasions, and each time a hit would have helped the Leafs' cause mightily. There were chances galore for the O'Neilmen to drive in runs, but on those occasions they were least potent.

YOUTHFUL PLAYERS ON AMERICAN TEAM

U. S. L. T. A. Plans to Give Youngsters a Little International Experience.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 13.—(C.P.).—Canada will see a new United States Davis Cup combination when the United States team swings into action at Montreal, May 21, against Canada in the finals of the American zone play.

The general belief is that the United States has little chance of winning the cup this year and the United States Lawn Tennis Association, governing body of the sport, has been giving a young crop of players a chance to secure international experience. With the veteran William T. Tilden 2nd, and Vincent Richards lost to amateur ranks, the U.S.L.T.A. has adopted a policy of careful building over a period of years with the hope of eventually developing a group of players capable of winning and retaining the cup.

Mangin, of Orange, N.J., and Sutter, the intercollegiate champion, of New Orleans, have never played in the international competition although Mangin was a member of last year's squad.

The team will be in charge of Vernon Prentice, of New York, as non-playing captain.

The players are all in the east and will practice at Forest Hills this week, leaving for Montreal Sunday. The series will be played at Montreal May 21, 22 and 23.

The Netherlands East Indies expects to save $16,000,000 through recent reductions of salaries of government empolyees.

HAVELOCK WILL LIKELY MAKE 4TH TEAM IN LACROSSE LOOP

League Will Operate Separate From O.A.L.A. Until Provincial Finals.

ASSOCIATION TROUBLE

TORONTO, May 13 (Special to Te Examiner. Copyright 1931). — President W. J. Blainey and his O.A.L.A. executives are standing pat on their own stand of some weeks ago that the residence rule must be lived up to in its entirety, and that a change of residence on or before May 1 will not be a good and sufficient reason for granting playing certificates to those who have moved their living quarters. There is one redeeming feature to the ultimatum, however, which provides that if a player has changed both his job and his residence his application for change of club will be given favorable consideration, as the executive are cognizant of the unemployment situation and will not stand in the way of a lad whose lacrosse ability may give him a chance of employment that might not otherwise be available. It is understood that the matter will be brought to a head at a meeting to be held early this coming week, when players will be given an opportunity to appear in person.

Those behind lacrosse in Toronto are satisfied that a favorable impression has been made on the powers at city hall so that ere another year rolls round teams playing lacrosse will be recognized to the same extent as other sports in the matter of playing accommodation. If the city provides goals and nets in seven of the parks this year it will help out considerably.

The desire to play lacrosse seems to be spreading, judging by the recent report from Norwood that a Central Ontario League was in process of formation to comprise teams in Peterborough, Norwood, Campbellford and either Havelock or Oshawa. This group will have intermediate rating and will likely operate separate and apart from the O.A.L.A. until the end of the season when their finalists will be available for the semi final contests of the Ontario body. It is more than likely that Havelock will operate down east, rather than Oshawa, as they may consider the jump too great with competition closer home.

The formation of this new organization is doubtless the result of the success attained last year by Campbellford who went through to the finals against Brampton and made a splendid showing against the intermediate champions. A few seasons back the crows turned out in splendid numbers to witness the closely played contests between these centres and a revival of those days is now looked for once the teams get into action.

SAINTS DEFEAT EXAMINER TEAM

Printers Are on Short End of a Thirteen to Five Score.

LITTLE CLASS SHOWN

All Saints' and The Examiner, two new entries in the City Softball League clashed last night on Central School grounds with the Saints coming out on the long end of a 13 to 5 score. The game only lasted six innings but neither teams showed the class that was exhibited by Sugar Bowl and Westclox the night before. The Examiner outfit after a brave start with Fred Scates pitching went 'fluey' in the fourth innings and the Saints piled in eight runs on seven hits and three walks.

F. Dyer, who pitched for the winners was only in difficulty in one innings and after filling the bases by walks and forcing in one run he tightened up. Only two runs were scored.

Scates started for The Examiner but got weak in the fourth. In fifth Charlie Butcher took his place only to fill the bases and Reg. Doubt completed the game.

The Saints collected ten hits, were given eleven walks, while The Examiner got four hits and six passes.

Charlie Frost and G. Palmer showed the best form for the winners while Board played a good game for The Examiner getting three of the five runs.

WINGMEN WIN DOUBLE BILL

Better Pitching Enables Rochester Take Decisions From Keystones.

BISONS BLANK PESTS.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 13 — Rochester won two games from the Reading Keys here yesterday in the first home double-header by scores of 4 to 2 and 3 to 0.

The Wings presented effective pitching by Herman Bell and Ira Smith, the latter hurling the first shutout of the season here as he limited the Keys to two bingles.

Two three-run rallies, one in each game, blasted the otherwise strong work of pitchers John Welch and Nelson Green.

SKEETERS BLANKED

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 13.—Allowing only one of his Jersey City rivals to reach third base in nine innings, Johnny Michaels, young Buffalo Bison left-hader, easily scored a shut-out victory over the visitors here yesterday afternoon 7 to 0.

Michaels allowed only six bingles, two of them dotting the final inning and did not issue a single base on balls. The victory gave the Bisons three out of four on the series. Tucker and Hughes gave the Bisons a flying start by socking home runs with the bases unpopulated in the first inning.

In a race between an autogiro and a motorcyclist at Whitley, England, the land machine won by completing two laps before its rival completed three.

HARD HITTING FEATURES KING EDWARD TANGLE

South-enders Cross Plate For Six Runs in Third Frame to Cop Victory.

COLLECT 13 HITS IN ALL.

Hard hitting and good defensive baseball gave the King Edward school a 13-5 victory over Central on the latter's grounds last night. A sizeable crowd was on hand for the five-inning contest, which was marked by extra base hits for both teams.

The winners started right off in the first and collected two runs, while blanking the Central squad. Neither team countered in the second, but the south-enders slapped the ball all over the place to cross the plate six times in the third. Numerous errors helped them run up the half dozen. Central came right back in their half and grabbed four runs on two doubles, a single, a triple and two errors. The winners got another four in the fourth and held their opponents off the score sheet the other half. Each team counted once in the last inning, and the game was called off.

Thirteen hits were garnered by the King Edward bunch, while the uptowners could only solve Boyler for five. The latter went along nice, fanning ten and keeping the hits scarce and scattered except for the third frame. He was a bit wild at times, as was Wiley, Central's hurler. The latter struck out six, but didn't receive the best of support, his teammates looking bad on seven errors. The victors played a snappy defensive brand of ball, only booting three. While both teams had some nice fielding plays to their credit, there was nothing spectacular seen.

The teams:

King Edward—Heal, ss; Mowry, c; Hall, lf; Dunkley, 3b; Boyler, p; Jobe, cf; Todd, 1b; Field, rf; Watson, 2b.

Central—Wiley, p; Fair, ss; Ascott, 3b; Wright, 1b; Marshall, c; Coperwaithe, lf; Currie, rf; Doherty, cf; McLelland, 2b.

Umpire—F. H. Dearborn.

RACING SEASON OPENS TO-DAY

Overcast Skies and Chilly Northwest Wind Will Greet Customers at Leaside Park.

SPLENDID CARD.

TORONTO, Ont., May 13 (C.P.).—To-day marks the earliest inaugural of spring racing in the history of Canadian turfdom—and it feels just like that, too.

Overcast skies and a chill northwest breeze will greet some 8,000 or 10,000 lovers of the thoroughbred who are expected to trek to the popular Leaside course of the Thorncliffe Racing and Breeders' Association where the inaugural takes place.

A splendid card has been arranged. Topping the seven events is the R. J. McKenzie Memorial Handicap at one mile and a sixteenth. Ten of the original 18 nominations have accepted the weights for the feature, including Marine, ace of the Mount Royal stable, Montreal, the Seagram stable pair, Khorsan and Chatty, Bad News Bob and Red Briar and Banton, owned by H. G. Bedwell.

MACKS TAKE LEAGUE LEAD FROM YANKS

Last Year's Champions Gain Top of Pile for First Time This Year.

TIGERS ALSO WIN.

Vic Sorrell Holds Boston to Nine Hits and Bengals Win Out 2-0.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.)

If the 1931 baseball season follows the pattern set by two previous years, the Philadelphia Athletics are due to win their third straight American League pennant. Twice in succession the "A's" started badly and then breezed through to the championship. This year they were off to a bad start again.

In 1929, Philadelphia required five weeks to get into first place, but never was ousted. Last year, the "A's" dropped as low as fourth early in the season, climbed back to the top in May, dropped out again to regain the post on June 1 for all but two days of the remainder of the season. This season they have had plenty of troubles, but finally are back in their accustomed place at the top of the standing.

It took Bob Grove's pitching and all the slugging the "A's" are accustomed to give him to win first place and some wet weather in St. Louis came as an added aid. While the New York Yankees were idle in St. Louis, Grove pitched a four-hit game and Simmons, Foxx and Co., batted out a 5 to 2 victory over the Chicago White Sox to give the "A's" the lead by a few percentage points. Grove was a bit wobbly in the first half of the game, granting a pair of runs in the fourth when Carl Reynolds tripled and he breezed through the last four frames without giving a hit. Philadelphia scored early against Pat Caraway and Simmons put in the finishing touch by hitting his fifth home of the year in the ninth.

Grove was not the only pitching hero of yesterday's games, however, for every contest which escaped the weather brought forth a good mound performance. Vic Sorrell did the work in the second American League game, pitching Detroit to a 2 to 0 victory over the Boston Red Sox. Sorrell got into trouble several times, but was able to pitch his way out. The Tigers made only six hits off the combined pitching of Jack Russell and Hod Lisenbee, but they put together three of them in the fourth with Hayworth's double bringing in both runs.

Ed. Brandt of the Boston Braves won his fifth straight victory by beating the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 2 in the first game of a doubleheader, then Silas Johnson reversed the decision by a 3 to 2 count in a fine mound duel with Bruce Cunningham. Brandt's victory, gained through a three-run rally in the first inning, was notable because it gave him one more game this year than he was able to win all last season. Cincinnati won the second game with the aid of a passing locomotive which sent forth a cloud of smoke to hide the ball from Berger's view. What looked like an easy fly was recorded as a double for Roush and drove in two runs. Doubles by Hendrick and Heathcote in the eighth brought the deciding tally.

Three other National League games suffered the same fate as two in the American, giving way to cold and wet weather.

Cotton Is Leading First Round At Southport

BRITISHER HAS LOW CARD OF 70

Joe Turnesa Matched With Tony Manero in Third Place With Mark of 75.

EASTERBROOK SECOND.

SOUTHPORT, Eng., May 13. (AP) Henry Cotton, young British professional, led early finishers in the first round of the $7,500 Southport professional golf tournament with a card of 70.

Syd Easterbrook, another British pro, had a 71. W. H. Davies, one of the British Ryder team, matched the 75 of Tony Manero and Joe Turnesa. United States, but George Duncan, who has been playing off his usual form all spring, could do no better than an 80.

Tomasco Genta, the Argentine open champion, who qualified with 153, continued his fine play to-day and did a 73. Hector Preccerro, his compatriot, fell off badly and had an 80.

Horton Smith, the tall Missourian, temporarily moved into a tie for second place with Easterbrook when he brought in a card of 71.

GOOD PROSPECTS ARE LINED FOR SENIOR OUTFIT

"Shiner" Johnson Puts Boys Through Paces at First Workout of Club.

SEVERAL PLAYERS OUT.

Several Newcomers to Senior Ranks Seen on Field—Should Field Smart Team.

The first workout of the newly-organized senior ball team took place last night at the Exhibition Grounds, and there was a fine turnout. Al Heckman could not be present, but "Shiner" Johnston kept the boys on their toes. Bill Kay looked the prospects over from the sideline.

A number of familiar faces were out for the first time this spring, and these along with the better Intermediates should round out ino a smart senior aggregation. The drill lasted two hours and included outfield, infield and batting practise, as well as a warming up for the pitchers present.

Some of the players observed chasing flies in the outfield were "Red" Legon, Doug. Moore, Tom Foley, Joe and Freddie Jones. In the infield were "Shocky" Metz, Harry Nicholls, Bill Sweetman, Deb Hilliard and Batten. "Cack" Rogers and Lamb. Collins warmed Utronki and Maudsley up. Half the evening was devoted to fielding practise and the boys had a real stiff session of it. Most of them were right on their toes, and had apparently been getting in a lot of practise recently.

The last half of the evening was used for batting practise with first Maudsley on the mound and then Utronki. The batters hit fair, although a certain amount of practise is still necessary, as some of them are a little slow on the swing. This can be overcome with a few more good workouts, and lots of batting.

One or two more workouts for the seniors will be called this week, and next week will find them hard at it again. It's just about a week and a half away from the opening league game, and the team has plenty of work to do before it is rounded out. But with those out last night and the other seniors who will be out, the Petes should field a first class team in the C.O.B.L. this year. Announcement of those who are signed up will be made known shortly. There promises to be a fight for most of the positions on the lineup, which is the way things should be on a senior outfit.

Harris Will Return To Toronto Leafs

TORONTO, Ont., May 13 (By the Canadian Press).—Joe Harris, veteran first baseman, recently released by the Buffalo club of the International Baseball League, and last season with the Toronto Maple Leafs, will probably sign a contract with the local club, Steve O'Neill, manager of the Maple Leafs intimated today.

Harris, who led the local club in hitting last season, is a former veteran of the "big leagues," having played with Washington for a number of years.

LARRY GAINS STOPS BELGIAN CHAMPION

Canadian Scores Technical Knockout in Fourth Round of Leicester Battle.

LEICESTER, May 13—Larry Gains Canadian heavyweight champion, and one of the world's outstanding colored boxers, administered a severe thrashing to Van Goole, Belgian heavyweight champion, in the main event of an open-air show here yesterday. The bout was stopped in the fourth round with Goole hanging on. Early in the bout, Larry caught his opponent with a swinging left hook and opened a nasty cut over the Belgian's left eye. From the bell it was evident Goole was not in the same class with the panther-like Canadian boy, who won going away. Van attempted a comeback after the first round but never had a chance.

Gains will now meet Phil Scott for the British heavyweight title, and on to-day's showing should give Phil a great run for the money.

C.P.C. VS. CALEYS THURSDAY EVENING

In a League Game on King Edward Park—Kick-off at 6.15—Referee McKinley.

The first week night game of the local soccer season takes place on Thursday evening on King Edward Park when the Caledonians will be the guests of the Canadian Packing in a league encounter. Kick off at 6.15 prompt. Referee Alexander McKinley.

President Gilmour of the Scots executive stated that the eleven placed on the field will be best that the local Scotsmen have ever trotted out in the last ten years. Such a statement testifies to the fact that it will be a thriller from beginning to end.

The team will be as follows: C. Griffin, goal; J. McCallum and J. W. Campbell, full backs; A. Carmichael, D. Enery and W. Rankin, halves; G. Clark, W. McCracken, W. Robb, T. Craig and Alex. Burgess forwards. Reserves—J. Pottie, W. Grant and Ian McPhate.

C.P.C. eleven is as follows: A. Frick, A. Downer and H. Hotson, full backs; A. Bromley, J. Buchan and J. Nicholls, halves; T. Fletcher, R. Preston, N. Downer, D. Evans and T. Foster, forwards. Reserves, W. Rickard and A. Roberts. All players please report at the pavilion.

LACROSSE GAME HERE MAY 25TH

Officials Are Trying to Make Arrangements With Oshawa Intermediate Team.

"TIP" FOR PLAYERS.

There was a good crowd of lacrosse players at the Exhibition Grounds last night, and two sides were chosen for a game. They were at it nearly two hours. Ken Miller, the big defence boy was a tower of strength to his team, stopping them regularly as they came in on the goal.

Oshawa may be here on the 25th for an exhibition game with the locals, if possible. At any rate, there will be a game here that day, if not Oshawa, then Team 1 against Team 2 of the Peterborough players. The best one would likely be chosen for league games.

The coach points out the fact that it is impossible to be in good shape unless they come out regularly for practise. Players wanting to catch on with the Petes will have to show up at all the workouts.

The boys are taking up a collection to help defray expenses, and they hope to realize something in this way. Their next practise is called for tomorrow night at six at the Exhibition Grounds.

CASUAL COMMENT

There's a flock of City Baseball League team workouts billed for every night this week. They're at it on diamonds all over town, and some of the outfits look to be nearly ready for the starting gun.

• • • • • • •

A couple of good pitchers under twenty are wanted for the Foster Brothers' junior team, which is working out tomorrow evening at six at the Stevenson Park. Of course, good infielders and outfielders are welcome, too.

• • • • • • •

We're glad to see Deloro back in local soccer again after an absence of one year. They always were a big attraction here, and they will probably continue to be. George Brooks is the playing manager.

• • • • • • •

They won the White Challenge Cup the last time they were in the Peterborough and District Football Association. And now they're back again, and affiliated with the Ontario Football Association.

• • • • • • •

The softballers are away to an early start this year, beating the baseball teams by a couple of weeks. The Men's City Softball League started Monday night, and the Girls' Loop begins a week from to-night. There'll be no organized baseball before the 24th.

• • • • • • •

All the Men's League games will be played the first four nights of the week, unless there's a postponed affair to catch up. We haven't heard yet what nights the damsels will do their stuff, as the schedule is not drawn up yet. It will be in a day or two.

• • • • • • •

Tonight's game at Central will be between the champ Sugar Bowl outfit and the new entry, Dominion Woollens. The latter is an unknown quantity yet, but the former are too well known, if you believe some of their victims.

• • • • • • •

That All Saints' gang of softballers didn't treat their opponents, The Examiner, very nice last night. They only took them for a 13-5 ride, and right in front of a whole lot of spectators, too!

• • • • • • •

The same score was the way the King Edward-Central baseball game finished up at Central, with the boys from down below having th big edge. They were better in every department, but the losers were just as game.

• • • • • • •

There was a good turnout of seniors last night at the Exhibition Grounds, and all had a swell workout. It looks like there will be two players after each position this year. That's promising.

• • • • • • •

"Scotty" Maudsley dished them up from the port side to give the boys some batting practise, and then Utronki tossed some at them from the natural side. And every once in a while Vinnie would cross the hitter up with a hook.

• • • • • • •

They were a classy-looking bunch practising last night, and most of them are getting in shape rapidly. More batting practise won't do them any harm for the next week or so. They'll be be at it again on Thursday or Friday night, and probably for a while on Saturday afternoon.

• • • • • • •

A flock of the players signed on the dotted line last night, and several who could not come out have promised to appear at the next practice. And by the way, the Cogs are a good outfit. They have voluntarily released several players wanted by the seniors.

• • • • • • •

And they've done everything they could to give the Petes a hand. The same thing goes for the Crescents. It's a sporting spirit, all right.

• • • • • • •

The Rotary Juveniles were practising at Stevenson Park last night. Manager Ray Hunter gave the boys a stiff workout, and they are shaping up like a classy outfit.

HOGSETT TO JOIN LEAFS HURL SQUAD

Manager Steve O'Neill Making Effort to Strengthen Pitching Department.

TORONTO Ont., May 13 (C.P.)—Glenn Liebhardt, 20-year-old right hander, who was made a free agent last week by the Philadelphia Athletics, has been added to the Toronto Leafs.

In an effort to add further strength to his somewhat weak pitching department, Manager Steve O'Neill has completed arrangements with Detroit Tigers for the services of Elon Hogsett, Indian southpaw, who two seasons ago twirled for Montreal Royals. Hogsett, who will arrive about Friday is subject to recall to the Tigers upon 24 hours notice.

Ontario Hockeyists Leave For Maritimes

TORONTO, Ont., May 13 (C.P.) — The migration continues After scouring Western Canada, Ottawa and Montreal districts for polished hockey material—and getting plenty of it—the Maritime Province admirers of classy talent have centered their attention on Central Ontario products apparently.

Synchronizing with reports of the departure for Fredericton of "Scotty" Bowman, flashy defence star of Niagara Falls, Ontario Hockey Association Junior champions, word has been received that Jack "Hurry" Kane, speedy left winger of Hamilton Tigers, Eastern Canada champions, has left for the provinces by the sea.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess.)

A PLUCKY MIDGET.

Go where you will you'll find it true
That pluck with size has naught to do.
—Old Mother Nature.

Big folks are sometimes cowards and little folks are sometimes very brave. You never can judge the pluck of anyone by size alone. Farmer Brown's Boy had known this for a long time, but never had he been more certain of it than when he stood near the top of an unsteady ladder trying to get one hand out of a hole in a giant cactus and unable to steady himself with the other hand without getting it pricked by sharp spines with which that cactus was covered. It would have been all right had it not been that someone with claws as sharp as needles, and with an equally painful bill, was hanging on to that hand in the hole. Yes, sir, that was just what was happening.

"Ouch! Let go, whoever you are!" cried Farmer Brown's Boy.

But whoever it was didn't let go, but with every movement of Farmer Brown's Boy's hand dug those claws and that bill deeper into his fingers. Those fingers didn't have hold of anything, but something had hold of them. There was no mistake about that. Farmer Brown's Boy wasn't frightened. He knew that it was a bird who was making him so uncomfortable, for he had felt feathers just before his fingers were seized. What kind of a bird it was he didn't know. That hole had been made by either a Flicker or a Woodpecker, and so he had supposed that the occupant must be either one or the other. Now, however, he was doubtful. He never had felt Woodpecker or Flicker claws as sharp as these.

"Pull him out and let's look at him, or her, whichever it is," called Cousin Tom from the foot of the ladder.

Farmer Brown's Boy made a wry face. "That's what I am doing," said he. "I can't do anything else unless the rascal lets go at the entrance. You wouldn't laugh if you were in my place. Ouch!"

Just then his hand came free of the hole and with it came a feathered midget clinging to his fingers as if she meant never to let go. The eyes of Farmer Brown's Boy were round with amazement. He forget the pain of those claws and that tiny hooked bill. You see, this midget was not much bigger than Bully the English Sparrow, yet was a member of the Owl family, and a fully grown Owl at that. It was an Elf Owl, the smallest member of the Owl family. In fact, it was Mrs. Elf, and she had been sitting on eggs when Farmer Brown's Boy so rudely disturbed her.

Still clinging to his fingers he brought her down the ladder, then gently took her in his other hand and as gently release her hold on his fingers. "Phew!" he exclaimed as he shook that hand. "You are a plucky little lady. I guess it is a good thing for me that you are no bigger than you are. You've got more pluck than any of your big cousins I have ever met with. You wouldn't make a mouthful for your biggest cousin, Hooty the Great Horned Owl, yet I have climbed to Hooty's nest many a time and neither he nor Mrs. Hooty ever have seen me, to say nothing of attacking me. If they had half the pluck you have, you little bunch of nothing. I guess no one would meddle with them or their nest."

Now, of course, Mrs. Elf didn't understand a word of this. She was a spunky little midget. She may have been afraid. She probably was afraid. She didn't show it, however. She snapped her bill bravely and tried to look very fierce. She didn't like the glaring light, for Elf Owls are birds of the night and, unlike some of their cousins, are rarely seen in the daytime. But even so, she fluffed out her feathers and did her best to pretend that she was unafraid.

Cousin Tom and Farmer Brown's Boy looked her over carefully and then Farmer Brown's Boy opened his hand and let her go. She snapped her bill once or twice and then flew up to the hole in the cactus and popped in.

WOMEN SPONSOR JOINT MEETING

Two Women's Organizations of Cavan Church Hold Joint Session.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

CAVAN, May 13 (Examiner Correspondence).—On Thursday afternoon a joint meeting of the Cavan W.A. and W.M.S. was held. Mrs. J. E. Whithame had charge of the devotional period, Mrs. J. W. Perrin read the Scripture lesson, and Mrs. Snider led in prayer. Mrs. Richard Matchett, the president, took charge of the W.M.S. business routine. The treasurer announced that $18.60 had been the offering received at the special W.M.S.Sunday service.

Heralds who responded were, Miss F. Hunter, for "Missions in our own country," and Mrs. J. W. Perrin read an article on temperance. Mrs. R. Matchett and Mrs. F. M. Staples took up the assigned part of the Study Book on Japan. The roll call was responded to by a verse of Scripture with Jesus as the topic.

Mrs. D. J. Hunter conducted the W.A. session during which Mrs. Ray Syer read an interesting article by Mrs. Nina Moore Jamieson, on "Just Neighboring." There was discussion over suggestions concerning the raising of funds, and reports received from convenors of committees and officers, at the conclusion of which lunch was served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

Mother's Day Service.

On Sunday afternoon in Cavan United Church, "Mother's Day" was observed. The table before the altar was filled with beautiful and fragrant flowers; several bouquets being placed there for the service, by mothers who had received them as tributes from their children. The regular "Mother's Day" program was used. Mr. Boyle, superintendent, conducted the service. Miss Pearl Richards read a story, "The Cap that Mother Made." The Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, of Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, delivered an inspiring address on "The Mission of Women." By request he favored the congregation with a solo, sung in fine voice. As is the custom, the bouquet was presented to the oldest mother present. Little Miss Mary Richards presented the bouquet and Mrs. Robert Sutton was the recipient. There was, as is usual, when Mr. Sutcliffe speaks in Cavanville, a good attendance, who listened appreciatively to his beautiful message.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Price 50c a box

Heart and Nerves So Bad Was Unable To Sleep For Hours

Miss Theresa M. Bavary, Gallingarteown, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled, for almost a year, with my heart and nerves, especially on retiring at night when I would be unable to sleep for hours. I was easily fatigued, and became very excitable and irritable. A friend recommended Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and after taking them for a few weeks I could enjoy a good night's rest, and rapidly regained my former state of health."

Sold at all drug and general stores, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

Last Tribute Is Paid James Haverson, K.C.

TORONTO, Ont., May 13. (CP)—Civic officials, government heads, barristers, and business men assembled to-day to pay their last respects to the late James Haverson, K.C., who died suddenly Sunday in his 79th year.

Long before the service opened the funeral chapel was filled with friends of the deceased.

Warm tribute to the memory of the late counsel for the Licensed Victuallers' Association was paid by Rev. W. A. Cameron, pastor of York-Minister Baptist Church, who conducted the service.

Made in Canada

Forty Years on the Job..and "Hasn't Scratched Yet"

"Forty years" means back in the gay Nineties—"On the job"—means on millions and millions of jobs—in cottages and palaces—wherever people prefer their bathtubs and sinks sparkling clean.

"Hasn't Scratched Yet"—means just what it says. Bon Ami cleans, polishes, —but never scars and mars the porcelain that it makes so clean and gleaming. Never leaves gritty sediment in the bottom of tub or sink. Never roughens or reddens your hands.

Made in two handy forms—a snowy white Powder in a sifter-top can and a convenient, compact Cake. Both are utterly odorless. Sold at all grocery stores.

435-437 GEORGE ST. - PETERBORO

One day followed another with monotonous sameness for Korak, living with his elephant companions in the forest glade. But for Meriem—his Meriem—a whole new world seemed to unfold itself daily. She spoke English now instead of Arabic. She could read and write it together with French. Whole phrases of that language came easily to her out of some mysterious past. Today she thrilled over a new excitement that was about to happen.

Visitors were coming. A party of English and Americans had accepted Bwanas invitation to spend a month of hunting with him. Meriem was all expectancy, wondering what they would look like, until at last they arrived. The youngest member of the group was the Hon. Morison Baynes, bored with his riches and the pleasures offered by his social contacts. Nature had favored him with a splendid physique and a handsome face.

Meriem was first shy and reserved in the presence of the strangers. Her benefactors had seen fit to ignore mention of her strange past and merely presented her as their ward. The guests found her charming. She was vivacious, sweet and unassuming, and a never exhausted storehouse of quaint and interesting jungle lore. Morison Baynes was attracted to her from the first, especially as they were the only unmarried couple there.

And Meriem, entirely unaccustomed to the companionship of such as Baynes, was fascinated by him. They rode often together and his tales of the great gay cities with which he was familiar filled her with wonder and admiration. With the actual presence of the young Englishman the image of Korak became less real, almost a memory. To that memory she was loyal, but what weight has a memory in the presence of a fascinating reality?

TEST
your brakes free!

On this new Weaver Automatic Brake Tester
Properly equalized brakes—particularly if they are of the four wheel type—are essential for safe emergency stops. Unequalized braking pressure will cause your car to swerve and possibly get out of control—easily resulting in a serious accident.
Weaver Tester Immediately Shows Relative Braking Power
Make this test yourself. Drive on the Tester—it lies flat on the floor—and apply your foot brakes. The relative braking power on each of the four wheels is immediately shown by the rise of colored liquid in the four gauges in the pedestal head, positioned to correspond to the wheels. At once you see whether your brakes need adjustment.
This test is scientifically accurate—it takes only a moment—and it is FREE. Can you afford not to take it—today?

CLEAN-UP AT FIRE HALL

The interior of the Fire Station is beginning to look as bright and clean "as a new penny." For the past few days the firemen have tucked up their sleeves and have buckled down to a real spring cleaning, under the direction of the chief.

The floors have been scrubbed up and oiled. The tinted walls have been thoroughly washed down the radiators cleaned, and the ceiling re-kalsomined. Upstairs, the offices and sleeping quarters have undergone a similar clean-up, the white plaster walls giving the place the air of an hotel. Painting and retouching, repairing and reconstruction have also aided in putting the building in first class shape.

HELD FOR VAGRANCY

Believed to have been visiting a Chinese laundry here, two women were arrested to-day and charged before Magistrate Langley with vagrancy. They gave their names as Mrs. Mary Bell of Toronto, and Vera Nuhn of Kitcheger. Their answers to police as to their movements proved unsatisfactory and they were remanded until Friday.

POLICE RE-INSTATED

TORONTO, Ont., May 13.—Provincial Constables Young, Stewart and O'Connell, recently suspended following two motor accidents in the city, were to-day reinstated by Major-General Victor Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police, who states he has given the constables the benefit of the doubt following contradictory evidence as to their sobriety at the time of the accidents.

MAY MEETING X. L. CIRCLE

Miss Jessie Martin Has Charge of Interesting Program.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH.

The X L Mission Circle of St. James United Church, enjoyed the hospitality of Misses May and Pearl Welch, Princess street, when about thirty members gathered for the May meeting.

The program was in charge of the president, Miss Jessie Martin and provided a profitable and entertaining evening.

After the opening hymn "I gave my Life for Thee" and the 24th Psalm read by Elsie Althouse as the scripture lesson, all united in repeating the Lord's prayer.

The business session was quickly dealt with. This included the minutes of last meeting and a most encouraging report by the Treasurer.

"Fruits of Christian Missions in Japan," is proving a source of much helpful interest as a circle study this year. Miss Marjorie Baldry in handling the chapter, dealing with the social work and social engagements of the missionaries in Japan, gave a vivid picture of conditions both before and after the advent of Christianity.

Following so closely after Mother's Day and because of the near relationship of Mothers and missions a brief service was held in their honour, in an Edgar Guest poem "Mother's Way" read by Edith Smith, and a missionary reading in appreciation of the pioneer work of our mothers, was read by Mildred Fife. Prayers, honouring mothers of our own land, as well as those in lands of darkness, were offered by Connie Wagar and Marjorie Hogan.

The service was brought to a conclusion by singing "Faith of our Mothers" and the Mispah benediction.

A contest "The women of the Bible," was enjoyed during the social hour.

The hostesses for the evening, Misses May and Pearl Welch, Mrs. Sedgwick and Ceneva Sedgwick, provided a dainty repast.

A vote of thanks was tendered on behalf of the Circle by Marjorie Hogan to Mrs. Welch for the hospitality of her home.

Memorial Mass Is Sung For Late Father McGuire

The Memorial Mass that is termed in the Catholic Church the 'Month's Mind," was sung this morning for the late Rev. Peter McGuire, one of the pioneer priests of the province, who died here in April. It was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral by the rector, the Rev. P. Costello, with Rev. K. Corkery assisting as deacon and the Rev. Dr J. B. Masterson as sub deacon. His Lordship, Bishop O'Connor, sang the Libera, and was attended by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien and the Rev. C. Carroll. The Rev. J V. McAuley of Ennismore, was also present in the sanctuary.

It seems fitting that the Memorial Mass for the Rev. Father McGuire should be said on one of the days near the Graduation Exercises of St. Joseph's Hospital, as he was for several years past the popular and revered chaplain of the hospital. Many a weary sufferer was cheered and many a last hour made less gloomy by the presence of the kindly old priest who never missed making his rounds of the hospital wards, even when his own almost constant illness might have prevented him from doing his duty. But his pleasant Irish face and his genial Irish tongue were always to be heard and seen in the corridors and the sick rooms, where his brief visits were looked forward to by young and old. "Father Peter" will be sadly missed in the hospital for many years.

Seek To Establish Peterborough Airport

A company with J. H. Burnham as its local agent is seeking to locate an air-port near Peterborough, to be known as the "Peterborough Air-Mail Station."

Mr. Burnham is seeking permission from the City Council to call the air-port "Peterborough." His letter to this effect, which was referred to the Finance Committee, reads:—

"No company can call its property "The Peterborough Air-Mail Station" and the air-port itself "Peterborough" without the consent of the Council. I hereby make application for this privilege although I understand other companies may make application. I hope the city will step out of the way and leave the whole question of representing Peterborough in the air to a private company, but it cannot be done, I am advised, without the formal consent of the Council to that effect."

Lad Rescues Chum With Fishing Line

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., May 13.—(C. P.)—Eight-year-old Bernard Gange owes his life to the strength of his young pal's fishing line. Tuesday when Bernard and Dave Mishelly, 12, were fishing from a low pier at the Smith's Falls dam, the former lost his balance and fell into the water. One of his feet became entagled in Dave's stout line and although it took him some time, young Mishelly was finally able to pull his chum back to safety.

OBITUARY

MISS CECILIA COURNEYEA

TWEED, May 13. (Examiner Correspondence). — With deep regret many people in Tweed learned of the death of Miss Cecilia Courneyea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Courneyea, who died on Sunday morning, May 10 at Hotel Dieu, Kingston. She was in her twentieth year. Her courtesy and genial kindness won for her many friends who will greatly miss her.

The funeral took place from her late residence on Arthur street, Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Carthagha church where a requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Father O'Riordan then to St. Carthagha cemetery. The children of the Separate school marched in a body, also the young ladies of the Sodality of which she was a member.

ROBERT LACKIE WINS PROMOTION

Local Boy is Youngest Agent of Imperial Oil Company in Canada.

GOES TO KIRKFIELD.

In his appointment yesterday as representative at Kirkfield of the Imperial Oil Company, Bob Lackie becomes the youngest agent of the company in Canada. He has been assistant in the Imperial's Peterborough office for five years, having been engaged on the day following his completition of a commercial course under the tuition of John McKone of the Peterborough Business College.

Mr. Lackie is now nineteen years old and is married. The conjunction of three unassociated incidents suddenly coalescing introduced Mr. Lackie to the Imperial Oil Company. On the day his Business College studies ended, the company advertised in The Examiner for an office boy. And the third episode was Mr. Lackies perusal of the Want Ad page of The Examiner. Opportunity was tapping at the door for him, and he interviewed Arthur Blade at the Imperial office the next morning.

"Anything I can do for you", Mr. Blade asked the bright-eyed youngster.

"Yes sir, there is", he replied. "I want that job you advertised in The Examiner last night."

In the phraseology of salesmanship and the psychology of success young Lackie sold himself virtually upon the first impression his personality made.

Always On the Job

"In the five years he has been with us" said Mr. Blade. "Bob Lackie never slackened up once. Right up to the time he left us yesterday morning to go to Kirkfield he was on the job. Where some youths would probably have taken a chance on checking up invoices of gasoline and oil, or on some other detail of the work, Lackie never took anything for granted. And, if he had, there might have been some little excuse, for I have never found a mistake yet in the figures that came from our Sarnia office. He evidently had a good training at the Business College, and I feel confident in saying that he is the youngest man to be appointed an agent of the Imperial Oil Company in its entire service from coast to coast. There is every reason to believe that he will go far with our company."

CANADIAN ISLAND INSIDE U.A. AREA

Old Agreement Gives Canada Control of Machias Seal Island.

MACHIASPORT, Me., May 13—Machias Seal Island, twenty miles out in the Atlantic from Machias Bay, and the area surrounding it seems to be No Man's Water. Although it is within United States boundaries, the Island is Canadian controlled by virtue of a century-old agreement between England and the United States to the effect that if Canada would establish and maintain a lighthouse and fog signal on the Island she might use it under the British flag.

But the question arises, who controls the waters around Machias Seal Island? Machiasport lobstermen set their traps there and during the summer camp on the Island, which would seem to be contrary to the Canadian fishing laws that prohibit United States fishermen from operating within the three-mile limit.

On the other hand, lobstermen of Grand Manan Island, New Brunswick, also fish around Machias Seal Island, which would be contrary to United States laws in the event Canadian control did not extend to the fisheries. Grand Manan fishermen, it is said, operate around Machias Seal Island during closed seasons on lobsters in the vicinity of Grand Manan and Charlotte County waters.

However, the situation has failed to assume the aspect of a dispute and the present conditions will probably continue.

A similar situation exists in the St. Croix river. St. Croix Island, better known as Doucette Island, belongs to Canada, but the United States maintains a lighthouse there.

LONG PULL IN DORY AGAINST WIND AND SEA

OFF BROWN'S BANK

BOSTON, Mass., May 13. (CP)—The story of a day and a night at sea in a dory, astray from their vessel and off a rocky coast, was told recently by Stephen Powers, of St. Mary's Bay, Newfoundland, who with Prescott Locke, a Nova Scotian, and four other fishermen strayed from the vessel Mary E. O'Hara of Boston, on Easter Saturday morning. The other four were picked up that night by the New York-bound steamer Rosalind. Powers and Locke rowed and sailed fifty miles to Port Le Hebert, Shelburne County, N.S., reaching safety the next day.

"On Easter Saturday morning we left the Mary E. O'Hara to fish" Powers said. "The wind at the time was increasing, and by the time we got our trawl out the weather didn't look a bit too good. The fog thickened, and a heavy sea was running. Our hope was to get aboard our vessel as quickly as possible, but the chances looked slim.

"When we got our trawl in, I said to my dory mate: 'We could run down northeast and if we didn't make the schooner we could swing for the land.'

"So we put up the sail and kept off before the sea, as it was very rough, and we had to handle the dory with great care. It seemed as though we were in for a very uncomfortable night, as we had both been soaked by heavy showers earlier in the day. After we had been running half an hour we heard a bugle—and soon found it came from two more dories from our own vessel, also astray—we decided to make for the Nova Scotian coast."

"We were then fifty miles from land" the narrative continues, "but the wind was free. We had a larger sail than the other dories, and gained on them. Night was coming down which would make it harder for us to keep in touch with each other."

Then the fog lightened and Powers and Locke saw a steamer's lights. But they were far off her track, though they soon realized their comrades were safe on board, as she stopped and swept the sea by searchlight. It was then twelve o'clock on Easter Saturday night and Powers' remarks that "my thoughts turned to my old home in Regina, St. Mary's Bay, where my mother used to have our Easter eggs for us, and I thought if we could get anything we would be lucky.

An hour after the steamer disappeared the men took a compass reading, and because the wind had veered, had to resort to the oars. After a time a light was sighted, a long way to windward, and soon afterward daylight came. For some hours the men had been doing little more than holding their own.

"As dawn broke and daylight approached, we were looking anxiously for the shore. We calculated it was then about eighteen miles away. The wind was dead against us, but we kept on going, and as we got in closer found the coast very rough. At last we found a suitable place to land....the dory was considerably damaged as we struck the hard sand.

"Nearby were some houses and we waited for some of the occupants to see and assist us, as our legs were numbed and we were unable to make much of a hand at walking for a while."

Help was at hand. Men came running down the beach. Within an hour the refugees from the sea were fed and in bed, and later went to the home of Locke's mother, forty miles away. Powers rejoined the Mary E. O'Hara at Shelburne for the trip to his Everett, Mass., home and Locke remained ashore to recuperate from their long struggle to reach land.

SPANS GOING UP OVER MOOSE RIVER

T. N. O. Chairman Expects Trains to be Crossing by June.

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 13. (CP) Four spans of the mammoth steel bridge that will carry the rails of the T.N.O. extension to James Bay over the Moose River are in place to-day. George W. Lee, Chairman of T.N.O. Railway Commission announced. The other spans will be placed at the rate of four every seven days and by June trains will be running over the 1500 foot bridge. The laying of steel from the east side of the river to Moose Factory, the seaboard terminal, will follow as quickly as track laying equipment can be moved over the bridge.

It is expected that the railhead will reach Moose Factory by August 15.

Questioned on the plans for the erection of a hotel at Moose Factory, Mr. Lee stated that nothing definite could be given out as yet, but added that a definite pronouncement would be made during the latter part of the present month.

Eight-Year Old Boy Drowned in Crow River

TWO SMALL BOYS ON FISHING TRIP YOUNGER TRIPPED

Donald Dougall Drowned in Crow River Near Marmora Last Night.

CARRIED DOWN STREAM.

Search Made For Body But It Has Not Yet Been Recovered.

MARMORA, May 14.—(Special to The Examiner).—Stumbling off the breakwater wall of the dam at the old Pearce lumber mill, Donald Dougall, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dougall of this village, was drowned in the Crow River about six o'clock Wednesday evening. The body had not been recovered at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon.

Accompanied by his brother John, who is ten years old, Donald had left home to go fishing. They were walking along the top of the cement wall east of the dam when by some unaccountable accident the younger boy slipped and fell into the river. He was carried down the slide through the turbulent, rumbling water, and swept into the quieter eddies where the body disappeared. Several boats were put out from the shore at that point almost immediately, and the search for the body was continued until nearly midnight by many of the men who dragged the river. Night closed on the tragedy and the grief of the stricken parents who were overcome by the shock of their boy's drowning. It was stated that a man on the shore near the dam tried to reach the little lad as he was carried down stream, but was unable to snatch him from the swift water.

Constable Grey has taken charge of the fatality and every effort has been used to recover the body.

BEOTHIC TO FILL SUPPLY CACHES

Sturdy Steamer Starts End of July For Trip Into Arctic Waters.

FOOD FOR POLICE PATROLS.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14.— When the sturdy steamer Beothic, veteran of the Arctic waters, makes her annual expedition this summer, she will carry provisions for the setting up of two new supply caches in Canada's northern outposts. The caches are used for stopping places for police patrols and other travellers in the Arctic. Staple foodstuffs and material for repairing travelling outfits are included in the stores.

The itinerary for the Beothic's jaunt into the Eastern Arctic archipelago, announced to-day from the Department of Interior, disclosed that the new caches will be established at Beechley Island, southwest of Devon Island, and at Cape Cockburn, south-west of Bathurst Island. The supply bases will be about 200 miles apart and together with existing caches at Dundas and Winter harbors will form a chain of bases along Lancaster Sound and Barrow Strait.

The Beothic will again be under Captain E. Falk when it sets out from Sydney, N.S., about the end of July. Godhaven, in Greenland, will be the first port of call.

Gas Fumes In Garage Trap Toronto Autoist

TORONTO, Ont., May 14 (C.P.).—Newton H. Conley, 62, was found dead this afternoon, sitting in his automobile in the garage at the rear of his home. The doors of the garage were shut but not fastened, the engine of the car was running, and the garage was filled with carbon monoxide fumes. After investigating, Coroner Dr. G. W. Clendenan released the body for burial, attributing death to carbon monoxide poisoning.

Police believe the doors of the garage blew shut while Conley was working on the car, and the fact that he was not in good health prevented his reacting against the fumes.

She died yesterday and hospital physicians said they knew of not more than a dozen similar cases in medical history. They said they would attempt to isolate the germ which caused the infection.

NO NEW AIRSHIPS ARE TO BE BUILT BY GREAT BRITAIN

R-100 Will Be Kept as an Experimental Ship MacDonald Tells Commons.

CANADA'S OPINION ASKED.

Cardington Plant, Mooring Masts at Montreal Karachi to be Maintained.

LONDON, May 14 (Canadian and Associated Press Cables). — Premier Ramsay MacDonald told the House of Commons to-day in an announcement of Government airship policy that Great Britain will not build any new airships for the present, but will retain the R-100 without alterations as an "experimental airship."

The plant at Cardington will be maintained, however, the Premier said, and the mooring masts at Montreal, Karachi, and Ismallia will be kept in repair subject to the assent of the Canadian Government, which has not yet replied to communications concerning the proposal, and the co-operation of the Government in India.

British airships, the Prime Minister said, had so far neither proved a failure nor had they achieved assured success.

Possible alternatives to new construction were, first, scrapping everything; second, reducing the airship equipment and preparations, and activity to the point where they would be more in the nature of a scientific investigation than anything else.

Favor Second Plan.

The Government believed the second alternative should be adopted, he continued. Thus the R-100 would be retained as an experimental airship. She would not be altered and no new bay would be fitted, as in the case of the ill-fated R-101. Neither would the R-100 carry out any spectacular flights. The Cardington plant would be maintained and so would be the Imperial mooring masts.

PRIME MINISTER IS OPPOSED TO CENTRAL BANK

U. F. A. Motion is Talked Out in the House of Commons.

U. S. FAILURES.

Canadian Banking System Ably Defended By Premier Bennett.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14. (CP)—Conflicting views on the efficiency of the Canadian banking system were expressed in the House of Commons yesterday. No reason exists for a change at the present time; the system is adequate to the needs of the country declared Premier R. B. Bennett, Minister of Finance. This view did not meet the opinions of G. G. Coote, U.F.A. member for McLeod, Alta., who moved a resolution which would place the house in favor of the establishment of a nationally-owned central bank. E. J. Garland and H. E. Spencer, two other members of the third party group, gave their support to the resolution claiming a central bank would make credits easier and would add general supervision to the banks.

The resolution was "talked out" and while it remains on the order paper, it may not be reached again this session. The house to-day proceeded with a government resolution which would create a new tariff board.

The two central characters in the banking discussion yesterday knew the subject from personal experiences. Premier Bennett at one time was a director of one of the large banks while Mr. Coote was an employee of a bank earlier in life.

The Canadian banking system, the Premier asserted embraced the essential requirements to make it successful. It provided a safe repository for the savings of Canadians and also furnished adequate facilities for borrowing. In comparison with banking history in United States, Canada had been "singularly fortunate." During 1930, 1,345 United States banks suspended payment and in January of this year, 197 others were added to that total.

"During the nine-year period between 1921 and 1930 inclusive, a total of 5,642 banks suspended payment in the United States, involving deposits amounting to more than $1,700,000,000," added Mr. Bennett.

Adequate credit was provided under the Canadian system, the Premier declared. He could see no reason why a central bank should be established when the present system was functioning in the best interests of the country.

High Rates of Interest.

High rates of interest permitted under the present system were responsible in a marked degree for present depressed conditions, declared Mr. Garland. There was need for an

GIBRALTAR IS A GREAT FORTRESS BUT IS ONLY A ONE-HORSE TOWN

About 35,000 Population—No Movies, Street Cars, Busses or Taxis.

LOCK UP AT 10 BELLS.

By GORDON A. SINCLAIR

GIBRALTAR, April 12.—(Special to The Examiner. Copyright, 1931).—If you can picture a city as big as Guelph, Ontario, without a station or a railway train, without a bus or a bus depot, without a water system, movie, factory, car, dance hall or concert place; if you can picture a city of from 25,000 to 35,000 without one single residence worthy of the name, with only two restaurants and three churches, you catch a glimpse of Gibraltar. It is a fort and nothing but a fort.

The "Sleeping Lion" which commands two continents and two seas might be the greatest fortress in all the world. It might be a strategic location for armies and navies, and all that, but as a place to live in Gibraltar is just about as useful and interesting as my opinion on the Einstein theory. No wonder the lion sleeps. How could he help it? The visitor who spent a week in Edinburgh one Sunday should drop around here some time. Ten hours between breakfast and lunch about

Disastrous Blaze Hits Small Town

TOKYO, May 14.—(CP)—One person was burned to death. Twenty were seriously injured and 30 slightly injured in a vast fire at Shirane, Machi, about 150 miles north of Tokyo last night.

The fire, which did damage estimated at 1,500,000 yen ($750,000) was believed due to incendiarism. It destroyed more than 500 buildings including the town bank, the town hall, postoffice, theatre and temple before it was brought under control.

LORD SALVESEN SCORES ENGLAND'S MARRIAGE LAW

LONDON, May 14.—(C. P. Cable)—"On the question of marriage reform England is perhaps the most priest-ridden of all the states in Europe," declared Lord Salvesen, veteran Scottish jurist, today.

"It is the clergy of her state church who have proved the chief obstacle to reform. It is intolerable that a section of the church which draws its revenues from the state and is subject to its jurisdiction in ecclesiastical matters should refuse to marry couples to whose union there is no legal impediment."

Lord Salvesen is a member of the judicial committee of the privy council and a former solicitor-general for Scotland.

BIG GAME HUNTER KILLED IN CRASH

Denys FinchHatton Escorted Prince of Wales on Trip in Africa Last Year.

PLANE FALLS AT VOI.

NAIROBI, Kenya, Africa, May 14. —(AP)—Denys Finch-Hatton, son of the Earl of Winchilsea and Nottingham, was killed in an aeroplane accident today at Voi while flying from Mombasa to Nairobi.

He was a prominent big game hunter and escorted the Prince of Wales on a hunting expedition last year.

Denys George Finch-Hatton was 44 years of age. He was the second son of Henry Stormont Finch-Hatton, 13th Earl of Winchilsea and Nottingham, and on the death of the 13th Earl the title fell to the elder brother of Denys George, Guy Montague, in 1927.

Serving during the Great War from 1915, Denys George Finch-Hatton was awarded the Military Cross and mentioned in despatches. He was a temporary Captain with the East African Protectorate force.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO MINING MARKET.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14 (C.P.).—Softness of the mining list was accentuated in the afternoon to-day, with all but a few changes on end taking the form of net losses. Though trading appeared listless throughout, volume was up for the day, total sales of 428,597 shares comparing with 374,172 yesterday.

International Nickel, establishing a new low of $13.50 and closing around that level for a loss of about three-quarters, adversely affected the tone of the list. Noranda dropping a like amount to $23.25, and Sherritt Gordon 5 to 75.

Wright-Hargreaves dropped below $5 for a loss of 8 under persistent selling. Teck Hughes lost 10 and McIntyre was down a half. Kirkland Lake gold moved against the trend to close up 5, but Premier was off 3, Tashota 4, St. Anthony a couple and Gem Lake a point.

In the oil section Chemical Research dropped 15 to $2.90, Sarnia Oil 8 to 50, and East Crest and Meriand a couple apiece. Acme Gas was steady around 22 and rights were fairly briskly traded at 7-8ths.

Fair Weather for Kentucky Racing

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13. — The thousands who elbow their way into Churchill Downs for the Kentucky Derby next Saturday need have no fear of rainy weather, if the weather man is correct.

The Derby long has been the occasion for breaking out new Spring clothes, but during the past few years rainstorms have drenched the track during the day of days for racing folk.

In a special forecast made by the weather bureau here to-day the prognosticator said the day will be fair and warm.

TWO IN PRISON DOOMED TO DIE

Brockenshire Maintains Long Silence as He is Placed in Death Cell.

STEINBERG, COMPANION.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14. (CP)—Maintaining the silence which he held throughout his six day murder trial, John Brockenshire, of Windsor Ont., convicted yesterday on a charge of murder and sentenced to be hanged August 14, spent his first night in the death cell at the local jail and according to reports from the institution to-day, the slayer of Constable Roy McQuillin here last December, slept soundly.

With Brockenshire facing a death sentence there are now two men under the penalty of death in the local jail, and both are under a 24-hour guard in separate death cells.

Abraham Steinberg, monument contractor, whose conviction for shooting his nephew, Sam Goldberg, last year, is to be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada at Ottawa within a few weeks, is under guard in the regular death cell.

Despite the fate facing him Brockenshire, on his arrival at the jail last night, made no comment, Deputy Governor Harry Denning, now in charge of the jail administration, said.

Not since 1921 have two men been under the death penalty in the local jail, when the two were executed for the shooting of a local druggist.

OFFICIAL ARRESTED

AUBURN, Me., May 14—Seth May, Maine Federal prohibition director, announced to-day that Robert O'Shaughnessy, Canadian Immigration official, was arrested in Danforth last night charged with selling and unlawfully possessing liquor. May said O'Shaughnessy while wearing his uniform, had sold a quart of liquor to a Federal prohibition agent.

Harry Byers, Danforth grocer, was arrested for unlawful possession and taken with O'Shaughnessy to Bangor, for arraignment this afternoon.

EXPLORER BURIED FOR TWO MONTHS UNDER BIG DRIFT

Courtauld Trapped in Igloo By Blizzard, Spends Time Sleeping and Thinking.

HAD LEFT SHOVEL OUTSIDE.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, May 14. — A story of being buried two months beneath ice and snow in an igloo was told here to-day by Augustine Courtauld. The British scientist, who was rescued last week by fellow-member osf the British Arctic Air Route Expedition, had only a chimney way to provide air in his place of refuge on the Greenland ice cap.

Courtauld, whom Captain Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish aviator, brought here with H. G. Watkins, chief of the rescue party, from their inland base, was unshaven and unrecognizable beneath a long growth of beard, and appeared somewhat the worse for a long enforced diet of seal meat.

Toiled for Weeks.

Watkins said that his rescue party had toiled for many weeks over the ice crags toward the locality where at the winter's beginning they had left Courtauld to observe weather conditions. They frequently lost the trail and near the place they reckoned Courtauld to have been left were delayed for days when the skies clouded up and they could not ascertain their position.

In searching a wide ice field they found an enormous drift, covered with a thick layer of ice which they of once concluded must have been Courtauld's igloo. At the top of the snowmound, which rose above the surrounding acres of frozen snow the weary party found a small hole which was the only opening in the surrounding deset and which they concluded must be the igloo's chimney.

They shouted down into it, hoping their comrade was safe below, and heard in reply an unexcited: "Hello. All right," which relieved their doubts and assured them that the imprisoned man was very much alive. They went to work with spades and within fifteen minutes had dug down and reached Courtauld.

Buried Two Months

Courtauld said that two months before a blizzard had raged for several days completely covering the igloo. It was out of the question to try to dig himself out, first because the snow would have fallen in on him and then because he had left his only shovel outside before the blizzard began. Part of his supplies also were outside.

There was no opening to the outside world from the murky igloo except by the chimney, which he had to keep open and provide him with air. For a month he was without a permanent light and depended for an occasional glimmer upon a little gasoline lamp which he used to melt snow to obtain drinking water.

He said that h. spent most of his dreary time in his sleeping bag, dozing and thinking, telling himself to keep his courage up.

Ten Slain 86 Hurt In Mob

5,000 MEN IN FRAY.

Unofficial Figures Place Dead Over Score—Check-up Impossible.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 14 (C. P.). — Ten men were reported killed and 86 injured to-day when striking railway shop workmen fought with police in the streets. Two of the injured were British engineers.

Unofficial estimates placed the number of dead at more than a score, but there was no opportunity to check these figures for the riots spread from the railway shops to other sections of the city, and the Government was considering calling out the troops.

The strikers, numbering between 4,000 and 5,000 became disorderly last night and police surrounded the workshops, but were kept at a distance when the men in the buildings played streams from fire hose upon them.

3 Britishers Die

Three British police constables were reported killed in the fighting this morning. Train service has been seriously disorganized.

Polling in the general elections began this morning, but up to noon there was no disorder in connection with the vote.

Disorders broke out later in the day near centre of the town where mobs attacked and burned trolley cars and busses. In other sections workmen pulled down lampposts and threw them across the streets to block traffic. There were disturbances also near the main railway station.

The Government nevertheless reported the situation under control, although they were considering sending troops to the railroad workshops.

Lunghino Acquitted Grand Larceny Count

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 15. (CP)—Joseph J. Lunghino, founder and former president of the Commercial Trust Company of Buffalo, to-day was acquitted of a charge of grand larcency, first degree, by a county court jury which had been out since yesterday afternoon. Lunghino was accused of misappropriating more than $50,000 of bank funds by means of unauthorized sight drafts. He was tried on an indictment which charged specifically that he issued such a draft against Samuel J. Dark of Buffalo for $12 800.

The former bank president insisted that the draft was issued to cover the purchase of 100 shares of commercial stock, which he said Dark had agreed to buy from him at $128 a share.

BEDARD MILLS DESTROYED

BEDARD, Que., May 14 (C.P.)—The J. A. Bedard saw mill, along with about 500,000 feet of lumber and 150 cords of slabs, were destroyed by fire last night. The loss, estimated at about $40,000 was partially covered by insurance.

NATIONAL LIBERAL FEDERATION MOVES IN FAVOR OF FREE TRADE

Amendment Added Repudiating All Advocacy of Revenue Tariffs, Import Boards.

QUOTAS EXCEPTED.

BUXTON, Derbyshire, May 14 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent).—Following in the footsteps of the Liberal women, the annual conference of the National Liberal Federation to-day declared for Free Trade. And to the main resolution on Free Trade the conference unanimously added a sweeping amendment which repudiates all advocacy of revenue tariffs, safeguarding duties, commodity and import boards.

Only by the chairman's ruling were quota schemes excepted from the amended resolution's general condemnation of all forms of Protection.

"Why not add quotas?" protested a voice from the platform, as Audrey Herbert moved the amendment.

"The amendment was drafted in a hurry and I forgot quotas," Mr. Herbert replied, as he sought to have the words added.

But the chairman ruled that the terms of the amendment must stand as submitted in written form, so that

E. BENJAMIN DIES IN QUEBEC TOWN

Settled as Boy in Belleville and Later Founded Newspaper "Intelligencer."

JOINED CIVIL SERVICE.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14 (C.P.) — Emmanuel Hyman Benjamin, who founded The Intelligencer newspaper at Belleville, Ont., and was among the original civil servants who came to Ottawa from Quebec in 1865, is dead in his 99th year. Word just received here told of his death of Norway Bay, Que., last Tuesday, following a stroke.

Born in New Orleans, La., of English parents, E. H. Benjamin was still a boy when his family settled at Belleville. After successfully conducting his newspaper for some time, he moved to Toronto and in 1857 entered the Post Office Department of the Government of Upper Canada. Three years later, when the seat of government was transferred from the Queen City to Quebec, he went along as a civil servant. He was one of the 35 employees constituting the Postal Department who came to Ottawa with the Government in 1865.

No Author's Rights Recognized In Russia

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 14.—The McGraw-Hill Book Company, making public a letter from Amtorg, the Soviet trading corporation, revealed to-day that authors have no protection against wholesale piracy of their books by Soviet Russia.

Officials of the book company said many of their publications delaing with technical and engineering problems had been translated into Russian without permission. The Amtorg Corporation, which took up the matter, sent the following letter to the McGraw-Hill Company.

"Soviet publishing organizations state, that to their regret they cannot understate to compensate the authors in question since Soviet law recognizes authors' rights on works which have appeared abroad only in case of the existence of a special arrangement between the country involved and the Union of the Soviet Social Republics.

BROCKENSHIRE TO HANG ON AUGUST 14

COMPANION, CLARKSON ACQUITTED OF JOINT RESPONSIBILITY IN CRIME RE-ARRESTED ON LESSER COUNTS

Jury Deliberate Five Hours and Sentence is Pronounced Immediately.

APPEAL PROBABLE.

Counsel For Doomed Man Asks Long Interval Before Execution.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14—(C.P.)—Following almost five hours' deliberation an assize court jury last night found John Brockenshire, 20 - year - old Windsor youth, guilty of the slaying of Police Constable Roy McQuillin. He was immediately sentenced by Mr. Justice Wright to be hanged at Toronto jail on August 14.

Five months ago Brockenshire, accompanied by Harry Clarkson, 21, Windsor, led McQuillin and another constable a merry chase in a stolen automobile through the northwestern section of the city. When the officers overhauled the fleeing machine McQuillin stepped over to question the youths. During the subsequent discussion Brockenshire is alleged to have suddenly whipped out a revolver and fired three bullets into the constable's body. The latter died almost immediately.

Man Hunt

Brockenshire and Clarkson then took to the open country. One of the greatest manhunts in the history of the local police department followed and Clarkson was quickly apprehended. Brockenshire eluded capture for nearly 24 hours before a bullet from a police revolver brought him to earth.

At first his life was despaired of, but after several operations he commenced to rally and two weeks ago was pronounced fit to stand trial. Defence Counsel relied mainly on testimony of alienists that he was suffering from a peculiar form of insanity at the time of the shooting.

Brockenshire calmly accepted his sentence last night. Clarkson, however, was dazed by the fate which had befallen his companion, even though the jury had found him not guilty of joint responsibility for the killing.

In Court Today

Today Clarkson appears in court to face charges of breaking and entering, theft of an automobile and carrying concealed weapons.

That there is a possibility of Brockenshire's sentence being appealed was indicated when his counsel asked the date of the execution be set sufficiently far ahead to permit a possible appeal to be prepared as well as give the prisoner to make ready for his end.

ALFONSOS FUNDS ARE CONFISCATED BY SPANISH GOV'T

Bank Takes Charge of All Personal Property Till Disposal is Arranged.

CLAIM OFFICE MISUSED.

Governors in Many Cities Charged With Laxity as Result of Disorders.

(By Clarence Dubose, Associated Press Staff Correspondent)

MADRID, May 14. (AP) — The banks of Spain were ordered by the Republican Government to-day to turn over to the Minister of Finance, Indalecio Prieto, all funds credited to Alfonso de Bourbon, the deposed king who at present is in exile in Paris.

The Banco D'Espana was empowered to take charge temporarily of all personal property of the former Monarch and to create a special account for accruing rents until the forthcoming constitutional convention decides what to do with the money.

Consuls Asked to Report

Consuls and representatives of the republic abroad were ordered to make a report on Alfonso's investments and properties in other countries, the Government decree charging that Alfronso had not been King since 1923, when he permitted General Primo de Rivera to become dictator, and that he had misused his royal office for his personal enrichment.

Simultaneously the government announced that full authority to check disorders which have culminated in the burning of scores of churches and church buildings, had been given to Miguel Maura, Minister of Interior. Maura immediately demanded resignations of the Governors at Alicante, Cadiz, Cordova, and Malaga, charging them with laxity in repressing disorders, and announced that he was prepared to declare martial law throughout Spain. A number of police officials were relieved of their posts, charged with laxity.

The entire Province of Andalusia was put under the rule of troops.

The Attorney General, Angel Galerza, who Tuesday announced that indictments would be sought against Alfonso and other Monarchists charging them with plotting the anti-church disorders be sought, was appointed Director General of Public Safety in Madrid.

Cardinal Over Frontier

Cardinal Seguray Saenz, Primate of Spain, passed the Spanish frontier at Hendaye into France, presumably enroute to Rome to make a report to the Pontiff on disorders. He was accompanied by his brother Canon of the Cathedral at Toledo, and appeared worried and harrassed by the recent disturbances.

Republicans generally blame a recent pastoral of the Cardinal calling upon Roman Catholics to elect deputies for the approaching constitutional convention who would defend their faith, for the outbreaks against the churches.

DOUMER WORKED HARD AS YOUTH

QUIT SCHOOL AT 14.

AURILLAC, Department of Cantal, France, May 14 (C.P.). — Paul Doumer's home town in this rocky, central mountainous region of France to-day celebrated election of their favorite son to the Presidency feelingly but none the less frugally.

Old timers here recalled to-day how the father of the President-elect worked for forty cents a day as foreman of a railroad, and how the widowed mother, after the family's removal to Paris, struggled valiantly to support her two children, doing part-time housework at two sous per hour.

"Litle Paul" quit school at fourteen, learned commercial engraving, and became the mainstay of the family at ten dollars a month wages. Later, by attending the night school he became an instructor in mathematics, and finally passed the bar examination and entered politics.

Friends of the family to-day also recalled his courtship of Mademoiselle Richel, lengthened by poverty into many long months of waiting before marriage. He used to hike sixteen miles to a railroad station in order to call on her in Paris over the week-ends.

EXPECT BRIAND TO RESIGN POST AFTER DEFEAT

Veteran of Foreign Office Leaves To-day For Session on Pet Scheme at Geneva.

PRESS HAILS DOUMER.

Foreign Writer Claims Loss of Briand From Office Will Be Big Blow.

PARIS, May 14 (A.P.)—Aristide Briand, veteran of the Foreign Office, in defeat to-day was more in the French eye than Paul Doumer, elected President of France by the National Assembly on the second ballot at Versailles last evening. The vote was 504 for Doumer against 334 for Senator Pierre Maraud, in which favor Briand had withdrawn.

Dejected, his shoulders hunched and his inevitable hand-made cigarette drooping from his mouth, Briand twice cast votes against Doumer, candidate of the Nationalistic Right, aware that associates he had thought his friends had repudiated him and the policies of international conciliation which he fathered.

To-day there was wiespread expectation that he would offer his resignation as Foreign Minister, a post which he has held almost without interruption for seven years, and would retire into the comparative obscurity which attended his predecessors in similar defeat, Georges Clemenceau and Paul Painleve.

Leaves for Geneva

His departure to-day for Geneva, it was believed, would be only to preside at the inaugural meeting of the committee on his pet Confederation of Europe, whereafter he would resign his place probably to Premier Laval, who is expected to follow him in the Foreign Office.

Premier Laval's attitude, and that of others of the Cabinet, toward M. Briand's quitting, it was understood, was that the Presidential vote in no way affected French foreign policy, which has been frequently ratified by Parliament.

The Parisian press to-day generally rejoiced at the selection of M. Doumer, who has been President of the Senate, as a man qualified in every detail to fill the high office in accordance with the best tradition. There were a few exceptions, such as the Socialist organ, Populaire, which called him the candidate of reaction and treachery.

Writers generally expressed aympathy with the tragic fate of Briand, and even his critics were temperate in their comment. Pertinax in Echo De Paris remarked that mixed with considerations of local politics through his defeat might be, it demonstrated the falling off in his prestige and authority and weakening of the confidence accorded him.

The new President-elect's first act after his election was to proceed

EUROPEAN UNION FACING TROUBLE

Soviet Russia and Austro-German Customs Union Be in Spotlight.

SESSION OPENS FRIDAY.

GENEVA, May 14 (C.P.). — A stormy session with Soviet Russia and the Austro-German Customs Union in the spotlight is forecast for the Commission on European Union which resumes its work here to-morrow.

It was only after four days' hot debate that the European body asked the Soviets to join it, and then only for studying factors in the European economic situation. Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Foreign Minister, in replying, cast some aspersions upon the spirit of the commission, and announced:

The Soviet Government has decided to take part in the forthcoming proceedings of the commission.

A European union, said Mr. Litvinoff, could hardly exclude Russia.

The Austro-German Customs Union will be introduced by Dr. Julius Curtius, German Foreign Minister. This disturbing question will be considered by the League of Nations Council next week.

The German spokesman will doubtless defend in detail his thesis that the proposed customs agreement is a legitimate development of the move for regional tariff pacts as a prelude to general tariff reductions. He probably will attempt to allay French fears and to show that a political union of the two Germanic states is not foreshadowed.

Much speculation prevails as to the attitude of the French Government before the European Commission. It may take this chance to explain its apprehensions, or it may withhold its hand until the matter is formally before the League Council a few days later.

FIRES SWEEPING ACROSS ALBERTA

Fighters Helpless as Flames Rage Unchecked Through Bush Lands.

COCHRANE THREATENED.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 14 (C.P.). —Fire has the wooded sections of Alberta in its grip to-day. The flaming menace is razing bush and forest, and heavy rains are necessary to stem its onward march.

Between Lac La Biche and Pelican Lake, 100 miles north-west of Edmonton, flames are eating up forest and bush country rapidly. Firefighters are helpless before the onrushing flames. The conflagrations have destroyed homesteaders' dwellings and outbuildings. Railway bridges are threatened.

Three great fires are burning in the Spirit River territory, where valuable timber is falling prey to the scourge. In the Grand Prairie section the fires are gaining ground at an alarming rate. In Southern Alberta, 150 men are battling a huge inferno near the town of Cochrane.

U. S. DOUBTS IF CANADA WILL ACT ON WATERWAY BEFORE ELECTIONS

Move Can Be Taken Until Word is Received From Ottawa.

Ready To Name Commission.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 14 (By Ken Clark, C.P. Staff Correspondent) —While the United States is awaiting a reply to its note of last September on the St. Lawrence waterway, Washington is becoming apprehensive as to whether Canada will act in time to make certain of some accomplishment before the doubtful issues of the presidential elections in 1932 is joined.

The point is, Senate ratification is necessary to any treaty made by the United States. Observers believe that a treaty dealing with the St. Lawrence which did not mention the Chicago diversion, could be got through the Senate as at present constituted, with little difficulty. However, in view of the certain uncertainty of the presidential year in Washington, it is considered not very probable a treaty would be ratified by the Senate unless it reach Capitol Hill before February next. One of the national political conventions will be held in June, 1932, and Congress will be anxious to adjourn early in the year.

Present Situation

The position at present is this: the United States can make no further move until it receives a note from Ottawa. If the Canadian reply should prove favorable to proceeding with as little delay as possible Washington is prepared to move for the appointment of a commission consisting of either six or ten members. Henry J. Allen, chairman of the St. Lawrence Tidewater Association would almost certainly be named as head of the United States section of the commission. It is understood former Secreary of State Frank B. Kellogg would not be a member of the commission. Members of both parties, Republican and Democratic, would probably be appointed to make sure of strong support in the Senate.

Most treaty commissioners of recent years have had six members but it is suggested here the breadth of interest involved in the St. Lawrence might justify a larger body. For example, the United States section might consist of Mr. Allen, a Republican and a Democrat, an engineering expert, and a representative of New York State.

Plan Flower Show For This District

Representatives of Horticultural Societies of this district outlined plans at a meeting in the Public Library auditorium here Wednesday afternoon for a flower show to be held at Bowmanville toward the end of June. The competition will be in roses, peonies and Irises.

The Horticultural Societies of Lindsay, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Campbellford and Peterborough sent delegates to this meeting. J. H. H. Jury of Bowmanville presided, and S. T. Harris of this city was secretary. Mr. Jury said he would go to Toronto today, and ask the government for permission to hold the flower show at the Boys' Training School.

It will be open to all members of Horticultural Societies in the province. Arrangements for the display of the flowers were discussed and general details were decided.

The Campbellford Horticultural Society was represented by J. P. Archer, Mrs. Hilliard Jones, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hammond, L. A. Burbank, Mrs. Neil Thompson, Mrs. David Mitchell and Mrs. C. Ackerman; and among those from Lindsay were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hussey and T. J. Tilly.

G. E. Carr, director of the horticultural department of the Boys' Training School, Bowmanville, was also present.

PARKING OF CARS ON MARKET SQUARE

Police Ask That All Motorists Face Their Automobiles South.

The general rule that all automobiles parked on the market square shall face south, especially at night when this space is often entirely occupied, is proposed by Inspector Reid of the police department as a uniform and orderly arrangement for the convenience of the public.

This practice will prevent cars facing easterly toward the Water street sidewalk thereby causing pockets from which cars cannot be moved until nearby cars blocking them are backed out. Inspector Reid states that an officer will be in charge of parking on Saturday nights and motorists are advised to obtain their places from him if they have any doubt as to where they should go.

The new rule which will be follfirst line of cars to face south against the Charlotte street sidewalk. A lane of twenty feet will be left clear behind that front row, and then a double row, both facing south, will be lined up. This system will also apply on the north side of the centre sidewalk that crosses the market. By the double row plan, the cars in front can easily swing out, and the cars in the rear can back out into the lane that will be left behind them.

Inspector Reid requests the motorists to co-operate with the police in their effort to making parking on the market convenient, and with easy movement of the cars entering and leaving.

CATHOLIC CLERGY MEETING AT TWEED

Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston in Charge of Conference.

TWEED, May 14.—(Examiner Correspondence)—A conference of Catholic clergy which is held in every diocese in the world, met here on Monday, when The Most Rev. M. J O'Brien, Archbishop of Kingston was present, together with the priests and deaneries of Tweed and Trenton.

Their purpose is the constant study of the sacred sciences such as theology, the sacred scriptures, church history and kindred sciences for the clergymen's own benefit and the spiritual and temporal welfare of their people.

The deliberations were presided over by the Very Dean of Tweed, in the Sodality Hall. After the agenda was concluded, a resolution of sympathy was passed which the Archbishop conveyed in his own name and that of his priests to the afflicted Mr. and Mrs. Rashotte and family.

Loss Greatly Felt.

Geneva dispatches, commenting upon defeat of Aristide Briand for the French presidency, indicated a hope that he would continue in the Foreign Office where his efforts in behalf of the League of Nations and world peace would still be felt.

Berlin newspapers generally regretted his defeat, and the Tageblatt commented: May 13 must now be reckoned as a black day for Frenoh politics. Vossiche Zeitung declared that his defeat was caused by petty parliamentarians distrustful of a man of his calibre, who is rare in post war Europe.

There is no one in Europe to succeed him, the Zeitung added. Should he make good his word and resign as Foreign Minister the loss would be irreparable and not to France alone.

TWEED, May 14—(Examiner Correspondence)—On Saturday afternoon the members of the Mission Band of the United Church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Drinkwater.

The afternoon was spent in hearing stories of Japan, playing games and having a social time together. Before leaving for their respective homes, the litle folks were served cake and taffy.

Queensboro

Large crowds were present at each of the services held in the United churches on the Queensboro pastoral charge on Sunday. In the Sunday schools the official programs sent from the headquarters of the Ontario Religious Educational Council were used throughout. In Harts Sunday school the story, "The Cap My Mother Wore," was splendidly told by Mrs. William Curtis. The pageant, "Noble Mothers of Famous Men," was given by Mrs. David Blakley, assisted by Nora Martin, Betty Demorest, Jean Blakley and Eileen Holmes. The following mothers composed the choir that rendered special music for the preaching service: Mrs. David Blakley, Mrs. William Curtis, Mrs. Egbert Demorest, Mrs. Allan Holmes, Mrs. Hurrel Moorcroft, Mrs. Alexander Blakley and Mrs. Arthur Fleming.

In the Queensboro Sunday school, the story was told by Mrs. C. B. Hamm and the pageant given by Mrs. Fred Sager, assisted by Eileen Sager, Margaret Delyea, Roy Rollins and Roy Tokley.

At Hassards Corners.

At Hassards Corners and Queensboro the mothers helped materially with the services. In the former congregation the offering was received and brought to the altar by Mrs. George Ketcheson and Mrs. Thomas Moorcroft. Prayer was offered by Mrs. George Harris. The Scripture lesson, from St. Luke 2:15-20, and Exodus 2:5-10, was read by Mrs. Philo Harris. The hymns were announced by Mrs. Mabel Kincaid, Mrs. John Keene and Mrs. Foster Keene. The following mothers composed the choir: Mrs. George Harris, Mrs. John Keene, Mrs. Frank McKillican, Mrs. George Burnside, Mrs. Philo Harris, Mrs. Wilfred Hayden, Mrs. Mabel Kincaid, Mrs. Daniel Gunsolus and Mrs. Foster Keene, and sang "My Mother's Bible" and "He Hideth My Soul."

In the Queensboro congregation the hymns were announced by Mrs. C. B. Hamm, Mrs. Thomas Walker and Mrs. J. F. Everson; prayer was offered by Mrs. John Alexander Sr. and Mrs. George Holmes. The offering was received by Mrs. Wallace Kincaid and Mrs. Walter Tokley. The Scripture lesson, from Ephesians 6:1-20, was read by Mrs. Fred Rollins. Mrs. Robert A. Sager presided at the organ and the choir, composed of the following mothers, Mrs. Thomas Walker, Mrs. John Alexander, Mrs. Fred Rollins, Mrs. Harry Tokley, Mrs. C. B. Hamm, Mrs. Fred Sager and Mrs. J. F. Everson sang "My Mother's Prayer." Mrs. Fred Sager gave a solo entitled, "Can a Boy Forget His Mother?" Mrs. Everson sang the verses of "Tell Mother I'll Be There," with the choir joining in the chorus.

At each service the pastor gave an address which was appropriate to the occasion. He emphasized the greatness of a mother's position, pointing out that her life, when consecrated to right living and Christian service, was sure to influence every member of her home in the same direction. In closing, the speaker stated that the success of each young person depended largely upon the respect given to their mothers and to motherhood in general. To no person is one's debt so great as to mother.

All the churches were prettily decorated with white and red carnations and a variety of potted plants.

CHURCH DESTROYED BY FIRE

HANOVER, N. H., May 14.—(CP) —The "old white church" where Dartmouth men have worshipped for over a hundred years tumbled in flames last night as thousands of students stood by, helpless.

Fire of undertermined origin started in the upper part of the wooden structure and quickly spread to all parts of the storied edifice.

The loss was estimated at $50,000 by fire officials.

CHEESEMEN OPEN SEASON'S MEETINGS

Matter of Prizes For Year is Settled on for the 23 Members in Madoc District.

MARMORA, May 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—The first of the series of monthly meetings of the Madoc District Cheesemakers' Association was held at Madoc factory, Queensboro, on Wednesday evening, with J. Finnegan, president, in the chair and, despite the rain, a good attendance was present.

Instructor H. Bailey was called upon for a few remarks. He mentioned the difficulty several makers had had with their starter this spring. He explained the hope that the farmers' contest would be taken advantage of this season. He urged his hearers to take greatest pains in the finishing of cheese. He also mentioned that he was required to send in a duplicate list of butter fat tests at each factory. In conclusion, he expressed the hope that cans would be well scalded at home as well as at the factory.

A new feature was introduced in the roll call. Members responded by giving some particular difficulty or mentioning some discovery coming to their notice in their own particular factory. The subject of Group Insurance which had been brought up at the annual meeting held in Madoc last month was dropped, only a minority of those present being inclined to favor it.

The matter of prizes was dealt with. A motion to increase the membership fee by one dollar and the money accruing to be applied on prizes was unanimously carried. It was also decided that, as in former years, prizes should be awarded for highest average score instead of 100 per cent turn outs.

Prior to the meeting, the renovated interior of the factory was inspected and favorably commented upon. Charles Spencer is in charge of the factory this year. It is twenty-one years since he took over the duties of a maker and this year he comes out of a two-year retirement. The next meeting will be held on the second Wednesday of June, at the Marmora Cheese Factory, where the president, J. Finnegan, is maker.

Twenty-three cheesemakers are in the association this year. Their names and factories are as follows:

OBITUARY

RICHARD BLACK

ROSENEATH, May 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Richard Black was largely attended on Friday afternoon. The remains were taken from his late residence to the Alderville Church, where the service was conducted by Rev. R. W. Paton, M.A. The deceased will be greatly missed among the Indians of the Alderville Reserve, as he was a prominent leader in the church activities. A faithful president of the Sunday School and was also responsible for the song service held on Sunday evenings at the different homes on the Reserve. His cheery disposition made for him a great many friends.

Much sympathy is extended to his widow, formerly Mary Ann Crowe.

Interment took place in the Alderville burying ground.

MAE CONROY.

Miss Mae Conroy passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital at 4.30 this morning after an illness of short duration. The deceased was born in Otonabee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Conroy. She has lived in Peterborough most of her life, at 337 St. Joseph Street. Left to mourn her loss are her bereaved parents, a sister Irene at home, and three brothers, James of Peterborough, Harold of North Bay, and Leo of Sault Ste. Marie.

The funeral will be held from the family residence at 8.45 on Saturday morning to St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock. Interment will be made in St. Peter's Cemetery.

DOING SPLENDID WORK.

In calling attention to the fact that on Saturday the annual tag day will be held on behalf of St. Vincent's Orphanage, The Examiner feels that there is little need of stressing the most worthy activities of this institution in caring for neglected and dependent children.

The orphanage has been carrying on in Peterborough for so many years and the splendid work it has been doing is so well known to the citizens generally that it seems unnecessary in urging a generous response to Saturday's appeal to dwell at any length upon the fine community service so ably rendered by the institution.

The children of to-day are the citizens of to-morrow, and any movement therefore that ensures a better training and fairer prospects of success in life for little folks who unassisted would have small hope of a happy future deserves community support and encouragement.

Saturday's appeal for St. Vincent's Orphanage is therefore founded on the sound basis of a deserving social service record, and it should strike a responsive chord in the hearts of every warm-hearted citizen.

Economic conditions naturally increase the calls upon such institutions, and there is on that account a greater need than usual on this occasion for a liberal response.

Give liberally on Saturday in aid of a most worthy cause.

MUST STOP DRIVING.

The decision of the Stratford relief committee that men who are working on the city relief scheme or who are drawing relief from the city in any way must turn in their liquor permits and automobile markers if they wish to remain on the list, has much to commend it.

No one, of course, would want to see anyone compelled to get rid of his automobile at a sacrifice price, and there is no intention on the part of the Stratford authorities to counsel any such forced sale; the order simply means that men who are getting relief must put their cars away.

Certainly there is something unseemly in the spectacle of individuals who are in receipt of relief joy-riding round in motor cars, and to continue to buy gasoline when the family income does not permit of the buying of food is folly, which the authorities are quite justified in stopping.

Similarly with liquor purchases; surely those who are being assisted have no right under the circumstances to patronize the Government stores.

The Examiner does not believe that those who in more prosperous days were able to purchase an automobile or a radio should be called upon to sacrifice such articles at forced sale prices to qualify for relief, but in the case of the former where expense for gasoline and repairs is necessarily involved the motor car should be kept off the roads so long as its owner has to accept public assistance.

VETERANS' APPEALS.

Pension regulations and their administration are again the cause of controversy, a recently announced decision of the chief pension counsel to appeal the majority of cases having brought the whole thing to a head.

Such a policy seems a radical departure from the feeling of most people that the incapacitated or burned-out veteran should be given the benefit of the doubt in cases where there is difficulty in arriving at a clean-cut decision.

Tieing up cases of that kind by further appeals, causing more delay and showing up the whole pension machinery is defeating the object of the changes in the regulations last year, and it is not surprising that there are loud complaints from ex-service men.

Regardless, however, of administration, it is apparent that there is need of a simpler system of meting out justice to returned soldiers, and in that connection, The Examiner believes, that the proposal of the Globe that pension appeals should be referred to the county courts is one worthy of serious consideration.

Certainly such a method would be quicker than the present elaborate procedure, and there is every reason to feel there would be more chance of the veteran receiving a square deal.

True the machinery as it exists now was largely suggestive by representatives of the veterans, but if it is not working out satisfactorily it should be scrapped in favor of a more promising plan.

A LOSS TO ONTARIO.

News of the death yesterday of Hon. John S. Martin, former Ontario Minister of Agriculture, while not unexpected, was received with regret throughout the Province.

Mr. Martin, whose reputation as a poultry man was world-wide, was known to the people of Ontario equally well because of his successful service in the Department of Agriculture and his prominence in the Masonic order.

Even his political opponents acknowledge that he was one of the most capable Ministers of Agriculture Ontario has ever known; during his term of office he won and held the confidence of the farming community, and there was genuine regret last year when his condition of health made it necessary for him to give up the portfolio.

Indicative of the esteem in which he was held in his own district is the fact that, although he was unable to participate in the last provincial election, he was returned by a large majority in Norfolk for his third term in the Legislature, and many Liberals would have preferred that his candidature on that occasion should have been unopposed.

Mr. Martin's career furnishes an object lesson to Canadians generally, for it illustrates the fact that careful planning and scientific methods can be made to work wonders in agriculture as in other lines of endeavor.

A former school teacher, Mr. Martin launched out into the poultry business despite predictions that he could not possibly succeed, and by making use of all the available information that experts could give him and by adopting modern methods, he in a remarkably short space of time made himself a world figure in the industry.

It has been said that a letter addressed simply to "The Wyandotte King" would, as a matter of course, be sent to Mr. Martin, who specialized in that variety of poultry and shipped birds to all parts of the globe.

Genial, affable and approachable, the former Minister of Agriculture made friends easily, and he was regarded as one of the strong men in the Legislature in recent years.

His passing at a comparatively early age is a distinct loss to public life in this Province.

EMPLOYMENT GAINS.

Substantial improvement in the employment situation in the Border Cities is shown by the figures for March just released by the Border Chamber of Commerce. Reports from 151 of the larger industries show that 970 persons were added to payrolls in the month—that means sustenance for about 5,000 people—and the automotive industry was responsible for practically all of the addition.

It is noteworthy that while employment totals here are still below 1930 and 1929 at the same time of year, they are higher than ever before those years. Undoubtedly a substantial part of the increase can be ascribed not to the seasonal pickup in the automotive industry, but to the establishment of new operations here through the tariff changes. Studebaker and Chrysler have both started manufacture of lines they previously imported complete from the United States. The tariff is solely responsible for these new operations here and has provided work for a considerable number of men. The rest of the automotive increase is, of course, seasonal.

It is encouraging, too, that in the non-automotive industries, employment has been steady for months past and the trend of employment in these has been slightly upward. It is apparent from this that the valley of depression has been safely passed in these lines, whose importance may be gauged by the fact that included among them are Canadian Industries, Limited, Frederick Stearns & Company, and Parke, Davis & Company.

A point that is not covered in the Chamber of Commerce report is the fact that the more than 5,000 Ford employes worked more days in the month of March than they did in February, so that although the number of employes did not rise, their actual remuneration was considerably larger.

The situation is definitely improving.—Border Cities Star.

IT'S HAZARDOUS TO PROPHECY.

(From the Toronto Saturday Night)

What might be termed a "curiosity of prophecy" turned up recently in the files of an eminent Canadian banker. It is a clipping from the Toronto Globe of October 1, 1898, containing a lengthy interview with the late Sir Edmund Walker, of Toronto, who at that time was plain Byron E. Walker, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Walker had just returned from the annual meeting of the British Association of the Advancement of Science at Bristol, England. The major part of the interview was devoted to exploding dire prophecies made by the great scientist, Sir William Crookes, president of the association, in his annual address. The gist of these prophecies was that there would not be sufficient wheat production to feed the world's population after 1931.

Sir William Calculated that in that year (1898) the world wheat areas totalled 163,000,000 acres, producing 2,070,000,000 bushels. With great elaboration, he argued that not more than 100,000,000 acres could be added to the world's wheat growing areas. By 1923, taking into consideration the increase in population, the demand would be 3,260,000,000 bushels and there would be difficulty in finding acreage on which to grow the additional amount thus required. By 1931 available new acreage would, he held, be exhausted. What was to save subsequent generations from gradual starvation? Sir William had his answer. It was this: recovery of nitrates from the air to make the land more productive. The nitrate supplies of South America would at no distant day be exhausted and recovery from the air was the only solution.

While at Bristol, Mr. Walker pointed out to Sir William that Canada alone would be able to provide the additional 100,000,000 acres of which he spoke, but the great scientist was very skeptical on this point and deprecated the idea that the Canadian West contained any considerable areas on which wheat would ripen. The interview shows that the Canadian banker had a shrewd and accurate knowledge of what the future held for Canadian production and a sane estimate of Sir William's fallacies in a general sense.

What has happened is this. The world wheat acreage under crop in 1928 was 307,641,000 acres—44,000,000 acres beyond the outside limit set by Sir William Crookes, with possibilities of considerable expansion. The production was 4,721,071,000 bushels, considerably more than his estimate of necessary production thirty years later. Nitrate production of South America has not been exhausted, but expanded. And in 1931, the year which was to see the turn of the tide toward starvation, an International Congress at Rome has actually been debating limitation of wheat acreage in new countries.

The sole advantage about being a prophet is that prophets seldom live to see their predictions nullified, and die happy in the thought that they have warned humanity in time.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It would have been better to have waited for the fine text of the Prince of Wales' speech before assailing His Highness. As it turned out, the Prince committed no breach of political silence.

Charlie Chaplin is well advised to stick to the silent pictures. Talking seems likely to get him into trouble.

Canada's new Conversion Loan bonds are in keen demand. The people of Canada have every faith in their country.

Canada is asked to take the lead in calling an Empire conference on the silver problem. It is a suggestion well worth consideration.

And now the Soviet is apparently trying to eliminate the private trader, substituting state trade at increased prices and large profits for the Government.

"Canon Cody and Mr. Arthur F. Ford, editor of the London Free Press, are named as members of the Ontario Cancer Commission to go to Europe," says the Globe. "We presume Canon Cody is to make the necessary speeches and Mr. Ford to write the official report."

Dr. Smith Replies to Hon. Dr. Manion

Lakefield, Ont
May 13, 1931.

RE: CHARLES F. JARRETT

The Honourable R. J. Manion,
Minister of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa.

Yours of the 9th to hand. I wish to thank you for promptness of your reply, although I cannot thank you for some of the sneers in your letter. However, if you feel that it is compatible with your rank as a Minister of the Crown, to hand out slurs and sneers to a fellow professional man—that is you own affair.

You have entirely evaded the dominent issue of my letter—which was expresed in the very first sentence—namely, the monstrous injustice being done to Jarrett. Your letter absolutely fails to show wherein justice is being meted out to this veteran You have attempted to draw a herring across the trail by discussing the employment of labourers on the canal during the past winter—as a matter of fact, to my own knowledge there has been rank injustice shown to a number of veterans who sought work—for example, at Burleigh Falls—and who were turned down because they were believed to be Liberals That however, is another story and would require a letter in itself.

You make the complaint that my action in sending an open letter has made it almost impossible for you to do anything for Jarrett. I fail to see how one open letter or fifty open letters would alter to the slightest extent the inherent justice of Jarrett's claim for employment. In any event the principle involved is of public interest. Is one to infer that it is harder to do the right publicly, or easier to do the wrong thing privately?

You hide behind the exemptions from the Civil Service Act, and tacitly admit that the local Conservative Committees, like Shylock, may exact their pound of flesh because the law allows it and the Department of Railways and Canals awards it. A sense of justice and right would suggest that the pound of flesh be not exacted in the case of veterans—who have served year after year in the same capacity—especially when in line for promotion.

The Government spent vast sums, and rightly so, to re-establish the veterans. Is it not inconsistent for the Government now to dis-establish them? That is the reason why, even if another veteran were appointed in his place, it would not be right.

From the standpoint of efficiency of work on the Canal, is it not a mistake to substitute a new untried man for one with about eight years of satisfactory service and experience?

You have a wide reputation as one who does things in a "red-blooded, two-fisted" manner. You have not displayed these characteristics in the way in which you have ignored the questions with which I closed my letter on May the 7th. I still feel as I said then, that the answers to these questions will indicate the justification or not of Jarrett's dismissal, and conversely will indicate whether or not he should be at once re-engaged.

Let me repeat the questions because they are of national importance as far as the veterans are concerned, and your answers will be anxiously awaited.

1. Should a Great War veteran in the employ of your Department be retained as long as there is work for him to do, and he is giving at least average satisfaction in that work?
2. Especially should not a veteran, who is partly, say not more than 10 per cent or 15 per cent incapacitated, be retained?
3. More especially should not a member of the First Division be retained?

Finally, is the attitude of the Conservative Party expressed correctly by the words of the Leader, or by the actions of those satelites, who have ruthlessly deprived one of the First Thirty Thousand, of his means of livelihood?

I feel sure that you reply to the above questions will be awaited with considerable interest by many.

Yours sincerely,
DR. J. CAMERON SMITH

PRAYING IN SECRET

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Mr. Editor,—Is it not strange that many professing Christians who have read repeatedly the words of admonition of our Lord in regard to prayer, as recorded in Matthew 6.6, namely, "When thou prayest, enter into thy closet and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly" that the instruction is unheeded?

The injunction also is not to use conceited sayings from memory, when engaged in prayer and public prayer is surely discouraged, according to the above quotation. The words quoted according to common sense are typical and on the street, at every day work, in the home or any place, where in secret we pray, is the closet with the shut door. The result of this secret praying is open reward.

M. T. Butcher.

PUTS RESPONSIBILITY ON MR. PECK

The Editor,
The Examiner.
Dear Sir:

I noticed in last night's Examiner, a letter from J. L. M. Allen, the dismissed veteran from the Trent Canal who has five war decorations and has given ten years service as an employee on the Trent Canal.

Mr. Allen inquired why he has been found inefficient after ten years service, and let me tell him this:

He was found inefficient on this job as a subterfuge to get rid of him and to fire him off the job.

The position of the whole matter is this, according to the dismissed War Veterans:

1. Mr. Killaly told them that they were dismissed because they were not efficient.
2. Mr. Peck told them he had to spread the employment around because of so much unemployment.
3. Overseer McGrath of the Trent Canal told them that he did not know why they were dismissed but that the order came from Ottawa.
4. The Honourable R. J. Manion said that they failed to retain this employment as a result of the spoil system or as he put it, a member of Parliament has the right to terminate their employment.

You will observe that every one of these stories is different so what should happen is, that these four gentlemen ought to get together, and at least, get their stories to tally.

Mr. Allen and the other War Veterans fired, should not be misled. They have been dismissed because Mr. Peck is so weak he cannot say no to job hunters who are after the War Veterans' scalps.

Every man, who has been a member of Parliament knows that demands are made upon him from time to time for jobs, but for him to put a man out of his position in order to furnish a job for one of his friends, who is not particularly qualified for it, is as cruel and brutal a conduct as can be imagined. Weak members of Parliament who cannot say no are the kind who fall for these demands made upon them, and then seek to excuse the increase of unemployment by saying they must pass around these positions.

The fact, that it took ten years for this man to be found inefficient is a splendid tribute to the skilful management of the Trent Canal System.

It was only after the General Elections when Mr. Peck's Party was in office that it suddenly developed and the dismissal of the War Veterans synchronizes with the demands made upon Mr. Peck for their jobs.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON,

THE CHINESE PEDDLER

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Doubtless many people were stirred yesterday by the pathetic story printed in your paper of the Chinese peddler dispossessed of his ancient scales.

It was stated that in spite of his voluble pleadings and promises not to use them again, they were confiscated and will likely be sent to the Museum at Ottawa, because "such an instrument was illegal."

One wonders just what that means; if it is that using the scales in selling is illegal, surely the man's promise not to use them again would meet the ends of justice and if merely possessing an antiquated or inaccurate weight is illegal, it is to be feared that many housewives in our city are equally guilty and should have their stillyards and old kitchen scales handed down by their mothers and grandmothers, taken away from them.

One admires the diligence of the Inspector in performing his duty as he sees it, but is not this a case where mercy might season justice in giving the man a pleasanter regard for our City than he must now hold, and a wholesome respect rather than bitter resentment for Canadian law with which he was probably unacquainted?

Sincerely,
G.M.H.

Alnwick Township

TRENT RIVER, May 14 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Township of Alnwick, which is triangular in shape, is bounded on the north and west by Rice Lake, on the South by Haldimand and on the east by the Township of Percy. It contains about 20,400 acres of good land.

In 1850, there were 161 inhabitants. The territory was surveyed in 1926 and again in 1836. There is an Indian Reserve in the northern part of the township, containing some 3,500 acres of the best land.

The earliest grants of land were made to the Grant and the Wright families, who obtained large tracts. Benjamin Ewing's father received land in Alnwick for his services in the war of 1812.

William Drope, Reeve for some years, was a mill owner. Patrick Downs settled in the township for many years, and farmed 400 acres. Pat Lynch, an early settler, hewed out of the forest a comfortable home and independence for himself and family.

North of Alnwick and twelve miles back of Cobourg is Rice Lake, so called from the large quantities of wild rice which grow along its edge, and in patches which protrude from the surface of the water. This lake is about seven miles wide by thirty miles long, and is dotted with small islands. It abounds with maskinonge, black bass, perch and other fish dear to the sporting fraternity who flock to it year after year.

At the Reserve is the Indian village of Alderville. The natives were the Mississagas. The inhabitants of the village are ardent lovers of the chase, and well acquainted with the best points for successful fishing operations. Several petitions have been found which were presented to the Legislature on behalf of those Indians by one Peter Perry in 1829. Following is one:

"To the Great Council Assembled in Parliament at York,—Fathers and Brothers: We, the undersigned Christian Indians residing in the vicinity of Rice Lake, having matters of general concern relating to our tribes, and desiring to lay the same before you, claim your protection. We have appointed five of our brethren to act in our behalf, George Pottash, John Crow, John Colhead, John Cow, John Canua and Peter Manson. They are chiefs and principal men among us, and will express to you, Fathers and Brothers, our feelings of friendship, and to present to you our humble petition wherein our grievances are specified.

"We humbly pray that our brothers may be heard in our behalf, and they are hereby authorized to transact our affairs with you as if we ourselves were present.

"And we your children, as in love and duty bound, will ever pray for our Great Father the King, and all his British subjects." Signed by: Joseph Soper, Jacob Iron, William Blackboss, Bedford Iron, Bowlan Governor, John Salt, Robert Cow, Thomas Nanigishook, John Kay, John Eatewabin, John Kategogowar, Isaac Iron, James Shauny, Tarnish Kestrick, Peter Naligun, William Nayanakalook, John Tarnish, Peter Cow, Joseph Soper, Jr., Peter Palche, Peter Nalige, Shauny Nepanasick and Marin Quahnuchden, Rice Lake, January 19th, 1829.

"The petition of the Chiefs and principal men of the Indians residing in the vicinity of Rice Lake, Newcastle district, humbly sheweth:

"That we and our fathers, having been in a long sleep, have lately been roused up by the word of the Great Spirit; our eyes are now open and we see that there is light and truth by Christ for Indians as well as for our white brothers.

"That we believe that our Great Father the King is both wise and strong. He knows what is right and has power to do it. He breaks the hard chains of the black man. We speak to our brothers, who are called together around this Council of fire by the King, to hear the words of his people; that your red brothers look for protection.

"That, furthermore, we are poor in lands, and have few places for hunting. Much of our hunting grounds are covered by white settlements, and the small parts which were left us were invaded by the hunters from Lower Canada. They come upon our hunting grounds and wantonly kill and destroy all the animals, old and young, that come in their way. We have told them of their injustice and urged them to depart. If this Council speaks words that are loud and strong, they must obey. And we, as in love and duty bound, will ever pray for our Great Father the King, and all his people.

But, now, the Indians of Rice Lake are a contented people. They are well protected in their rights by the law, and in addition, they have the advantage of a church and schools and religious teaching.

NICKEL EARNINGS EQUAL EIGHT CENTS PER S HARE IN QUARTER

INCOME IS $3,254,361.

TORONTO, May 14.—Net profits of $1,659,637 were shown by the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., and subsidiary companies, for the three months ended March 31, 1931. This compares with $4,616,144 in the corresponding three months in 1930. The net profit for the first quarter this year is equivalent to 8 cents per share on the common stock after allowing for the preferred dividend, and in the same period last year the profits were equivalent to 20 cents per share.

Total Income $3,254,381.

Earnings for the three months totalled $3,228,406, and other income increased this to $3,254,381. In the previous year total income amounted to $6,916,939. Net operating income totalled $2,733,976 as against $5,886,710 a year ago. Administration and general expense in the first three months showed a decrease from that of $1930, standing at $374,494, while reserve for taxes was also lower at $145,910. Provision for depreciation and depletion totalled $954,474, as against $1,144,788 a year ago.

The surplus of the company at the beginning of the period under review was $20,646,169 against $24,958,970 at the same time in the previous year. To this has been added net profits, which brings the total to $22,305,806 as compared with $29,575,114 at the end of the first three months in 1930. Dividends so far this year totalled $2,670,275 as against $3,922,351 in the same period a year ago. The result is that the company's surplus on March 31 stood at $19,635,530 as against $25,652,762 on March 31, 1930.

Current Assets $35,586,808.

The balance sheet of March 31 shows total assets of $187,888,184. Current assets are valued at $35,586,808. Included in these are: inventories, $21,199,769; accounts and bills receivable, $6,069,265; Government securities, $745,675, and cash and demand and time loans, $7,572,098. Current liabilities are shown at $6,266,126, which includes accounts payable, $2,393,471; tax reserves, $3,189,171, and preferred dividends payable, $483,483.

Production Of Beef Lower During 1930

Is Almost Only Human Food Not in Excessive Production in Canada.

OTTAWA, May 14.—Beef is practically the only human food at the present time that is not in excessive production, states the eleventh annual live Stock Market and Meat Trade Review, which will shortly be published by the Dominion Live Stock Branch.

The review observes Canada's meat production at present is on a comparatively low basis, but that this does not necessarily guarantee a maintainance of good prices during the present year. It takes the view that a general business revival is necessary, as well as an alternative outlet, which it considers essential to any market stability, and improvement in the beef trade market.

The Review observes also that the turn of the road in respect to the meat market will probably come much more quickly, in view of the fact that there is no world surplus of beef at present, than it would were the beef market in a situation similar to that prevailing with respect to many other commodities. The situation is summed up as generally favorable, and as appearing to warrant a program of expansion, providing it is well developed.

Sun Life Assurance Converts $15,000,000

MONTREAL, May 14.—T. N. Macaulay, President of the Sun Life Assurance Company, in a statement issued yesterday, describes the Conversion Loan bonds as more than secure. "It is absolute," he says. "Owners of the old Government issues are now permitted to exchange their present holdings for new bonds of the same par value, but running for a long term, and carrying a 4½ per cent. interest.

"No advantage attaching to the old holdings has to be surrendered, for special coupons will be given covering the excess of interest until the dates of their respective maturities, and safeguarding also the non-taxable feature for those bonds that contained that provision. The opportunity to obtain the premier security of all Canada on such remarkably attractive terms will certainly appeal to the fortunate holders of the old issues, and it is equally certain that there will be a very strong demand throughout Canada for the new bonds. Our company has lost no time in obtaining $15,000,000 of the issue."

Abana Subscription Likely To Be Heavy

Convertible Issue Will Mean Recession of Mine Property.

TORONTO, May 14.—In a statement yesterday regarding subscriptions for the issue of convertible bonds of Abana Mines Limited, an official of the Mining Corporation of Canada, Limited, said that his company had no information as to the amount so far subscribed.

He expressed the belief, however, that the shareholders would not let the opportunity pass of subscribing to the bonds so as to secure repossession of their property and participate in its ultimate development when the prices of base metals return to economic levels.

It should be borne in mind, he said, that both copper and zinc are selling far below the cost of production and that this state of affairs obviously could not continue indefinitely. He further stated that the last date for subscribing to the bonds is Friday, May 15.

UNITED STATES LEADS TRADING

Statistics Summary Shows Canada Imported More From U. S. Than Any Other Country.

HALF OF TOTAL.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14 (By The Canadian Press).—The United States led all other nations by a wide margin in trading with Canada during the last fiscal year, it was shown in a summary released to-day by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. More than half of Canada's total trade was done with that nation.

Canada's exports during the year totalled $817,003,048 and the imports were $906,612,681. Exports to the United States during the year were $363,898,024, and imports $584,429,301. Exports to Great Britain were $220,687,304 and imports, $149,488,437.

Among the nations of the world, Canada sold the United States the largest total of goods during the year. Second was Great Britain; Japan, third; Belgium, fourth; Italy, fifth; France, sixth; Gremany, seventh and New Zealand, eighth.

The United States and Great Britain also were first and second, respectively in the amount of goods sold to Canada during the year. Third was France; fourth, Germany; fifth, Japan, sixth, British India; seventh, Holland and eight New Zealand.

MINTO GOLD MINE TO SHIP FIRST ORE

Mill to Handle Approximately Seventy-five Tons Each Day.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 14. Within a few days the Minto Gold Mine, in the Michipicoten district, will ship its first gold brick, and will step from the development stage to that of a practical gold producer. While the first gold shipment is not likely to be a large one, it will be the beginning of a series of shipments from the Minto to arrive in the Sault every two weeks.

While it is somewhat difficult to arrive at the exact figure for the Minto's gold production based on the bi-monthly shipments, J. Knox, manager-owner of the mine, says the mill will handle 75 tons each day, with an average value to the ton of $11, roughly $825 per day, and if this standard were maintained would mean $24,750 each month and $297,000 in the year. The gold values may vary, and the shipments will depend on the gold precipitated from the cyanide solution which must be kept standard, in case of the Minto, at $5 to the ton.

A gang of 21 men is employed at the mine. At the present time mining operations are being confined to the first level, where stoping is being carried out to add to the already existing ore piles and to feed the mill that is not yet working at its capacity of 75 tons a day. Just now the mill is handling from 40 to 50 tons daily.

PARLEY ON INDIA OPENS NOVEMBER

Mahatma Gandhi Will Represent Hindu Nationalist Congress Party.

BE OVER BY CHRISTMAS.

SIMLA, India, May 14.—(CP)—Cable via Reuters—The second round-table conference on India will be held in London commencing the first week in November, it was learned here to-day.

Mahatma Gandhi will go as representive of the Hindu Nationalist Congress Party which was not represented at the first conference last winter.

The problems before the second conference will be the working out in detail of the recommendations formulated by the first conference. Many divergences remain to be ironed out. Many matters are to be cleared up before a new act can be presented to the British Parliament setting up a modified self-government in India, with safeguards in finance and external relations.

The conference should be concluded by Christmas, exploring in less than two months problems of self-government and necessary safeguards for the great continental peninsula with its 350,000,000 souls.

There will be a hundred or more delegates, whose vast constituency—the Indian Nationalists—were not represented in the Round Table Conference recently concluded at London.

ON EXCHANGES MARKET CLOSING

which had been 2 points higher during an intermitten rally, more than lost its gain. Sales exceeded 1,500,000 shares.

Montreal Exchange

MONTREAL, Que., May 14.—(CP) —Stocks continued to drift into lower levels in an easy manner during this afternoon's session of trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. The sales volume was at a low level and the list was practically featureless. Losses showed a few new low levels marked up.

International Nickel drifted to a new low level at 13⅛, where it was off ⅝ for the day, while Brazilian Traction, National Breweries, Montreal Power, Shawinigan, Power Corporation, Smelters, Atlantic Sugar and others were off from fractional amounts to three points in the case of Atlantic Sugar. Dominion Glass made a belated appearance in the trading, dipping to a new low at 102, off four. Montreal Power was off 5-8 at 34.

The trading was limited to a narrow list of stocks. Power Corporation touched its new low at 46, off two. Smelters was down one at 96, while Southern Canada Power was off a similar amount at 35.

Dominion Bridge on a single Board lot sale, gained one at 34. Price Brothers was ¾ better at 32¾, and Cement gained ¼ at 11.

TORONTO STOCK MARKET

TORONTO, Ont., May 14.—Trading fell off to a minimum on Toronto Stock Exchange this afternoon but the slow decline which began in the morning continued and stocks closed at their lows for the day.

International Nickel made a new 1931 low at 13⅛ and closed with a net loss of ⅝ to 13¾. Walkers at 5⅛ at the close was at a new low for the present stock. B.C. Power "B" dipped more than a point to a new low at 10. Brazilian, C.P.R., Bell Telephone were soft and down fractionally. Ford, Massey-Harris, Page Hersey Tubes closed unchanged. Bank stocks, left yesterday, were firmer today but not much changed.

In the oil group B.A. Oil lost a minimum fraction; Imperial closed at 12⅛, off ⅛, and International Petroleum and Supertest were unchanged on final sales.

ENGLAND RATE REDUCED BY 1-2

ONE-HALF OFF 1909 LOW.

LONDON, May 14.—(AP)—The bank of England reduced its rediscount rate to-day from three per cent to two and one half per cent.

The rate had been at the old level for just over a year.

Reduction of the United States rate last week created a belief in the market that the directors of the Bank of England would follow suit, especially since discounts had been altogether out of touch with the official minimum. Because of cheaper money the authorities therefore gave traders some assistance by reducing the rate a half per cent to its lowest since 1909

Steady accumulation of gold by the bank largely through combined action of the central institutions here and in the United States, also guided the authorities in their action.

The world movement in direction of cheaper money rates had been instrumental as far as the United States was concerned in bringing money here for investment and preventing exports of gold such as occurred several months ago.

The bank rate has been 2½ per cent on only three previous occasions in the last thirty years and has not been lower than that since 1897. The last 2½ per cent rate lasted from April to October in 1909. To-day's fall marked the culmination of a decline which began in October, 1929, the month of the Wall Street crash, when the rate declined from 6½ to 6 per cent.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Sawil Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The wheat market was quite firm throughout yesterday's session although prices were little changed during the first period when only a small trade was passing, with overnight export sales reported as small. Around mid-session some excellent buying of Winnipeg, July and October came in from a large private elevator company, the amount being taken was estimateed at 1,500,000 bush, and was understood to be spreading, the same amount of sales of Chicago September being made. This class of spreading is based on the dry conditions in Western Canada and the excellent outlook for the winter wheat crop in the United States and more of it is likely to develop if good rains are not received in th is country shortly. The weather is ar and warm in the west yesterday and will likely continue according to the weather forecast. Not much attention was paid to the estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics that acreage in Canada would be reduced about eight per cent. this year as this was generally anticipated. While there was very little evidence of export business out of this market New York exporters reported 500,000 bushels of Manitobas and 500,000 bushels of barley worked while a little rye was also worked from here. The demand for cash wheat in the local market was quiet. Straight grades were not particularly wanted but there was some demand for toughs at ¼ better, otherwise spreads were mostly unchanged with no pressure of offerings. Liverpool was steady, closing 3-8 to ½ higher, while Buenos Aires was weak, being 1 1-8 to 1 3-8 lower at mid-day. Crops reports from the South West continue very favorable and a bumper winter wheat crop appears to be almost assured, but still has a long way to go before maturity.

Coarse Grains.—These markets were all firm most of the day but the late weakness in wheat was reflected in the coarse grains and prices eased off.

Liverpool due ½ lower based on Winnipeg.

PROTECTIVE COMMITTEE FORMED REPRESENT BONDHOLDERS OF C. T.

J. J. Duffus Attended Meeting of the Committee in Toronto Last Night.

BIG SUM IN DISTRICT.

J. J. Duffus attended a meeting of the protective committee representing the bondholders of the Canadian Terminals Limited, in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, last night.

The other members of this committee are Hon. A. R. McMaster, K.C., former provincial treasurer of Quebec; Major L. A. Anthes, president of the Anthes Foundry Company, Limited, and chairman of the Industrial Relations Committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Leslie Boyd, K.C., Montreal, chairman of the Canadian Grain Commission 1920-1930; R. P. Barrick, treasurer of the county of Welland; David Williams, past president of the Canadian Press Association; Dr. J. J. Sprott, Barrie; R. H. Lush, director of the Peel-Mutual Fire Insurance company; Col A. H. Monteith, K.C., Paris; D. A. Ross, ex-M.P.P., Cornwall; Stanley Brock, director of Canadian Tube and Steel Products Company, Montreal; L. S. Doste, investment banker, Quebec; G. W. Buchanan, Carleton Place, J. Hughes, Kingston.

Mr. Duffus stated to-day that he could not at present, make any report on the proceedings of the protective committee. It is understood that quite a large sum has been invested in the company from this district. Various estimates of the aggregate amount venture as high as $350,000. The protective committee has been appointed by the bondholders to look after their interests in the future administration of the terminal warehouses and other activities of the company.

HIGHER GOLDS REMAIN FIRM

Nickel Drops to New Low for Year Following Publishing of Quarterly Earnings.

NORANDA ALSO DECLINES.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14.—(CP)— Softness in International Nickel was reflected in an easier tendency among majority of price movements on the mining market this forenoon, though the higher-priced golds, as a group, were firm, trading was at a reduced rate in the forenoon.

The street apparently did not take kindly to earnings of eight cents a share reported by Nickel for the first quarter, price of the stock establishing a new low for the year of $13.75, off half from last night. Noranda dropped also a half to $23.35 and Sherritt Gordon was down a couple to 78.

Kirkland Lake gold was in better demand and up 6 cents, McIntyre advanced another quarter in odd-lot trade and Howey was up 3. Teck-Hughes was under some pressure, price easing 5 and Wright-Hargreaves dropped 5 to $3. Eldorado was off 4 and Macassa a couple.

Oils were quiet with Acme unchanged and Sarnia down 3 to 55.

LIST MARKS TIME ON MONTREAL CURB

Nickel, Brazilian and Montreal Power Only Issues to Show Activity.

MONTREAL, Que., May 14.—(CP) —The Montreal Stock Market had a very slow time of it this morning. Outside of International Nickel, Brazilian Traction and Montreal Power the turnover was very light and changes were fractional. The only sizeable loss was in National Brick preferred which sold down four points to a new low at 5.

Nickel's loss at midday was half a point at 13¾, a new low for the year. Later there was a rally of 1-8.

The price of Montreal Power fell back to 45 which represented a loss of ⅝ while Brazilian, which closed firm yesterday at 16 after having equalled this year's low at 15 3-8, fell back to 15⅛ for a net loss of a half.

WALKERS DROPS TO 5 1-2 POINTS

Nickel and Liquor Stock Carried Down Under Slow But Sure Selling Pressure.

BRAZILIAN ALSO LOSES.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14.—(CP)— The creeping decline of stock prices which has been wearing away old lows accounted for record low prices in the case of International Nickel and Walkers on Toronto stock exchange up till noon to-day

Walkers sold down to 5½, for the first time since the new stock has been traded. International Nickel declined to 13¼, where it was at a new low for the year and less than a point above the all-time low for the stock. Neither issue broke under a deluge of selling but rather was carried back before slow but nevertheless sure pressure. With the market in its present state of mind offerings of moderate amount are sufficient to cause a reaction as buyers are reluctant to take on commitmens until a definite sign of improvement becomes apparent. Both stocks reacted on disappointeing news—Walkers that of a halving of the dividend and Nickel that of first quarter earnings of 8 cents share, compared with dividend requirements of 15 cents share.

Brazilian at 15½ lost whatever ground it had recovered the past couple of days and was within a small fraction of its record low. Ford held but C.P.R., Bell Telephone, Noranda were easier. ImperialOil sold down nearly ½ point to 12 12½. The remainder of the oil group was unchanged.

CONNELLY REMANDED

HAMILTON, Ont., May 15.—(CP) — Daniel Connelly, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of John Riley, of Toronto, was remanded for one week by Judge Thomson, acting in place of Magistrate Vance, in county police court this morning.

NEW YORK DEVELOPS FIRMNESS IN APATHETIC TRADE SESSION

U. S. Steel Recovers Loss Suffered by Drop to 108½ in Early Trading.

RAILS REMAIN WEAK.

(By Claude E. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 14.—Share prices developed resistance to the downward tendency in another session of apathetic trading to-day.

In the early trading, Pressure was exerted on U.S. Steel which was depressed a point to a new low at 108½ but it soon recovered. The general market manifested a better tone around the middle of the day, but the rails failed to recover appreciably from the setback. Among issues recording gains of a point or two were American Can, Montgomery Ward, Case, Underwood Elliott, Allied Chemical, Fox and Alaska Juneau, the last named a recent poo' favorite. Reaching a new high. In the early trading, Missouri Pacific preferred dropped more than 6 points, reflecting dividend uncertainty. Issues off 2 to 4 included Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Katy preferred, Rock Island and Union Pacific. Per Marquette again dropped several points. A drop of 2 points in Woolworth was soon converted into a moderate gain.

The London market's unenthusiastic reception of the discount rate cut by the Bank of England appeared to be due primarily to the adverse final dividends declared by Shell and Royal Dutch, which carried oils generally lower, and the description of the country's commercial condition as "highly critical" by the chairman of Lloyd's bank.

CLUES NARROWED IN MURDER CASE

Wishart Farmer Killed Tuesday Had Been Shot at Before.

YOUNG WIFE HELD.

SASKATOON, Sask., May 14 (C.P.). — Police moved through numerous clues to-day as they search for the slayer of Peter Daday. Early Tuesday morning Daday, 27-year-old Wishart farmer, was shot to death while he was unhitching his horse in front of the barn.

Daday, police discovered, had been shot at two weeks before a bullet finally claimed his life. Daday told only three intimate friends of the attempt on his life. Tuesday morning, after having returned from a dance, Daday's 17-year-old wife heard a shot and later found her husband dead in front of the barn.

Police, it is learned, are holding Mrs. Daday as a material witness. Officers are also preventing Mrs. Daday from seeing Miss Mary Kyrada who accompanied the farmer and his wife from the dance. Several letters which Mrs. Daday received from two admirers before her marriage are in possession of police.

MRS. G. L. PETTY AWARDED PRIZE IS FIRST WINNER IN CONTEST

Six More "Do You Know" Articles in This Issue Afford Readers Opportunities For Cash Prizes.

EVERYONE IS INVITED TO TRY.

Mrs. G. L. Petty, 209 Westscott street was named as the first winner of a three dollar prize in the "Do You Know" contest that The Examiner is conducting daily. The answers submitted by Mrs. Petty were most unique in their construction in the form of an essay. She may receive her ward by calling at the office of The Examiner.

Every day The Examiner is warding a three dollar prize to its reader who submits the neatest, most complete, most correct answers to the questions that are asked in the "Do You Know" stories, which appear each day in the form of news stories, and are distributed through various pages of The Examiner.

The last sentence in each of the stories is a question. The stories tell of the service that some firm or individual is rendering to the community, and the question at the last pertains to the form of whom the story is written. The object of the contest is to thus cause a direct contact between the readers of The Examiner and the worthy firms of the city.

Everyone is invited to enter the contest and only a few minutes of pleasant pastime will make you eligible for a prize. Simply look through the paper and find the articles, then call the firms and have them to give you the answer to the question in their story. There are six of the stories in this issue. When you have gotten the six answers write them down and mail, bring or send them to the "Do You Know" editor at The Examiner.

The winner each day is the contestant whose answers are most cleverly constructed. It is your permission to use any method you wish in arranging your answers. Get in the fun.

Watch each forthcoming issue for the announcement of prize winners, and more "Do You Know" stories.

Calf receipts, 453. Calves were $1.00 lower for the week. Choice brought $6.00 to $7.00 with common selling downward to $3.00.

Good and choice veal, $6.00 to $7.00; common and medium, $3.00 to $5.50; grassers, $3.00 to $3.50.

Hog receipts, 815. Hogs were steady at Monday's decline at $7.60 F.O.B. for bacons or $8.25 off car. Selects were $1.00 per head premium.

Off car basis, select bacon, $8.25; butchers, $7.85; heavies, $5.75 to $6.75; lights and feeders, $6.75; sows $3.25 to $4.25.

Sheep receipts 151. Spring lambs were strong at the opening at $14.00 to $15.00 per hundredweight. Good yearling brought from $10.00 to $10.50. Sheep were weak at $4.00 to $4.50 for the best ewes.

Good ewe and wether lambs $14.00 to $15.00; medium, $12.00 to $13.50; culls, $9.00 to $10.00; good light sheep $4.00 to $4.50; heavies, $3.00 to $3.75; culls $1.00 to $3.00.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 14.—Receipts of butter were moving fairly well on the local market yesterday, but at levels steady to lower than those reported for Tuesday. Trade was not sufficient to take care of all lots of offered buyers trying to secure supplies at prices below current quotations. Sales were made during the day on a basis of 19½c to 20c for No. 1 creamery solids, and 18½c to 19c for No. 2, with brokers holding large lots of high scoring butter for the top figures. These levels were ½c to 1c lower than those quoted, and obtained on Tuesday.

Cream

Cream prices were steady at the new range in effect last week-end, and buyers were offering 21c to 22c for special, 20c to 21c for No. 1, and 17c to 18c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

New cheese was offered by brokers at the low of the spread quoted on Tuesday, of 9¼c for new large, 9½c for twins, and 9¾c for triplets. Wholesalers were quoting steady prices at 11½c for new large, 11¾c for twins, and 12c for triplets.

Eggs

It was the opinion of wholesalers yesterday that prices to country shippers for eggs would advance within a day or so at least 1c per dozen. Storing has been fairly active, and receipts have decreased to some extent and this resulted in brokers being able to secure more money for graded supplies. Yesterday brokers were quoting 18c for extras, 16c for firsts, and 14c for seconds, graded and in free used cases, and most sales were made on this basis, though some were reported at 1½c less early in the day. Country shippers were quoted 15c for extras, 13c for firsts and 10c for seconds, ungraded, delivered, cases returned, while retailers were offered extras in cartons at 21c, extras loose at 19c, firsts loose 17c, and seconds loose 15c per dozen.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 14. — Influenced largely by spreading operations that consisted of simultaneous buying of wheat and selling of corn, wheat averaged higher yesterday and corn lower. Indications of continued moisture shortage in spring wheat territory, both Canadian and United States stimulated wheat buying. Corn was sold on account of larger receipts west and southwest, with better weather for field work in the corn belt and for newly planted grain.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼c off to ¼c up, corn ⅞c to 1⅛c down, oats unchanged to ⅜c to ½c decline, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5 cents.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 14.—A month's 12-cent decline of carlot butter prices appeared stopped here yesterday when quotations firmed on the produce and dairy market. Cheese and egg prices also advanced, while potato quotations were unchanged.

No. 1 finest pasteurized creamery, first and regraded butter gained a quarter to a half a cent at 19¼ to 19½ cents a pound. To retailers solids and prints continued lower both being off a cent at 21 and 22 cents a pound, respectively. Receipts were 66 boxes.

Ontario colored cheese advanced a quarter of a cent at 9 cents a pound in light trading, receipts being 24 boxes.

On the egg market carlot prices were a half to a cent higher. Fresh Ontario and Prairie extras, in carlots, gained a cent at 20 cents, while firsts and seconds were a half a cent higher at 17 and 15 cents a dozen, respectively. Carlot prices of British Columbia fresh extras advanced a cent at 21 cents, and firsts gained a half a cent at 18 cents a dozen. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Receipts were 2,301 cases.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes, in carlots were quoted at 80 cents per 80-pound bag of 90 pounds bulk, and to retailers 90 cents per 80-pound bag. New No. 1 Floridas were selling at $8 per 160-pound barrel, and No. 2 brand at $6 a barrel. New No. 1 Floridas in 50-pound boxes were $2.25.

BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., May 14 (C.P.). — Hogs, 1,600; fairly active, mostly to packers, 5-10 under Tuesday's average; bulk desirable 120-200 lbs., $7.75; sparingly, $7.85; plainer kinds, $7.65; 225-260 lbs., $7.25 to $7.50.

Cattle — 175; mostly cows, steady; cutter grades, $2.50-$4.00; few fat cows, $4.75-$5.50.

Calves—350; vealers active, steady; bulk better lots, $9.00.

Sheep—800; lambs strong to 10c higher; good to choice clippers, $9.35-$9.60; few, $9.75; good to choice springers, $12.50-$12.75; others downward to $10.50.

LIVERPOOL QUOTATIONS.

LIVERPOOL, May 14 (C.P.). — Wheat spot nominal.

Turpentine—Spirits, 48s 3d.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 14. — Early advances in wheat values were wiped out by a late selling rush yesterday, and at the close prices showed losses ranging from ¼c to ½c a bushel.

Volume in business was not large, and there was little evidence of foreign buying in the pit, although it was reported 500,000 bushels had been worked for export overnight. Chief outside interest was confined to "spreaders" buying Winnipeg October against sales of Chicago September.

At the close May future was quoted at 62⅝c, July 63½c to 63⅝c, and October 65c.

Trade in cash wheat and coarse grains was without feature.

HOME TOWNERS

TIDBITS INTERESTING AND HUMOROUS FROM CAMPBELLFORD

The Young People's Club of Christ Church will present the three-act comedy, "A Poor Married Man" on the evenings of May 28-29 in the Parish Hall, Campbellford. This should be a very good production and one that will keep the audience in good humor as it is reported to be very funny.

A number of the members of Ionic Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, of Campbellford attended a Lodge of Instruction at Oshawa on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McIntyre of Toronto were the guests on Sunday of the latter's mother, Mrs. W. C. Turner.

Miss Hester Clark, R.N., returned this week to Olean, N.Y. where she has accepted a good position on the staff of the Olean General Hospital.

Campbellford Driver Has Musical Craving

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — "Music hath charms to sooth the savage breast" is an adage often quoted, but now it sems that it has other charms, for instance, to sooth the savage car driver, if the class as a whole follow the example of A. L. Riendeau of Campbellford and drive to the strains of the latest song hit or listen to the news flashes as they are broadcast over the air. Mr. Riendeau has installed in his car a transmitor set which is causing a great deal of interest in the town. To hear music proceeding from the depths of a car when there is only the driver in it is more than a novel experience although we suppose that it will become an every day occurrence.

Pimples Over Face Caused Severe Pain. Cuticura Healed.

"I had pimples and blackheads for nearly two years. The pimples were scattered all over my face and were hard, large and red, causing severe pain. They itched and burned and when I scratched it caused eruptions. The irritation prevented me from sleeping.

"I used different remedies but they did not help any. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Steve Barowenchi, Crowtherview, Sask.

Dr. Boulter's Family Returns To Picton

KINGSTON, May 14.—Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Boulter and sons have reached Picton from Beverley Hills, California, motoring all the way. They desire to educate their sons first in the Picton Collegiate and then in the doctor's alma mater, McGill, University, Montreal. The doctor, who is a member of the College of Physicians and Surgery of Ontario, intends to practice medicine and surgery in Picton. The people of Prince Edward County are glad to welcome the doctor and family back to the place of his nativity.

Nimble toes that never tire!

IN tennis you must be "on your toes" all the time . . . to deliver an ace service or a smashing drive . . . to cover all parts of the court with flashing speed.

Tennis leaders all over the Dominion choose Fleet-Foot shoes. They know that feet can be kept lithe, nimble and untiring only by wearing the right kind of shoes.

Fleet-Foot Shoes are designed, by athletes for athletes. They are strong and firm where support is needed . . . at ankle, instep and the all-important arch. They cushion the ball and heel of the foot against shocks. They keep the foot straight and true to natural shape. And they grip with bulldog hold on any surface, hard or soft.

A new feature in Fleet-Foot Shoes for children is the "Kumfort Insole", which absorbs perspiration and prevents discoloration of light stockings.

PEPE FEATURES SUITS FOR MEN

Popular Tailor Has Built Up an Enviable Reputation.

Made-To-Measure Clothes.

Though "Clothes do not make the man," we all admit that the clothes a man wears goes a long way toward giving us a correct impression of the man. If his clothes are correctly tailored, if he is particular about his personal appearance, we immediately class him as successful, whatever his vocation may be. In Peterborough the men who are fastidious about their clothes turn their problems over to Mr. A. M. Pepe. This popular tailor has established for himself a most enviable reputation. He features made-to-measure, custom tailored clothes, at prices ranging from twenty-four dollars up. He will not only tell you what style of clothing is best suited to your individuality, but will assist you in the selection of color as well. Nowhere will you find one more capable of judging what you can wear well.

Mr. A. M. Pepe also renders a prompt and highly satisfactory service in dry cleaning. There every vestige of soil is eradicated, regardless of whether it be a delicate dress, a suit of clothes, or your curtains or drapes. Service, quality and workmanship are the policy of this popular tailor and dry cleaner. Perfect tailoring cannot be had without quality of materials used, yet good materials mean nothing unless accurately tailored. To Mr. Pepe his work is an art. He is justly proud of the custom tailored, made-to-measure suits that he turns out, and his prices are within the reach of all. You wil be amazed at the reasonableness of the prices there, quality and workmanship considered.

The men of this section are fortunate in having a shop of this class at their service. It is little wonder that men of all the surrounding territory are taking advantage of this individual service. Do you know how long Mr. A. M. Pepe has rendered cleaning and tailoring service to this section.

St. Vincent's Orphanage Houses Twenty-eight Children.

ALL ARE HAPPY.

Within half a minute after a fire alarm had sounded yesterday through the halls of St. Vincent's Orphanage, the twenty-eight children in the house were outside. Arthur, one of the taller Indian lads who are included in the group, seized the small two two-year old, Leon, sitting in his high chair at the supper table, and took him along, white napkin tied firmly under his chin.

It was only a fake alarm, to test the speed of the youngsters in evacuating the premises, and it occurred when they were sitting down to their supper of beans and fried onions, with a sponge cake and jam for dessert. Milk was in the white cups at each plate and there was plenty of well-buttered bread.

They are a placid and happy lot of little boys, whose ages range from the tiny tots of two years to the older lads of fourteen. Little Anthony, his small stomach well distended with good meals, his fat cheeks liberally sprinkled with healthy red, along with the paler-faced brothers, Donald and John of the curly heads, have a playroom on the second floor. They are tiny, polite little things who gaze with interest at the chance visitor. Anthony's most liberal contribution to the interview is always a contented "good bye." He does not care much for strange faces.

Above stairs, after school hours, the other little boys play and read and study. Leon, the white-sweatered youngster of the bunch, has a big ball. Leon will say a "piece," he agrees after much persuasion, if Jimmy of the bright blue smiling eyes, will say it with him. But Jimmy has a solo performance of "Little Jack Horner," for Leon only gazes at him with admiring eyes as he tells about the famous small gourmand.

The Teacup Fairy

Then there is the cheerful thin Douglas, not long out from England, with his red sweater and his fair forelock of hair over his forehead. With great alacrity, he recites "Disappointment," all about the little fairy in the teacup, and then he dances blithely and unceasingly, until his small wind gives out almost completely—a soft-shoe shuffle to the phonograph music of "Dem Golden Slippers."

A sextette of small boys whose twelve round eyes are fixed unwaveringly on the listener's strange countenance, and who execute a queer little bow with their hands applied to their tummies, sing "Jack and Jill" in a pleasing up-and-down monotone and then they sing that comforting little hymn of the motherless and fatherless child: "Beautiful angel, sweet and so mild, tenderly guide me, for I am thy child."

There is a st[illegible] Sacred Heart here, with trilliums and early marsh marigolds in glass cup at its base, and in the little chapel on the first floor, where the white altar has its central statue of St. Vincent, the friend of homeless children, there are Mayflowers in many vases and bowls.

On Saturday, the Orhangae will have its annual tag day. And the children who are sheltered here, as well as the little girls who are in the Orphanage at Cobourg, will benefit by the contributions of those who have comfortable homes for their boys and girls.

See Canada First

Spring days bring the pleasures of planning for vacations later in the year and thousands of Ontario people have already settled their itineraries by train or automobile when at last they are free to obey the travel impulse. The injunction to "See Canada First" usually falls upon compliant ears, but few are so fortunate as to have enough holiday time to obey literally. They see some small part of Canada every year, but even with the rapid progress of the Dominion's railway and highway systems, they can not see the whole country, and in most cases confine their vacations to exploration of a single province. This is a misfortune, because an increased flow of interprovincial travel would be of great value in the development of Canadian unity and fellowship. The strengthening of the entente between East and West would be a simple matter if the Easterners could travel among the prairie folk for a time, and if Westerners could return the compliment.

For this reason the Dean Laird tour across Canada and back, now being arranged for the eighth summer by Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, Que., is worth bringing to public attention, which the Canadian Pacific Railway proceeds to do in an interesting booklet. The Dean Laird tour is organized each year in recognition of the fact that Canadians need an opportunity to see their own country, and that a party tour gives the traveller a much better chance to profit from his journey than he could do by seeing the same country unaccompanied. Those who have taken the trip from Toronto across the Prairies and through the Rockies to the Pacific Coast on the previous Dean Laird tours have been loud in their praises of the three weeks' outing. The itinerary is always well-planned, the method of travel is varied by steamer and motor jaunts, and many travel troubles are eliminated entirely by the special supervision afforded by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Then there is the element of comradeship, and the sociability of a large party of congenial travelling companions. To the usual holiday attractions are added experiences which broaden the mind and educate in a truly national sense. Natural resources and scenery are the smallest items among the benefits of an organized tour of this kind.

The Laird tour has been very successful in the past seven years and has taught many hundreds of Canadians that vacation money spent in Canada is just as profitable as if it were handed out for transportation and recreation in other countries. Hundreds more will see Canada this year in the same way, and will return ardent enthusiasts. The trip begins on July 27 at Toronto and ends on August 17 at the same place. The name of the C. P. R. is a guarantee that the standard of comfort will be high, indeed: there is none higher anywhere [illegible] world.

"I could not get on without it," said this experienced Chef...

NOT ONLY housewives, but experienced chefs in hotels and restaurants endorse St. Charles Milk. They find that it is not only economical and handy but, having rich cream in every drop, gives a rich improved flavor to their cooking.

Borden's St. Charles is nothing more or less than the pure full-cream milk of selected Canadian cows. Nothing is added and nothing but 60% of the moisture is removed. Every drop of St. Charles is sterilized and hermetically sealed under the most ideal hygienic conditions, and comes to you pure, sweet and wonderfully wholesome.

Use it regularly for your puddings and desserts and you and your family will be delighted with the rich new flavor of your cooking.

Recipe for Baked Custard

2 cups St. Charles Milk — ½ teaspoon salt
2 cups water — 4-6 eggs beaten
½ cup sugar — 1 teaspoon Vanilla
Few gratings nutmeg

Dilute milk with water and bring to scalding point—do not boil. Mix sugar, salt and beaten eggs. Pour the hot milk, a little at a time, over the egg mixture, stirring to blend thoroughly. Add the flavoring and pour into a buttered baking dish or individual custard cups. Set into pan of hot water and poach in moderate oven (240° to 325°F.) until firm. The custard is done if a knife blade comes out clean when thrust into the centre. (Simple enough for the most delicate child).

C.G.I.T. ENTERTAIN MOTHERS, FRIENDS

Interesting Talk at Knox Church is Followed by Splendid Supper and Program.

On Monday night the C.G.I.T. group of Knox Church entertained the mothers and friends of the girls, a large number of whom were present. The meeting which was ably presided over by the group president, Miss Verna Huffman, was opened with the singing of C.G.I.T. songs. Miss Marjorie Ruth read the scripture lesson and Miss Ruth Allen offered a prayer. The roll was called by Miss Alice Davis. A pleasing feature of the program was the contribution of a vocal duet by Miss Grace McCannon and Miss Margaret Hill. Miss Jean McCannon and Miss Dollie Sproat acted as accompanists.

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. John Bradbury, who spoke on the subject, "Great Tributes to Motherhood." It was pointed out that the institution of Mother's Day and its observance is one of the most general and finest tributes that can be paid motherhood. The speaker referred tothe tribute paid to parenthood by Our Lord when He was upon earth and of His tender consideration for His mother in His last hour upon the cross, of the tributes of great weiters, of the soldier Napoleon of the artists, who intensified the beauty of motherhood in their paintings of the madonna and child and in whistlers painting of his mother.

The speaker referred to the Greatest Mother in history, "My Mother" and that all may bring a tribute of love to her and that love may be manifested in the uselfishness and kindness of the child's consideration for her.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Bradbury was moved by Miss Jean Wilson and seconded by Miss Marguerite Wood.

At the conclusion of the program, the girls, each with her mother, formed a procession and proceeded to the primary room which was made attractive with rose shaded floor lamps. Little round tables centred with flowers and lighted candles were spread for supper. Miss Alice Davis poured coffee and Miss Edna Dunford poured tea. Mrs. C. Huffman was in charge of arrangements and had a bevy of assistants in C.G.I.T. uniform. Mrs. William McDonald, Miss Kathline Benson and MissDorothy Disney welcomed the guests.

During the supper hour the C.G.I.T. leader, Miss Peggy Donaldson spoke. She reviewed the work accomplished throughout the year and looked forward hopefully to a re-opening in the autumn.

Rev. William McDonald spoke in humorous voice commending the girls and their leaders for the success of the evening and giving a bit of timely advice to the girls urging them at all times to retain the gentle qualities of womanhood.

A toast was proposed to the mothers by Miss Dorothy Disney and was suitably responded to by Mrs. George Davis. Mrs. Davis took the opportunity to thank the leaders of the C.G.I.T. on behalf of the mothers for their interest in their daughters.

A delightful evening was brought to a close with the singing of the C.G.I.T. taps.

A display of work, dainty little garments for the baby and to be sent to hospitals, attracted much interest.

MANY ENTRIES SEEDS CONTEST

Field Crop Competition Conducted by Department Through Peterborough Exhibition.

CONTEST RULES.

Entries are coming in very well for the Combined Field Crops and Cleaned Seeds Contest held in this county by the Department of Agriculture through the Peterborough Exhibition. Some ten entries have been made so far and there is still room for more. It is expected that the number of competitors will be in the vicinity of 18 or 20. The contest will be limited to oat crops, and this will be with a view to increasing the produce of registered seed.

The following are among the rules governing the competition: The competitor must have at least five acres of oats sown with registered seed. Larger fields may be entered but the whole must be scored. Registered seed may be any of the varieties, O.A.C. No. 144, O.A.C. No. 72, Alaska, or O.A.C. No. 3. Contestants must be members of the Peterborough Exhibition Association. Applications for entry must be in by May 27, at the local office of the Department. The fields will be inspected for purity of variety and suitableness of crop for seed. At least 100 bushels of seed grain must be produced on the 5 acres, and this must be cleaned and sampled before December 1, so that judging can commence by January, 1932.

Those in charge of the contest have an attractive list of prizes to offer. Ten prizes will be awarded to the value of $275. The first prize will be $50, the second $45 and so on—the tenth $5.

The main purpose of the contest is the increasing of fields producing registered seed. When the contest was started three years ago there was practically none of this registered seed, but last year some 2,000 bushels were produced. Indications are that this year registered seed production will exceed 3,000 bushels in this county.

6TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

The 6th Boy Scout Troop held their weekly meeting Monday evening at the headquarters, Simcoe street. The meeting was well attended and opened with flag break and general inspection by Scout Master E. Wolff.

First class semaphore signalling was the principal work of the evening. The boys are now practically all ready for their test. This was shown by the manner in which messages were quickly and correctly transmitted across the large room by use of the flags. During the recreation period several scout games were played, including blind boxing which provided a great deal of amusement for all.

The patrol competition is closely drawing to a close, only two weeks remaining. The Beavers under G. LeBarr, Chicadees commanded by T. Hickson and Jim Sweetman's Crows are all striving hard for first place and only four points separate first and third positions. The Fox patrol although not so close still maintain they are in the running. Paul Picard's Foxes may show the other bird and animal patrols a few tricks in how to gain first position before the competition closes.

The Scout Master announced at Council fire that the troop would again hold a summer camp this year. If the preparations being made and the eagerness of the boys are any criterion, this year's outing will even surpass other ideal summer camps.

A few changes have taken place in the troop recently. Claire Sulivan has been appointed troop leader, and the troop is much improved by the manner in which this position is being cared for. Gerald LeBarr has been made patrol leader of the Beaver patrol, and has already shown his ability as a leader.

WOOLLEN REPORT CARRIES POINTER

Scottish Manufacturers Told They Must Keep Quality Up.

DEPEND ON NOVELTY.

LONDON, May 14 (C.P. Cable)—Attention is drawn to the steadily increasing competition the Scottish woollen industry has to face from Canadian manufacturers, in the report of the trade mission which recently visited Canada and the United States on behalf of the National Association of Scottish Woollen Manufacturers.

"Canadian manufacturers are making good material in the worsted classes and, sheltered by the tariff, will undoubtedly make headway," the report stated. A spokesman for the Canadian manufacturers is quoted as saying the Canadians are pressing for still further increases in the tariff.

"Our only reply to this must be to continue to make cloths of superior quality to the general run of domestic work," the report adds, "and to bear in mind that as the tariff is raised Scottish manufacturers will depend more and more on novelty to retain their footing. We therefore end this section of the report with words which we hope will become the slogan of our industry—'keep quality up.'"

'My Irish Rose' Staged By Dramatic Club

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, May 14 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Dramatic Club successfully presented "My Irish Rose" to a fair-sized crowd in the basement of St. John's United Church Campbellford, on Monday evening. A happy social half-hour was enjoyed by the players at the close of the program, they being entertained by a number of St. John's young people.

It is expected that the play will also be presented at Mount Pleasant on May 22nd, and possibly in Wooler at some later date.

STRANGE MALADY KILLING OFF THE PRAIRIE JACK-RABBIT PEST

Government Removes Bounty. But Jacks Disappear Just the Same.

COYOTE DOOMED

(Special to the Examiner, Copyright 1931.)

REGINA, Sask., May 14.—Astrange malady is killing off the jack rabbit, for a quarter century No. 1 pest on prairie grain lands.

Great numbers of big jacks once swarmed over Saskatchewan prairies and the provincial government and rural municipalities paid out huge sums in bounties to try to rid farm lands of a serious menace.

In spite of concerted efforts alarming increases in jack rabbit population were reported ten years ago. But government bounties were removed and rural municipal councils followed suit. This year very few rural councils offer bounties on these animals.

In spite of bounty removal the big jacks are disappearing from the face of the prairies. During the past winter, farmers sought jack rabbits for food.

They found the ranks of the seven and eight pound animals greatly depleted. Many jacks killed were skinned and found unfit for food.

Some farmers describe the malady as being tubercular. Others say that water blisters are found beneath the skin of the rabbit. Its exact nature is a mystery and its result startling. With the passing of the jack rabbit the coyote is going, too, for jack rabbits in the past were the chief source of food for the prairie "wolf."

ONCE 'TAME' BEAR RUNS AMOK; TEARS APART TRUCK AND SHED

Incensed With Idea of Being Moved, Huge Grizzly Attempts Freedom.

HAD TO BE SHOT

(Special to Examiner, Copyright, 1931.)

Sault Ste. Marie, May 14.—No more will "Tom" the huge 250 pound bear of the Algoma Hotel here, attract tourists, and entertain guests. Never again will his mighty jaws eat crusts of bread from the hand of some kindly passerby; or his tongue lick the hand that fed him.

For "Tom" has gone to the "happy hunting ground" of his kind. He is dead. The end came tragically.

"Tom," who was found and tamed in early youth, was thought to have served his usefulness at the Algoma Hotel, so the management decided to sell him. The great bear apparently had no objections to his master's making money out of him, but when they came to take him away, he decided it was time for action.

His new keepers approached, confident that he would be as docile as a lamb. But with a sudden lunge and a ferocious growl, "Tom" slashed; his huge paws were lifted, and the decks cleared for action.

They attempted to rope him, hog-tie him, and muzzle him but the huge grizzle wasn't having any. They got him as far as the truck, but before they could get started, he almost wrecked it; he tore off the sides, ripped up boards, and generally pulled off anything his great jaws, and huge paws could get hold of.

Finally however, brawn proved mightier than brawn, the "Tom" was cornered in a little shed.

Making a last desperate attempt for freedom, the "tame" bear almost tore the hut away from its foundations; he slashed, pushed, tore and pounded. The hut was becoming a shambles.

At last, realizing that this once docile and domesticated animal was not going to be moved, and that he had made up his mind not to stay, his keepers decided to call in the law to settle the argument.

And the police settled it for good and all. They shot him.

SAVES 116 LIVES WITHIN 26 MONTHS

L. B. Temple of Montreal, Is Decorated by Quebec Safety League.

MONTREAL, May 14 (By The Canadian Press). — With the gold medal of the Province of Quebec Safety League pinned upon his breast and the league's parchment on the table in front of him, L. B. Temple, head of the emergency squad of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Consolidated, delivered a message to the citizens of Montreal recently at the Mount Royal Hotel. The gold medal and parchment were presented to Mr. Temple by the league in recognition of his life-saving work.

"When you hear the bell of an emergency vehicle, be it mine, an ambulance, some fire apparatus or police patrol," said Mr. Temple, "please help us. Pedestrians, stay on the sidewalk; motorists, slow down and pull to the side of the street. You frequently read in the newspapers of accidents to firemen or ambulances while answering a rush call. These are caused by the thoughtlessness of those on the streets. When we get an emergency call we speculate how serious the emergency may be and what are our chances of success. We wonder how quickly we can get there and what is going to happen to us. We are driving on our nerve. When you cross suddenly in front of us you make our old hearts come into our mouths. We do not want to kill anyone, we want to save lives. Our lives are just as precious to us as yours are to you. So I ask those who control traffic and those who drive or control drivers to try to make the streets easier for us. Who knows, we may be going to try to save one of your loved ones or your own property and that moment's pause in our rush to the scene may be the moment that means the difference between life and death."

Jottings

Words are often wrongfully used, for instance, "funny," "bad," etc.

Sometimes when a man is knocked down with an auto, someone exclaims 'That's funny.' My mother used to say 'That's too bad,' when something good was done for her. An "old" Dutchman who said he saw thousands and thousands of Januaries and never saw one yet without a thaw, brought to Mother one day some garden stuff. Mother said, "O, Mr. Smith that is too bad." He replied, "not bad. it is goot."

Roseneath

ROSENEATH, May 14.—Mr. J. Tilley and daughter, Marguerite, Mr. Jack Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Steele, all of Toronto, were visitors with Mrs. Jackson and daughters, on Sunday.

Mr. Roger Parks and sister, Miss Marie Parks, of Belleville, attended service here on Sunday morning and guests of Miss H. Taylor.

Mr. Earl Barrie, of Detroit, Mr. J. Barrie and sister, Miss Mary Barrie, of Birdsalls, visited their sisters, Misses K. and H. Barrie, on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Donaugh and Mrs. Mason, of Toronto, paid a short visit to Mrs. Annie Lapp, on Sunday.

Mrs. Verona Brisbin and family of Harwood, were visitors in the village on Sunday and guests with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brisbin.

A few from here attended the concert at Cambourne, on Monday night and to hear Mr. Walter B. Craw, B.A., who gave an entertainment in Roseneath recently.

The Woman's Institute is to be held this week at the home of Mrs. Alfred Braithwaite This being the annual meeting and election of officers, it is urgently requested that all members be present.

Mrs. Ella Thompson and son Frank, and Mr. and Mrs. James Thompson and family, of Hastings, visited friends at Norwood, on Sunday.

Mrs. J. McHendry and daughter, Mary of Mimico, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. Murphy and Miss McHenry.

Mr. Dave McGrath and son, have started work on their planning mill in connection with the saw mill.

While watching a practise ball game on Saturday evening, Mr. Alex Shearer met with a misfortune by getting struck on the eye by a foul ball. Dr. Ryan was almost immediately on the scene and conveyed Mr. Shearer to the office and later to his home. Although Mr. Shearer suffered considerable pain and shock, his condition is not serious and we trust he will soon be out again.

CLAIRVOYANT'S VISION OF OIL MAY BE REALIZED IN ALBERTA

Dstron Seer's Prediction Found to be Accurate up to Actual Finding.

"TRAIL OF LONE PINE"

(Special to The Examiner. Copyright, 1931.)

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., May 14.— Is the vision of a Detroit clairvoyant to come true in the bringing in of an oil well in the Taber district 40 miles east of this city?

A large independent oil company in Alberta, Alberta Pacific Consolidated has taken over a wildcat well started back in 1929 by a British syndicate headed by Campbell Hunter international geologist, and already this well is showing oil. The Alberta company is highly confident that commercial production will be obtained once the oil sand is tapped by the bit.

With the well looking promising, W. B. Grubb, western old timer and for many years Justice of the Peace at Taber, declares his belief that the prophecy of a woman clairvoyant back in the seventies about "oil in the West" is on the eve of coming to pass.

The picturesque administrator of justice, in telling his story, relates that while living in Windsor, Ontario the fame of a Detroit crystal gazer spread across the border. Being in the Michigan city one day he called on the weaver of dreams.

What the Seer Saw.

After telling him many things about his life, the fortune teller burst forth as if from a trance and cried: "Go to the old house, at the river; go in the front door, go to the back door and look out. There it stands, the big lone pine. Dig down there for you will find oil."

The Windsor man chuckled as he paid his fee. The medium had told him some strangely familiar things about himself but this oil business was a poor guess, he figured. Thirty years later he found himself in Taber and one day in company with a geologist he drove across the prairie to look over the country. During this buggy ride the young "rock hound" suddenly surprised his companion by exclaiming: "There's a fault." And surveying the country continued: "And it runs southeast from here. This is interesting for it looks promising for mineral."

"Vision" Found True.

Returning to town, Mr. Grubb says the reference of the geologist to the geological "fault" haunted him. He could not get it off his mind and musing that evening the prophecy of the Detroit clairvoyant flashed through his mind. The next day in company with two other Taber business men, Grubb set out to explore.

A strong impression led him to direct the rig toward Chin and to debark northwest of Chin. Looking down from the Old Man river bank they spied a deserted old shack. Now excited the trio went down to the shack, entered it through the front door, walked to the back door and looked out. There stood the "lone pine" of the medium's vision.

"I guess you've found the one tree," said one of the party.

They all agreed that the picture corresponded perfectly with the story as told by the peace officer — all, except the oil and that would have to be drilled for. Mr. Grubb is not a millionaire but he knows a "hunch" when he feels one and while he has never put down a well he has never wavered in his confidence that the Taber district will be an oil field some day.

And now everyone is wondering if the clairvoyant's picture of a pool of oil lying beneath the prairie in the vicinity of the "lone pine" is not on the verge of verification.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR IS SPENT BY C.W.L.

Mrs. Edward Costello is Chosen New President for 1931 at Downeyville.

DOWNEYVILLE, May 14. (Examiner Correspondence.)—In the Parish Hall here the Catholic Womens League of St. Luke's Parish held their annual meeting. A large crowd was present. A very successful year was intimated by the various reports presented by the officers.

Miss Alma Scully recording secretary showed how the obligations of the League were met by means of socials, concerts and plays. Miss Mollie Duffy corresponding secretary submitted letters of appreciation from Sisters of Service, Sister Perpetual of Peterborough Orphanage and Sister Metilde, of Cobourg Orphanage, for assistance given.

Miss Delphina Piggott convenor of magazine reported twenty-eight contributions and readers of the Canadian League. The financial report given by Mrs. Patrick Harrington, treasurer, was a splendid one and showed the large amount of work done by the League whose membership is sixty-five. The total receipts of the year were $600.

The expenses were: To Joseph Gosselin and Carew Co., for hard wood flooring and carpenter work for sanctuary, $10.90 blankets, comforters, etc., for Garden Party, in July, $46.00; Peterborough and Cobourg Orphanages, $10.00; Sisters of Service, $10.00; Scholarship for pupil in High School, for second highest standing, $20.00; National Scholarship and National budget, each $5.00; monthly masses, $12.00; for spiritual and floral offerings, $5.40; improvements to Parish Hall $100; to Father Galvin at Christmas and Easter, $40.00; National and diocesan taxes, $6.50.

A vote of thanks was then moved to Father Galvin and retiring officers after which Mrs. Martin Carroll retiring president, was made the recipient of a beautiful gold rosary, a small token in recognition of her services during her term in office. Mrs. Joseph M. Lucas made the presentation. Mrs. Carroll expressed her thanks for the gift and also her appreciation of the co-operation of all members.

Much of the success of the League from year to year is due to the chaplain Rev. Father Galvin, who since it began ten years ago is always ready to offer his kindly advice or criticism in order that the organization might grow and be a credit to the parish. The Rev. Father was kind enough to be present and congratulated the members on the good work done.

The election of officers was as follows: President, Mrs. Edward Costello, past President, Mrs. Martin Carroll; Vice-President, Miss Delphina Piggott; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Wm. C. Herlihy; 3rd Vice-President, Mrs. Wm. B. Scully; Recording secretary, Mrs. James S. Lucas; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Hazel O'Neill; Treasurer, Mrs. George O'Donnell.

EX-M.P. OF 70 'COLLEGE BOY' IN ARTS-FINANCE, LAW NEXT

Admitted to Queen's on Irish Certificate Won 55 Years Ago.

IS ENJOYING WORK

(Special to The Examiner. Copyright) 1931.)

OTTAWA, May14.—A young man of 70, a soph at Queen's University despite his snowy hair and the fact that he was a member of parliament 14 years ago, and is now a retired merchant, has been in Ottawa on a visit and has assured old acquaintances that he is having the time of his life as a college boy.

He is Isaac Ellis Pedlow, of Renfrew, who made the front page in 1917 by his home constituency as a Laurier Liberal in the war-time election. In religion he is a Quaker. At Ottawa he often startled parliament with his views, but parliament liked him.

He was a dry good merchant in the town of Renfrew and he made a great succes of the business. A year or two ago he retired and announced that he intended to take a course at Queen's University. Most people thought he was joking. He wasn't.

He did not have to pass entrance examinations, for he had obtained his matriculation certificate at Lurgan in the Irish County of Armagh, 55 years ago and the university authorities accepted that. He is now a month or two more than three score years and ten.

Mr. Pedlow has finished first year in the arts and commerce course. In finance and political science, he not only passed but won honors. That was last fall. This spring he took history. The results are not yet known. He will take the French exam in the fall and he is also studying mathematics. After he has finished his arts and commerce course, he will take law.

"About this law business," he was asked. "Why are you thinking about law?"

"Well, I hardly know myself," he replied. "Perhaps it is just this: When I was a boy in Ireland I was intended for the law, but I couldn't stand for it at that time. I went to Dublin where I got a business training. In 1883, I came to Canada and spent a couple of years or so at Kingston. Then I went to Renfrew and have been there ever since.

His two daughters are both graduates of that college. One of them is married to a New York physician and the other helps her mother to keep house at Renfrew while the hussband and father is studying hard in a Kingston boarding house.

District Churches

AT PETHERICK'S CORNERS

Mother's Day was fittingly observed in Zion United Church at the Sunday evening service. Fred Barnum, Sabbath School superintendent, led the order of service. A reading was given by Cora Petherick and special music by the Young People's Choir. Rev. F. G. MacTavish gave the address, taking as his subject "The Hand that Rocks the Cradle," and basing his remarks on the story of the boy Samuel and the little coat which his mother annually brought to the temple for him.

A splendid attendance of members and visitors paid tribute to the mothers in whose honour the service was held.

WILL SEEK SUNKEN TREASURE.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 18.—Frank Curtis, salvage operator ,to-day announced plans to leave for Alaska May 25 with a barge, diving bell and other equipment to search the hulk of the steamer Islander for wealth from the Klondike.

The Islander sank in Stevens' Pass, near Juneau, in gold rush days. Curtis said he was guided by reports the vessel carried gold from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000 in value.

"MY IRISH ROSE" IS WELL ACTED

Presented at Campbellford Under Auspices of St. John's Y. P. L.

BY PETHERICK'S L.A.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 14. — A play, "My Irish Rose," presented by the Ladies' Aid of Petherick's Corners was sponsored by the Young People's League of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, at their regular meeting on Monday when a very large number attended and spent a very enjoyable time.

The play was well acted, all the members of the cast taking their parts with splendid characterization and interpretation. The cast was as follows: Colum McCormack, a prosperous Irish farmer of the County of Kildare; (Lindsay Anderson); Maurice Fitzgerald, a rich young Dublin artist, (Roy Fry); Terry Creigan, McCormack's nephew, a young Irish patriot in exile, (Don Watson); Mr. Archibald Pennywit:, a wealthy English tourist, (Clarence Barnum); Mr. Michael Pepperdine, an eminent Dublin barrister, (George Brunton); Shaw McGilly, the laziest man in County Kildare, (Fred Fry); Ann Mary McCormack, Column's sister with a true Irish heart, (Jennie Anderson); the Widow Hannigan, with money in the bank and an eye on Colum, (Ethel Barnum); Eileen Fitzgerald, a Dublin heiress, (Freda Petherick); Lady Anges Barricklow, who hesitates at nothing, (Laura Watson); Pegeen Burke, a servant on the McCormack form, (Gladys Simpson); Rose Greigan, a wild Irish Rose, (Mary Peake). The play was under the direction of Mrs. rFed Barnum.

At the conclusion of the evenings entertainment the Young Peoples entertained the cast to lunch.

WOMAN CHILDREN ARE FOUND SLAIN

Police Believe Mother Killed Three of Family, Then Took Own Life.

IN DETROIT HOUSE.

DETROIT, Mich., May 14 (C.P.).— A woman and three children were found slain in a house at 732 East Margaret Avenue at noon to-day. The throats of all had been slashed.

Although the identity of the four, believed to be members of a family that moved into th house last week, was undetermined, police expressed the belief that the woman killed the children and then took her own life.

Superintendent Patrick O'Grady and three other high police officials took charge of the investigation.

The children, a boy and two girls, ranged in age from four to ten years, police said. The woman was about 30 years old.

Mother's Day service in the United Church was one of excellency and delivered by the Rev. R. W. Paton, M.A., who left many good thoughts for his listeners to think about. The home, not a house, but the place where mother is. A reading by Rosella Taylor was very touching entitled, "The cap that Mother made." The singing aided greatly to the service among which was a chorus by the junior girls.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Covered With Boils on Arms, Back and Neck

Miss Margaret Higgins, Dyment, Ont., writes:—"I was covered with boils on my arms, face and neck. I used plasters and other remedies with no results. My attention was drawn to Burdock Blood Bitters, so I decided to get a bottle. The results were marvellous, as in no time the boils had completely disappeared, and my skin was clearer and fresher than ever."

OUTDOOR SIGNS OF FINE DESIGN

Harris and Boddy Build Quality Signs of Every Description.

INTERIOR DECORATORS.

Harris & Boddy design and build signs of every description, painted bulletins, posters, etc. They are in a position to furnish the people of this section with everything in distinctive artistic and spectacular electric and Neon signs to satisfy all purposes.

The outstanding leader to-day in outdoor advertising is Neon. Unknown until a short time ago Neon now stands as symbolic of the achievements in the field of modern display lighting. Neon penetrates fog to a far greater degree than any other illumination yet perfected. These signs embiazon before the public the message in a most beautiful and comprehensive manner. They are attractive and pleasing to the eye in color harmony and symmetry. At the present time 95 per cent. of the electricity consumed is wasted in useless heat. When the time comes that we understand how to transform electricity into ocld light such as the firefly uses, one will be able to light the home for less than one-twentieth of the present cost. The most progressive step yet taken toward this end was taken with the introduction of Neon. It has been stated authoritatively that Neon tubes will repiace the incandescent lamp. Harris & Boddy are agents in this territo for the Claude Neon General Advertising Company.

Under the personal direction of Messrs. Stanley Harris and T. H. Boddy, the owners, Harris & Boddy are ever striving to bring forth the new and unusual in signs and posters. They also offer a most complete service in painting and interior decorating. Throughout this entire section, wherever one may turn, are seen attractive signs of cloth, bronze, electrical, and various other types erected by Harris & Boddy. We suggest to the people that you consult with them and acquaint yourself with the efficient service that they offer. Do you knoww the approximate number of books of gold leaf used by them in 1930?

END PILES QUICK

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protuding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this — an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this city, that McDermid & Jury, Bonds Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile agony or money back.

WOMAN RECLUSE IS SEPARATED FROM HER PETS

Has Lived With 26 Dogs and Cats in Her Home for Past 20 Years.

FORMER DOCTOR.

One-time Prominent Horseman Did Much Medical Work Among Poor of Boston.

BOSTON, Mass., May 14.—Dr Mary Jones, who began practicing medicine in 1890, was in the Boston State Hospital to-day, for observation, and the 26 dogs and cats who were were only companions, separated from her for the first time, were taken to the Animal Rescue League.

Dr. Jones, who at one time was a prominent horsewoman, and in her younger days did considerable charitable medical work in the South End, for 20 years had lived the life of a recluse in her once-fashionable four-storey, 10 room home, surrounded by cats and dogs.

Yesterday, acting on the complaints of neighbors, representatives of the Animal Rescue League and the Boston Board of Health removed the 15 collie dogs and 11 angora cats.

The interior of the home was in startling contrast to the days when Dr. Jones was widely known, both professionally and socially.

There had been neither gas, electricity nor water in the house for more than six years, and piled carelessly in all the rooms were antique treasures of every description.

Covered with the dust of two decades were expensive china, tapestries and lace, and other costly furnishings. There also were the silver cups awarded to prize winning dogs in the days when Dr. Jones was an active member of the Massachusetts Ladies' Kennel Club.

The yellow pages of dust-covered ledgers disclosed the kindliness of heart of the pioneer woman physician in the days when she was keen of mind and steady of hand. Fees amounting to $40,000 for medical service to the city's poor were charged off as her contribution to the welfare of mankind.

Fly In Driver's Eye Is Cause Of Accident

COBOURG, May 14.— Three persons were injured when Philippe Gagne, of Detroit, lost control of his car on William street, when an insect had entered his eye and temporarily blinded him. Mrs. Cora Gagne, suffered three fractured ribs; Mrs. L. J. Weister sustained bruises on the arm and cuts on the face and Mary Weister, 10 months old, was at first thought to have concussion of the brain. The driver was unhurt. Dr. E. W. Hayden attended the injured who all continued on their journey to Overbrook, Ont.

GIBRALTAR IS GREAT FORTRESS

hold their own with a month in jail. Up to now I have never spent a month in jail, but I have spent a Sunday in Edinburgh—and rather enjoyed it.

Fade Out At Ten.

At ten o'clock at night they lock the town up and hand it over to sentries. At 10.06 you could roar a car up and down the main street with machine guns spiting fire fore and aft without hitting a soul. They're all asleep long before 10. There isn't anything else to do. The place is like a city of ghosts with a pale moon shimmering down on that jagged gaunt tooth which sticks up through the sea—and the sign isn't on that tooth either.

There are 4,000 British soldiers here guarding the rock and sailors averaging from 2,500 to 17,000 depending on how many ships are in, but they must be bunked up by ten. The 20,000 civilians just lie down and quit when the soldiers hit the hay. A swell place for people with that tired feeling.

I was the only white passenger on steamer as she crossed from Morocco today. The others were Moors and Arabs and Nubians. One of the Nubians thought it would be good fun to pierce my ears and sell me a pair of gold rings right on the ship. As escape from boredom, I was tempted to let him go ahead, so I could come home a modern Othello but I thought better of it.

We tied up alongside a sleek and vicious looking submarine and the crew, knowing where true importance lay, took off all the mail before they let me and the perfume maestros land. There followed the most perfunctory of examinations. A typical London bobbie except for his half-caste accent demanded, "what nationality?' "British."

"How long are you staying?" "Three or four days.'

"You probably wont," he added by way of welcome.

The customs man was even less trouble. "Any firearms?" he demanded. "No." "Okay, pass along." That was that.

I looked for a taxi. There were none, but dozens of ancient carriages with scrawny horses which looked fit only for the bull ring. The carriages had floppy things like sails for roofs and must belong to some sort of union because they steadfastly refuse to lead luggage. Nothing doing on that luggage thing, I'd have to hire another horse and dray. I compromised on a wheelbarrow and we trotted up to the city proper which snuggles among barracks and batteries under that incredibly big rock.

Main Street itself looked good. The hotel was fair. I thought I'd like the place. Then I discovered that was practically the only street with shops, the shops closed most of the afternoon for siesta, and not only closed but locked themselves up behind steel shutters after dark.

Gibraltar's one brief hour of glory is between 7 and 8 in the evening. Then the city gathers in the pubs and the jazz bands play. Where the bands come from nobody knows because you never hear a peep of music except at this one hour. The bands are all female affairs and rather good as jazz bands go.

The whole place is regulated by bugle calls and the tread of marching feet. You are told before landing here that cameras are absolutely taboo yet the largest shop in the entire city specializes in cameras and their accessories. Guides also make a fuss over the fact that this is the last home of the wild monkey in all Europe; as if anybody cared. The monkeys run around and have fun away up atop the rock and you are expected to go up there and fraternize with them or something. You have one guess on where I went.

Most of the troops on the rock are married. They live in "married quarters" and if there is anything quite so gloomy looking as those quarters in all this funny world, it must be an abattoir after an earthquake. Two or three hundred years old, ten feet thick, crowded, smelly and practically without windows these houses stand as the supreme temptation to suicide.

Dress Babies To Color

Young wives live there and nurse their babies and there is one strict law about babies on the rock. They must never, never, never be dressed off color. A girl baby wears pink—always. A boy baby wears blue—always. Let Mrs. Muggins put her lad George in a pink bonnet and the jolly old rock would probably blow up.

There is a newspaper published on the rock. It tells you that it didn't rain yesterday and you can believe it because that's all the paper does tell you. Well, perhaps I'll find a couple of stories around here, who knows, but you gather, perhaps, that Gibraltar is only impressive as a fortress.

Amazing New Recipe— for Home Baking

"There is so little work to this new method," writes Mrs. F. Steinke, Ladysmith, Quebec.

IT'S easy to make bread by the Quaker Method. Just imagine—no kneading, no setting the sponge! You actually bake lighter, more delicious bread, in half the time . . . and at less cost!

But you must use Quaker Flour and follows instructions in our booklet "The Quaker Method of Easy Bread Baking." Quaker Flour is of unvarying high quality because milled of the very finest wheat. Tested at every stage in the milling. Samples are baked in our own kitchen every day. If you're not satisfied that Quaker Flour is the finest you have ever used, your dealer will refund your money.

What To-day Means To You.

"TAURUS"

If May 14th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 a.m. to 11:10 a.m., from 3:10 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. The danger hours are from noon to 2:30 p.m. and from 5:45 p.m. to 7:15 p.m.

The planetary aspects of May 14th indicate a morning of successful activity. Something worthwhile attempted means something done. However, an afternoon of disappointment caused by other's meddlesome interference, and an evening of stimulation, well suited to socia amenities.

A child born on this May 14th will have a varied character. It will be fond of outdoor life, have a great deal of energy, and yet rarely make a complete success of anything. There will be lacking the determination to see it through, and it will be satisfied with spasmodic and intermittent effort.

Born on May 14th, you are especially fond of art and the beautiful things of life. You find it hard to adapt yourself to any environment that is not "just exactly so." You also find it difficult to associate with those whose standards do not conform to yours. Many think you are snubbish, and it must be confessed that your attitude rather justifies this criticism. On the other hand, it is an innate sense of what is fitting that makes you as you are. You could no more hide your feelings, than you could conceal a wart on your nose.

You are, fortunately, indifferent to outside opinion and are self-contained. You pursue the even tenor of your way, regardless of snubs or isolation. By careful study and much reading, you have acquired a great stock of valueable information, and possess the happy faculty of being able to impart it to others. You are no idler, although many of your efforts end in failure. You are a "wash out" as an executive, and cannot assume that spirit of comradeship which so often turns failure into success.

You have a heart of gold with it all, and those who comprise your family circle will, with gladness, always testify to your kindness, sympathy and thoughtfulness.

Saves in 3 ways

1. Keeps hands from getting red.
2. Makes silks, linens, woolens wear longer
3. Gives richer suds with less soap.

"PROTECT— Silks . . . Woolens . . . Linens with this Purer Soap" . . .

says Mrs. Hilda Doran Ross

MANY women have written asking me why their precious silks, woolens and linens wear out so quickly. Why their hands are always red and rough.

To all I answer "The soap you are using contains harsh caustic. I advise Princess Soap Flakes, because they are all pure soap. Not a bit of filler or free caustic."

Just notice the rich abundant suds that keep coming up, when you use Princess Flakes. See how little soap you use to get all these suds. That's proof number one that Princess Flakes are purer.

Then notice how delicate coloured silks and linens never fade.

How woolens stay soft and fluffy. How hands never get red and rough, but stay soft, smooth and white. Do you wonder that women everywhere use this pure soap for every household need. For laundry work. For dishwashing. For wiping floors and linoleum.

"But can I afford such a pure soap for every task?" you may ask. Yes, because this purer soap goes further, costs less. Write me for my free book of "Household Hints." Address me at 64 Natalie St., Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. V. Darling were in Toronto for the banquet and dance of the Ontario Society of Photographers, held at the Royal York Hotel in connection with the annual convention of the society.

Miss F. Dench is in Toronto this week, attending the annual convention of the Women's Auxiliary to the Church of England.

Miss Phyllis Holdaway of Port Hope will be one of the group of graduates this year from the Grant Macdonald Training School, Toronto Hospital for Incurables. Miss Luella Macdonald and Miss Katherine Rusland of Kirkfield are also among the graduates. The exercises will be held on the evening of May 20 in Parkdale United Church, Toronto, and will be followed by a reception at the Lady Mortimer Clark residence for nurses.

Mr. Oscar Perdue, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Perdue, Sutherland Street, is home for the summer holidays from the Ontario College of Pharmacy, University of Toronto.

Peterborough music-lovers who have had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Grete Schoni, the young Swiss coloratura soprano of Toronto, sing, during several visits to the city, will be interested in learning that she has won the gold medal for soprano solo at the Stratford Musical Festival this week. There were fifteen contestants in the class. Mrs. Schoni is now the possessor of three medals, won at Music Festivals, and has received all her vocal training from Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Stevenson and son, of England, who have been spending the past few months with Mr. Stevenson's mother and sisters in Edmonton, Alberta, after a tour of Canada, arrived in the city this week to visit Mrs. Stevenson's uncle, Mr. Lancelot Nicholson of Bailieboro. They are returning to England shortly on the Cunard liner Athenia.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

It is excellent for mending silk shades also. The strips are as clear as glass, this being necessary if notes of music and words on pages are to be read through the paper.

* * * * * * *

Hence it will not be visible although the lamp may be lighted.

* * * * * * *

The value of adhesive tape in mending has been recognized for sometime. Now here comes a thinner tape of this type that is equally adhesive and strong, but much thinner.

* * * * * * *

It is grey in color and can be used to mend textiles. Apply it to the wrong side of the material, draw the edges of the torn place close together and a strong mend is assured which will not show on the right side.

* * * * * * *

One silk court plaster was so used but unlike this adhesive agent, the regulation court plaster is stiff and not well suited to mending.

* * * * * * *

Have you ever tried mending artificial foliage? This tape is just the thing to mend artificial foliage from which the little wire, glued to the back, has loosened.

* * * * * * *

Cut a very fine strip of tape the right length to cover the wire. Adjust the wire correctly and press the adhesive tape over it and against the back of the leaf.

* * * * * * *

Of course there are a large number of other ways one can use the tape and no doubt you, yourself, know of some. Should you know of some particular way that you think might interest the readers, why not write

There is no doubt that Peterborough's housewives and even business women and girls have found that the upkeep of a home and one's personal wardrobe consists largely in mending articles so that they look as nearly like new as possible.

* * * * * * *

Any mending agent is welcomed that will further this end and that can be used easily. No doubt you know of many of these agents.

* * * * * * *

How many of you have ever heard of liquid court plaster? I hadn't heard of it until recently. It is said that liquid court plaster will stop the runs in stockings.

* * * * * * *

Touch the end of the run (when it starts, if possible) with a drop or two of the liquid plaster and it seals the threads from further ravelling even when the hosiery is washed.

* * * * * * *

The liquid is transparent and is discerned only with difficulty when the stockings are on. This liquid court plaster will mend many things.

* * * * * * *

Transparent mending paper such as is used to mend sheets of music or printed pages is just the thing to mend paper lamp shades with, even such delicate shades as those of Japanese rice paper.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

FATS AND COLDS

Although colds are not as frequent in warm weather as in cold, nevertheless colds seem to be always about, and physicians have always been trying to discover some means of preventing them.

A number of years ago it was customary to give cod liver oil to prevent colds, but latterly the fact that Vitamin D is in cod liver oil has turned many minds to thinking what it was the vitamin rather than the oil that was the important part of the cod liver oil. There is no denying the fact that vitamin D acts just as sunshine on children and so cod liver oil has been called "bottled sunshine."

However there is no question but that the oil itself—fat— is of benefit in colds and all ailments of the nose, throat, and chest. In fact your doctor will tell you that the way to keep clear of colds is to eat butter, cream, and fat meats as fats are a "protective" food.

Now the trouble with this is that eating more fat means cutting down on starches—sugar, bread, vegetables—foods which the body needs to enable you to work. The usual amount of proteids—meat and eggs—must be eaten by everybody, winter or summer as they are needed to repair the tissues of the body.

You can thus see that any one with a tendency to colds and who is naturally anxious to prevent them is going to have a hard job knowing just what to eat, seeing that the three classes of foods, meats and eggs, sugars, bread, and vegetables, and fats and oils, are all absolutely necessary for the proper maintenance and working of all parts of the body.

However there are certain points to consider. The fat diet doesn't agree with everybody, although for that matter a diet rich in starch likewise gives trouble—gas and indigestion—in many cases.

There are a couple of facts however that are not familiar to everybody. First, lean meat even very lean meat, has a great deal of fat in it, so meat might easily be increased to get more fat. Second, fat has twice the heat value of starches, so that the starches may be cut down slightly, and the fats increased slightly, without any great interference with the diet.

The idea then where there is a tendency to colds is to continue eating the usual amount of meat and eggs, to cut down slightly in starches, and increase the fats.

Scullin's Proposal Is Advanced Step

CANBERRA, Australia, May 14 (C. P. Cable via Reuters).—The Government's proposals to convert the House of Representatives into an informal conference devoid of sectional differences, in order to arrive at a common policy for the solution of Australia's pressing difficulties, were advanced to a more definite stage by Prime Minister Scullin to-day.

Speaking in the House of Representatives this afternoon the Prime Minister suggested the adjournment of Parliament for a week beginning on May 20, and that the members of the Senate, or selected representatives of the Senate, be invited to participate in the conference.

R.M.C. Is Notified June Ball Cancelled

KINGSTON, Ont., May 14.—(Special to The Examiner.)— The commandant of the Royal Military College is advised by Department of National Defence to close college Sunday, May 17, the Cadets leaving for their homes. The June ball, sports and other events set for closing are cancelled. Presentation of prizes will take place at the opening of next term in September.

DRAPERIES MADE NEW

"When we resumed housekeeping a month ago I found my draperies had become creased from packing. I hung them out on the line, hoping to remove the creases. Then I forgot them. The result was they became badly faded and sun-spotted.

"I was heartsick until the happy thought struck me to dye them. I just dyed them a deeper green, and as I used Diamond Dyes they look gorgeous and new. I have never seen easier dyes to use than Diamond Dyes. They give the most beautiful colors—when used either for tinting or dyeing—and never take the life out of cloth as other dyes do."

Healey Falls Cottage Damaged By Lightning

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Keller, "Rest-a-While" Healey Falls, had an unpleasant experience on Sunday afternoon last during the course of the severe storm which passed over that section in the afternoon.

While entertaining some friends, the lightning struck the house, entered the dining room close to the ceiling, ran around the room, and although not damaging the fuse block, it jumped from the telephone wires across the width of a doorway to some electric wires behind the plaster, which formerly had been connected to an electric clock. The plaster at this particular place was pushed out, and Mr. Keller was unable to say where or how it escaped from there. No serious damage was done. Some of the plaster and decorations were destroyed.

FASHION SERVICE

Here's something charming and chic in redingote—and kindly too if you're inclined to be a wee bit heavy.

You see the collar of the printed crepe silk dress gives a lengthened line, falling softly in rever fashion as it does over the coat of plain crepe silk.

Both the coat and the dress are finished with applied bands that have a tendency to diminish bulk about the hips. The dress sleeve peeps smartly 'neath the seven-eighth length coat sleeve.

It's an excellent ensemble for business or for travel and so splendid for town wear.

Style No. 3083 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust.

Wool crepe, shantung, and many rayon novelties suitable.

Size 36 requires 3 7-8 yards 39-inch for coat, with 4 3-8 yards 39-inch for dress.

Be sure to fill in the size of the pattern. Send stamps or coin (coin preferred).

Our large Fashion Book shows how to dress up to the minute at very little expense. It contains most attractive Paris designs for adults and children, embroidery, etc.

W. P. BULL'S SON TO WED HEIRESS

Announcement Made at Home of Bride-to-be's Mother, Mrs. B. Baur, Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 14. — Miss Rosemary Baur, known as one of Chicago's richest heiresses, daughter of Mrs. Bertha Baur, civic and social leader, will become the bride of Burtle Bull, eldest son of W. Perkins Bull, K.C., of Toronto, Ont. The announcement was made last night at a dinner party in Mrs. Baur's home. Miss Baur was 20 years old to-day, while the groom is 28.

Mr. Bull returned to Chicago from Cuba only recently, where he suffered an attack of poisoning.

News of the engagement was not surprising, friends of both families said. Last fall Miss Baur and her mother returned from a visit at Cap D'Antibes in Southern France where Bull visited them.

The prospective bride made her debut last autumn, and was presented at the Court of St. James. She was educated at Byrn Mawr College. Mr. Bull was educated at Eton and Magdalen College, Oxford. He is a barrister of the Inner Temple.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO MISSES IRWIN

Presentations Made at Social Gathering at Home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fallis.

BETHANY, May 12. (Examiner Correspondence.) On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, a large number of the ladies of the vicinity gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fallis to honor the Misses Irwin before their departure from Bethany.

In honor of Miss Irwin's approaching marriage, she was presented with a shower of gifts. Promptly at eight o'clock the large living rooms were filled with Miss Irwin's friends and on her appearance Mr. Fallis led her to a central part of the living room where she was seated. Immediately two dainty cupids approached, drawing a large white basket piled high with gifts, she being completely buried with parcels. Miss Irwin expressed a wish to see the contents, Mrs. Sid Armstrong unwrapping the parcels while Miss Ethel Fair read the names of the donors and the various expressions accompanying each gift. The little cupids, Eleanor Bigelow and George Fallis were kept busy bringing a second and third basket.

The third basket contained a group gift, consisting of a pair of beautiful kenwood blankets in blue, rose and fawn colors and a cream silk rayon bedspread.

Miss Irwin thanked her friends for the lovely gifts and the good wishes and expressed a wish that Mr. Fallis assist her to express her sentiments.

This part of the program being concluded, another consisting of music, songs and readings were given and included: duet, Miss Fair and Miss Helen Patton; song, Mrs. C. Rowan; recitation, Miss Elsie Richardson; duet, Misses Fair and Patton; song, Mrs. Scott.

A dainty lunch was served to the guests.

Miss Edwina Irwina, who was unable to be present in such an active scene, had also been remembered with a beautiful set of dresser furniture and also a Sapphire ring set in white gold and the setting contained Miss Edwina's birthstone.

The Misses Irwin have disposed of their home to the Municipal Telephone System, for office and residence.

Sir Beddoe Rees Dies At His Home in London

LONDON, May 14. (C. P. Cable)—Sir Beddoe Rees, joint treasurer of the National Free Church Council of England and a former president of that body, died to-day. He was a Welshman and had always taken a keen interest in Welsh national movements. # WOMEN ELDERS IS DISCUSSED

Cobourg Presbytery Defers Discussion on Important Subject.

LEGION GETS CHARTER.

COBOURG, May 14.— Presbytery of the United Church will discuss the question of women elders during the meeting to be held in Warkworth in July, at which Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, of Grafton, will give an adress on the subject. The question was deferred at the presbytery's meeting on Tuesday, and it was announced that congregations throughout the United Church would vote upon the matter during the year and that the general council will act in accordance with the result of the voting.

An investigation into the activities of the two temperance organizations in Ontario, the Ontario Prohibition Union and the Ontario Temperance Association, will be asked by the presbytery in order that ministers will know what action to take in regard to each of them.

Deaf Students Danced.

Twenty-four deaf students of the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville danced to music Tuesday night without any direction other than the music vibrations received by them from the stage floor. The group ranged in age from seven to eighteen years and was part of the minstrel show presented by the Cobourg Rotary Club in aid of crippled children. One child, deaf since birth and but eight years of age, announced the dances in a clear voice with much expression. The children danced a scene from the operetta, "Mother Goose's Birthday." The show was produced by the Belleville Rotary Club.

Masonic Ceremonial Dinner.

Members of Charlotte Lodge No. 1088 of Rochester, N.Y., will visit Cobourg on Saturday of this week for a ceremonial dinner under the direction of Webster Forest of Tall Cedars Lodge No. 1. Members of eleven Canadian A.F. and A.M. lodges have been invited.

Legion gets Charter.

Colborne branch of the Canadian Legion has been presented with its charter by Rev. E. Ralph Adye, of Whitby, who was zone director, before this district was divided. Major, the Rev. J. F. B. Belford, present zone director of Cobourg district, was present, as was Col. A. E. Hopper, representative of the Cobourg branch.

Spends 14 Days On Top of Chimney

TOKYO, May 14. —(CP)— A fourteen day hunger strike on top of a chimney was ended today when Hiroshi Chiba allowed himself to be lowered to earth in a basket upon settlement of a dispute between a local dye works and workmen, with whom he sympathized.

He was weak but entirely conscious and was taken to a hospital. While atop the chimney he threatened to throw himself to the ground if attempts were made to remove him. Doctors who climbed to the chimney top Tuesday found his condition grave and gave him injections to keep him alive. Strikers took a waterproof sheet up to him to protect him from the driving rain.

Crash Victim Dies After 2 Years In Bed

STRATFORD, Ont., May 14 (C.P.).—Death ended almost two years of confinement in bed, when Mrs. Leslie Dunseith died at her home here late yesterday.

Mrs. Dunseith was the victim of an automobile accident near her home on the night of August 17, 1929, when a car driven by James Verner of this city figured in a crash with a car in which Mrs. Dunseith, her husband and a hired man were driving to Stratford. Mrs. Dunseith suffered a fractured spine and lacerated spinal cord. After spending some weeks in the hospital, Mrs. Dunseith was removed to her home, but had been paralyzed from the breast down ever since.

Italy now has 1,100 army aircraft.

WORKMEN BUSY ON ARMOUR HILL

Forty-two Men Are Engaged Preparing for Paving Roadway.

CITY DOING JOB.

The work of levelling the Armour Hill roadway in preparation for paving Hunter street to the Lift-Lock is proceeding rapidly. Forty-two of the city's unemployed have been on the job for the past week with picks and shovels.

The steep embankment bordering the north side of the road is being cut back and the material transported by truck along several streets in the south end of East City. A drain will be laid along the north side of the road, the ditch being already well under way. The new paved road will follow the natural curve of the old road and the sidewalk will parallel it with a 12-foot boulevard between.

Much preliminary work remains to be done before the cement will begin to pour out from the big cement mixer which the city will rent from T. A. Brown Construction Company for the job.

Sims Greater Shows Coming Next Week

The Sims Greater Shows will arrive in Peterborough Sunday from Port Hope for a week's engagement on the Exhibition Grounds. Sims Greater Shows will play Peterborough for the first time although it is the largest all-Canadian owned show. The shows will open Monday night and thereafter until Saturday night. The entire outfit is practically new and carries four riding devices, Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Whip and Mix Up, and five big feature shows in addition to 30 other attractions.

One of the attractions especially for the children is the Monkey Speedway, in which the monkeys drive their own automobile and in which Bill is the feature when he does his wonderful Loop the Loop. In the Big Side Show will be found some of the world's greatest curiosities.

The Hot Dog and Peanut venders will be there together with the clowns. Three big organs are used to furnish the music one of which represents an investment of $10,000.00 and the only one of its kind in Canada, being twenty feet long and fourteen feet high.

The company travels by special train and employs nearly two hundred people.

This company opened its season in Brantford May 2nd, at which city it played for the benefit of the Canadian Legion.

Stolen Car Crashes; Two Meet Death

ARLINGTON, Mass., May 14. — A stolen automobile, pursued by a police car, carried two to their deaths today as it rolled down a 40-foot embankment at the end of a dead-end street. Three were seriously injured.

The dead were: John Scott, 23, of Watertown, and Mrs. Helen Flynn, 22, of Somerville.

The injured were taken to the Symmes Hospital. They were Helen Lydon of Somerville, Hugh Quigley, 21, of Cambridge, whom police say drove the car, and Robert Gibson of Cambridge.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

LAWRENCE TIBBETT in "THE PRODIGAL"

Bernard Shaw would like this picture, because it's nearly all characterization, without much plot. But what an entertaining production it is, with a quality of realness to its characters that makes it stand out. Lawrence Tibbett may have had more spectacular and flamboyant roles, but he hasn't to date had a more appealing part than this, as the prodigal son who becomes a kinght of the road and brings his two companions back to his aristocratic Southern home to face the enmity of his jealous brother and to fall in love with the brother's wife.

A peculiar thing about the picture is that fact that they all stick to their soft, slurred 'rs' with great fidelity. The Southern accent never slips up, but the script girl, that eagle-eyed female who is supposed to watch every little thing about a picture in the way of detail, must have slipped a little, because there is one bit where a very perceptible rift appears in the lace of the mother's dress. It isn't often that wrong details like that slip into a production.

Anyway, it's lots of fun. The three nonchalant lads who tramp the roads have a line of gab all their own that is entertaining in the extreme, and Roland Young as 'Doc' the oldest of the trio, is as funny as a barrel of monkeys. There is romance of the modern variety in the picture, with a blonde wife who is tired of her brutal husband, and a singing troubadour who charms her heart with his kindness. The mother is one of the most delightful characters in the piece, which is filled with delightful characters, even to the sleepy darky who pilots the old horse. And the singing of Tibbett is superb. Possibly the sound effects in "The Prodigal" are better than in other productions, and that may be why his voice seems to be more beautiful than ever. He sings "I'll Never Know" with a cadence that melts the heart, while his singing of the negro exaltation in the barbecue scene is another wonderful bit.

Through our favorite medium we put through calls to the Earl of Essex and Mary Queen of Scots, and they both declare unhesitatingly that, although Queen Elizabeth swore like a man she really was a woman.

Lady Cynthia Mosley, though wealthy and aristocratic, is a Socialist and can speak the language of the proletariat. "What this country needs," says she, "is a party strong enough to form a government with guts." There would have been lifting of eyebrows in Victorian days if she had used that expression in public. Indeed it might have cost her father a peerage. How the word comes to be a synonym for courage should engage the attention of lexicographers. In olden days the bowels were thought to be the seat of the affections and of courage, too, hence the expression "stout hearted," but in the luried lexicon of militant socialism "a government with a heart," would have little meaning and less appeal.

The late Tim Healy was a bonny fighter in his younger days but like many others (not including Clemenceau) he mellowed in his later years. A friend of mine who visited him during the war says that Healy told him that while he was a member at Westminster a neighbor used to plant his garden and take care of it and would not take pay or potatoes for his work. "That man," said Healy, "was master of an Orange Lodge, but I could not have had a better neighbor. I often think we would have no sectarian troubles in Ireland if Catholics and Protestants had been distributed indiscriminately instead of being settled in blocks."

COMPULSORY MARKETING IN NORWAY.

A bill which will establish marketing of all exports by a compulsory pool is now before the Norwegian Parliament, according to advice received by the overseas offices of the Canadian National Railway's Agricultural Department. Under this bill no producer will be allowed to export products unless a member of the organization representing his own economic class. An export Board of eight members is to be established for the regulation of all exports.

The incident was significant, for the Labor Government only yesterday declared its acceptance of the general principles of an Empire wheat quota, and there was some keen interest in the attitude of the Liberals who are helping the Labor Government to remain in power.

Strikes at Own People

Mr. Herbert frankly stated that the reference to revenue tariffs "Strikes at some of our own people." "We don't want to chase people out of the party if we can help it," he proceeded.

J. L. Tattersall, vice-chairman of the Lancashire Cotton Corporation, moved the main resolution on Free Trade. He argued that Lancashire could not benefit from Protection. It would increase the cost of production and thus make more difficult the retention of export trade.

"The Canadian Wheat Pool last year held up prices," Mr. Tattersall remarked. "The Argentine came to our rescue and gave us the benefit of their great harvest. If we buy freely from countries which our Prince recently visited, then we can expect to send them our manufactures. The depression from which our country is suffering cannot be put down to our system of free imports for other countries having high tariffs are suffering as much if not more."

Prof. Ramsay Muir, Chairman of the party organization, added that unemployment in the United States was four times as great as in Great Britain, while the population was only three times as large. Unemployment in Germany was one hundred per cent greater, he said, while the population was only fifty per cent larger.

WOMEN PROFITED MORE THAN MEN IN FIGHT AGAIN ST DREAD CANCER

Have Advantage in Fact of Reporting Symptoms Earlier For Treatment.

RECORD KEPT 27 YEARS.

(By Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor.)

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 14.—Women have profited more than men from the medical campaign to save lives by reporting cancer earlier.

This is the showing in a study of decrease in avoidable delay in 27 years records at the Lankenau Hospital here. The figures were made public to-day by Stanley P. Reimann, director and Frederick H. Safford, consulting statistician, of the Lankeau Hospital Research Institute.

"By avoidable delay," their report states "Is meant the time elapsing between the discovery of symptoms and the institution of treatment. In treated malignant cases it is this time interval which determines the results in the great majority of cases more than any other one factor. The delay averages five and 8-10 months.

The histories of 3780 cancer cases at Lankenau from 1900 to 1927 were studied. In earlier reporting, the patients moved up an average of three weeks and six days.

Most of the gain is due to women reporting earlier. They appear on an average of a month and three days sooner, while men have moved up only about six days.

"The difference in the delays from 1900 to 1927 is small," Dr. Reimann said, "it is quite obvious that continuous, increasing education is needed to diminish the avoidable delay.

"While statistics show that women are but slightly more subject to carcinoma than men, women enjoy aprobable advantage in that the majority of their tumors appear where the symptoms are detectable early and with precision, whereas many in men are where early diagnosis is impossible."

English Paper Down.

MANCHESTER, Eng., May 6 (By The Canadian Press)—A well-known negro singer from the United States recently in London was unable to secure hotel accommodation such as he desired, and The Manchester Guardian editorially makes unfavorable comment upon the incident. "People will go to hear him sing," The Guardian says, "but they will not tolerate him as a fellow guest in a hotel. Unfortunately such unreasonable prejudice appears so be on the increase rather than on the wane."

Continuing on the subject of color prejudice, The Guardian says: "It has been notorious in America, with the most lamentable consequences now and possibly with still more lamentable consequences in the future; in England it has not hitherto been general. A negro was not always made to feel uncomfortable in London just because he was black any more than a Japanese was made to feel uncomfortable because he was yellow or a Swede because he was pink.

"There is something entirely uncivilized and vulgar in making color a reason for social aloofness, a kind of vicious provincialism; in the capital city of an Empire the vast majority of whose subjects are brown or black color fastidiousness and the attitude of mind behind color fastidiousness are disastrous. It is not more surprising that men should be multi-colored than that flowers should be multi-colored. A uniformly pink humanity would be uninteresting and monotonous. To look with suspicion on a man who is black, to feel contaminated by his presence, is to emulate in this country the worst features of the caste system that we have so long and so self-righteously condemned in India."

In conclusion The Guardian says that those London hotelkeepers who refused to reserve rooms for the colored singer in question were probably only carrying out what they imagined to be wishes of their customers, but declares it was a pity the more civilized Londoners did not "protest against such bad breeding and shame it out of existence."

Interferes In Fight Girl Badly Wounded

LOCKPORT, N.Y., May 14.—The condition of Miss Delia Ouellet, St. Catharines, Ont., shot in the right breast last night when she attempted to interfere in what was described as a family quarrel between Augustus Alex and his wife, to-day remained serious.

Miss Ouellet is said to have jumped between Alex and his wife as the former raised his revolver and fired. Alex later fatally wounded his wife and committed suicide. He was said to have been prompted by insane jealousy.

Receives Bequest

Bequeathed two-thirds of the five hundred thousand dollar estate left by the late Arnold Bennett, most popular of English novelists Mrs. Doris Cheston-Bennett (above), is a former London actress. She assumed the hyphenated name by deed poll shortly before the author's death.

MRS. G. WHITE IS ELECTED HEAD

Catholic Women's League Holds Annual Meeting in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum.

REPORTS READ.

Mrs. G. White was elected as president of the Catholic Women's League, at the annual meeting held this week at St. Alphonsus Lyceum. The other officers for the ensuing year will be Mrs. J. R. Corkery, first vice-president; Miss Margarte McCabe, second vice-president; Mrs. J. J. Lynch, third vice-president; Mrs. J. E. Sullivan, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Hickey, treasurer; Miss Nora Shevlin, corresponding secretary.

The retiring president, Mrs. Myles Henry, took the chair for the meeting and reports were given of the year's work. Total receipts for the year amounted to $1170.50, with disbursements of $1154.83, leaving a balance of $15.67 on hand. The membership total was 420, showing a marked increase over the previous year, and the sum of $800.30 was realized from various activities of a social nature.

A donation of $10 was made to the National Scholarship Fund, with four people competing for the award. Extensive relief work was carried on, with a total of $805.34 expended in social service activities. Families were assisted with fuel, groceries, clothing, medicine, free hospital care, employment, rent, and in every way that investigation warranted. In the sewing circle, a total of 149 articles were made, also 21 uniforms for Girl Guides.

The recording secretary reported National disbursements of $63.60 and diocesan disbursements of $28.45, with a gift of $5 to the China Mission College and $15 to the Sisters of Service. All other money expended was paid locally.

The president reported on the work of the literary society and its great educational value.

Guides Organized.

During the year, a company of Girl Guides was organized and ranked among the best in the city. An invitation was extended by the guides to attend their tea on Saturday afternoon in St. Alphonsus Lyceum.

The spiritual director, the Rev. P. Costello, addressed the meeting and complimented the officers on the excellent reports and the vast amount of work covered during the year. He stated that the league had become deeply rooted and trusted that the new executive would continue the work in the same efficient manner as had marked the endeavors of previous officers.

Mrs. Henry, retiring president, thanked the members and all those who had co-operated in making the year's work outstanding.

ENGLISH NOBLE FORMS COMPANY

OWNS 286,500 ACRES.

LONDON, May 14 (C.P.)—Charles Henry Gordon Lennox, 8th Duke of Richmond and Gordon, head of one of the most notable families of Great Britain, is the latest Peer of the realm to form himself into a "limited liability company." His Goodwood estate, which includes the famous Goodwood racecourse, even more exclusive in some respects than Ascot, was registered to-day.

The Duke is the permanent governing director of the company, and his heir, the Earl of March, is the only other director. The Duke of Norfolk and the Duke of Westminster are among other prominent Peers who have adopted this course, which in some respect alleviates the severity of succession duties.

The Dukedom of Richmond dates from 1675 and among the many other titles held by the Duke is the Dukedom of D'Aubigny, in France, dating from 1683. He is hereditary constable of Inverness Castle. His total holdings are 286,500 acres.

NEW TYPE BLADE FOR WINDMILLS

Latest Invention Operates on Winds of From 2 to 15 Miles Velocity.

BETTER THAN OLD FORM.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 14. (CP)—A new type of windmill with the appearance of an aeroplane propeller, declared to represent a revolutionary advance over the familiar multi-bladed farm type used with limited sulcess in developing electric power, was described to-day at the national aeronautic meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

The single bladed windmill was described by E. N. Fales, Ashland, Wis., aeronautical engineer, who said that he and H. R. Stuart developed it as the result of wartime researches in the radio section of the army air corps.

The new type windmill opertes on winds of from two to fifteen miles velocity which which he said are available at virtually all times in this country.

The old type mill needed high velocity winds and when these failed the generator stoodd idle and no power was available, he said. The new types using a 20-foot blade, operators on an average air velocity of 8 miles per hour, generating from 60 to 90 kilowatt hours of electricity, the average consumption in modern homes, Fales said.

BROCKENSHIRE IS GLAD IT'S OVER

Tells Jail Padre He'll Have to be Operated on Before Execution Day.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14 (C.P.)—"I am glad it's all over. I am a physical wreck anyway," John Brockenshire is reported to have told Rev. T. W. Barnett, jail padre in his cell at the local jail last night after he returned from the Assize Court where he had been convicted on a charge of murder and sentenced to be hanged on August 14.

According to the jail padre, Brockenshire complained of the wounds in his stomach bothering him and said, "They will have to operate on me anyway before they hang me."

"I spoke to him in the cell after he was out of court," Mr. Barnett said to-day. "He showed no different demeanor than he did since he was released from the hospital and during his trial." However, he complains of pains in his stomach and says they will have to operate.

FREE TRADE PRESS FROWNS UPON PARMOOR'S QUOTA STATEMENT

Guardian Claims British Farmers Want Low Quota, High Guaranteed Price.

PROPOSALS DIFFER WIDELY.

LONDON, May 14. (By Thos. T. Champion, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—Free trade newspapers give a cool reception to the announcement by Lord Parmoor in the House of Lords last evening that the Labor Government had accepted the general principle of a quota for Empire wheat in the British market. But Lord Parmoor specifically stated the quota did not mean a duty on foodstuffs—the quota was not a question of prices but of quantities.

The Manchester Guardian said it was clear from Lord Parmoor's statements that the Government has not yet ruled out the idea of a quota for home-grown wheat. "It is not improbable that they have in mind a dual quota for British and imperial wheat to be discussed at Ottawa" the Guardian added. "The two proposals are in fact quite different. British farmers want a fairly low quota with a high guaranteed price. Objections to granting this request are obviously familiar. For the dominion wheat, on the other hand, the proposal made at the Imperial Conference was for a much larger quota—85 per cent was the figure suggested—without any guarantee of price above the world level.

World Price Dropped

"But that idea was put forward in the Autumn while the conference was sitting. Since then the world price has come down with a run, and it is not likely that Canadian and Australian growers would be content with it.

"The quota in one form or another is likely to be revived at the Ottawa Economic Conference, and the free trade elements in the cabinet will have to be vigilant against specious bargains in which it may figure. One would feel more confident if the spokesmen for the Government in the House of Lords had given some indication they appreciated the solid reasons put forward by Lord Arnold against this fiscal adventure."

The Manchester Guardian referred to the slashing attack on the proposal by Lord Arnold, one of the Labor peers who was in the Labor Ministry as Paymaster-General until a few months ago. Lord Arnold called it a "crude, terribly unsound" proposal.

COMMONS VOTES AGAINST HOLIDAY

Three Leaders Take Stand Against Dupuis' Motion to Observe Ascension Day.

STAND IS 107 TO 49.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14. (CP)—By a majority of 58 the House of Commons decidel to sit to-day (Ascension Day). The division on the motion of Vincent Dupuis (Lib., LaPrairie-Napierville) that to-day should be observed as a holiday stood for 49, against 107.

The three leaders—Premier R. B. Bennett, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, opposition leader, and Robert Gardiner, U.F.A. leader — voted against the motion.

Party lines divided. Five Liberals, including Mr. King, voted against the motion. Eleven Conservatives supported the motion. All U.F.A. members voted against, A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) voted for, Henri Bourassa (Ind. Labelle) was not in the House. Many of the seats on the Liberal side of the chamber were vacant for the division.

Amusing Touch.

There was a somewhat amusing touch. Two Hebrew members of Parliament differed in their attitude on the proposal for a holiday. A. A. Heaps (Lab., Winnipeg North) was opposed to the motion. Sam Jacobs (Lib., Cartier) wanted a holiday declared.

Two other incidents occurred. Following announcement of the vote, W. F. Perras (Lib., Wright) rose in his seat. "I wish to say I will not sit in the House to-day," he stated. Mr. Perras then left the Chamber.

Hon. Peter Heenan, former Liberal Minister of Labor, arose. He was paired, he said, but would have voted for the motion. There was a hubbub of interruption from the Conservative side.

"No pairs, No pairs," many members shouted.

Mr. Dupuis first raised the matter this afternoon on a question of privilege.

NO NEW AIRSHIPS

The maximum annual cost of the maintenance program would be about $700,000, the Prime Minister stated. Parliament would settle the scope of the use to which the nucleus of this amount would be put.

"It might be," the Prime Minister concluded, "that we should be unable to ignore the evolution of some new type of airship, or something which demonstrated a great future for airships."

CANADA TO REPLY.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14 (C.P.).—Canada will reply at "an early date" to the communication from the British Government on the subject of airships. In the meantime, there is no official announcement which can be made from Ottawa in the matter.

PLEASING PROGRAM BY ST. JAMES' W.A.

Reports Read on Mission Work in Various Sections of World —Routine Business.

An atmosphere of great spiritual uplift prevailed throughout the meeting of St. James Auxiliary yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. H. Davidson, first vice-president, presided, being a member of the group in charge for May, and of which Mrs. Wesley Rose is convenor. The meeting was opened with the missionary prayer-hymn, "Lord of Harvest send forth Reapers," and Mrs. Munn offered prayer, after which all united in the Lord's Prayer.

The business session consisted of the usual routine, minutes by the secretary, the treasurer's report, as well as reports from the Mite Box and supply secretaries. In the latter was given the supply allocation for the year. Correspondence was received and read.

The roll call was responded to by an unusually large number. Mrs. F. D. Armstrong led the Scripture reading, the theme of which was "Search the Scriptures" and formed a questionaire with fourteen members taking part in the responses. A short session of prayer, in which Mrs. Ingham and Mrs. Munn made intercession for the W.M.S work and all her workers, both at home and in active overseas service, was followed by the hymn, "Will Your Anchor Hold."

A very appropriate Mother's Day reading, paying the highest tribute to all mothers, was the contribution of Mrs. A. Emery. Reports from the various heralds on the Watch Tower, were given in interesting up-to-the-minute news from the fields represented, as follows:

China, Mrs. Byers; Korea, Miss M. Kidd; Northern Africa, Mrs. Munn; temperance, Mrs. Beavis; Christian stewardship and tithing was told in a wonderful inspiring personal experience by Mrs. W. Rose. The fourth chapter of the book of study on Japan was covered in part by Mrs. W. D. Sargent. Her story of the industrial and rural problem of that country was a real challenge to the home worker. Mrs. Sargent will complete this interesting chapter at the next meeting.

One of the most pleasing features of the meeting was the beautiful mother and daughter duet, "The Prodigal," sung by Mesdames Lee and Kitney. A hymn and prayer, offered by Mrs. Emery closed this very inspiring Service. The benediction was pronounced by the president, Mrs. Moorhouse.

The June meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Copson, superintendent of the Baby Band, who is inviting her whole band with their mothers.

Cattleman Taken For Bank Robber

WINNIPEG, Man., May 14.—(CP)—George Nykiehuk of Sifton, Man., sold a carload of stock today, changed the large amount of money received in payment into bills of larger denominations and dashed for his departing bus. Bank employees, thinking they were on the trail of one of the bank bandits who held up and robbed the Dominion Bank branch at Notre Dame and Sherbrooke streets last Friday, telephoned the police station and police were rushed to the bus depot. After establishing his identity at the station, he laughed heartily and complimented the police on their thoroughness.

Leafs Defeat Bears 6-1 In Series Opener

CANUCKS MAKE 6 HITS COUNT FOR SIX RUNS

O'Neillmen Experience Little Difficulty in Subduing the Bears.

CANTRELL ON MOUND.

TORONTO, May 14.—Fresh from triumphs on other fields and with a record of having won nine of their last eleven starts, the Newark Bears performed at Maple Leaf Stadium yesterday afternoon and got the Bronx cheer from the Leafs.

In a listless and practically featureless bit of pastiming, the O'Neillmen experienced little trouble in handing the docile Bears a 6 to 1 defeat. The Bears must have been eating soft food in Montreal. They looked as if they hadn't come out of their winter hibernation.

It may have been Guy Cantrell's pitching or the masterly way the Leafs went about compiling a lead in the second inning that discouraged the visitors. The locals sewed up the game on one hit in the second frame and just breezed in after that.

Cantrell kept seven Newark hits well scattered, the only dangerous blow being delivered by Catcher Hargreaves, who pushed a single deep into right field, while Billy Zitmann reposed on second base, the result of a walk and a base on balls. That run saved the Bears from the humiliation of a shutout, but it didn't have any effect on the ultimate result.

The Leafs were outhit, strange as it may seem. They collected only six blows, all told and only one of this half dozen was an extra base smack. They also collected six runs which is a strong contrast to their work of the previous day against Baltimore when thirteen hits could only provide two counters. Perhaps the Leafs learned an object lesson on that occasion.

BETHANY LIKELY TO ENTER LEAGUE

Four Team Group in East Peterborough League is Practically Assured.

CO-OPERATE WITH SENIORS.

With Bethany practically assured as a fourth entry, and Cognawagas, Crescents and C.G.E. completing the group, the East Peterborough League last night reviewed its prospects in a new spirit of optimism and confidence.

The League decided to co-operate with the senior Central Ontario League team by releasing any players who may be needed by the Petes. At the same time they will ask for the return by the seniors of any player who may be called out but who is not needed or does not catch a regular place.

Crescents and C.G.E. will practice at the Exhibition Park Friday night.

WOOLLEN BOYS SWAMPED UNDER BARRAGE OF HITS

Sugar Bowl Comes From Behind to Take 23-10 Decision in Softball Tilt.

ERRORS PLENTIFUL.

Every cloud has a silver lining, at least it seemed that way last night to the Sugar Bowl nine when they came from behind, after rain held the game up, and walloped the Dominion Woollens team 23-10 at the Central School grounds.

A fair-sized crowd was on hand and most of them remained throughout the twenty-minute shower to see the game resumed. The diamond was soft and muddy, which fact accounted for a flock of errors made by both outfits.

It was batters' night there, with the winners smacking two pitchers hard for 17 hits, many of them extra base drives, including a homer by Jack Playford in the first. The Woollens bunch connected for 10 clean ones, too, and they were guilty of 8 errors to the others' 7.

The losers hit hard and took advantage of 4 errors to counter 5 runs in the first. Sugar Bowl got 5 of them back in their half, chiefly through a home run hit to deep centre by Playford. Their opponents crossed the plate twice in the second, blanking the champs, and the count was 7-3 when rain stopped the game. It was resumed again in twenty minutes, with Sugar Bowl holding the others scoreless in the third while tallying 5 runs themselves. The D. W. boys got 2 more in the fourth, but the Bowlers went on a hitting spree to run in 11 in their half.

There was four triples in a row in this frame, Dallin, Weese, Playford and Gillespie getting the threeply clouts. Woollens got one back in the fifth, and their opponents helped themselves to another 4. Dormer tripled to start the innings. Owing to darkness, the umpire called the game.

Sturgeon, winning twirler, went along good, keeping the hits pretty well scattered after the bad first. He struck out 5 batters and looked better the last few frames. Cavanaugh, who pitched from the left side, too, tossed some nice ball in the first two frames, but when the pill got slippery his fast ball was harder to control. Wedlock relieved him in the fourth, and worked hard, but couldn't stem the tide of base hits. Gillespie made a spectacular catch of a fly in short centre in the fifth.

The teams:

Dominion Woollens — Thirnbeck, 3b; B. Anthony, ss; McCarroll, 2b; D. Hilliard, 1b; P. Hilliard, lf; Lazure, c; L. Anthony, cf; T. Cavanaugh, p, cf; B. Cavanaugh, rf; Wedlock, cf and p; Tamblyn, rf.

Sugar Bowl—Dormer, 1b; Sturgeon, p; Dallin, lf; Playford, rf; Gillespie, cf; Weese, 2b; Calladine, c; Bradshaw, 3b; Wilshaw, ss; spares, Simmons, Dundas, Miller, Mahood and G. Dormer.

Umpires—"Scotty" Galbraith and N. Lang.

BISONS BEAT LEADING BIRDS FOR FIRST TIME THIS SEASON

Herd Bombards Roy to Score All Their Runs in First Three Innings.

KEYS ALSO WIN.

BUFFALO, May 13.—The Buffalo Bisons scored their first victory of the year over the league-leading Baltimore Orioles here yesterday afternoon 4-1 when the teams met for the fifth time.

The Bisons bombarded Roy from the mound in less than three innings, scoring all their runs while he was on the scene.

Bloomer twirled nicely for the Bisons, allowing only six singles, two of which should have been gobbled up by Wrightstone. Joe Hauser, league home run king, returned to the Oriole line-up to-day and played his first full game since opening day.

THREE IN ROW FOR WINGS

ROCHESTER, May 14.—Rochester won its third straight game here yesterday, defeating the Jersey City Skeeters 7 to 5 in the first contest of the new series. Rochester scored five times in the third inning.

George Toporcer as a pinch in the ninth, drove out a home run with a man on base against the club that he captained to three pennants.

ROYALS BLANKED

MONTREAL, May 13. — Clayton Vanalstyne pitched the Reading Keystones to the opening victory of a four-game series with the Royals here yesterday afternoon when he gave the locals four scattered hits and handed them their first whitewash of the season by 1 to 0. The contest was a great hurling battle between Herb Thormahlen and Vanalstyne, for each allowed but four scattered blows. Five double plays kept the scoring down, of which the Royals made three. Jim Poole singled home the winning run in the fourth after Partridge and Quellich had walked, the former scoring the deciding tally.

Yesterday's Stars.

George Earnshaw, Athletics.—Held White Sox to nine hits in eleven innings, to win third straight victory 7—5.

Lou Gehrig, Yankees.—Doubled in eighth inning, bringing in Reese with run that beat Browns, 3 to 2.

Lloyd Brown, Senators.—Turned back Cleveland with eight hits for 9 to 3 victory.

Marty McManus, Tigers.—Drove in deciding run in 2 to 1 triumph over Red Sox.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE OPENS ON MAY 19

Menie Will Tangle With Hoards in Initial Fixture on Tuesday Next.

(Examiner Correspondence)

BURNBRAE, May 14.—The Menie softball team held the first practice of the season on Tuesday evening in preparation for the opening game which is slated for Menie, Tuesday, May 19, with Hoard's as the visitors. Hoards are last minute entrants to the league as they had almost decided to withdraw on account of scarcity of players.

An amalgamation of Hoard's and Menie players was being planned which would certainly have meant a strong team, but according to present indications the Menie team will have to rely pretty much on the former players. The other teams in the league are more or less an unknown quantity yet except Bethel which has its last year champion line-up practically intact.

EASTERN "MAJORS" CONTINUE VICTORIES ON WESTERN FRONT

TIGERS COP CLOSE ONE.

(By Gayle Talbot, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

Though held back by cold and wet weather since they reached the farthest western outposts, the eastern teams already have managed to demonstrate pretty conclusively that they still hold the balance of power in the American League.

They have won eleven of their first fourteen intersectional engagements. Through yesterday's games the champion Philadelphia Athletics had scored three straight over their western rivals. The New York Yankees had won a pair between rains, Washington had won three out of four and the Boston Red Sox three out of five.

But for a staunch stand by the Detroit Tigers the rout of the western clubs would so far have been complete. The Tigers have won all three victories credited to their section. Cleveland's Indians have made the most disappointing showing against the invaders, losing four straight and dropping within a week from the top to fifth place.

The Athletics who had to go west to reach their old time place at the head of the procession, continued yesterday to mow down the westerners. They went 11 innings to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 5, after home runs by Cochrane and Miller in the eighth and ninth innings had enabled them to tie the score. It was their fifth straight victory and the tenth out of their last twelve starts. George Earnshaw went all the way, holding the hose to nine hits and none the last four frames.

Lou Gehrig doubled in the eighth inning to score Jimmy Reese and give the Yankees a close 3 to 2 decision over the St. Louis Browns in their first meeting of the year. George Blaeholder did not allow the Yanks a hit until the seventh, when they bunched three of them to score twich and tie it up.

Milt Gaston, Red Sox righthander, lost a tough 2 to 1 verdict to Detroit when errors helped the Tigers score in the seventh and eighth inningth. Earl Whitehall kept eight Boston hits scattered to hang up his fourth victory.

Wes Ferrell was driven from the mound under a fourth inning barrage as the Washington Senators won their opener from Cleveland, 9 to 3. Lloyd Brown, Senator southpaw, yielded only eight hits, one of which was Averill's fourth homer of the year.

Rain and cold weather on the eastern seaboard threw the National League for a total loss.

Fights Last Night

Cleveland, O. — Jackie Brady, Syracuse, outpointed Madison Dix, Los Angeles (8).

Final Workouts Held For Kentucky Entries

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 14.—(CP)—Final workouts today completed the training of the twelve or fourteen three-year-olds expected to start Saturday in the fifty-seventh running of the $50,000 added Kentucky Derby.

A definite estimate of the size of the field cannot be made until the starting horses are named through the entry box tomorrow. No speed workouts will be attempted the day before the race, but the starters will be given brief warming up gallops.

With a field of 14 or less almost certain, the Derby will be sent from the post from a starting gate for the first time in history. This assures a quicker start for the Derby horses which heretofore have generally been at the post many minutes before being sent away. The gate accommodates just 14 horses.

No fillies, which are conceded five pounds in the weights, are expected to accept the issue Saturday. Each colt will carry 126 pounds over the mile and a quarter journey. Post time for the Derby, the fifth race, probably will be 5 p.m. C.S.T.

Softball Notes.

A meeting of the Men's City Softball League will be held Friday evening at 8.00 o'clock in Duffus' Board Room. The members of the executive, the managers of the various teams are urged to be on hand for this meeting as important matters will be discussed.

Grounds rules will be one of the matters to be discussed. It is also probable that the schedule will be altered slightly.

Tonight's game in the Men's City Softball League will bring together All Saints and the Western Clock. All Saints won their first battle and the fans are anxious to see how they will shape up against the Big Ben outfit tonight. The game starts at 6.15 sharp and will be played at Central School grounds.

Monday night the Dominion Woollens and Examiner tangle. Both teams will be strengthened for this game.

France Beats Britain In International Tilt

COLOMBES, France, May 14 (C.P.). — France defeated Great Britain at soccer five goals to two today, the largest score a French team ever had run up on a team from across the Channel.

A crowd of 25,000 Frenchmen went wild with excitement, throwing hats and cushions in the air.

The dash of the French amateurs proved too much for the combination of the older British professionals.

Asia now has more than 1,000,000 miles of automobile roads.

SPORTS by JIMMY THOMPSON

Andy Kanrot, one of the leading members of the mat game boasts that he has the greatest chest expansion of anyone in wrestling today. But that isn't Andy's pet boast. He has accomplished the feat of lifting 2,000 pounds with his teeth. He owns a small refreshment establishment and in one of the anterooms at the back he used to show this extraordinary feat to his friends. As time went on, his fame at this became wider known and as a result, one day, two strangers called on him and asked him to show them his feat of strength. Andy being an obliging fellow proceeded to take them into the little room and show them. Pretending to be intensely interested in the act of lifting weights, they asked him could be lift the 3,000 pounds weight. This was too much for Andy, try as he might, he found himself staring into the face of a revolver. He was commanded to put his hands into a pair of police handcuffs and the men fastened one end to the 3,000 pound weight. Then they proceeded to rob the cash box in his place. This was the last time that Andy did tricks for the boys, at least, he didn't advertise the fact anymore.

CASUAL COMMENT

The City Baseball League is calling a meeting for Saturday night at 7.30 in the Board Room of the Duffus Bowling Alleys. Managers of all teams entered or thinking of entering are advised to be on hand. The meeting is open to anyone interested in this league.

• • • • • • •

Havlock will have a representative here at this session, as that village has entered a junior team. Another new entry is the Canucks in the bantam section. They are sponsored by the Canuck Athletic Club of the south-end. Now it's beginning to look like a real City League again.

• • • • • • •

There was no school game last night for a change, but Central goes west to meet the Queen Mary this evening. And tomorrow evening, King Edward meets Prince of Wales, and King George battles Queen Alex in a doubleheader. The league will finish up in a couple more weeks.

• • • • • • •

The next scheduled Men's City Softball League game will see Westclox and All Saints together tomorrow night on Central school battlefield.

• • • • • • •

The Petes are rapidly being signed up. No holdouts to speak of, so far. Well, the players figured all along they'd be playing intermediate ball, and now that there's a chance of senior, they are more than willing to use the fountain pen.

• • • • • • •

We dont know yet what pitchers have been signed, nor how many. Still, a senior team should carry three or four good pitchers, as it often turns up that one or even two of them cant get away for some game, and there should be at least two in uniform at each game.

• • • • • • •

Kingston and Belleville are rounding into form these days, according to word from those towns. The Ponies are said to be better than last year, on paper. However, they'll have to prove it out there on the diamond.

• • • • • • •

The Nats are coming along in fine style, too. To date, however, they don't seem to have much in the way of relief pitchers. But, don't worry, Walt Gerow will have another classy hurling staff

• • • • • • •

The Petes should have a nice outfield, judging from those trying for a place in the garden. Of course, they should be heavy hitters as outfielders are always the big guns offensively. And there's some classy looking material working in the infield, too.

• • • • • • •

If the battery shapes up as it is expected, with several good flingers, then the Petes will have a well-balanced outfit, and should keep Kingston and Belleville stepping all the time. After a bad start in organization, we wouldn't be surprised to see them go through everything.

• • • • • • •

Anyway, that's our story, and it's stuck to us. If the pick of the Intermediates along with smart managerial brains can't produce a first-class senior team, then we need to all go back to softball.

• • • • • • •

Which reminds us there is a meeting of the Men's Softball League to-morrow night at eight at Duffus', where ground rules will be decided on, and other business matters discussed.

• • • • • • •

Dominion Woollens threw a scare into the Sugar Bowl team at Central last night, starting right out and collecting five runs in the first inning. They were leading in the third, and again in the fourth, but then the winners caught up to them, and how they did!

• • • • • • •

The Sugar Mugs looked just that the first two frames, booting the pellet all over the mud track, but they discarded their crutches in the third, and started looking natural again. Sturgeon and Calladine made a snappy battery.

• • • • • • •

Cavanaugh worked well for the Worsted boys as long as the ball remained dry, but after the shower, the Bowl batters found him to be just a "cousin" to them. Wedlock didn't have much luck either.

• • • • • • •

Deb Hilliard, who is working out with the Seniors, played a snappy game on first for the Woollens, and McCarrol on second for when the race starts.

BRITISH OPEN IS SET FOR SCOTTISH COURSE

Carnoustie, With Sandhills and Burns, Promises Tough Obstacles to Competitors.

GREAT GOLFING COUNTRY

ST. ANDREW'S, Scotland, May 14 (By The Canadian Press)—A greater test for golf than Carnoustie, where the British Open Golf Championship will commence on June 1, could not be found anywhere, not even at St. Andrew's.

The champions will meet this year to battle over a great sandy tract of golfing country, stretching away to the sea from whence tricky breezes blow, with fine turf on a sandy subsoil, menacing sandhills and meandering burns. And the course throughout has been bunkered by James Braid.

Two hundred and fourteen golfers are entered. Australia, the United States, Argentina, Colombia, Manila, Germany and France will all be represented. Bobby Jones, who won the British Open, British Amateur, and United States open and amateur last year, has of course retired. But British champions will face strong competition from a United States contingent that includes Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell, Joe Turnesa, Joe Kirkwood, Tommy Armour and Horton Smith.

Half of the competitors will play 18 holes at Carnoustie and the other half 18 holes at Barry in the first round. On the second day the groups change courses to complete the 36-hole qualifying round. The championship proper will be for the hundred best scores over the Carnoustie course—72 holes over June 3, 4 and 5.

Great Golfing Country

Situated on the East Coast of Scotland, in the county of Angus, Carnoustie is in the heart of a country Nature obviously intended for golf. It may not be able to boast the championship traditions of St. Andrew's and Prestwick, but it was a course of some account even before St. Andrew's became famous. Carnoustie's modern history dates back some 80 years, but golf was played there as far back as the 16th century.

It has been a magnificent nursery for golfers who have made their names in most countries of the world. Stewart Maiden, on whom Bobby Jones modelled his game, was nurtured there, besides the five Smith brothers who were professionals simultaneously in America. On the same links, Archie Simpson, twice runner-up in the Open Championship, who beat Douglas Roland, the stone mason from Elie, in a famous match at Sandwich, and Jack, his eldest brother, open champion in 1884, learned to wield a club. And there, Tom Morris, the greatest golfer of his time, gave the first hint of his genuis when only a lad of 16.

Until Braid took the course in hand in 1926 it was never considered from the championship point of view, but Braid, recognizing the possibilities in its fine lay-out and orientation, made some greens and tees, tightened up holes here and there, laid down 50 or 60 bunkers and transformed it into a real championship test. Then began Carnoustie's rise to fame. The following year the Craw's Nest Tassie Tournament attracted amateurs from all parts of Scotland to the links. The Scottish Amateur Championship was held there last year and two days after the final the "Royal and Ancient" announced Carnoustie had been chosen for the 1931 British Open Championship. A thousand and one little difficulties undreamed of, with the sea breezes playing constant pranks, will find the champions meeting this year in the little Scottish town, playing the game of their lives.

Sarazen-Farrell In British Open

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 14 (C.P.)—Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, former United States National Open Golf champions and unsuccessful contenders for the British Open title and partners on many golfing tours, are off together in pursuit of the 1931 British Open championship.

Farrell and Sarazen sailed early this morning to join the United States contingent now in England and Scotland preparing to battle for the title at Carnoustie, in June. Mrs. Catherine Farrell accompanied her son, making her first trip in 36 years back to her home at Mountrath, Ireland. Mrs. Sarazen also was in the party.

Trini'y College Here On Saturday Afternoon

There is a treat in store for all lovers of cricket this next Saturday afternoon at the Oval, when the local team engage Trinity College, of Port Hope, the game starting at 2.30 p.m. The Collegians know their cricket and are coached by Old Country professionals, therefore a good game can be expected, and if Peterborough team wish to maintain their unbroken record, they will have to battle all the way.

The following have been selected to represent Peterborough: F. Dyer, Capt.; F. Jefferson, Vice-Capt; Mawhood, Seager, Binks, Hamilton, Horsfall, Dunkerley, Thorpe, Hoyle, Combes, Spares Stuart, Howard, Wade, Langley, Dr. Hewitt and Mitchell.

A full turn out is respectfully asked for this important game. A light practice will be held on Friday evening next.

Baseball Gossip.

Pat Calladine is having his Maple Leaf Juveniles out at the Stevenson Park to-morrow evening at six o'clock for another practise session, and all players should be on hand.

The Kiwanis Juniors will practise to-morrow night at the Stevenson Park and players will get their certificates at this time.

O.A.L.A. REFUSES TO GIVE TRANSFERS

Four Oshawa Players Refused Cards to Join Toronto Native Sons.

TORONTO, May 14. — Lacrosse tourists have apparently reached the end of their journey. Living up to the announcement that the residence rule would be strictly enforced, the O.A.L.A. executive at a special session last night refused playing certificates to four Oshawa players who moved to Highland Creek on the eve of May 1 in order to qualify to play in Toronto. The executive claimed that the players moved out of the Oshawa boundaries just to evade the residence rule, three of them admitting it, and they must play in Oshawa or not at all.

The four players refused transfers were Kelly DeGray, C. G. Barron A. E. Smithson and Ty Silk, although the latter may have his case reconsidered if he takes up permanent residence in Toronto and works here. All the four players who were refused transfers to play with the Toronto Native Sons are employed in Oshawa at present.

In a recent month nearly 1,100 American passenger automobiles were received into South Africa.

Seniors Practise Called for Friday

To-morrow night at six o'clock the seniors will practise at the Exhibition Grounds and a full turnout is requested. All those who were out for the last workout, and any other player wanting to try out for a place on the local C.O.B.L. entry, should be on hand early. Infield, outfield and battery practises will take up the two hours or so daylight.

Al Heckman and "Shiner" Johnston are quite satisfied with the way the fellows are shaping up and with another week to get lined up feel that the Peterborough outfit will be one of the strongest in the league.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess.)

FLIP SEES LONGFOOT

That is which is, and naught can change
The fact, though it be passing strange.
—Old Mothe Nature.

Several times when out with his master Flip the Terrier had discovered queer mounds of sand which had aroused his curiosity because they had entrances opening level with the ground, and when he sniffed at those entrances he smelled Rat. If it wasn't Rat he smelled it was something very like it. It wasn't just the scent that Robber the Rat used to leave around Farmer Brown's barn, but it was enough like it to get Flip much excited, for he dearly loves to hunt Rats. He would bark and dig furiously, but his master never would wait for him, and so he would have to give up and hurryon.

"Sometime I will come back all by myself," he would say. "Yes, sir, that is what I will do. Then if there are any Rats in one of these mounds they better look out."

So it happened that just at dusk one evening Flip remembered those mounds and decided that as the nearest one was not far away this would be a good time to pay a visit there. Farmer Brown's Boy was off somewhere and Flip had nothing in particular to do. He had slept through the heat of the day and was beginning to long for excitement. So when no one at the ranch was looking he slipped away and trotted straight over to the nearest mound.

"I'll approach quietly," thought Flip. Perhaps I may surprise one of those Rats outside. If I do he'll never know what happened to him. No, sir, he never will. I'll catch him and shake him to death before he can so much as squeak."

So Flip approached the big mound very slowly and carefully. As he drew near he thought he saw two or three forms moving about outside that mound. He quivered all over with excitement. He crept up back of the mound so that it would be between those moving forms and himself. Then he prepared to make a rush around it and grab the nearest Rat.

Just then out of a hole more than two feet from him poked a head. It looked like the head of a Rat, yet it didn't. It was longer than the head of any Rat Flip ever had seen, and never had he seen a member of Robber's family with such long whiskers or such big eyes that seemed to be popping right out. The, too, the color of that head wasn't right. It was rather yellowish, white around the nose and on the throat and whitish around the eyes and ears. All this Flip saw without really thinking anything about it. However, he kept still, hoping that this Rat would come wholly out.

For a moment or two the Rat sat in his doorway looking out as if a bit suspicious. Then he came wholly out, and Flip prepared for a rush. But instead of rushing Flip just stood still right where he was and stared. This was the strangest Rat ever he had seen. To begin with the color was all wrong. It was buff or yellowish, with a white line across the hips. The legs and feet were white, beautiful snowy white. The white band across the hip on each side was continued down each side of a long tail for some distance, and this tail, instead of being almost bare like the tail of Robber the Rat, was covered with hair. It was black on the upper and lower sides and ended in a tuft of pure white. Instead of a rough coarse coat such as Robber wears and takes no care of, the stranger wore a fine silky coat. In each cheek opening from the outside was a pocket lined with fur. This, however, Flip didn't see.

All this was surprising enough, but almost at once Flip received another and greater surprise. The stranger started off and instead of running as Robber would have done he moved in a series of jumps, and Flip discovered that his front legs were very short, while his hind legs and feet were very long, and when he jumped that long tufted tail helped him to keep his balance. Flip was too astonished to move. Yes, sir, he was too astonished to move. He just stood there staring. Could it be that he saw what he seemed to see? He blinked and looked again. Yes, it must be that he saw what he thought he saw. He did. He was looking at Longfoot the Kangaroo Rat

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings but are also surprised to find quicker pick-up, instant starting, smoother running motors and more power. The Whirlwind Mfg. Co., Dept. 604-S, Station C, Milwaukee, Wisc., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. They also need men everywhere to make up to $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write them at once for free sample and big money-making offer.—Adv.

UNITED CHURCH STRESSES ITS RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

More Than Ten Thousand Certificates By Teachers and Students.

LEADERS TRAINING COURSE.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14 (By The Canadian Press).—Rev. Dr. E. W. Wallace, Chancellor of Victoria University, Toronto, late secretary of the China Christian Educational Asseciation, presided as chairman at the meeting of the United Church's religious education executive here on May 11 and 12. In the executives' jurisdiction are 5,656 Sunday schools, with 62,000 officers and teachers and a total membership of 640,000. The constituency includes 838 organizations for juniors, 2,228 for girls, 1,845 for boys, 2,366 for young people and 470 for adults, enlisting 187,000 persons in mid-week activities.

Introduction of the Canadian series of graded lessons during the year into many schools has led to an increase of 52,000 copies of graded courses used. Christian doctrine, biblical knowledge, missions, temperance, international peace ideals of fairplay in the industrial order, and studies in church membership and church history belong to the course. Circulation of graded helps is now 212,000 annually, as compared with 159,000 a year ago when imported lessons were still in use.

Issue of 10,718 certificates to teachers and prospective teachers in 1930 marks the subjects passed int the standard training course for leaders. A rapid increase in certificates began with the issue of 1,695 certificates in 1924. Stronger provision for training instructors who are in turn to teach the standard course is one of the important pieces of legislation to come before the executive.

Consideration of future developments along missionary lines will follow a recent increase in the number of young people enrolled in societies. There are 133 new societies and the membership has grown from 73,000 to 78,000 this year, while young people are taking the lead in drafting the year's programme for 1932.

The secretary, Rev. Frank Langford, D.D., reported that 16,188 Sunday school folk, "five times as many as at Pentecost," entered into ull communion with the church during the year. Churches holding catechumen or church membership classes have increased from 1,226 to 1,285. Junior congregations now number 369, with 20,000 boys and girls attending.

The following are on the executive: Revs. P. N. Gaven, Montreal; H. B. Neal, Belleville; D. H. Gallagher, Niagara Falls; C. W. DeMille, Stratford; W. J. Preston, Chatham; F. W. Langford, C. A. Myers and Manson Doyle, Toronto; Miss W. Thomas and Dr. H. N. Wilkinson, Toronto.

BRITISH CANNING INDUSTRY.

The British Fruit canning industry has increased by 300% in two years and is still rapidly expanding, according to reports received from the overseas offices of the Canadian National Railway's agricultural department.

FLORENCE DEEKS APPEALING CASE

Fights Dismissal of Her $500,000 Action Against H. G. Wells for Alleged Plagiarism.

EVIDENCE CROWDS COURT.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14 (C.P.)—Although the Appellate Courtroom at Osgoode Hall is considered commodious, it showed signs of being submerged in an avalanche of books of evidence manuscripts and copies of "The Outline of History," as Miss Florence Deeks began the second day of her appeal against dismissal of her $500,000 actions against H. G. Wells, British author, for alleged plagiarism.

The Toronto writer of "The Web," an unpublished historical work which she claims was rifled by H. G. Wells aided by the Macmillian Company of Canada and English publishing houses, conducted her own appeal.

Emperors, kings, states and revolutions, everything that is concerned with the destiny of the world and its history, were discussed as Miss Deeks endeavored to show why the trial judge, Mr. Justice Raney, should have held there were many analagous passages in the two works.

The original manuscript of Wells' valued by bibliophiles at an enormous sum, was resorted to frequently by the Justices of the Second Appellate Court during the progress of the appeal.

"In giving you these passages one at a time, I am giving them so you can see the aggregate accumulation —a tremendous accumulation," exclaimed Miss Deeks.

"Both of you were dealing with common knowledge"—began Chief Justice Latchford.

"But," Miss Deeks interrupted, "you call it common knowledge—it is common knowledge that sometimes takes years to dig out."

THE SON OF TARZAN No. 64 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Meriem never went with Bwana's guests upon a hunt. She could find no pleasure in killing for mere sport. On these occasions she would accompany the riders across the plains, then ride into the jungle, and there take to the trees. For hours she would revel in the unalloyed pleasures of a return to the wild, free existence of her earlier years, leaping and swinging through the trees, or stretching comfortably upon a branch, dreaming.

To-day the Hon. Morison Baynes, returning toward evening from the hunt, saw Meriem's horse tethered near the jungle's edge. He galloped to the animal's side, dismounted and on foot entered the trail. He had gone but a short distance when he heard a great jabbering in a nearby tree. Coming closer he saw a band of baboons and to his amazement he also saw a girl swing ape-like into the tree below the beasts who were quarreling over some cloth.

He was about to put a bullet through the nearest baboon that seemed about to leap upon her when he heard the girl speak. Then he almost dropped his rifle in surprise; he recognized Meriem. A strange jabbering identical with that of the apes broke from her lips. The baboons were evidently equally surprised for they stopped their snarling and slowly one approached and gave her back the articles they had stolen while she dreamed.

For several minutes the girl carried on what could be nothing less than a conversation. The baboons chattered to her and she chattered back. The Hon. Morison Baynes mopped his perspiring brow and made his way back to his horse. When Meriem emerged from the jungle a few minutes later she found him there, looking at her with wide eyes in which were both wonder and terror. They were half way home before either spoke.

HOLLYWOOD EXTRA GETS LITTLE WORK

Of 17,541 Registered Only 833 Average One Day's Work a Week—Talkies Blamed.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 14. — (C.P.). — The changed status of the Hollywood extra as a result of the talkies was subject of a warning today from the Women's Bureau.

In a newsletter to Labor officials and women's organizations in all the States, the Women's Bureau yesterday laid stress on the present plight of those who once made up the mob scene of the pre-talkie "super-spectacle."

Of 17,541 extras registered in Hollywood in 1930, the letter said, only 833 averaged one day's work a week or more. Of these, 95 averaged 2½ days a week, and none could claim the record of having daily work.

Their pay was quoted as follows: 13.5 per cent. worked for $5 a day; 36.56 per cent. for $7.50 a day; 43.23 per cent. for $10 a day, and approximately 5½ per cent. in excess of $10 a day.

The average daily wage was $9.74. The average daily placement of men for 1930 was 545, of women 243, of children 19.

DAMAGE SUITS BEEN SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Agreement is Reached By Legal Committee in Collision Cases.

SENT ON TO COUNCIL.

If the agreement reached last night between the Legal Committee of the City Council and representatives of two automobile insurance companies is ratified by the companies' solicitors the city will collect half the cost of the repairs to the Fire Department's pumper from the companies.

The bill from the LaFrance Fire Pumper and Foamite Company for repairs to the fire pumper after the collision with the Lindsay bus was $1,538.52. It was suggested last night that the insurance companies might pay the city half the cost of the repairs.

Suits and counter suits for damages grew out of the collision and the meeting last night was an attempt to make an agreeable settlement. Miss Elizabeth Brennan, a passenger in the bus, was suing the city and the Lindsay bus company, per E. P. McLennan, for damages, as was also Albert Carroll, another passenger. The bus company was suing the city, and the city had entered a counter-suit against the bus company.

If the agreement reached last night is ratified the insurance companies will settle the claims of both passengers and pay the city half the cost of the pumper's repairs.

City Solicitor John Corkery was given instruction to draw up an amendment in the traffic bylaw which will not make it necessary for fire appliances when attending a fire, motor ambulances, and police cars to stop at stop signs.

The Council of North Monaghan was invited to meet the Fire, Water and Light Committee on Monday night to come to some arrangement on fire protection for that part of North Monaghan in the suburbs of the city.

A letter was received from the London Council asking the local Council to pass a resolution urging Premier Henry to increase the business assessment of chain stores. This was approved by the Legal Committee, which will recommend to the Council that a resolution be passed to have the law to provide that business concerns of all kinds in municipalities whether the head office is in the municipality or not be required to make income returns to the local assessor and pay income tax according to the Assessment Act.

VETERAN OTTAWA MAGISTRATE MISSING

Skiis of Lost German Explorer Are Found

DISCOVERY MADE 180 KILOMETRES FROM HIS BASE

Position Indicates Abandonment Because They Were No Longer Needed.

MISSING SINCE NOV. 1.

Hopes That Prof. Wegener Had Dug in For Winter Begin to Wane.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, May 15.—(AP)—Dr. Albert Wegener's skis have been found in Greenland, 180 kilometres from the western section of the German exploration expedition, dispatches received here today said.

They were in an upright position, indicating that he left them on purpose because they were of no further use to him.

Prof. Alfred Wegener, who headed a German expedition into Greenland last year has not been heard from since Nov. 1 when he left the central base of his expedition and started for the west coast of Greenland with one sled and one native.

Given Up For Lost

He was given up for lost when a relief expedition reached the central base only to learn of his departure.

When he left the base he took provisions for only three weeks and if he were alive he should have reached the west coast long ago. There is a possibility that he may have dug himself in somewhere on the ice cap as did the British explorer, Augustine Courtauld, who was rescued last week, but leaders of the relief expedition said that possibility was scant.

BURGLAR TRIO ROB 2 STORES

Police Rush to First Scene While Bandits Work Within Block of Headquarters.

IN SASKATOON.

SASKATOON, Sask., May 15. (CP) Police are scouring the city to-day for three hold-up men who robbed two grocery stores at the point of revolvers last night. The three men, each brandishing a gun, walked into the store of A. Malkin, holding the proprietor and his wife at bay while $60 was scooped out of the cash till. Twenty minutes later two of the gang entered the store of Mrs. Katherine Egnatoff, a block from city police headquarters, and held up the woman and her daughter, thirty dollars in cash being taken from the till.

Alarm was raised in each case as soon as the robbers had left and police were already on the scene of the first robbery when the second was being staged close to their barracks. From descriptions furnished it was concluded the two men who held up the Agnatoff store had been in the other robbery. In the latter holdup only one gun was shown.

Radio telephone service between India and Ceylon is proposed.

Cartagena, Colombia, is to have a wireless telegraph station.

Poacher Arrested After Long Hunt

LINDSAY, Ont., May 15.—(C. P.)—Word has reached here that a poacher of the third generation has been caught in Haliburton in possession of five beaver pelts and one otter. The man is remarkably skilful in the woods and once bet a companion his season's catch in furs that he could carve his initials on the hoof of a sleeping moose, a trick he had learned from his father. It took him half an hour to do it, and then they had to shoot the moose as it carried the only proof of his daring. The pelts in the "pot" were worth $1,300. Later the loser in this bet lost everything when his home burned, and the winner paddled 57 miles to help him, giving him back his $650 and an extra $100. For years game wardens have been stalking him much after his fashion of stalking the wild beasts, but only last week were they successful in catching him.

Calgary Homes Are Threatened by Fire

CALGARY, Alta., May 15.—(C.P.)—Fire early this morning destroyed the Arts building at the Exhibition grounds here. Twelve homes nearby were threatened by the flames and more than 20 persons were driven to the streets in night clothing. Among those making escapes were two cripples.

Origin of the blaze was unknown. No other buildings on the Exhibition grounds were endangered. The building destroyed was built in 1908 and is located at the main entrance to the grounds.

2 TORONTO MEN GET STIFF TERMS

Ten Lashes Added to Each Ten and Eight Year Sentence For Serious Offense.

SECOND TRIAL.

TORONTO, Ont., May 14.—(C.)—Ten years and ten lashes and eight years and ten lashes were the sentences imposed on William Marcus and Samuel Richmond, respectively, when they appeared in Assize Court to-day for sentence, following their conviction last week on a charge of carnal knowledge.

The pair, who were convicted before a jury in the Assizes last fall on a charge of committing a serious offence against a young girl and sentenced to 15 and 10 years respectively, successfully appealed their sentence, and their appearance in court last week marked their second trial.

Describing the offence as terrible, cowardly and beastly, and unable to find words of condemnation of the crime, Mr. Justice Wright pointed out he was reducing the prison sentences in each case and adding lashes.

Plead For Themselves.

Both prisoners pleaded for themselves when they were brought into court and asked for a lighter sentence. Marcus explained he was a married man and the father of four children and said it was the first trouble he had ever been connected with.

Richmond, the younger of the pair, said he had spent 14 months in the local jail and during that time he had lost his mother and felt he had been the cause of her death. There is only my dad working in the family and all the other children are attending school. It makes things worse, he said, and I would like a chance and opportunity of wiping out the disgrace I brought on my family.

More than 1,000,000 acres have been distributed to the World war refugees in Greece.

DAVID BELASCO STAGE MASTER TAKEN BY DEATH

Creator of Stars, Wizard as Director and Producer Dies in New York.

WAS IN 77TH YEAR.

Whole Theatrical World in Mourning—Funeral Sunday to Linden Hills, N.J.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 15—The theatrical world was in mourning today for David Belasco, Grand Old Man of the stage, creator of stars, wizard as director and producer.

In his 77th year, he died of heart disease yesterday after virtually a lifetime devoted to the stage. "I shall retire when I am carried feet first out of the theatre," he said on his 75th birthday. He never did retire and there was a dramatic touch to his death. "I am fighting for my life," he said as his daughter Reina (Mrs. Morris Gest) went to his bedside a moment before the end.

True to the Belasco tradition, his latest play "To-night or Never" went on as usual last night.

End Comes Quickly

Mr. Belasco was stricken but a few hours beforeh is death. He had apparently recovered from a siege of pneumonia which had kept him abed several months last winter. Earlier this week he had reserved eight tickets for the fights to-night in Madison Square Garden.

Sunday he went motoring. Tuesday night he felt ill, but refused to let his nurse summon a doctor. At 8 a.m. yesterday, the doctor was called and remained with the stage master until the end at 4.15 p.m.

Hundreds of messages of condolence reached his daughter. Typical were:

Lee Shubert—He was without doubt the greatest producer the theatre has ever known.

George M. Cohan — He was the finest combination of genuine artistry and real showmanship.

David Warfield — He was a man who never stopped at anything to make his production perfect and superb.

Sam H. Harris—The greatest theatrical producer of all time.

William A. Brady—The greatest director.

In the words of Daniel Frohman, who brought him from San Francisco to Broadway 49 years ago, Belasco had a profound journalistic instinct, and inborn grasp of what interests people.

Produced 400 Plays

On the stage first as a child, Belasco had played 200 parts while still a young man. At his death he had produced some 400 plays, of which he had written 150.

Among his outstanding successes were: "A Grand Army Man," "The Easiest Way," "Marie Odile," "The Music Master," "The Heart of Wisto-

New President of France

HON. HERBERT MARLER RETURNS AFTER 2 YEARS' WORK IN ORIENT AS MINISTER FROM THE DOMINION

States Time Has Been Spent in Gathering Great Amount of Information.

CEREMONY PLAYS BIG PART.

Japanese Unlike Other Nations Will Not Trade With Those They Dislike.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 15. (CP) Hon. Herbert Marler, Canadian Minister to Japan, who returned to Canada Wednesday is resting from his voyage. He talked in general terms of the work of the legation and the advancement of trading in the Orient.

"The Canadian legation does not pretend that in its two years of existence it has done much toward the promotion of trade," he said. "That is a long task. But what we have done is to gather an enormous amount of information. We have studied the people and know their likes and dislikes. We have gained the confidence of Japan, and, to an extent, of the Chinese ministers. Canada is known in the Orient. When we began our work many business men had vague ideas about this Dominion. Some thought it was a British colony some thought it was part of the United States.

Approach Different

"Remember this," the minister said, "You cannot approach a Japanese or Chinese business man across the desk the way you can in this country. The preface to business must be establishment of confidence and friendship. Much of this approach hinges on the social side. Those people, like others in the world, will not trade with people whom they don't like. We have been studying them for two years; we have a basis to work on. We have their confidence and friendship. But the real job of directly promoting Canadian trade hasn't started yet.

"Travel is essential in this work, but unless you start with a basis of confidence and knowledge, it is not a benefit at all. The United States and Germany have laid an astounding organization throughout the Orient. We are only beginning our work, but Canada is certainly better known than she was two years ago."

KIWANIANS HEAR JUDGE O'CONNOR

Canada One of Few Countries Which Has Combines Investigation Act.

BACK FROM MIAMI.

Fair competition in business, according to the Combines Investigation Act, means business carried on in a reasonable and justifiable manner which does not interfere with the public at large and does not harm competitors, explained His Honor Judge L. V. O'Connor at noon to-day in addressing the luncheon of the local Kiwanis Club.

Judge O'Connor was commissioner of the investigation some years ago into the business methods of the drug trade as carried on by the P.A.T.A., and his address was mostly directed in pointing out the causes which create combines and the methods by which these combines stray from fair methods of competition.

J. A. O'Brien, chairman of the Business Standards Committee, was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker. He traced the career of Judge O'Connor, stating that upon his graduation from Osgood Hall in 1896 Judge O'Connor hung out his shingle in Peterborough. For a short time he was a partner of Daniel O'Connell. Later he began to practise in Lindsay, his home town. In 1927 he headed the investigation carried on into the ramifications of the alleged drug combine. He was elevated to the bench of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham in 1930.

PLAN IS OUTLINED TO REHABILITATE VALUE OF SILVER

J. F. Darling Would Get Up Super-bank Belonging to Govt's of the Empire.

NEW UNIT—"THE REX."

Claims Bennett Be Good Leader—Start Scheme at Coming Economic Parley.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 15 (C.P.).—An international conference on the silver question would take too much time to be of any effect, J. F. Darling, director of the Midland Bank, told the Banking and Commerce Committee of the House of Commons to-day. His suggestion was that the British Empire should take the lead in a definite program to restore the value of silver and he expressed the opinion that Canada was in a position to take the leadership of the Empire in this matter.

The problem was, he said, to restore to equilibrium the relative values of gold and silver. A few years ago gold was worth, roughly, 14 or 15 times the value of silver. Now it was worth 70 or 80 times as much and the ratio of production of the two metals remained the same. This meant the purchasing power of the world was largely concentrated in the holders of gold.

The condition resulting from this was described by Mr. Darling as "a terrible morass."

The two metals which from time immemorial had been the basis of commerce had been thrown out of balance.

The Plan

He had prepared a plan, said Mr. Darling, whereby the British Empire might rehabilitate the value of silver. The plan was based on the establishment of "a super-bank of Empire," to belong to the Governments of the British Empire in such a way that no single part of the Empire would have control. This bank "would act as an automatic adjusting machine between these two metals."

But a bank of the character which he suggested must have something with which to purchase gold and silver. Therefore he had suggested that the bank have a unit, which would be a mere book-keeping unit, wherewith to buy gold and silver. He had termed this unit "the Rex."

Mr. Darling said that it would require 225,000,000 Rex to take over all the monetary gold in the British Empire, and 90,000,000 Rex to buy the silver held by India against her currency. Offices of the bank, he said, would be established in London, in convenient parts of the Empire, and in India. Adjustments would be made by book-keeping entries. The bank would purchase gold at the rate of 113 grains per Rex, and there would be established a fixed price for silver at twenty times that of gold.

Have Gold Balance

It might be argued, pursued the British financier, that so much silver

BACKING IS ASKED BY LLOYD GEORGE

Urges Federation to Endorse Policy of Cooperation With Labor Gov't.

GIVES WARNING.

BUXTON Derbyshire, May 15. (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent).—Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George "carried the war into Africa" to-day. The Parliamentary Leader of the Liberal party, with an epigrammatic, dramatic appeal that rung back to the old days of his battles with the House of Lords, pleaded with the National Liberal Federation for endorsation of his policy of Parliamentary co-operation with the Labor Government.

"Some day we should go straight ahead" Mr. Lloyd George exclaimed.

"Hear, hear" interruped a voice. "My friend," retorted Mr. Lloyd George, "remember the Titanic. It went straight ahead and ignored the ice warnings. I am an old mariner now. I don't intend to navigate our ship on to the ice floes which have drifted into our seas from the frozen wastes of the Tory pass.

"But if this Liberal Federation decides on another course"—there was an outburst of shouts of "Never, never" interrupted with more cries of "Hear, hear."—"then I would advise my friends to put on their lifebelts and plant their deck chairs as near as they can to the boats. Unless of course," here Mr. Lloyd George paused and added meaningly—"unless any of them have already made arrangements to be picked up."

CLOTHING FOUND ON RIVER BANK BELIEVED TO INDICATE SUICIDE; NOTES SENT TO WIFE AND FRIEND

Police Notified on Contents of Message Immediately Start Dragging.

WORRIED OVER HEALTH.

Magistrate C. Hopewell Been a Leading Citizen of Capital—Mayor 1909-11.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 15 (C. P.). — Belief that Magistrate Charles Hopewell, veteran law administrator of Ottawa, had committed suicide, was expressed by relatives to-day following discovery of articles of his clothing on the banks of the Ottawa River.

In addition to finding of Mr. Hopewell's hat and coat on the river bank, another factor leading to the suicide theory was the revelation the Magistrate had left a note for his wife in the care of personal friends. Contents of the note was not immediately made public.

Police are now dragging the deep Ottawa River in their search for trace of the missing Magistrate.

Dragging Started.

Accompanying the note to Mrs. Hopewell, left in the care of Hal Burns, promient lawyer, was another note to Mr. Burns. In the latter, Mr. Hopewell stated his "worthless remains" would be found near a Rockliffe boathouse. On opening the note this morning, Mr. Burns immediately notified Chief of Police Ross and with other officials the Chief hurried to the boathouse. The discarded clothing of the Magistrate was discovered and dragging operations were set under way.

Close friends declare Magistrate Hopewell has recently been greatly worried over his health and the state of his finances.

In the note sent to Mr. Burns, Mr. Hopewell referred to his having been "a financial failure." Intimates stated the Magistrate had not been speculating on the stock market, but lately had made several unprofitable real estate investments.

Leading Citizen.

About 64 years of age, Magistrate Hopewell was a leading citizen of the capital. He was elected Mayor in 1909 and remained in office during the succeeding two years. His appointment as Magistrate was made in October, 1922, and he occupied the City Police Court bench since that date.

In addition to Mrs. Hopewell, there are four daughters, all married, and one son.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

NEW YORK EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 15 (C.P.).—After wide declines in the rails and several prominent industrials and utilities, the stock market regained a substantial portion of its losses as bears took their profits in the last hour to-day. U.S. Steel dropped nearly 5 points to a new low at 101¾ then pushed up above 106. American Can. dropped more than 4 to 100¾, and rebounded about 2. At the worst, the following issues were off 2 to 4. General Motors, Sears, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, American Water Works, Atchison Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Eastman and Case, Auburn dropped 16, then rebounded. The market displayed a weak tone at the finish, however. Total sales were around 2,500,000 shares.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, Ont., May 15.—(C.P.)—Toronto exchange market closed weak to-day. New lows sprinkled generously throughout the list. There was no sign of the usual Friday rally and the market left off at its low for the day.

International Nickel made a new all time low for the stock at 12¼, closing at 12¾, where it showed a loss of approximately 1 point compared with Thursday's final. Brazilian dropped 1½ points to 14, a new low; C.P.R. sold off 1 to 28, Montreal Power lost 1¼ to 52¾, a new low. Foods were down fractionally. Steels from a fraction to 1 point with Page Hersey at a new low for the year at 77, and Oils off ¼ and ½ point. Service Stations sold at 15 before the close. Walkers at 64½ was unchanged.

Bank stocks were more active than in recent sessions and down from

ARREST IS MADE SHOOTING CASE

Mounties Hold Neighboring Farmer's Son and Alleged Admirer of Young Widow.

DANCED TOGETHER OFTEN.

WISHART, Sask., May 15 (CP.).—A suspect in the slaying early Tuesday morning of Peter Daday, 27, district farmer, Nick Shmorong, 24, son of a neighboring farmer, and alleged admirer of Daday's 17-year-old widow, has been arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police and is held for questioning. The widow is still held incommunicado as a material witness.

Daday was shot to death in his farm yard a few minutes after he had returned with his wife and another girl from a dance in the village. It was alleged Shmorong had seven dances with Mrs. Daday during the night, and made inquiries from her concerning the location of her home.

The arrested man claims he left the dance with Steve Zellock, a close friend, and another alleged admirer of Julia Daday, walking immediately south to the Zellock farm, and that they spent the night there. Several letters Mrs. Daday received from the two men are in the hands of the police.

Tories Plan To Adopt Emergency Tariff

LONDON, May 15 (A.P.)—Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Leader of the Conservative Party, told an audience of more than 5,000 women in Albert Hall to-day that his party intended to adopt an emergency tariff as soon as it returned to power.

In an address to delegates from many parts of the country attending the conference of the Unionist Party Women's organizations, he declared:

"The time is gone when we can leave our country open and free for the dumping of goods produced under inferior conditions from foreign countries or as a surplus of mass production from any country in the world."

"Such a tariff," he said, "is the only measure by which our people can enjoy equal conditions of competition with the world."

BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET ON THE JOB FIFTEEN MONTHS

Sailors Have Not Seen Home Fires for More Than a Year.

A CRASH AT SEA

By GORDON A. SINCLAIR

GIBRALTAR, April 13.—(Special to The Examiner, Copyright, 1931).—Seventy odd English wives are wandering up and down the Italian Riviera this afternoon wondering where hubby is with his pay cheque and winning smile. Although the wives don't know it, hubby is loafing in Gibraltar cursing the fates who created fog and ships — and he wears no winning smile.

Britain's mighty Mediterranean fleet has been away from home 15 months now and some of the chaps who polish and feed the big guns are getting anxious to see what the home fires look like. Many of the ships have been away much longer than 15 months. There is one brawny stoker in H.M.S. "Vampire" for instance, who has never seen his youngest son. The lad is 7 now and writes a pretty fair letter to tell Dad what he is learning at school.

But this absence makes the heart grow fonder thing has to be expected in navies. The men who really feel homesick for the wife and kiddies

JOSEPH KOVACS PAYS FOR CRIME WITH HIS LIFE

New Canadian Walks Calmly to Scaffold at 5.30 This Morning.

REFUSES TO SEE PARENTS.

Prisoner Convicted to Murdering Constable McNicoll of Welland.

WELLAND, Ont., May 15 (C.P.). — Apparently resigned to his fate, Joseph Kovacs, 45-year-old new Canadian, walked calmly to his death on the gallows at 5.30 o'clock this morning. Convicted of the slaying of Police Constable James A. McNicoll, of the Crowland Police Department, on the night of September 2, 1930, Kovacs mounted the scaffold, spoke a quiet "Good-bye all," to the group of officials and newspapermen, and was pronounced dead six minutes after the trap had been sprung.

Rev. Father Jerome Hedley, spiritual adviser to Kovacs, remained with him throughout the night. He administered the sacrament to the condemned man yesterday. Kovacs spent his last 24 hours quietly, and expressed no desire to see his common-law wife or the numerous friends and relatives who besieged the jail in a vain hope of gaining permission to visit him.

The execution was carried out expeditiously. While a crowd gathered outside as dawn was breaking, the 30 police officers from various nearby municipalities guarded the scene while a deputy of Arthur Ellis, the regular hangman, performed his duties.

It is understood relatives of Kovacs will claim the body.

Shot Constable.

The crime for which the condemned man paid with his life occurred when McNicoll, responding to a telephone report that Kovacs was creating a disturbance in his home, mounted the steps of the verandah at the Kovacs house to investigate. The latter was sitting on a chair on the verandah with a 12-gauge shotgun across his knees. Suddenly a shot rang out and the constable fell fatally wounded.

Kovacs was arraigned on a murder charge at the Fall Assizes here, and was sentenced to be hanged after his conviction. An appeal was made by defence counsel and a new trial was granted by the Appellate Court, and the condemned man was again convicted and sentenced to death.

A petition seeking executive clemency on the ground that the man was not capable of intent because he was under the influence of liquor at the time of the murder failed in its purpose.

This was the first hanging in Welland since 1924.

RUSSIANS SEEK MEXICAN PROPERTY.

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mexico, May 15.—(C. P. SLIGHT DAMAGE.

ROME, May 15. (AP) — Severe earthquake shocks which spread terror but caused no injuries and only slight damage shook the region around Viterbo, 65 miles north of here, Wednesday night.

For two days much of the population of the town of Celleno camped in the streets and on the countryside. The first shock came at 11 p.m. Wednesday night. After people had returned to their houses the area was shaken again at 1.15 a.m.

The tremors were heavy rolling quakes with a lound rumble. After the second shock almost all residents of the little town spent the night crouching around bonfires in their nightclothing praying and crying. Similar scenes occurred at the town of Grassignano nearby.

ASK WAR DEBTS ALL CANCELLED

MARKETS LOST.

MONTREAL, Que., May 15 (C.P.) —For her own sake and for the sake of reparation burdened Europe, whose only means of paying the debt was frustrated by the American high tariff wall, the United States must cancel war debt payments, declared four Italian delegates to the recent congress of the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington on their arrival here.

The four delegates were F. Lantini and Giovanni Vissino, representing the Italian Government; Commissioner Viola of the Rome Chamber of Commerce, and G. Camusso of the Milan Federation of Commerce, who was spokesman.

The United States' stand in the matter not only had made it impossible for Europe to pay her debts but had resulted in her losing a great portion of her European markets, said Mr. Camusso. He declared that the belief in the United States that it was in the interests of the country not to cancel the payments was an illusion which must be got over.

In their trip in the States, he said that they had seen widespread depression and unemployment.

RANGOON, Burma, May 15 (C.P.). —Thirty rebels were killed to-day in an attack of combined force of Punjabis and military police on the insurgent camp near Taingnyo in the Iselin district. Guns, ammunition, rice, and other stores were captured. Two Punjabis were wounded.

SCHOOL CADETS RECEIVE MEDALS AT INSPECTION

Officers and Cadets of Millbrook School Honored by Captain M. Isbestor, D.C.O.

ALSO WIN PRAISE.

Compliments Corps on Attaining Seventh Place in Imperial Competition.

MILLBROOK, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—Parading from the Armouries to the school grounds at 3 o'clock yesterday, where they were inspected by Captain M. Isbestor, D.C.O., Millbrook Cadet Corps, No. 403, won warm praise from the inspecting officer, who declared they had made an increasingly good showing during the three years it has been his privilege to see them.

The corps was in charge of Cadet Captain Henry Grey, and Lieutenants Nelson Davis and Joe Thorndyke, of Platoons No. 1 and No. 2 respectively. Gerald Todd acted as drummer, and the Sergeants are Gordon Davis and Eric Clarke. Marching, platoon and rifle drill, signalling, and physical culture for the juniors, were carried through with precision and despatch, reflecting decided credit on the training given by their instructor, Principal B. B. Dawson.

Presents Medals

Before addressing the Corps at the conclusion of the drill and other manoeuvres, Captain Isbestor presented medals to Captain Gray and Lieutenants Davis and Thorndyke, as well as to the drummer, G. Todd, and also presented Cadet Alvin Widdis with the Strathcona medal for holding the highest record in the local rifle shooting competition.

Complimenting the corps on its excellent showing, Captain Isbestor went on to mention the fact that the Millbrook Cadets have this year won seventh place in the first one hundred corps of thew hole British Empire, through their high record in the imperial competition. "Not many corps have ever had the honor to hold the Earl Jellicoe Sword for one year.

Obituary Sketches Dwell Particularly on His Eminence as a Producer.

SUPREME IN PERIOD.

LONDON, May 15 (C.P.). — The London Press to-day regretted in both news and editorial columns the passing of David Belasco. Long warmly appreciative obituary sketches told the story of his life and success, dwelling particularly upon his eminence as a producer.

The Daily Mail described him as "perhaps the finest producer the world has ever seen," and said: "The theatre has lost by his death one of its greatest personalities—I should almost say the greatest of all."

The Times, emphasizing the greatness of his stagecraft, said: "As a stage magician he was supreme in his place and period. There are few greater names in the annals of the American stage."

The Post called him the "most famous, if not the greatest, of American playwrights and producers. Although he regarded ultra modern quarters as old-fashioned in methods and artistic idealism, Belasco was to the last a pioneer of pioneers, and what he did not know about production probably is yet to be heard of."

Toscanini extricated himself from the group and walked off the stage, and cancelled both that night's concert and one scheduled for tomorrow night at the same theatre.

HON. HERB. MARLER BACK FROM ORIENT

necessary in Japan was described in an interview.

"Ceremonial" he observed, "plays a tremendously important part in our work. As the minister I must observe the strictest decorum and regard for precedence. In public, I must always enter an automobile before my wife. I must sit in the right hand seat of honor. I must not register for myself at hotels. In money matters, I must display a complete lack of interest. Only by such observances can one expect to be received seriously as an envoy of his country.

"Ceremonial at the Imperial Palace, while strict, is not terrifying. I have had several private audiences with the Emperor and, of course, the usual number of contacts at his entertainments. He is a highly intelligent, hard-working man. Incidentally, he is a great biologist. Conversation with him, through an interpreter, is easy and interesting.

"A trip in my ministerial capacity is a matter of great moment. I am met by governors, or their representatives. Chiefs of police and their men escort me. If I am aboard a ship, the gangway must be cleared and I must precede my wife. I am greeted by the captain. So it goes—ceremony which to Canadians may seem unnecessary. But such matters are vital in the Orient. Without them one cannot establish contacts and friendships which are valuable to one's country.

Every Door Open.

"In all my travels, arduous but always interesting—and, understand, I am not speaking personally, but as a Canadian representative — I have found every door open, every means of information available. Were I just 'Mr. Marler' that would not be so. It is simply because I bear certain rank, which has given me easy access to information that I could otherwise gather only with great difficulty, if at all."

Referring to the visit last year of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce delegation, Mr. Marler said the trip did immeasurable good. It gave people a chance to meet Canadians, to talk with them and understand them personally.

"I cannot remember that visit," the Minister said, "without paying tribute to the excellent leadership of Mr. John Imrie of the Edmonton Journal. He carried out his task with intelligence and dignity."

Appeal of Doomed Man on Self-defense Plea Thrown Out By Court.

SHERBROOKE, Que., May 15 (C.P.). — Albert Vincent, 28-year-old lumberjack of Roxton Falls, was hanged in the Sherbrooke Jail this morning for the murder of Edmond Trudeau, a farmer of Flodden, Que., last fall.

Vincent was convicted last fall of the murder of Edmond Trudeau, an elderly farmer of Flodden, in the Eastern Townships section of Quebec. He stayed for some time with Trudeau in his home and was said to have had a quarrel with the older man. Trudeau was not seen by his neighbors for several days. They investigated and called police. A thorough search revealed the battered body of Trudeau hidden under a pile of cordwood in the cellar of his farmhouse.

Follows Trail 45 Miles.

Sergt.-Detective Louis Jarcaille of the Provincial Police followed the train of Vincent to a town 45 miles away, Roxton Falls, where he placed him under arrest and took him to Sherbrooke.

Vincent was tried and convicted by a jury of the Court of King's Bench under Mr. Justice White of Sherbrooke. His counsel appealed the conviction on legal grounds concerning the admissibility of an alleged confession of Vincent admitting the crime, but pleading self-defence, and also charged misdirection of the jury by the trial judge.

The appeal was thrown out by the Court of Appeals sitting in Montreal, and the sentence of death passed upon Vincent was upheld. He was kept in jail at Montreal till Wednesday of this week, when a party of Provincial Police brought him to Sherbrooke Jail by train.

SERVICE BOON TO MOTORISTS

Central Service Station is a Complete One-stop Station.

CONVENIENT LOCATION.

The Central Service Station, owned and operated by Mr. Joe Detcher, is a complete one-stop station for the motorists of this community. There one may have their car completed repaired, in every detail. The service includes general automobile repairing, battery repairs and recharging, ignition service, washing, complete lubrication, etc. They carry an extensive line of automobile accessories and are agents for Delco Batteries and Atlas tires and tubes for this territory.

In every way the equipment of the Central Service Station is modern and up-to-date, and they furnish a very popular place for autoists by reason of their very convenient location and the complete and satisfactory service offered there. They supply their customers with gasoline that is a superior combination that gives more power, more pep, more mileage and makes for comfort in driving, keeping the engine quiet, even in hill climbing. The motor oils sold by this growing concern gives the maximum lubrication to your motor under the most severe heat or cold. It may be had in various weights for all cars and all weathers. They are authorities upon motor fuels and lubricants and can be depended upon to give you the best for your particular motor. For the transmission and differential they furnish grease that clings, giving maximum protection to the gears.

The transactions of the Central Service Station are designated by sincere courtesy. That their service is most satisfactory is shown by the success they have enjoyed. They have built their large clientele through handling dependable products, giving superior repair service and dealing fairly. Innumerable people of Peterborough and environs are boosters for this establishment. We hope for continued success for Mr. Joe Detcher and his enterprising station. Do you know the kinds of gasoline handled by the Central Service Station, and the price there on? $3.00 cash prize given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Seven in to-day's issue).

MOTOR CARAVAN PASSES COCHRANE.

COCHRANE, Ont., May 15.— (C. P.)—The motor expedition headed by E. Wharton Shaw of Hamilton, Ont., who is attempting to make an east to west journey through Canadian territory, arrived here yesterday after some delay due to road conditions. The expedition left for Kapuskasing this morning.

English pedestrians using highways at night are wearing hats and mackintoshes in vivid colors to escape being run down by autoists.

FARM WAGES IN BRITAIN.

According to government regulations which came into effect in March in certain counties of Great Britain wages for farm laborers over 21 years of age are fixed at 32 shillings, 6 pence, or about $8.00 per week with a graduating downward scale for workers under that age. Hours of work per week are also fixed by these regulations, definite provision being made for holidays and overtime.

His Life Was One Long Sick Headache

Definitely Relieved by Carter's Little Liver Pills

Some people are constipated from birth; but most humans bring Constipation upon themselves. How YOU became constipated doesn't matter. How you can acquire natural habit does. One thing is sure—you must pay attention to your liver.

Mr. V. H. Thornton discovered this. He writes: "For many years I have suffered with that distressing complaint constipation, sick headache and indigestion. It was a red-letter day for me when a friend recommended Carter's Little Liver Pills. I can honestly say results have been marvelous."

Vegetables, as everyone knows, promote health. Dr. Carter's Little Liver Pills are entirely vegetable and should not be confused with ordinary laxatives. These wonderful little pills will tone up your liver, invigorate your digestive tract and keep you in the best of health. Sold by druggists for over 60 years. 25c and 75c red packages.

His Gratitude

Janeville, May 10, 1931.

Dr. Thuna, Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—I want to tell you of the wonderful results I have had with your remedies. On September 26, 1930, I was in a bad condition with gall stones and a double scrotic rupture. I started using your System Cleanser, your Kidney and Bladder Balsam and your set of Rupture Remedies. On March 23rd, 1931, I was completely cured, having been relieved of 200 gall stones, and my rupture entirely cured. My work as a lumberman is heavy, but I am now able to do a full day's labor with ease. I am indeed grateful for the relief your herbal remedies have given me, and I am glad to give this testimony to their effectiveness.

Thankfully yours,

GEORGE SOLMES.

Above is a sample of the many kind things said of our remedies.

HOW IT WORKS OUT.

If any proof were needed that Canada's action in refusing to authorize liquor shipments to the United States has failed to keep liquor from this country out of the neighboring Republic, it is supplied by figures given out by the Department of Trade and Commerce.

These statistics show that last year the little French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon climbed up to the position of Canada's ninth best customer.

Last year Canada sold more goods to those two islands than she did to Australia or Ireland or Argentina or Brazil or China or Mexico.

Altogether St. Pierre and Miquelon formed a market in 1930 for $11,004,479 worth of Canadian merchandise.

It is scarcely necessary to mention that these goods consisted almost entirely of liquor, nor does it require much use of the imagination to arrive at a conclusion as to the ultimate destination of this more than eleven million dollars' worth of intoxicants.

St. Pierre and Miquelon, as a matter of fact, have simply become filling stations for prohibition United States, and Canadian liquor reaches the American consumer through these tiny pieces of French territory.

Canada, in short, hasn't developed a new customer, but is merely dealing with a new middle man.

The results are the same—except that the Dominion loses a few million dollars of revenue.

THE POLICE BRAKE TEST.

Testing of brakes by the police department is a useful piece of public service that should help to make travelling conditions safer.

Even when the mechanical condition of a car is perfect careful driving is necessary to prevent accidents, and poor tires and lights and defective brakes are simply an invitation to disaster.

There are so many people who are willing to take a chance with equipment in bad condition regardless of the risk to themselves and to others on the road that it is necessary to prod that kind of motorist into action, and the police, by instituting a general brake test, should bring about an improvement in conditions.

At the same time something similar should be done about lights.

"One-eyed" automobiles, and some without lights of any kind, are a common spectacle on city streets at night, and while they are checked up and warned, it would seem that something more drastic will have to be resorted to if there is to be any betterment.

So long as the worst they need expect is a warning, a lot of offenders will continue to be indifferent in regard to their brakes and lights.

A few fines might have a magic effect upon such motoring delinquents.

SHOULD BE SIFTED.

It is of the greatest importance that the assertion that the Canadian wheat crop during 1917 and 1918 was sold at the market instead of at the fixed price of $2.21 a bushel paid the Canadian farmers by the Wheat Board, and that the surplus thus obtained should have gone back to the grain growers, should be investigated.

The fact that so many years passed without any attention being directed to this question is astonishing enough, it is true, but does not absolve the present Government from the responsibility of discovering whether or not the amazing charge is founded upon a substantial basis of truth.

If it is correct the farmers were deprived of millions of dollars that rightly belonged to them, for the world price of wheat during the years in question was decidedly higher than that paid by the Wheat Board.

Although some members of the board are dead and the transactions took place back in the war years, there must be records available that will show clearly whether there is any truth in this story.

It is a question that vitally interests the western farmers in particular, and certainly it should be sifted to the bottom.

Too much is involved to let this matter stand as it is.

MR. CHAPLIN'S OUTBURST.

Charlie Chaplin, who gave the world a new style of moustache as well as a novel brand of movie humor, is apparently suffering from a very bad attack of what is commonly known as a "swelled head."

The interview he gave in France the other day to a representative of the London Daily Express shows that Mr. Chaplin can be even funnier when he talks than he is on the screen.

He has a grievance against the land of his birth, declaring that England did not "take the slightest interest" in him until he won fame in the United States, which, after all, does not seem to be a very serious indictment.

Mr. Chaplin overlooks the fact that when he left England he was a very ordinary music-hall comedian, and fails to remember that his arrival in New York caused not the slightest semblance of a stir along Broadway.

It was the development of the movies that brought him into the limelight, like it brought many other notorieties who would never have been heard of had it not been for the new form of entertainment.

He has therefore no particular quarrel with the English people, who gave him a royal reception a few weeks ago when he visited his native country, a reception that in view of what he said the other day was much more flattering than he deserved.

The next time the spoiled comedian of the funny feet visits London he's likely to encounter a much different kind of welcome.

SABBATH MADNESS.

Kingston Whig-Standard: The Sabbath, once a day of rest, is now fast becoming known as the day of eternal rest. For more people now go to an untimely death on that day than any other day of the week. Mad motoring is responsible for this ghastly change. The Sabbath was made for man, to be sure, but not for the exercise of his uttermost folly. Yet during the motoring season, as surely as Monday rolls round we have the gruesome front page news of the dead, the dying and the injured who have apparently gone mad over Sunday and have paid the price. This is not the full extent of the bad uses to which we are putting the Sabbath day, although they are the most spectacular. Add to this list the jangled nerves of many a good wife, he tired body of many a husband, the unnatural stimulation of many children of the families that rise early and start out on a quest of distance. Fast and furious driving is likey to mar such a trip, with many near accidents. The mind, body and soul undergoes almost every experience and emotion except those of rest and respose and recreation. Then the homeward journey and the sleep of exhaustion or, what is more likely, the sleeplessness of exhausted nerves.

NOT A SIMPLE PROBLEM.

Considering the situation in which Sir Henry Thornton found the Canadian National Railways when he took over its direction, both from a financial and a physical standpoint, it would be unreasonable to the last degree to find fault with him or to lose courage because of his inability to transform it into a self-supporting—and much less a profitable—enterprise inside of ten years' time. Miracles do not happen nowadays; at least, not in the business world. Indeed, fair-minded Canadians should ask themselves seriously whether it could have been possible for Sir Henry, or anyone else, to effect a drastic improvement in the physical condition of a decrepit and rapidly depreciating railroad and, at the same time, to effect a material reduction in obligations with which it had been saddled at the outset.

At all events, if any person or persons are out for the scalp of the C.N.R., in the homely but vigorous phrase of Sir Henry, they should "hop to it." And above all, they should show themselves in the open frankly and set forth their grounds of opposition honestly. A number of possible points suggest themselves that are open to discussion, if nothing more: Can there be competition between a publicly and a privately-owned railroad in Canada? Can there be competition between any two railroad systems at all? Is it possible to eliminate duplicating services and to prune purely competitive expenditures? These and other questions may be raised and are not only proper but highly pertinent. On the other hand, undercover snipings against the C.N.R. for allegedly extravagant management, while mischievous and, in our judgment, futile, are also discreditable to those who indulge in them.

* * * *

Considered generally, the improvement that Sir Henry has brought about in the physical condition of the Canadian National system is so striking as to speak for itself and leaves the fault-finders silent. That such an improvement must have entailed a very considerable expenditure of money is also obvious, and Sir Henry's spendings, for the most part, are not open to attack, criticism being limited to the construction of palatial hotels and elaborate terminals, and to the creation of certain de luxe services. With wages up and freight rates down—two factors beyond his own control—to have maintained revenue substantially undiminished is no small accomplishment—one that has been achieved, let the reader note, while at the same time lopping nineteen millions off expenditures.

The whole issue, in a word—if there is an issue—boils itself down to the question of whether the same results could have been obtained while practising a still more rigid economy. If one looks at some of the ambitious projects of Sir Henry individually one might be tempted to say: "Here and here a saving could have been made." But unfortunately the problem is not one that can be settled as simply as that. To begin with, there is no use in building up road-bed and equipment if the service is not advertised in such a way as to get the competitive haul. And every railroader knows that there is a distinct relation between the advertisement created by hotels, terminals and de luxe services and the securing of freight and passenger traffic. Today, there is the competition of the motor car and the autobus to be met and the consequent need to provide the most rapid transportation between terminal points; speed meaning more expense. Then, again, the C.N.R. is obliged to meet the almost world-wide organization of its competitor which, by means of its chain of hotels and its fleets of steamships on two oceans, is able to pick up traffic wherever it originates and to hold it exclusively for itself wherever it moves in Canada. To do this, the C.N.R. must, or should have, the same facilities, and these take still more money to create.

* * * *

To sum up, if Canada is to have a railroad at all, in order to do business it must be a first-class railroad, capable of meeting any competition that offers, or going it one better if possible. And if Canada is to have that kind of a railroad, Canadians must be prepared to foot the bill. To build up such a system is a lengthly, difficult and costly job under the most favorable circumstances. And one may as well realize that the task has been immensely complicated by requiring that Sir Henry make a first-class system out of the tangled mess of junk the Federal Government had undertaken to salvage, and by placing upon his shoulders the staggering burden of a debt piled up as the result of years of the most reckless competition. At all events, Canadians have put their hand to the length to the plough of public ownership, and it is much too late in the day to try and look back now, if confusion is not to be made worse confounded.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

An advisory board to study juvenile delinquency is predicted by Hon. W. G. Martin. There is work for it to do in Ontario.

The Ontario racing season has opened, and the crowds attending Thorncliffe offer little evidence of hard times.

---

Canada's conversion loan has already passed its objective. An avalanche of applications indicates the complete success of the campaign.

---

Lord Chancellor Sankey says that the real danger to Great Britain is that the unemployed may lose their "will to work." That is the direst peril entailed by the dole.

According to Provincial Treasurer E. A. Dunlop, more British films are being shown in Ontario and a quota regulation may not be necessary. It would be interesting to know just where these British pictures are being exhibited.

TAG DAYS

To Editor of Examiner,

Dear Sir,—Has the Police Commission done anything about curtailing tag days in Peterborough? In last night's Examiner I see that we are to have another one on Saturday making three in a row and four since the Saturday before Easter. I think that it is high time that a Central Organization was formed that would look after the needs of these various charity and other organizations which require funds by public subscription and do away with these tag days. For my own part, I would gladly contribute more to any central organization than I contribute to all these tag days. It has gotten so now that a citizen walking down the street is stopped on every corner and asked to buy a tag no matter whether he is wearing one or not.

Citizen.

THE NEW LOAN

To The Editor of The Examiner,

Sir,—Hardly anybody will fail to see that when a loan falls due at 5½ per cent and is reduced to 4½ per cent., it is a sign that many will find it more attractive than business propects and more attractive than prospects were when the old loan was launched.

We therefore see that vast sums which we hoped would go into the expansion of business and employment have been withdrawn from both and will leave us stranded. This is a very serious matter. Political furies may find find gratification in political feuds just as they do in whiskey feuds in Kentucky or feuds in Dummer but time will call people to their senses and it won't be long.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, May 15. — Receipts at the Union Stock Yards yesterday were: 141 calves, 44 hogs, 10 sheep and lambs.

There were 200 stale cattle in the yards when the market opened yesterday morning and only a few cows sold up to 11 o'clock. These brought $3.50 to $4.00 a cwt. for medium to good quality. Prices on steers and heifers were down 50 cents a cwt. for the week at Wednesday's close, and baby beef lost $1.00 a cwt. in the week's trading. Supply for the week was the heaviest for the season to date at around 7,000 head.

Good veal calves sold at the week's decline of $1.00 a cwt., bringing $7.00 a cwt., with common to medium calves anywhere from $3.00 to $6.00 a cwt

Good spring lambs brought $15.00 a cwt., selling at an advance of -2.00 a cwt. over Monday's opening.

Sheep closed weak at $4.00 to $4.50 a cwt. for the best and downward to $1.00 a cwt. for culls.

Hogs in yesterday's supply sold on a basis of $7.25 a cwt. f.o.b., or $8.00 a cwt. w.o.c. for bacon. These are 75 cents a cwt. down for the week.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 15.—Parallel with the stock market, grains took a downward path yesterday, and suffered 2 cents or more a bushel tumble in wheat and corn. Stop-loss selling was accelerated by predictions of showers in the Canadian drought section and by large Russian exports of wheat, whereas North American export demand was slack. Offerings of new 1931 domestic winter wheat on a loan basis at Texas were announced.

Wheat closed nervous at almost the day's bottom figures, a shade to 2 cents down; corn ¾ to 2¼ cents off, oats showing ¼ to ¾ decline, and provisions varying from 5 cents setback to a rise of 2 cents

SMALL ANIMALS ARE CARED FOR

Dr. Thomas Johnston Renders Splendid Service in the Community.

SPECIALIZED SURGERY.

Dr. Thomas Johnston, in his capacity as humane officer and veterinary surgeon, is serving this section in a most admirable manner. The veterinary surgeon of to-day may be compared to, and is very similar to, the surgeon who specialises in the treatment of small children, in that he must be able to diagnose the case and affect a cure without verbal assistance from the patient. Neither the small child nor the animal can tell where the pain is or give any assistance toward relieving it, hence the successful veterinary must have a thorough knowledge of the physical anatomy and the very temperaments of the various animals that he is called upon to treat. Just a few years ago valuable animals with a broken leg were shot. Various diseases were considered incurable. Now these misfortunes yield to the treatments administered by the veterinary surgeons and many valued animals are brought back to full health and usefulness.

A complete and intensive study of these various ailments and diseases and ailments of animals has been made by Dr. Thomas Johnston. He has engaged in scientific research, and is thoroughly conversant with every modern development in the profession. Practically all vaccines, serums, etc. were tried out and perfected on dumb animals first and much of this is carried out through the veterinary. They have an enormous field for scientific research work.

One of the best equipped infirmaries for the treatment of animals is maintained by Dr. Thos. Johnston. There he nurses and boards pets for a very nominal sum. He is truly serving Peterborough and vicinity in an efficient and conscientious manner. Do you know how long Dr. Johnston has served this section in the profession of veterinary surgery?

HENRY COTTON RETAINS LEAD

Scores Record of 68 on His Third Round for Total of 215 in Southport Tourney.

JURADO ELIMINATED.

SOUTHPORT, Eng.m May 15.—(AP)—Henry Cotton, young British professional who threatened to quit the Southport tournament yesterday when he carded a 77, did a record 68 on his third round to-day to take the lead with a 215 total for 54 holes, three better than Horton Smith, Missouri professional.

Playing his irons with deadly effect up to the green and then putting soundly, Cotton placed himself in a commanding position to win the tournament over the final 18-hole stretch in the afternoon.

Cotton has never won one of the major championships, being runner up in the Southport tournament last year and eighth in the open. He was a member of the Ryder cup team in 1929, defeating Al Watrous in one of the singles encounters. He is only 24 years old.

Jose Jurado, the Argentine captain who has been giving the Prince of Wales lessons, took an 81 to-day for a 54-hole total of 239, practically eliminating himself from the tournament.

Rain had set in heavily as Cotton finished his round and Smith started out his fourth and last round in a downpour.

Kirkwood, 16 strokes behind Cotton and with no chance of catching him, withdrew and did not play out the fourth round.

Wheat Surplus Plan Is Vetoed By Stone

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 15.—(AP)—A suggestion that the wheat surplus be controlled by a plan involving a nation-wide acreage reduction agreement in the United States was vetoed to-day by Chairman Stone of the Federal Farm Board.

Stone, in a letter to state P. J. Wilmer, of Rosalia, Washington, said the problem's solution and higher prices lay in individual effort toward smaller crops. He held as impractical control measures which are contingent upon participation under contraction of 75 percent of the growers.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL DROPS FOLLOWING NEW YORK SOFTNESS

Brazilian Traction, Walkers and C.P.R. Also Show Declines.

NORANDA DOWN.

TORONTO, Ont., May 15.—(CP)—Weakness in International Nickel featured trading on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. The stock breaking through all previous lows for the present issue, when it sold at 12½ late in the second hour.

Nickel opened soft and dropped lower, following the trend of New York, sold downward, though the reaction was not pronounced until late in the morning when it broke more rapidly.

The remainder of the list was soft but reactions were more limited. Brazilian Traction slid off a part of a point to a new low under 15. Walkers sold at its low of 5½ recorded yesterday, C.P.R. went down to 29. Ford of Canada lost ½ point to 19¼. Steels were fractionally lower and the oils down 1-8 and ¼ point each.

Atlantic Sugar, up a point at the opening, quickly lost the overnight gain and at midday was unchanged from last night at 20¾.

Service Stations hung at its low of 15½.

Noranda was down ½ point at 22½.

ASSOCIATION PLANS ANNUAL GATHERING

King George School Picnic Will Be Held at Nicholls Park on June 18.

The monthly meeting of the King George Home and School Association was held in King George School on Tuesday, last. In the business part of the meeting arrangements were made for the annual picnic at Nicholl's Park on Thursday, June 18.

After the business part of the meeting J. Ellis took the chair. This part of the program opened with a piano solo by Ferne Cruikshank and was followed by a drama, which was given by Miss Stinson's class. Betty McLeod gave a humorous recitation. A reading by Miss Outram was much appreciated. A piano duet was rendered by Florence Trebilcock and Mary MacPherson and was followed by a dialogue entitled, "How the Story Grew." Miss Fusee's class then sang two songs.

Mrs. Wand presented a report on the convention of the Home and School Associations. The report was an excellent paper which dealt with the aims and accomplishment of the organization. Mrs. Wand put in a strong plea that more interest be taken in the association. She claimed that the council was like a chain and that each association was a link. Thus the strength of the organization depended altogether on the links or associations. Parent education, the need for the study of civics and the problem of assimilating the foreign elements in our land were other points dealt with in Mrs. Wand's report.

After the report, the program ended with a piano duet by Mary Sullivan and Catherine Joyce, and with a solo by Miss Genevieve Foster. The meeting then closed with the National Anthem.

LOUGHRAN BILLED FOR TO-NIGHT'S BOUT

Matched Against Argentine Italian, Victorio Campolo at Madison Square Garden.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 15.—Tommy Loughran, whose accurate left han is a source of constant embarrassment to his fistic rivals, meets the huge Italian from the Argentine, Victorio Campolo, in a ten round bout in Madison square garden to-night.

Although Tommy will be giving away 40 pounds in weight, six inches in height and more than that in reach, the clever Philadelphian rules an 8 to 5 choice to win.

Loughran, who has won seven successive fights in an amazing comeback campaign after his knockout by Jack Sharkey, will scale little more than 180 pounds as compared with the 225 or 230 pounds Campolo will carry into the ring. But Campolo's chief weapon is a right hand shot to the body and few right and hitters have managed to land squarely on the speedy Philadelphian. Experts figure that Tommy will keep away from Victorio's heaviest jolts without particular trouble and score enough points with that left hand to walk off with the decision.

Of course if Campolo should succeed in landing solidly another story would be told. Sharkey knocked out Loughran in the third round of their match in 1929 with a right hand shot on the head that stunned the Philadelphian so badly he could not continue. Other rivals have had Tommy on the floor although none but Sharkey could keep him there.

TESTS MISS ENGLAND 2nd

GARDONE, Riviera, Italy, May 15.—(AP)—Kaye Don, the British racing motorboat driver who holds the world's record of 103.49 miles an hour, to-day took out his Miss England, 2nd, for a trial spin preparatory to making an attempt on his own universal mark.

Don said he felt he could do at least 104 miles an hour or better.

Gas And Oil Stocks Active On Standard

Companies Making Rapid Headway—Assuming Increasingly Important Role in Trading.

Increasing stock market activity in the securities of natural gas and oil companies on the Standard Exchange; important developments in connection with the operations of the companies concerned; and the steady increase in the number of companies formed to operate in this phase of industry, has given rise on the street to a feeling that these issues will contribute increasingly to share trading during the coming summer. The golds have been regarded favorably during the past several months due to their improving position and their ability to disregard industrial depressions. Much the same situation exists with regard to natural gas producers, the demand in most cases exceeding the supply, so that production can safely be increased rather than lowered.

One new company has appeared locally due to the possibilities afforded in this industry, and several more are in process of formation. It is learned that all these issues will most likely be traded in on the Standard Exchange. Homestead Oil and Gas is one of the latest to come before the public. Pentoga Gas Corporation is now coming into the limelight and the shares are now actively traded in on the street. It is understood that several new companies operating in the same district as the above two will appear soon, Susquehanna Oil and Gas Company is one name mentioned.

In addition to these, a number of other gas and oil companies are actively traded in on the mining market. Ajax, Acme, Petrol and Olga are all carrying out active operations. Progress is reported in all cases. Ajax to date has completed 18 gas wells in the Brantford Indian Reserve, Ont., 17 of which are ommercial. The company had no producers in this field about a year ago. Acme has just completed its fourth gasser near Tillsonburg, Ont., and plans aggressive drilling. Contracts have been made for the marketing of production. Petrol has completed over 45 wells in the Brantford Reserve as against 20 about a year ago. Olga has arranged for an aggressive drilling campaign in western Ontario. These operations are located in the most thickly-populated section of Ontario and an ample market exists for all production.

Homestead and Pentoga are operating in the new Tioga, Penn., field, where a population of more than 35,000,000 is located within a 250-mile radius. These companies plan aggressive drilling and arrangements for the marketing of output have been made. Other local companies are now being formed to operate in this field. The established companies have demonstrated their ability to step-up output.

The above factors, including increasing output, ready markets, continued drilling, etc., are all put forward by those claiming that the issues will share any activity with the gold stocks this summer. The number of new companies now in process of formation indicate the possibility of a "natural gas" stock section on the Standard Exchange, which has been the market for this type of security for years.

GENERAL MOTORS LEADS WALL STREET DECLINE

General Drop Reduces Level of Prices Close to Four-year Low Recorded April 29.

U. S. STEEL LOWEST.

(By Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 15.—The slow but relentless wearing down of share values broadened in to-day's market.

Several of the industrials that have recently offered considerable resistance gave way after midday, notably General Motors. The further decline reduced the general level of prices close to the four-year low recorded April 29. The price index of 90 shares recovered 8½ points between that date and May 8, but starting last Saturday. The trend has been almost steadily downward.

U.S. Steel and American Can dropped about 4 points to new lows. Auburn, after pushing up 5 to 217 fell back below 200. Rails continued to show conspicuous group heaviness, but motors and utilities also lost ground. Miscellaneous issues off about 2 to 3 points included General Motors, Eastman, American Water Works, American Telephone, Corn Products, Johns Manville, National Biscuit, Case, Sears Roebuck, Goodyear, Dupont, Atchison, New Haven, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Lackawanna and Norfolk and Western. Losses of a point or so were numerous. Missouri Pacific preferred, however, rallied 3 points on declaration of the regular dividend and Standard of N.J., was steady, despite the shrinkage in earnings reported to-day for 1930.

Bear pressure and discouraged selling by investors were indicated in brokerage circles as important sources of the continued pressure.

EASTERN HORSES ARE FAVORITES

Whitney's Twenty Grand and Bostwick's to Continue Racing Feud.

IN KENTUCKY DERBY.

(By Allan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor.)

LOUISVILLE, KY., May 15.—They like their horse races down here in the blue grass, under any conditions, so even the old line of Kentucky turfman to-day accepted the prospect that, barring an upset, it will be an all-eastern battle for three-year-old honors in the fifty-seventh running of the classic derby.

Two years ago Clyde Van Dusen, the little mud horse, outrushed the pride of the Blue Grass, Blue Larkspur and won. Last year in another downpour, Gallant Fox beat the best the west had to offer. To-morrow, not one but two crack eastern thoroughbreds, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand and Albert C. Bostwick's Mate, are favored to renew their racing feud in a fight for the winner's wreath of roses and close to $60,000 in prize money.

C. V. (Sonny) Whitney's one-time derby favorite, Equipoise, may stage a come-back after several disappointments. Somehow the west may realize such a contender as Thomas E. Mueller's Pittsburgher. The 'Big Train," Griffin Wattles' Insco or Charles T. Fisher's Sweep All. The big debate today centred on the chances that Twenty Grand will have the stuff to turn the tables on Mate, the Preakness victor, over the longer route of one mile and a quarter—at Equal weights, 126 pounds, and with an even break in the racing luck.

Winnipeg Review

The market opened firm yesterday morning with prices scoring gains of 3-8 to ½ from the close Wednesday night, but the support was largely local based on the continuing dry conditions in Western Canada and after this support was satisfied the market turned heavy with prices gradually slipping downward until they were into the daily bids and showing losses of about 1¼ cents for the day. The chief features were the lack of export business overnight, weakness in Liverpool and Chicago and the excellent condition of the winter wheat crop in the United States with every indication that another big crop will be harvested, to which must be added the large present supplies of old crop wheat. Black Sea shipments this week totalled 1,680,000 bushels of which Russian shipped 1,552,000 bushels. Argentine shipments will also be fairly large. There was no rain in either spring or winter wheat territory, but the forecast carried the promise of showers in Northern districts of Saskatchewan and Alberta. This made the longs somewhat nervous and they were unloading their holdings. While there was no aggressive buying at any time, it is generally believed that this wheat has gone into stronger hands, and on the scale down yesterday the market ran into some export business, variously estimated from 500,000 to 1,000,000 bushels. All bullish news is being ignored these days due to the lack of export business and speculative business. The demand for cash wheat was slow. There was some inquiry for toughs but buyers were not keen and holders were not inclined to accept present bids. Spreads were mostly unchanged. Country marketings, Wednesday, were 245,000 bushels, last year 115,000. Winnipeg futures closed 1 1-8 to 1 cent lower.

Coarse Grains—These markets, both cash and futures were generally quiet. Prices worked lower in sympathy with the weakness in wheat, but there was not a great deal of pressure in evidence. There were reports of a little Rye being worked but this could not be confirmed here. Oats closed ½ to ¼ lower, Barley ¾ to ½ lower, and Rye ¾ to ⅞ lower.

Flax market was also somewhat lower with the market generally a dull and veatureless affair.

Liverpool Cables due ½ lower based on Winnipeg.

Trading Fairly Heavy On Montreal Exchange

MONTREAL, Que., May 15 (C.P.).—Trading was fairly heavy on the Montreal Stock Market this morning, and losses were generally over a wide range of stocks.

Brazilian Traction, Nickel, and Montreal Power bore the brunt of the heavy trading. Brazilian sold off 7-8 to 14 5-8, Nickel moved down a full point to 12½, and Montreal Power yielded a point at 53.

Atlantic sugar gained 1 at 22. Dominion Bridge was off 1 point at 33. Smelters dropped 1½ at 94½, and Steel of Canada sold off 1 at 29. Shawinigan lost ¾ at 42, McColl-Frontenac was down 5-8 at 12 7-8 and Canadian Pacific ost ¼ at 29.

Nurses of Germany and England are exchanging visits.

NICKEL AFFECTS STANDARD LIST

Majority of Issues Show More or Less Important Recessions at Mid-day.

WRIGHT-HARGREAVES DOWN

TORONTO, Ont., May 15.—(CP)—Prices met with another setback in the forenoon session on the mining market. International Nickel reflecting softness in New York, adversely influenced the balance of the list, majority of issues traded showing more or less important recessions at midday.

Nickel sold lower on the opening and by noon had dropped to a new low for the year of $12.75, a point below last night. Noranda lost a half to $22.50, Hudson Bay a quarter to $4.20 and Sherritt Gordon 5 to 70. Ventures was off another cent and White Lake down a couple.

In the gold section Wright-Hargreaves sold down a couple, Vipond Granada and Teck-Hughes 5 apiece and Dome 15. Hollinger firmed 15 to $7.80 and Lake Shore was holding. Nipissing lost 5 and Eldorado 3.

Acme gas was fractionally higher and balance of the oils quiet. Chemical Research eased 10 to $2.80.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 15.—(CP)—Prime mercantile paper 2-2¼ per cent.

Foreign exchange irregular; demand rates (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents). Great Britain 4.86 5-16; France, 3.91 3-8; Italy, 5.23 1-8; Germany, 23.80½.

Canadian dollars at 1-16 of one per cent discount.

MARKET CLOSING ON EXCHANGES

1 to 3 points, a few of the group hitting new bottom prices for the year.

Sales amounted to 23,410 shares.

Standard Exchange

TORONTO, Ont., May 15. (CP)—With Nickel establishing an all time low for the new stock, prices moved steadily lower on the mining market to-day. Higher-priced golds showed losses ranging from a few cents to a quarter and similar recessions were registered in other sections of the list.

Lake Shore, after holding firm all day dropped a quarter in late trade. Mining Corporation and Hollinger were down 15 apiece, Granada and Dome lost 20 each and Teck-Hughes, Wright-Hargreaves, Vipond and Big Missouri were off 6. Eldorado, Macassa, Northern Canada, Kirkland Townsite and Barry Hollinger fell a couple each and other movements in the pennies took the form of fractional recessions. Howey alone moved against the trend to establish a 3-cent advance for the day.

International Nickel, touching a new low of $12.50 closed off a point from last night at $12.75. Noranda was down a quarter and Abana, Sherritt Gordon and Base Metals dropped a few cents each.

Majority of oils were quiet with Acme Gas and Homestead unchanged Chemical Research sold off, 15 to $2.75, however, and Alberta Pacific and Nordon were down 3 apiece.

Total sales were 409,061 shares against 428,597 Thursday.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Que., May 15 (C.P.)—The afternoon session of trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange brought little in the way of relief from the decline which persisted throughout the session. While prices were slightly above their low levels of the day, a long list of varying sized losses were showing at the close.

International Nickel dropped to a new low during the early afternoon at 12¾ and then sold up to 12¾ where it was off ¾ for the day. Montreal Power found its lowest level at 52¾, but managed to rally to 53, where it was off one for the day.

Late in the session, Brazilian Traction was also forced to a new low mark, dipping to 14 where it was off 1½ for the day.

The Bank of Montreal sold off to equal its low level at 270, off three for the day.

DUTCH WHEAT QUOTAS.

The recently established quotas of domestic wheat for flour production in Holland which have been established by the Dutch Parliament, are likely seriously to effect the import of Canadian flour by that country, according to reports received by the Canadian National Railways' agricultural department. It is possible, however, that this same law will stimulate the wheat imports from Canada, owing to the necessity for having a larger quantity of hard wheat to be used with the greater amount of domestic product stipulated by the new law.

AUTOMOBILE TO BE GIVEN AWAY

Lakefield Athletic Association Sponsoring Contest for Raising of Funds.

CORRECT MILEAGE.

LAKEFIELD, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence).—The recently organized Lakefield Athletic Association have purchased a Chevrolet coach of newest model, fully equipped, and purposes to sell tickets for an estimating contest on its mileage in a given number of hours. The car will be in the village this week and can be seen. The winner of the contest receives the car. This sort of contest has been run by Rotary and Kiwanis clubs of Peterborough and by the village of Orono with marked success. The net proceeds for the sale of the car will be used as a fund to promote sport in the village the year round, including baseball, bowling, hockey, quoits and all forms of legitimate sport.

There are eight teams of five men, each with a captain, who are selling tickets on the car. The captains are J. A. Porter, J. R. Hull, G. G. Connell, A. B. Burrows, W. G. Morrison, A. A. Lawless, W. J. Charlton, D. H. Webster. The officers of the Athletic Club are:

Honorary Presidents—E. A. Peck, M.P.; T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P.; W. H. Casement, Dr. J. R. Fraser, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie. President—C. S. Tanner; 1st Vice-President, G. G. Connell; 2nd Vice-President, A. G. Lawless; Secretary, A. B. Burrows; Treasurer, N. W. Kyle.

SCHOOL SOFTBALL

On Tuesday evening the High School Softball team played a friendly game with the village team, winning by a score of 11—9. The students made their running principally in the last innings, when eight runs were scored. It was a good game. The umpires were R. Chittick and H. Brown. The line-up was as follows:

High School.—R. Kemp, p; G. Kemp, c; D. White, 1b; R. Nicholls, 2b; H. Morrison, 3b; R. Moore, ss; P. Payne, N. Hurl, R. Wannamaker, field.

Lakefield.—F. Payne, p; H. Stabler, c; B. Wannmaker, 1b; V. Lancaster, 2b; R. Stewart, 3b; K. Junkin, ss; S. Spence, J. MacCallum; W. Dever, field.

A game was scheduled for Wednesday evening between the local girls' team and the C.G.E. of Peterborough, but the rain called off the game, and it will probably be played next week.

On Monday evening last the A.Y.P.A. had an indoor sports night with several games as a variety from the sports. Plans were discussed for the closing banquet and a very pleasant evening was spent.

MRS. R.G. LAWLOR READS ADDRESS

Women's Missionary Society Holds May Meeting in Norwood United Church.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

NORWOOD, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence)—The May meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Norwood United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Samuel Buck on Wednesday. Mrs. Robert McMillen acting as convenor of this group.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Stillman taking the devotional part. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Gordon Girvin. Mrs. R. G. Lawlor addressed the meeting taking for her discourse the many interesting addresses she had heard at the Presbyterial in Peterborough, especially Dr. Arnold's address which Mrs. Lawlor thought was a very outstanding feature of the Presbyterial. Miss Ina McConnel sang a much appreciated solo while Miss Elsie Girvin gave a reading.

Rev. Mr. Stillman addressed the ladies also and closed the meeting with prayer. A social half hour was spent after with the serving of refreshments.

To Hold Anniversary

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church are holding their anniversary services on Sunday, May 17, at 10.30 a.m. and 7 p.m. The special speaker is to be Rev. Dr. W. M. Kanawinn, of Toronto, Sunday School Secretary for the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Dr. Kanawinn is a former minister of the Peterborough Presbytery. The congregational social will be held the following Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

To Withdraw Service

At the United Church the special speaker in the morning at 11 o'clock will be Rev. G. McClennan of Beaverton. The evening service will be withdrawn on account of the annniversary serivces in the Presbyterian Church.

In the Norwood Baptist Church the pastor Rev. G. E. Downing will preach.

Lazy Bob Garkins.

WARSAW, May 15.— (Examiner Correspondence).—The play, "Lazy Bob Garkins" was presented under the auspices of the Junior Institute on Tuesday evening, when the members of the cast of Selwyn, under the training of Rev. Mr. Totten, acted their parts exceedingly well.

Lazy Bob was one of two clerks in a grocery store who was the essence of laziness. A lame, old man supposed to be very poor, was quite satisfied that Bob would waken up and be a splendid man. A girl, whom many did not like, appeared on the scene and Bob fell in love with the result that he did waken up, much to the surprise of the store management and everyone else; he showed himself most attentive to customers and a splendid business man.

The lame man, who was supposed to have been very poor, bought out the business and quite enjoyed the surprise of everyone that he had money with which to do it. Charity had been forced upon him but he had always wanted to pay for what he got. He took lazy Bob as his partner and Bob becomes engaged to the girl who had aroused him.

Entertain Cast.

The members of the United Church Women's Association entertained the members of the cast of "The Secret Society of Cabbageville" on Friday evening in the basement of the church.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson was master of ceremonies. There was the contest, musical chairs; contest in words beginning with pat; spinning the plate, and a game of shreds following with sumptuous supper was served and numerous short speeches were made. Mrs. Digweed, on behalf of the cast, thanked the ladies for the entertainment.

Attend Graduation.

Many residents of Warsaw district attended the graduation exercises of St. Joseph's Hospital nurses in Peterborough, when Miss Evelyn McMurray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Murray, gadusted.

Simpson Induction At Millbrook To-Day

MILLBROOK, May 15. (Examiner Correspondence).—The induction of Rev. W. Simpson, B.A., as rector of the parish of Cavan takes place at St. Thomas' church, Millbrook, this evening at 8 p.m., with Archdeacon Davidson in charge of the service. Rural Dean Weir, of Bethany, will preach the sermon, and the clergymen of the Victoria Deanery are invited to attend. Representatives of the four churches of the parish will co-operate in the service a reception for the new rector being held afterward in the Parish Hall.

Claims of a European producer that he controls certain patents and will prosecute infringements have upset radio manufacturers in the Old World, who do not know whether their products might be hit.

Liverpool, England, has banned the use of Russian lumber in municipal buildings.

BEAUTY OF WHOLE COUNTRYSIDE THIS TIME OF YEAR UNSURPASSED

This District Has Many Beautiful Drives Which Motorists Can Take.

IN NORTHUMBERLAND

HAVELOCK, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence) — Thousands of beauty lovers from all over are travelling to the Niagara Peninsula to behold the wonder of Blossom time. Many are unable on account of limited time, or for other reasons are unable to make this pilgrimage, but it is quite possible for some to make a short trip of a few hours' duration.

The country all around and about Havelock is at this time, drenched in beauty, quite as radiant as that of the peninsula, if of a different type. The fresh and tender green of the budding trees, the emerald green of the fall wheat, the moist brown of the tilled earth, the sweet pungent odors of the budding balsams and pines, the nodding trilliums and the modest hepatica of the hardwood forest, all combine to thrill the senses of the beauty lover, all around. A most delightful drive which can be taken in about three hours, driving along leisurel and stopping occasionally to admire whatever makes the strongest appeal to our vision, is the round about wa to Campbellford, Hastings, Norwood and Havelock. This can be traversed in about three hours, without rushing at an excessive speed, and allowing ample time to admire the beauties of nature.

The roads are in excellent condition, traffic is at this time not crowded. One does not have to inhale the fumes of the exhaust from thousands of motors, and contend with congested traffic on the return journey.

The roads all along the way, are lined with fine farm lands, with an occasional forest, a running brook, and, on some of the hilltops a wonderful view of the rolling, verdant country all around. The seeker after beautiful water scenery is invited to take the river road leading from Hastings to Trent River road, following the south shore of the river from Hastings. At a point about two miles from Hastings, on a high eminence in the road, an unsurpassed view of the river is to be had. The bed of the river looks like a silver ribbon of varied widths, and is interspersed with an occasional island. The country all around is rolling and verdant, with every shade of green, brown, red, and many other hues, combined in a riot of colors, with an occasional cherry tree in full bloom. If one were to see this magnificence depicted upon a canvas one might say, the picture was overdrawn. But it is purely nature's handiwork.

The green of the fall wheat, at this time of year, presents the appearance of a beautifully kept lawn. The tender green of the spring sown grain offers a marked contrast, and accentuates the beauty of each. A little later in the season, the beautiful and fragrant lilac will be in bloom, and there are hundreds of lilac trees on the route marked out.

In another week or so the apple orchards will be in bloom. Many are now in bud. So far the next few weeks there will be much beauty to behold without the discomforts of a long trip, and the hazards of crowded motor traffic.

An economical wall finish

WALPAMUR the famous flat finish for walls and ceilings is economical, because it is so easy to apply that a little goes a long way. You have a choice of the most delightful shades, that dry with an eggshell bloom. It has a soft light-diffusing effect, and makes a lovely background for your household treasures.

It is permanent, washable and fire-resisting, and looks equally well on a wide variety of surfaces.

Houde Sees Crisis In Pulpwood Industry

HUNTINGDON, Que., May 16. — (CP)—"Our biggest industry, pulpwood, is in the greatest crisis. I dare to tell you that there are bankruptcies coming that will mean the loss of a hundrel million dollars of invested capital in the Province of Quebec," declared Camillien Houde, Mayor of Montreal and Leader of the Provincial Conservatives addressing the Women's Conservative Association of Huntingdon last night.

"Mr. Taschereau (Premier of Quebec) said the condition of that industry is due to the promoters. "Who put into the contracts that they must produce at least 200 tons a day?"—Taschereau and Gouin."

Mr. Houde declared that in time of crisis the people turned to the Conservative Party to preserve their country and its stability.

REASONS
for the Present
Dominion of Canada Conversion Loan

BETWEEN now and 1934, Canada must provide more than a thousand million dollars to repay citizens who bought War and Victory Loan Bonds. These vast loans must be refunded; that is to say, renewed or extended, just like renewing a mortgage—in this case, with the entire resources of the Dominion of Canada as security. The present offer to Bondholders is the first step in this refunding operation. No new money is being asked for.

The question may be asked—Why not wait until the present Bonds mature and then give holders the option of renewing? The answer is that it would be unwise for any country to wait until the last minute to formulate its financial policy.

Even as War and Victory Loan Bonds were issued over a term of years, so must the Conversion (or renewal) of the Loans be arranged for in good time.

The advantages to those who convert their present Bonds into the new Bonds are:

1—They will be extending the term of their investment in Canada's premier security;

2—They will receive, until maturity of present Bonds, the full rate of interest (with tax exemption, if any) carried by such Bonds;

3—Thereafter, they will be assured of a definite income at the attractive rate of 4½% per annum for a period of not less than fifteen years and possibly twenty-five.

The conditions that have existed during the past two years have proved the unassailable quality of Dominion of Canada Bonds. Their market value has remained almost constant.

These are sound business reasons why you should exchange your Bonds for Bonds of the 1931 Conversion Loan.

Conversion applications are invited to a total of $250,000,000, but the Minister of Finance reserves the right to increase or decrease this amount. Subscription lists will be closed on or before 23rd May, 1931. Bondholders who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity for re-investment should therefore act without delay.

Bonds of the following issues are exchangeable for Bonds of the 1931 Conversion Loan:

- War Loan .....5% due 1st October, 1931
  Renewal Loan.....5½% due 1st November, 1932
  Victory Loan .....5½% due 1st November, 1933
  Victory Loan .....5½% due 1st November, 1934

Your Bond Dealer, Broker or Banker will arrange for the conversion of your Bonds without expense to you.

BOTH FEET SEVERED BY TRAIN MAN CRAWLS BACK TO STATION

Remains Conscious Long Enough to 'Phone Wife He Was Slightly Hurt.

WAR VETERAN.

ST. JOHN, N.B., (SNS)—A rare exposition of courage, stamina and resourcefulness in an emergency was presented by Kenneth Linton, of St. John, N.B., manager of an Ontario flour milling company's New Brunswick branch.

While en route from St. John to Edmunston, N.B., on a sales mission, Linton alighted from a train when it paused at Grand Falls, N.B. He took a short walk, and on returning to the station found the train in motion. He tried to get into the car, of which he was an occupant, but the door was locked. He waited for the next car, the last on the train, and grasped the door, the train being now travelling fast. Clinging to the door of the car, Linton's efforts to keep his feet from going under the wheel by kicking at the bottom of the car failed. Both feet were run over. Linton kept his grasp on the door for about 150 yards, then released his hold and crawled back to the station on the ties. He pounded the station door with both hands, from a crawling position, and then pushed his hand through a window in order to force the attention of the station master. The latter telephoned into the town of Grand Falls, a mile away, for a taxi. It was 12.45 a.m., when the train had left the station. A taxi driver brought a touring car to the station, but Linton was bleeding so profusely, the taxi man drove back to the town, for a truck. By the time Linton was placed on the truck and entered at the hospital, located in the town, it was 3.30 a.m.

At 3.35 he insisted on telephoning his wife at their home in St. John, telling of the accident personally and telling her he was "all right." He explained that he did this, in the hope that the shock would not be as severe as if she read of the accident in a newspaper, or was told of it by an outsider, via telegraph or telephone. At 3.40 Linton was put under an anaesthetic and both feet were removed. One hour later he had recovered from the anaesthetic. Lintop is a veteran of the C.E.F. He enlisted at St. John in October, 1914, serving in France from September 1915 to 1916. He was a machine gun instructor in England until 1917, when he returned to the front.

EARLY SETTLERS OF IRISH DESCENT

Bishop of Quebec Took Keen Interest in Settlement of Manvers Township.

GRAHAMS PIONEERS

TRENT RIVER, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence)—The settlement of Manvers Township following its survey in 1816 and 1817 centers largely several old and greatly respected families, ancestors of whom are living to-day. Land was taken up in various concessions, and the whole township gradually transformed through ardent toil into what it is now. The development of the land forms a long story, but this story is mostly told when mention is made of those early pioneers who broke from old traditions and bustling cities to open up the country.

Large grants of land were made to Bishop Mountain, one of the first bishops of the Diocese of Quebec. The Bishop carried his work of colonization in the Eastern Townships of his Diocese in to the Township of Manvers when he was given blocks of land in the 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th Concessions, amounting to several thousands of acres.

John Grady came to Canada from Ireland in 1825, and his son, Samuel, took up land in Cavan. A considerable amount of land in Manvers was owned by Col. Williams of Port Hope.

Several families of the Grahams were early settlers of that district. Probably the best known of these was Captain Graham of the Durham Artillery, who became treasurer of the township. He helped to cut the road, used to this day, through to Port Hope, and secured a name and a reputation for himself to enjoy in his advanced years. Through his labors he was able to place his family in comfortable circumstances.

There was a large family of the Argues in the southern part of the township, and some of these held a portion of the land originally granted to Bishop Mountain. Thomas Benson, better known as the "King of Manvers," was a hale old Irish gentleman. He held the position of deputy reeve for a great many years.

The Byer family were all engaged in agricultural pursuits. Robert Touchbourne, reeve of the township for nearly twenty years, also owned considerable property. As a magistrate he lived an active life, and did much for the welfare of the locality. Dr. Gray was a well known physician who enjoyed a large practice.

The Magill settlement was made in the western part of the township, along what was known as the Broad Road. Robert Magill, Sr. was the acknowledged head of the family. For a number of years, long after the early settlement, constables did not much care about venturing into the locality of the Broad Road without the friendly protection of the Magills. The "tricks upon travellers" were many, and tales of the capturing of constables were plentiful.

The Preston family owned considerable property on the 7th, 8th and 10th Concessions. Isaac Preston was a captain in the Volunteers. Porter Preston was prominent as a magistrate and the owner of the saw and grist mills. He did much in aiding the improvement and progress of the township. The Staples were a branch of the highly respected Cavan family of that name. Alfred, the township clerk of Manvers for many years, gained the reputation of being the most useful public officer and a real man of business.

Nearly all of these settlers were of Irish origin or descent. There were several families of the Sissons on the 7th and 8th Concessions. These were good thrifty English families and were noted as the first in the township to introduce an improved breed of sheep into the township.

Protest To Be Fyled For Church Burning

VATICAN CITY, May 15 (C.P.).—Federico Tedeschini, papal nuncio at Madrid, it was announced here today, has been instructed to file a formal protest with the Spanish Republican Government in which he will make strong representations regarding the burning of Spanish churches and convents and lack of protection for them this past week.

Although no official information as to the contents of his probable protest it was said that the church assumed that in view of the great property damage the church suffered that reparation will be asked.

Mr. G. Pogue of Lindsay was a visitor in town Wednesday evening.

RUNDOWN, STOMACH WEAK, BLOOD THIN, IMPOVERISHED

Mrs. W. H. SKYRING

Guelph, Ont.—"There is nothing better as a building tonic and blood enricher than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Several times when I was rundown, had weak stomach, thin and impoverished blood, I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and always obtained good results. It relieved me of the weak stomach, enriched my blood and built me up in health—made me feel like a new person. I also found it a splendid tonic to take following motherhood to give me strength."—Mrs. W. H. Skyring, 52 Nottingham St. Fluid or tablets. All druggists.

SWEDISH CRUISER SENT TO STRIKE

Train Carrying Troops and Guns to Aadalen Held Up and Stoned.

SIX KILLED.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 15 (C.P.). — A Swedish cruiser left here last night for Aadalen, where a general strike has been ordered in sympathy with sawmill workers in the Vester Norrland area.

A train transporting troops and machine guns to the district was stoned by strikers to-day and the train held up for some time by a tie placed across the railroad line.

In rioting near Aadalen yesterday, six people, including a woman, were shot and killed and several others wounded.

QUEENSBORO

Mr. Arthur Sager of Pine View has piped the water from his spring so that now he has both soft and hard water available from the wash room.

Mrs. Bailey of Springbrook was the guest on Tuesday of Miss Ida McCaw.

A Message from the Premier

on the subject of

Highways and Highway Safety

Probably no single development in the history of our province has had more widespread influence upon the lives and habits of our citizens than the automobile.

Ontario was one of the first provinces to recognize the importance of this modern means of transportation, and first, also to adopt a progressive policy of road building and road maintenance.

Today, of Ontario's 72,000 miles of roads, more than 38,000 miles are improved gravel, 7,000 miles are paved, and 69 per cent of all roads are surfaced.

These roads are not only a remarkable convenience, but, as well, they are a responsibility. The seriousness of the responsibility is evidenced by the fact that in Ontario last year, 524 persons lost their lives through automobile accidents. All available statistics would seem to indicate that most of these accidents were avoidable—and were caused by either thoughtlessness or wilful violations of the common-sense rules of the road.

The Ontario Department of Highways is about to publish in the press of Ontario, a series of educational advertisements, in which an effort will be made to keep drivers and pedestrians alike, alive to the necessity for the continuous exercise of care, courtesy and common-sense in the use of our highways. Suggestions made in these announcements will be, in effect, a digest of all the information gathered from every section of the world which has been found to be of assistance to drivers and pedestrians in avoiding highway accidents and making these same highways of inestimably greater value and benefit to every citizen.

The first of the announcements referred to will be published at an early date. Your attention is invited thereto, and your co-operation in making our streets and highways safe is earnestly solicited.

Premier.

BRITISH FLEET IS ON JOB 15 MONTHS

are those in the air force. Enlistment in this service calls for work at home. But several hundred pilots and mechanics are on the aircraft carrier Glorious attached to the fleet and they have been away from home so long they forget what the place lookr like.

Reunion on Riviera.

To keep up morale and good spirits and that sort of thing, the British government arranged that wives of aircraft men and those sailors on the Glorious could go out to the Italian Riviera at government expense. The Glorious would come there and drop anchor for a week and a fine old home re-union would be enjoyed by all.

About 70 wives thought this the greatest idea in the world. So did the men in the ship. Those in other ships were envious and said so. The fleet was all here in Gibraltar making as gallant a picture as a Britisher far from home is ever likely to see. Then they steamed away to new conquests and new hopes. They got out to sea and the 28 planes aboard the Glorious took to the air like a squadron of angry wasps, while the great ship steamed for Italy. They went into a fog bank and were just cutting down speed when they crashed into the French liner Florida.

After the uproar and excitement had died away between 20 and 30 people were dead or missing and 28 planes were still up in the air, loaded with bombs and with no place to land. You've probably read all that in the cables. The Glorious had to keep her dismantled nose into the side of the Florida to keep from sinking and also transfer the 500 excited passengers. This left no place for the planes so they were told to duck for Spain as quickly as possible. They ducked and 24 of the 28 got there. The other four sank in the sea out of gas but the crews were safe. Then the liner was hauled into Malaga and the Glorious came back here a sad and limping spectacle.

The wives meantime had gone to Italy. They had very little money because hubby was supposed to be paid off on arrival. Now hubby is tied up in Gibraltar waiting for divers and engineers to say what can be done about the ship and the neat gifts he bought for the wife and kiddies are locked away in the dunnage bag for future presentation.

One Sailor Killed.

Only one British sailor was killed and he was buried Sunday. His death was a peculiar one. He was covered up under tons of bananas which were carried on the Florida's deck and he smothered.

With the fleet in port here the wandering Britisher gets a thrill. A sort of undefined thrill but nevertheless a real one. I was taken aboard the Vampire for a look round and met officers and men. Most of them had fought in the Jutland show and, contrary to all my opinions, were strong in the praise of German fighting ability and the German high seas fleet.

This feeling must be mutual because up at Kiel last summer the U. boat commanders I met were equally frank in their admiration of the British. Perhaps they were just being polite to me but I doubt it. Anyway the officers of the Vampire had nothing to gain by saying what fine chaps the Germans were. One of the things which make them respect the Germans pretty thoroughly was the fact that the second shell in that entire battle went clean through the main steam pipes of the Vampire. She is still in service but that's just because of a deadly torpedo shot at the enemy.

Peace time kills much of the glamor about Gibraltar itself. They used to make quite a ceremony about locking up the gates. J. S. Meehan of Toronto wrote me before leaving home to be sure and make the rounds with the key sergeant while the drummers played him from gate to gate and he went through the motions of putting out the milk bottle. That's all off now. They do the nightly chores all right, but with no more formality than putting out the cat.

Same with changing the guard at the governor's residence. That used to be cause for momentary whoopee with bands playings and all that. Once in a while the band plays now, but as a rule four men walk up street and take over the job of pacing restlessly to and fro from four other men. Not much of a sensation to that, is there?

The real interest in this battle-scarred old citadel is the people. Hindus from far off Madras or Karachi or Bombay rub shoulders with Arabs from Morocco, Andalusians in their square-cornered hats from Spain or manocled Englishmen from home. You'll see far more monocles to the block than in the west end of London and it's one of those old traditions here that hotel guests shall dress for dinner.

Why on earth they bother to climb into the soup and fish when there isn't even a bridge game afterwards is quite beyond me but they do it. Sometimes they go to the canteen afterwards to see a movie of pre-war vintage. This week a pint size circus came to town and many of the toffs in their glad rags and monocles went over to see the lion tamer do his stuff. Strikes me as a bit artificial. But who am I?

What To-day Means To You.

"TAURUS."

If May 15th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to 1:15 p.m., from 4 p.m. to 6:15 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10:45 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. and from 2 p.m. to 3:50 p.m.

There will be experienced on May 15th, according to the astrological indications, some unexpected disappointments, which will wear a worse aspect than their significance deserves. On the other hand, the other side of the picture reveals beneficial results, as out of what appears to be evil, good will come.

A child born on May 15th will develop a character of extremes; it will love passionately and hate bitterly; it will play with abandon and work with zeal. Moderation will not figure in its "make up." Its success or failure will depend on its ability to avoid incurring needless enmities.

Born on May 15th, your character is a very likeable one. You are considerate of others, very unselfish, gentle in your ways, and sympathetic. You are not sufficiently aggressive to become a "big noise." In your own quiet way, inoffensive and effective, you will accomplish much. Whether you will reap the reward of your work, depends on its character, and whether others are willing to extend you that recognition that your efforts merit. If you should be filched of the prizes that you deserve it will be because of your hesitancy in "staking out your claim."

You do not care to "stay put," and seek frequent change of environment and position. When you feel your efforts are unappreciated you always fail to stress or even mention this point, and change to some other field of endeavor. In this way, you often cut off your nose to spite your face. You are a great reader, especially of good fiction and biography. Although a fluent talker, your arguments — if they can be called such — do not carry with them the "punch" necessary to force conviction. You are rather susceptible to flattery — more so than is good for you. Your home life promises to be replete with happiness.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

to 2c per dozen yesterday, at 16c for extras, 14c for firsts and 12c for seconds. The 1c increase was on the two top grades, while seconds benefited 2c. The increases were in order, as receipts have been lower in volume lately and brokers were able to secure 1c better for graded supplies, while yesterday their prices were 1½c better for the week at 18½c for extras, 16½c for firsts and 14c to 15c for seconds, in free used cases, with storage packed 1c higher. Prices to retailers were also up 1c per dozen at 22c for extras in cartons, 20c for extras loose, 18c for firsts loose and 16c for seconds loose.

Poultry

New poultry lists were issued yesterday and several changes were noted. Leghorn spring broilers were quoted 1c less at 25c, while 30c was still in effect for Rocks. There were no alterations in prices for hens, but there was a rearrangement in weights wanted, the heavy scale being four pounds to six pounds, instead of five pounds to six and four to five, with a price for both. Ducks were removed from the list altogether, but pigeons were quoted steady at 25c per pair.

Butter

Butter prices were steady with those of Wednesday and trading was about fair, small lots moving, though buyers were generally holding off as far as heavy commitments were concerned. Brokers were offering creamery solids at 19½c to 20c for No. 1, and 18½c to 19c for No. 2.

Cheese

Cheese was steady at 9¼c for new large, 9½c for twins and 9¾c for triplets, to shippers, with wholesalers quoting the trade 11½c for new large, 11¾c for twins and 12c for triplets.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., May 15.—(C.P.).—Hogs 1,200; market at standstill; bidding around 25 lower; few 275 lbs. butchers sold 7.00; most bids on 160-200 lbs., 7.50.

Cattle 75; cows barely steady; cutter grades 2.50-4.00; steers unsold.

Calves 200; vealers unchanged; good to choice, 8.50 to mostly 9.00.

Sheep 100; lambs steady; quality and sorts considered; good clippers 9.35; medium to good springers 12.00 shorn ewes 3.00-3.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 15. — Firm disregard for good export sales and continuation of dry weather throughout the western grain belt, was shown by wheat traders here yesterday. With trade again local in character, values slipped sharply, closing 1c to 1¼c lower, May finished at 61½c, July 62¾c to 62½c, and October at 64c.

Exports of Canadian wheat overnight totalled 850,000 bushels, but foreign demand, with a holiday in many European countries, was curtailed yesterday and speculative interest reduced. Lack of buying orders was the main factor in the price decline.

Only fair trade was reported in cash wheat and coarse grains.

AUTO TRIMMING IS SPECIALTY

Leslie R. Groombridge Trims Auto Tops, Upholsters and Places Glass in Cars.

WELL EQUIPPED.

Auto top trimming, upholstering and glass work requires as much skill and experience as that employed by any craftsman. An automobile, otherwise in good condition, can be made practically as good as new with a properly fitted top, repaired and recovered upholstering and glass installed correctly. The shop of Mr. Leslie R. Groombridge is fully equipped for such work. No other firm in this locality has such elaborate equipment for the cutting, polishing and installing of automobile glass. They carry an immense stock of body and windshield glass for cars of every make and model, and with their up-to-the-minute machinery they are able to perfectly polish the edges of glass of any shape or thickness. Mr. Groombridge invites comparison of the work of his establishment, as well as their prices, with the best turned out in the high grade car factories.

Many people prefer the open car, properly curtained, to the closed job. Many realize that the car they are driving is better mechanically than closed jobs of the same make and model, and that with a little work on the top and upholstery they have secured comfort and saved hundreds of dollars that would have been lost should they turn their cars in. At Leslie R. Groombridge's they are in position to repair and upholster the car throughout, recover the top, make and fit new curtains, and turn a disreputable car into an entirely different appearing automobile. Before deciding to trade in your open car get estimates from this reputable, home-owned, Peterborough concern. You will be more than pleased with their services.

Mr. Groombridge is to be complimented upon his efficient and capable business methods and the satisfactory service he is rendering in all things relating to auto glass and trimmings. Do you know the prices on glass for any two makes of cars, when furnished by Leslie R Groombridge?

$3.00 cash prize given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Seven in to-day's issue).

INSPECTION OF CADET CORPS

Campbellford High and Public School Units Make Good Showing.

CAPT. ISBESTER INSPECTS.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 15. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Trim and smart in their uniforms and with a soldierly bearing the Campbellford High and Public School cadets paraded yesterday on the High School campus for official inspection by Captain M. Isbester of Kingston.

The Public School company were the first on the field and made a good showing under the command of Company Commander Harold Thrower. Company and platoon drill with physical instruction were gone through very successfully, the boys taking a keen interest in their work and showing the result of fine training.

Jack Bygott was in command of the High School company which made an excellent showing, marching past the saluting base, they evidenced splendid uniformity of movement and alignment.

The several platoons drilled separately covering physical instruction, squad drill and musketry training and were complimented on the keeness and efficiency of their work.

Medals were presented by Capt. Isbester to the officers of the corps, the following being the recipients: High School Commander, gold, Jack Bygott; platoon commanders silver, S. Anderson, H. Fowlds, Grant Meiklejohn, Basil Linton; sergeants, bronze, Bill Nelson, Morley Baker, Owen Finlay, Ray Thomson. Public School, Commander, gold, Harold Thrower; platoon commanders, silver, A Lambert, E. Runions, G. Fox, Vic. Cubitt; sergeants, bronze, F. Pettifer, W. McArthur, R. Wilks.

After the inspection the boys were entertained by Principal E. H. Greig and Assistant Principal E. Stephens.

Pope Urges Reconstruction Of Economic System

WAGES MUST SATISFY JUST NEEDS OF HONEST WORKER AND FAMILY POPE PIUS WRITES IN HIS LETTER

Concentration of Wealth is Declared Tyranny and Despotism.

Only Resume Made Public.

Cannot at Same Time Be Good Catholic and True Socialist.

ROME, May 15 (C.P.)—Reconstruction of the entire economic system by "bringing it back to the requirements of social justice so as to ensure more equitable distribution of the united proceeds of capital and labor," is urged in an encyclical letter issued to-day by Pope Pius XI.

Only a resume of the text was made public. It was broadcast by the Pontiff this afternoon and the full text will be given out in ten days.

The letter bears the title "Quadragesimo Anno" (in forty years) and carries still further the encyclical rerum novarum issued forty years ago by Pope Leo XIII.

Pope Pius gives as his reason for the encyclical that he "will trace for the Church and the world at large an ample program which still remains to be realized before the courageous and splendid initiative of Pope Leo XIII. can be said completely to have attained its purposes."

The letter is divided into three parts.

Benefits of Last Encyclical

In the first the pontiff enumerates the benefits which have resulted from Pope Leo's encyclical.

These, the letter says, consist in giving form and substance to the development of sociology and economics according to the Catholic principle, promoting more solid organization of working men in religious, moral and social fields, and compelling the politically surpeme liberalism of the time to yield little by little to a new social policy more favorable to justice.

Pope Leo's encyclical, the letter says, also is resolute in asserting the right possessed even by working men to form associations for mutual aid and for the legitimate defense of their common interests.

In the second part Pope Pius discusses the changes which have taken place since the last encyclical was written.

Right of Private Property

He vindicates the solemn duty of the church and the Pope to intervene in social problems when they fall under the moral and evangelical law. He re-affirms the Catholic doctrines concerning the rights of private property.

In this section also the Pontiff wrote:

"It is absolutely necessary to reconstruct the whole economic system by bringing it back to the requirements of social justice so as to ensure more equitable distribution of the united proceeds of capital and labor."

Riches in Hands of Few.

This is necessary, he wrote, because there is "an excessive and unjust disproportion of the commodities of life between capital and labar. Immense riches have accumulated in the hands of a few, while the proletarians have nothing but their hands and the sweat of their brows."

The reconstruction he proposes, the Pope concludes, will be achieved by the uplift of the proletariat which Pope Leo XIII. so ardently desired.

Toward this end, the Pontiff writes, wages must be such as really to satisfy the legitimate requirements of the honest worker and his family.

He pleads for co-operation between the classes and the trade groups.

The third part of the encyclical deals generally with the economic system, asserting that although it is not an evil in itself it is seriously warped by grave abuses.

The Pope condemns concentration of wealth, which he declares results in tyranny and despotism, and asserts that the only efficacious remedy is a return to the sane principles of Chrisitan and Social philesophy.

The Pontiff inveighs against Communism and Socialism, declaring that even though Socialism approaches the Catholic doctrine, "it is not possible to be at once a good Catholic and a true Socialist."

Need for Eternal Things.

He concludes that the root of the present economic situation lies "in men fixing their eyes on earthly goods without heed for God and eternal things."

The encyclical closes on a note of rejoicing that so many of the clergy and laity, filled with the spirit of Catholic action, are laboring in the various countries.

"The church does not fear for herself," he writes, "but for so many of her sons, so many souls, who would be lost."

Lacrosse

A lacrosse practice is called for tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock at the Exhibition Grounds, and all players wanting a place on the team should be on hand, wearing uniforms, if possible.

Havelock may not be in the group with Peterborough this summer if they are running a junior baseball team, but definite word will be received here early next week. Campbellford and Oshawa will be the grouping for the Petes, if Havelock does not come in. An exhibition lacrosse game will be played here May 25th. Further announcements of this will be made later.

CHOIR PRESENTS COMEDY, CAUSING MUCH LAUGHTER

Farcical Comedy Draws Capacity House at Park Street Baptist Church.

REPEATED TO-NIGHT.

"The Mummy and the Mumps" is the Title of Entertaining Play.

"The Mummy and the Mumps" was the title of a comedy presented by the Park Street Baptist Choir last evening in their Church Hall. Impersonation and farcical misrepresentation fill the play with difficult moments and scenes which provoke side-splitting laughter. The members of the cast fitted into their parts well and delighted the large audience, thus guaranteeing another capacity attendance when the play will be repeated this evening.

The scene of the comedy is set in a combination office and reception room of a girls' school in a small town. The story becomes complicated with the advance of the play, but is finally simplified in a satisfactory manner at the close of Act 3. William Laidlaw, nephew of Agatha, founder of the school, decides to spend his vacation at the school. The headmistress is astonished at Dulcie Dumble and Maude Mullen wishing to remain at the school, but is partially satisfied when she learns that their parents are quarantined with mumps. She announces that Sir Hector Fish, a noted archaeologist, will visit the school and bring with him his mummy of King Tut's wife. William's friend, Francis Briscoe, comes in and on meeting Maude Mullen at once falls in love with her. He then searches for an excuse to remain at the school.

Real Scientist Has Mumps

He has not to look far for Miss Laidlaw believes him to be and addresses him as Sir Hector, which part he continues to impersonate. A telegram is received from the real scientist telling of his detention in port because of the mumps, but that the mummy would be sent on. The two male visitors to the school forge messages, and the case is received. It is finally opened by Ann Hampton, who discovers the real Sir Hector inside, much to the horror of the superstitious negro servant, Racker. Anna cares for him and his mumps, keeping him out of sight of the others.

Meanwhile police learn of the escape of Sir Hector and search the place for him as a criminal offender. The exits to the school are guarded under the supervision of Perkins the Sheriff. Only Miss Laidlaw is allowed to leave. Anna wishes to get Sir Hector out of it, and so, while the audience rocks in laughter, she attires him in woman's clothing, so that he can escape under the guise of the headmistress. The pseudo-Hector also decides to escape in the same manner, and appears as a blonde in black evening dress with large feathered fan. The appearance of the real Miss Laidlaw leads Perkins to uncover two imposters, who each claim to be also Sir Hector. Briscoe gives way and on giving his right name, says that the scientist cannot claim his (Briscoe's) name also.

Jewelry Disappears

As a sub-plot, Miss Dumble's jewelry has been disappearing and hence suspicion rests heavily upon members of the school and visitors. Queer doings in "Room 1" when Racker hops through the window thinking Sir Hector is the mummy, and then when the latter follows suit when young Laidlaw enters the room, complicate matters. However, Racker is ordered to search the cistern at the foot of the eaves pipes, and when the jewels are recovered, Miss Laidlaw also discovers that Dulcie is a sleep-walker and that she herself drops her jewels out of the window into the eaves troughs.

The bursting scribe, Phoebe Beebe, who attempts to "make a scoop" on the story of the escape of Sir Hector from quarantine and his capture, in the end is only able to report three engagements — Dulcie to William, Maude to Francis, and Anna to Sir Hector.

The Players

The part of Agatha Laidlaw, the headmistress of an exclusive school, was well taken by Mrs. M. Batley. She was at all time natural, and in true style worthy of her profession was not over excitable.

Clarence Corbett played in the role of her nephew, William Laidlaw. He was one of the more serious actors in the play and thus he fitted well into his part.

Sir Hector Fish, who also impersonated the mummy, was well characterized by Newton Hamilton. His knowledge of archaeology and 17 languages caused him to be a bit "distant," but he became particularly amusing when he was outfitted in woman's attire.

The portrayal of Francis Briscoe by George Batley was accurate, and was probably the best in the play. His difficult part was well interpreted, and his triple role was taken in a provokingly natural and at times humorous manner.

The part of James Slammon (Racker), the negro butler, was excellently taken by Byers Smith. The superstitious old domestic, always open to a bribe or a tip, never ceased to complain that he has three men's work to do—but he never did it. His keen humor and aptitude to puns provided humorous relief to the comedy.

The role of the Sheriff was taken in a natural and convincing manner by Maurice Dunkley. As the town sheriff he was afraid of letting the federal officers get ahead of him, but at the same time exhibited an almost dumb nature. His puzzling at the three Agatha Laidlaws and two Sir Hectors would be enough to bewilder any man, anyway. He did his duty, and the lifting of the quarantine from Sir Hector saved him from arresting the latter.

Miss M. Pilling did well in acting the part of Dulcie Dumble, beautiful, but very dumb. Her sleep-walking habits made a tangle in the play. Miss G. Campbell played well in the role of Maude Mullen, an Eastern girl and a faithful friend of Francis. In portraying the character of Anna Hampton, Mrs. G. Corbett did well as a Western girl looking for a man with a knowledge of foreign languages to run her father's farm in the West. Her devotion to Sir Hector aroused the admiration of the audience. Mrs. L. Campbell fitted perfectly into the part of Phoebe, the staff reporter of an important paper. Her flusterings and labors are all in vain, however; yet with a smile of satisfaction she notes down the three engagement announcements.

Before the play and during the intermissions Harry Northrop, A.T.C.M., played several numbers on the piano, thus adding delight to the play itself. The success of the play was due in large measure to Clarence Corbett, who was the director.

Right Of Free Speech To Be Upheld By Fists

LONDON, May 15. (AP)—A taste of "the good old English fists" will be given disturbers of Sir Oswald Mosley's New Party meetings in the future, Sir Oswall declared today.

He said that he was beginning organization of a force of "two fisted" young men who will give physical support to his programme if his opponents resort to violence.

"We have already experienced organized violence from our opponents" said Sir Oswald. "We are not looking for trouble, but just organizing to meet violence by appropiate measure. We are going to defend the right of free speech in this country.

"Those who begin things must be careful of where they end. The only methods we shall employ will be English methods. We shall rely on the good old English fists."

INFORMATION IS BEING SOUGHT ON WAR-TIME TRADE

Committee of House Probably Conducts Inquiry Into Wheat Selling.

WAS THERE PROFITEERING?

Every Possible Effort Will Be Made to Find Markets, Declares Stevens.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 15 (C.P.)—Investigation of rumors that Canadian farmers did not receive all they were entitled to when the wheat crop was marketed under government supervision during the war, may be made by the Agricultural Committee of the House of Commons.

Climaxing hours of discussion in the House yesterday, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, intimated he would have no objection to the committee probing the question if that course were considered advisable by the complaining members. The discussion took place on a particular item in the departmental estimates. This was permitted to stand to permit members, chiefly in the opposition ranks, to determine the points to be investigated.

Was There Profiteering?

For the greater part of the day, problems relating to wheat were before the House. First of all, the House turned back the calendar to war years in an effort to discover whether any profiteering, either on the part of the Government or individuals, took place, when the 1917 and 1918 crops were sold to the Allied nations. Farmers then received a fixed price based on $2.21 cents a bushel, but the world price fluctuated at time considerably higher.

A letter was produced, purported to have been written by Sir George Foster, who was Minister of Trade and Commerce at the time, admitting wheat had been sold in 1917 on the market at fluctuating prices. If this were so, did the Government or individuals, bootleg wheat to the open market and sell it above the price fixed in Canada? was the question Opposition members would like answered. A committee of the House, before which witnesses could be produced and documents studied, was the best medium to settle the question. John Vallance (Lib., South Battleford) embodied this demand in a formal motion but withdrew it when the Minister voiced no objection to that course if the members, themselves, agreed it was worth while.

Wheat problems came before the House on one or two other occasions. Before this, however, adjournment of the House was moved by Vincent Dupuis, Liberal member for Laprairie-Napierville, because it was Ascension Day and a holy day of obligation for Roman Catholics. By a majority of 58, the House decided to remain in session. The three leaders—Premier R. B. Bennett, Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, and Robert Gardiner—opposed the motion. The Liberals, with the exception of five, supported the move to declare a holiday, while the Conservatives, with the exception of 11 members, opposed it. The majority of the third party group was also in opposition.

Find Markets for Grain

Every possible effort will be made by the Government to find markets for Canadian grain, Mr. Stevens declared when enunciating the policy of the administration in this regard In addition, efforts will be made to break down any prejudice against Canadian wheat European millers might entertain.

Prospects of future trade with Northern China were exceedingly bright, Mr. Stevens declared. He believed the Nanking Government was stabilizing that country and the present generation would see China the central character in one of the greatest

W.M.S. HOLDS UNION MEETING

Members of Roseneath and Fenella Groups Gather in United Church.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

PENELLA, May 15 (Examiner Correspondence)—The union meeting of the Roseneath circuit W.M.S. was held in Fenella United Church on Tuesday afternoon, May 12 with an attendance of forty. The circuit president, Mrs. A. Nill presided.

After the opening exercises Mrs. A. Campbell, Roseneath, first vice-president read the devotional leaflet, "Let your light shine."

A short memorial service was held for the two members who during the past year have been promoted into higher service. This service opened by singing, "Face to face with Christ my Saviour." Mrs. Saul Leach, Fenella, second vice-president read the scripture lesson, Psalm 90 and verse 15 in Psalm 103. Mrs. Fred Talling of Fenella then sang a solo, "Some day I'll understand." In the absence of Mrs. M. Davey, Roseneath, recording secretary, Mrs. Delbert Brisbin, of Roseneath, acted as secretary and read the names of departed members, Mrs. Ora Varcoe and Mrs. R. W. Paton, both of the Roseneath group.

The president then spoke briefly saying, "In remembering to-day our members who have been promoted into higher service, it would only be natural that there would be a feeling of sadness, but this service is not being held as a service of mourning but rather as a service of rejoicing and thanksgiving, that we were permitted to know them and be associated with them in the work of our society. In speaking first of this older member, Mrs. Varcoe, she who was older in years, and in her association with us, we think of verse 10 in Psalm 90, "They days of our years are three score years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength, labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

She who lived a life of service not only in her own home, but outside her home serving others, and what more fitting when, for her, life's little day was o'er, she laid her down at eventide to rest, "Thus He giveth His beloved sleep," as we think of her in connection with this organization we remember her zeal for missions and her great willingness to serve in any capacity and it would seem, these two qualities are inseparable, for she who labors earnestly in aid of missions gives of her time and strength unsparingly. She has left a shining example for us to follow, we rejoice that we were permitted to know her, and labor with her in this great cause."

"In thinking for a few moments of this younger member (Mrs. Paton) this member younger in years, and in her associations with us, we recall that verse in Psalm 103, 'As for man his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth.' This bright, gracious personality, this flower of the field, cut off, in the high noon tide of her life, so we shall remember her, but we will not allow the note of mourning to intrude rather we rejoice, that we were privileged to know her for, even, so brief a period of time as she dwelt among us, we remember too, her great willingness to serve in her brief association with us in this work. These departed members have left a challenge with us, to assume their responsibilities as well as ours, they have thrown the torch to us, be ours to hold it high. May we so follow their example, that when the call comes to each and all of us, it may be said of us, 'She hath done what she could.'"

Mrs. Turner, of Roseneath, then led in prayer. The singing of "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" concluded this service.

The business period followed when Roseneath reported receipts of $72.16 and Fenella reported receipts of $48.85. Correspondence was read from Mrs. Tanton, Cobourg, literature secretary. As no literature secretary had been appointed at annual meeting; on motion of Mrs. Delbert Brisbin, of Roseneath, Miss Hildred Taylor, Roseneath, was elected to fill this office.

Mrs. Fred Talling of Fenella, temperance secretary, read an illuminating article on temperance, she said: quoting Mrs. F. C. Ward, president of Toronto District Union of the W.C.T.U., "More money is spent in Canada on whiskey, than is raised from all the gold and silver mines, in the Dominion."

A letter was read from the president and secretary of the Dominion Board of the W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada regarding a disarmament declaration all W.M.S. and church members are asked to sign this declaration. This declaration is being circulated in fifty nations, and is to be presented to the Disarmament Commission of the League of Nations Conference, to be held in Geneva in February, 1932.

At the conclusion of the business period Mrs. Delbert Brisbin, Roseneath, delegate to the Bay of Quinte Branch meeting held in Peterborough April 28, 29 and 30 gave a very comprehensive and most interesting report of this convention and a hearty vote of appreciation was tendered her.

Lunch was served by the Fenella group to the visiting group at the close of the meeting.

trade developments in history. Canada would bend every effort to obtain a share of this expansion.

Estimates of the Department of Trade and Commerce were before the House all day but only one item was passed in the general and wide discussion that materialized. Government notices of motion, including the resolution calling for the establishment of a new tariff board, were on the agenda to-day.

High Tariff Policy

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal Leader, pointed to an apparent conflict between the Government's high tariff policy and its desire to increase foreign trade. The Conservative Party's "Canada First" policy was to exclude imports and he asked how a nation could sell goods, "particularly wheat, if no purchasing were done. Estimates for trade commissioners might be cut in view of this policy, he suggested.

No conflict existed countered Mr. Stevens. The government wished to divert exports to countries willing to purchase Canadian goods in return. At the same time, Canadian interests would receive primary consideration from the government. Aside from the Australian treaty, now under revision, the whole question of some 20 or 30 trade conventions, would be taken up during the next year, he announced. While it was not intended to deal 'rashly" with the treaties, certain adjustments would have to be made. Satisfactory agreements with New Zealand and South Africa, were hoped for in the near future.

A full statement on the government's policy regarding empire trade would be appropriate and desirable, pressed Mr. King. What had the government in mind to foster trade with Great Britain? The minister had referred to some of the dominions but made no mention of Britain. The government had increased the tariff against Great Britain and was it the intention to divert trade from that country; these points should be clarified in a full statement from the government.

Old Age Pensions

A reference to old age pensions occurred early in the day when Mr. King asked if the government intended introducing legislation this session amending the existing system. "The question will be answered in due course" was the laconic reply of the Prime Minister.

Applications for reparations from Armenian residents of Canada arising out of the 1915 massacres by the Turks, had been disallowed, Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State announced. He submitted the report of Commissioner E. R. McDougall who investigated the claims.

BODY OF YOUTH NOT RECOVERED

Search is Continued for Body of Donald Dougall, Drowned Wednesday.

DYNAMITE RIVER.

MARMORA, May 15 (Special to The Examiner).—The body of Donald Dougall, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dougall of this village, who was drowned at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening when he stumbled into the Crow River, has not yet been recovered.

For two nights and a day searchers have dragged the river almost ceaselessly, without result. Yesterday the river was dynamited in the hope of bringing the body to the surface. A net was placed across the river at the bridge last night to prevent the body from going down stream.

Provincial Constable Gray is actively engaged in the search.

OBITUARY

J. S. MEYERS

LINDSAY, May 15. — Last night the funeral services for the late J. S. Meyers, who died suddenly at his home yesterday morning, was held at his late residence, with Rev. J. C. Grier in charge. Today the funeral proceeded by motor to Listowel, where interment took place with services from Knox Presbyterian Church there. For some years he conducted the Pure Bread Bakery. Before coming to Lindsay he lived for 15 years in Woodstock, where he operated an oatmeal mill. He was born in Listowel, the son of John Wagner Meyers, now a resident of Peterborough. He was a Presbyterian and was a member of St. Andrew's Church. There are left his wife, one daughter, Alleyne, and one son, Robert, at home.

INDIAN RIVER NINE LOSES 16-2 GAME

But Local Girls' Softball Team Turns Back Sixth Line 21-20.

The first game in the Otonabee softball League to be played in Indian River was run off Wednesday night and furnished some real amusement for the spectators and players.

The grounds were in fine condition until the hour came for the game when a heavy downpour for half an hour spoiled the prospects for a good game, the short wet grass became a skating rink where the players skidded and rolled around like a group of circus clowns.

The delaying rain shortened the game, the score being 16 to 2 in six innings in favor of Mather's Corners.

Norm. Hayes pitched his usual good game and had the heavy hitting local team guessing to place the ball for a safe hit although they hit the ball plenty.

Roy Spencer for the River pitched a steady game.

The line-up:

Mather's Corners—B. Renwick, c; N. Hayes, p; J. Heffernan, 1b; M. Renwick, 2b; J. McCarthy, 3b; Wood, ss; M. McCarthy, lf; J. Hall, cf; McIntyre, rf.

Indian River—Rolly Tedford, c; Ronald Spencer, p; Roy Spencer, 1b; Harry Fitzgerald, 2b; Paul Holmes, 3b; Joe Devlin, ss; Russ Tedford, lf; Clare O'Brien, cf; M. Fitzgerald, rf.

Umpires—Stan Wood and Harry Fitzgerald.

RIVER GIRLS WIN, 21-20

The Indian River softball ground was the scene of a closely contested ball game on Tuesday evening when the ladies softball team from the Sixth Line played the Indian River ladies. The latter winning the game by a score of 21-20.

Mary Hall pitched a fine game for Sixth Line and was well backed up in the field. Olive Spencer hurled a good game for the River also and was well assisted in the field.

The first two innings of the game the River ladies held the Sixth Line down to no runs while they themselves scored 7 runs. In the 4th innings however the visiting team got away to a 9 run lead and from then until the finish it was a close game, the final score being 21-20.

The return game is to be played at Laing school on Friday evening, May 15.

The line-up:

Sixth Line—L. Lonsdson, c; M. Renwick, 1b; H. Weir, 2b; D. Elliott, 3b; H. Donaldson, ss; L. Bowen rf; D. Chapman, lf; I. Davis, cf; Mary Hall, p.

Indian River—Ruth Evans, c; Helen Spencer, 1b; Eleanor Evans, 2b; Mary Tobin, 3b; Lizzie Fitzgerald, ss; Pearl Tedford, rf; Mary Tedford, lf; Verna Braden, cf; Olive Spencer, p.

Umpires—Stan Wood and Harry Fitzgerald.

nah," "Tiger Rose," "Tiger, Tiger," "Deburau," "The Gold Diggers" "Kiki," "Lulu Belle". He starred among others: Frances Starr, Mary Pickford. (He changed her name from Gladys Smith), Ina Claire, Lenore Ulrich, Fay Bainter and David Warfield.

Beside his daughter, Mr. Belasco leaves three brothers, Edward, Walter and Solomon, all of Los Angeles. Another daughter, Mrs. William Elliott, died 16 years ago.

He will be buried Sunday in Linden Hills, N. J. cemetery by the side of his wife, Cecilia Loverich, whom he married in San Francisco. Services will be conducted in central synagogue with Rabbi Jonah B. Wise officiating.

Pall bearers will be Mayor Walker, Daniel Frohman, George M. Cohan, Al Jolson, Frank Gillmore, Edward Charles Carpenter, A. O. Brown, Mitchell L. Erlanger and Edward D. Coolents.

SCHOOL CADETS

and though you have not retained it for the second successive year at this time, yet competition increases effort, and I hope it may some time come again to Millbrook. Efficiency is the great thing that counts, and I thank you, boys, for what you have shown me to-day. I am sure your drill, steadiness and demeanor must all be a matter of pride to your school board and instructor, as they are to me personally, though my connection with you is largely through correspondence"

Close inspection of the two platoons by Captain Isbestor, and Colonel J. W. Odell, P.S.I., led to the presentation of medals for the best appearing Cadets to Cadet Reginald McKnight of Platoon No. 1, and Cadet Reg. Edmunds, of Platoon No. 2; rounds of applause from the onlookers showing the popularity of the decision.

Colonel Odell, in addressing the company, stated that the pleasure of the occasion for him was enhanced by the wonderfully neat and natty appearance of the Cadets, and he complimented the Cadets on the fact that "you have learned to do one of the hardest things, and I think you have done it perfectly this afternoon, and that is to do nothing on certain occasions. What is it all for? To be ready to do something when you are asked to do it."

Not to have retained the Earl Jellicoe Sword for the second year was no disgrace, the speaker insisted, adding that he did not know of any corps winning it for the second time, and thought the record of seventh place in the whole British Empire was a matter of community congratulation and pride. "You are growing better and better every year, and I wish you all success, and look forward to the Sword coming again to Millbrook in the future."

The inspection closed with rousing cheers for the King, Captain Isbestor, and Cadet Instructor B. B. Dawson.

MRS. W. SIMMONS WINS 1ST PRIZE

To-day's Issue Contains Seven 'Do You Know' Stories.

RULES ARE SIMPLE.

Mrs. W. Simmons, 29 Orpington Road, was selected as winner for the day, by The Examiner's judges in the daily "Do You Know" contest. Though very brief, the answers submitted by Mrs. Simmons were correct and nicely arranged.

To those who have not as yet familiarized themselves with the contest we might state the very simple rules that govern it, and add that it takes but a few moments to make the required telephone calls and submit them to The Examiner's "Do You Know" editor.

Each day there are appearing several articles scattered through the paper, in regard to the service of some of our local firms or professional people. Concluding these stories is a question, the answer to which can be obtained only by calling the firm about which the article is written. After receiving the full set of answers, write them down in a neat manner, using your own discretion as to formation, and send or mail them in.

There are seven of the "Do You Know" stories in this issue. Try your hand. A three dollar cash prize is given daily by The Examiner for the best arranged set of answers that are received. A few moments, carefully spent, will most assuredly put you among the first.

BENSFORT SOCIETIES WILL HOLD SOCIAL

United Church Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. Hold Joint Meeting.

BENSFORT, May 15.—The members of the Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. of Bensfort United Church held their monthly meeting recently in the church, when owing to illness in the family, Mrs. F. Morrison, president of the Ladies' Aid, was unable to be present and Mrs. Whittington, president of the W.M.S., conducted the meetings.

It was decided to hold a strawberry social in aid of the building fund, the date to be decided later.

The W.M.S. program was in charge of Group C of which Mrs. S. Robinson is leader. Mr. Buckham, treasurer, and Mrs. W. C. Dawson, corresponding secetary, gave their reports and Mrs. Robinson gave an interesting reading on Sunday school work in Japan.

Mrs. W. Wood gave a resume of a chapter from the Study Book on Home Life in Japan and the meeting was brought to a close in the usual manner.

THE FAMOUS Kellogg's WAXTITE Bag...

KEEPS KELLOGG'S RICE KRISPIES SO CRISP THEY ACTUALLY CRACKLE IN CREAM!

ONE of the most famous Kellogg features is the patented waxtite bag that brings all Kellogg's Cereals deliciously fresh and crisp to your table.

This waxtite bag is an exclusive Kellogg feature. It is actually sealed against moisture, odors and contamination. No wonder Kellogg's Rice Krispies taste so delicious—and are so crisp they actually pop and snap!

Have them for breakfast tomorrow. Enjoy for lunch with fruits or honey added. Great for the children's supper. Nourishing and easy to digest.

Fine to use in recipes. Make delicious macaroons, candies, desserts. Order from your grocer. Keep a red-and-green package in the pantry. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. The only cereal so crisp it crackles in cream.

A pleasant affair of Wednesday evening at the Y.W.C.A. was the Mother and Daughter banquet held under the auspices of the Wohelo Club. There was a splendid attendance of mothers and daughters, gathered around long tables placed in the green room. Decorations were very lovely in pink and white, with silver baskets filled with snapdragons and spring blossoms. The president, Miss Gertrude Bacon, acting as toastmistress, welcomed the guests and a pretty candle ceremony was used as each girl introduced her mother. The program included a number of club and 'Y' songs and a toast list which commenced with 'The King', followed by the toast to 'Our Mothers', proposed by Miss Lily Ellis and responded to by Mrs. A. Melrose; the toast to 'Our Daughters' proposed by Mrs. F. D. Kerr, an interested friend of the club, and responded to by Miss Irene Vivash, who also told something of the activities and service work of the club, with its motto of "Work, Health and Love". Miss Desiree Vivash played a piano solo. Miss Grace Schiarezza recited, Mrs. H. C. Sootheran gave a talk on Birds, and a sailors' hornpipe was danced by the Misses Elda Bradley, Lily Ellis and Lorraine Coursey. A bird contest was also enjoyed and the closing was the club song. Arrangements for the banquet were in charge of the executive members of the club, the Misses Gertrude Bacon, Myrtle Elcombe, Jean Black, Irene Vivash and Lily Ellis.

Preparations Made To Entertain Moose

Preparations are now completed at the Legion Hall, Murray Street, to entertain the Grand Lodge officers of the Loyal Order of Moose and Legion of the World on Saturday night at ten o'clock.

The visiting officers to be present are: Bro. Norman G. Heyd, Toronto Past Supreme Dictator and Herder; Bro. J. Jackson, Toronto, Grand Regent for Canada; Bro. J. C. McTralla, St. Thomas North Moose. There is to be a large class for initiation also. A good number of brethren from different points of the province, and from the States, are expected to be present. The entertainment will be put on for the most part by local talent.

Damage Action Case Is Finally Settled

The claim for damages brought against the City of Peterborough and E. P. McLennan, owner of the bus operating between this city and Lindsay, by Elizabeth Brennan for injuries sustained in the collision between the fire department's pumper and a bus at the corner of McDonnell and Reid streets several months ago, has been settled out of court. Miss Brennan is allowed judgment of $458 and $188 costs, including witnesses fees.

The case was to have been tried this morning before Judge L. V. O'Connor at a special sitting of the County Court. J. A. O'Brien, counsel for Miss Brennan, and solicitors for the city and the bus company came to their agreement of settlement yesterday afternoon, so that it was not necessary for His Honor to hear the case.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Have you readers ever realized the importance of the word, "Balance?"

• • • • • • •

The word is an important one in numerous realms of life. With it is apt to be coupled the word, well, the term well-balanced being defined as evenly balanced and also adjusted with reference to welfare.

• • • • • • •

In its other significance it pertains to physical well being, to mental health and no less to such mundane things as menus, money, accounts, etc.

• • • • • • •

It enters into the home in many of its meanings and always pertains to a high and fine quality.

• • • • • • •

The well-balanced meal is one in which the needs of the body are evenly catered to. It is the endeavor of every good housewife to serve well-balanced meals.

• • • • • • •

In the realm of interior decoration it is an essential. No room can be satisfactorily decorated without well-balanced schemes for wall treatments, positioning of furniture, for placement of rugs, etc.

• • • • • • •

The home decorator has constantly to keep in mind this imperative idea of well-balanced treatment.

• • • • • • •

In the matter of money, accounts must be balanced perfectly in the final summing up of expenditures and incomes. It is in the providing of sufficient food, for good health, of enough entertainment and recreation for mental well being, of the proper relations of expenditures so that none are slighted nor over-provided for at the cost of another, that the management of a home is well-balanced.

• • • • • • •

Most important of all to the good of a family is the well-balanced mind.

• • • • • • •

No one who lets suspicion creep into the family relations can have a well-balanced mind, for suspicion is one of the elements that throws the scales of reasoning out of gear.

• • • • • • •

Jealousy is another such element. In fact all things that sway the mind so that the correct equilibrium is upset, such as anger, hate, etc., prevent a person from having a well-balanced mind.

• • • • • • •

It is fortunate that there are such things as love, kindness, sympathy, tolerance, patience, tranquility and kindred moral forces that are constantly exerting their influence to establish a proper equilibrium and preserve the balance of well-being in a home.

Women Are Ordered To Leave The City

Pleas of guilty to the charge of vagrancy were given this morning in Police Court by both the women arrested on Simcoe street Wednesday by Sergeant Arthur Thomas. The women were said to have been visiting a Chinese laundry here and stolen a purse and a pair of gloves.

The brother of the older woman, Mrs. Mary Bell, appeared and pledged himself to return both to Toronto and be responsible for their future conduct.

"Peterborough is well rid of them and it's the cheaper way," stated Chief Newhall. Magstrate Langley allowed the women to go, ordering them to get out immediately.

Refusal Of Council Is Scored By Warden

Reeve C. S. Tanner of Lakefield, who is also Warden of the county this year, told The Examiner this morning that the city council's refusal to buy Peterborough's supply of cement from the Canada Cement Company's plant in this county had left a generally unfavorable impression throughout the county.

"Since I have been in the county council," said Warden Tanner, "I have heard a great deal from city deputations about co-operation between the county and the city. I am convinced that the county as a whole has more than carried out its share of that friendly intercourse. Naturally if the county people help in promoting city industries it is only fair that the city will assist county industries when the opportunity is presented. I believe most of the city people will agree with that proposition. Probably there may be a deputation or two from the city asking some favor or other from the county before this year is out, and it is just possible that the county council's action may be influenced by the recent action of the city council towards Lakefield's big industrial plant."

Here's Sanitary Protection that really fits, really protects

Kotex is specially designed to fit inconspicuously; and it is so soft and comfort-giving besides.

YOU know what a relief it is to feel entirely free of self-consciousness at times when sanitary protection is necessary. To feel well groomed, comfortable, at ease.

That's the feeling Kotex gives you. Kotex, with its skilful shaping; its rounded corners; its soft filler. And it is so easy to dispose of!

Why Kotex is so Absorbent

It is amazingly absorbent, you know. And there is a special reason for that. You see, it is made of fold upon fold of a dainty material, and each of these delicate layers is a quick, complete absorbent in itself.

Kotex absorbs laterally, not in one concentrated area, but away from the surface. That is why it stays comfortable so much longer than the ordinary sanitary pad.

MODERN WISDOM SAYS KOTEX . . .

1. Safe, Secure—keeps your mind at ease.
2. Disposable completely, instantly.
3. Rounded and tapered corners—for inconspicuous protection.
4. No embarrassment—from wrong adjustment. It may be worn on either side, with equal efficiency.

Try Kotex yourself. Enjoy the same care scrupulous hospitals give their patients. Nothing else is like Kotex. Be safe. Specify "Kotex" when you order sanitary pads. Kotex Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Church Army Workers Leave For N. Quebec

Conduct Daily Services For a Week in St. Stephen's Church, Chandos.

APSLEY, May 15. (Examiner Correspondence.)—Captains Jackson and R. Gibbs of the Church Army, left on Monday for Northern Quebec, after an eight days mission in the parish of Apsley. Captain Gibbs spent the entire week in Chandos, with services every night in St. Stephen's Church, the church being quite full on the last Sunday evening service. He made a deep impression on the people, who tried to prevail on him to stay for at least another week, but this was impossible.

Captain Jackson divided his time between St. Georges, Apsley and St. Paul's, Lasswade, Sunday services at the former church being splendidly attended, in contrast to the week night services which attracted only comparatively few Lasswade however, made up for the deficiency, practically every one in the neighborhood attending all services. The service at Apsley on Sunday evening was marked by a very impressive incident, when at the close, sixteen of the congregation came to the chancel steps to receive a remembrance card from the captain, as a public witness of their faith.

W.M. Society Meets In Norham Church

NORHAM, May 15. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of Norham Church was held at the parsonage on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Clare conducted the business part of the meeting when Mrs. George Palmateer, 2nd group leader, took charge of the program. The devotional leaflet "Let your light shine" was read by Mrs. H. C. Curtis.

A letter was read regarding the Disarmament Declaration. The petition was signed by those present and given to Mrs. Lorne Evans, who is to secure further signatures. Mrs. Harry Wilson sang very sweetly.

Rev. D. R. Clare took the concluding chapter of the study book "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem." Dealing with the Jerusalem conference in 1928. This was compared with former world conferences of 1890, 1900 and 1910.

At Jerusalem it was found that pagan religiouns were not the greatest enemy to christianity but materialism.

The message sent out to the world from that conference was the message of Jesus Christ.

The conclusions drawn from the conference were studied.

Soft Ice and Lack of Snow Increases Hardships of Providing Coast Villages With Mail.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 13.—Sled-driving through flooded roads, boat repairs made by means of empty tin cans, and nights spent on the ice, are some of the hardships experienced by couriers who carry the mail to the outlying districts of Northern Newfoundland in winter. A traveller along the coast, who spent considerable time in Notre Dame Bay and Bonavista Bay, the past season, gives a first hand account of the difficulties overcome by the couriers.

With Captain Ben Simmons, who built and sails the schooner Nancy Lee, he left Lewisporte early one morning. Three hours later they had reached Campbellton, and here the difficulties began. The mailbags were placed on a sled, and because of the depth of water on the corduroy roads, hip rubbers had to be donned and men were forced to wade ahead of the equipage to see that the water was not too deep for the pony.

That night they were safely housed at Boyd's Cove and next morning reached Horwood. At Gander Bay they met mailmen Frank Collins, and embarked in a canoe to cross the bay, with a load of mail and three men for Carmenville. The traveller joined mailman W. Shepherd at Musgrave Harbor, was caught in a storm, and finally reached Valleyfield by dogteam. A connection with the Gambo was missed, the result being a night spent in an empty shack. On the following day the Gambo mailman arrived, having had his boat damaged by the ice, and patched with empty fruit tins and canvas. They left for Wellington in the skiff, were caught in the ice, and had to tie up on the floe for the night. Heroes were provided at Wellington, but the going to Gahbo was so bad it was necessary to walk the whole eighteen miles. The traveller left the mail routes.

The past winter and spring have been particularly bad for the mailmen, as there was very little snow, and the rivers were not frozen safely and had to be waded.

GRANDCHILD GETS MELBA'S ESTATE

Famous Singer Leaves Money and Valuables Worth Over Million Dollars.

LONDON, May 15.—(By the Canadian Press)—A romance of Dame Nellie Melba's will is that she left Pamela, her 12-year-old granddaughter, her collection of jewels, valued at $70,000, most of which were the gifts of Royalties. Pamela, who is the daughter of Melba's son, George Armstrong, will eventually inherit the estate, valued at $1,000,000. "Melba adored the child as most children are adored by their grand-parents," said her former West End agent. "She often mentioned her 'Dear little Pamela' to her London friends. As far as I am aware, the little girl has never been in England, although her parents visited London about two years ago."

Melba was noted for her gifts of tie-pins to her men friends and there was a world "chain" of tie-pins as mementos of the famous singer.

Percy Eales, former secretary and business manager of the Grand Opera Syndicate, who was left $250 under Melba's will, knew her intimately at Covent Garden for about 30 years. "That is not the first gift I have received from Melba," he remarked to a newspaper reporter with reference to the bequest. "Soon after I first went to Covent Garden she presented me with one of her famous 'Melba tie-pins.' It was of gold and enamel, and bore her monogram. Some years later she asked: 'By the way, have you got a tie-pin?' I answered that she had already given me one. 'Then you must have another,' she said. The second tie-pin was much more valuable one, with her monogram in diamonds and pearls. That was one of her ways of 'grading' her friendships. I believe she left these tie-pins behind her in many parts of the world, and there are several in London."

While Melba's estate of $1,000,000 was large compared with that of Mme. Patti, $581,685, and in striking contrast to Mme. Albani's small estate of $587, the great Australian prima donnaIe fortune was not as large as had been anticipated. She suffered heavy money losses during the war and in later investments in Australia.

MRS. W. R. BLACKWELL RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF ART ASSOCIATION

Mrs. Blackwell Will Be President for Seventh Consecutive Year.

REPORTS PRESENTED.

For the seventh consecutive year, Mrs W. Blackwell was elected president of the Lyceum Women's Art Association, at the annual meeting held in the studios at the Conservatory of Music, on Wednesday afternoon.

Other officers for the year will be as follows: Mrs. H. Rush, honorary president; Mrs. F. C. Neal, 1st vice-president; Mrs. V. Eastwood, 2nd vice president; Mrs. B. L. Barns, 3rd vice president; Miss M. F. Hatton, 4th vice president; Mrs. H. Morphet, treasurer; Madam Masson, assistant treasurer; Mrs. F. C. Webber, secretary; Mrs. J. O'Brien, corresponding secretary; Miss M. Stratton, press secretary; Miss Grace Reinhardt, Archivist.

Three joint convenors of the Art Study Club will be Mrs. R. F. Downey, Mrs. F. C. Neal and Mrs. V. S. Foster; Arts and Crafts Guild, Mrs. N. C. Staples, convenor; Madam Sifroy Goulet convenor of the Causerie Francaise; Mrs. L. J. Pettit, convenor Dramatic Club; Mrs. H. E. Connelly and Mrs. A. Barton social convenors; Mrs. C. B. Adair, telephone convenor; Mrs. F. Hooper, convenor Exhibition and Hanging committee; Mrs. R. Gliddon and Mrs. G. N. Gordon, program convenors.

Members' representatives will be: Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, Mrs. J. F. Allan, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, Mrs. G. N. Gordon, Mrs. H. C. Wightman, Mrs. N. H. Sutton, Miss A. Wood, Miss Linden Hall and Miss T. Mathers.

The meeting was well attended, twenty-five members being present. Reports were given by the secretary and the various convenors and the treasurer, showing a very satisfactory year just ended.

At the conclusion of the business session, Mrs. Gliddon served tea.

Mrs. Blackwell, the president, spoke of the enjoyable year and the efficient work of all the officers and the executive members, and thanked them very much for their support and co-operation. She spoke of several changes taking place in the personnel of the association on account of the removal of several valued members from the city and welcomed the new secretary, Mrs. Webber, and the convenors. Mrs. Blackwell concluded by wishing continued success to sister organizations of the Art Association: the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League, the Music Club and the Womens Canadian Club.

Reports Presented.

Mrs. H. W. Morphet read the report of the treasurer, showing a very satisfactory financial year.

The annual report of the society was presented by the secretary, Mrs. N. C. Staples, who gave a very interesting resume of the various meetings, social events and exhibitions carried on under the auspices of the association.

Donations of $5 each were made to the Well Babies' Clinic and the Relief Fund.

Mrs. Staples expressed the appreciation of the members for the work done by Mrs. R. Gliddon in arranging an enjoyable program, also for the arrangements of the social committee by Mrs. H. E. Connelly.

The report concluded with a tribute to the presidency: 'To our leader and president may I pay a small tribute. Her enthusiasm and interest have grown with each year in office. Under her able and loving direction, the Art Association has gone on developing to its present success, due to her unfailing support and harmonious management. May she long continue to aid us so well. My two years as secretary have been very happy ones in association with Mrs. Blackwell and the executive."

The report of the Art Study Club was given by the convenor, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, who reported a membership of twenty-seven ladies, with an average attendance of eighteen, and reviewed briefly the year's activities, when the ladies met fortnightly at homes of the members, to hear papers and have discussions regarding the work of famous artists.

For the Guild of Arts and Crafts, the convenor, Mrs. N. H. Sutton, reported a membership of twenty-nine, with an average attendance of nineteen. Mrs. Sutton referred to the increased enrolment over former years and an increased interest and enthusiasm in the work of the Guild, also to the success of the annual exhibition of work and the many interesting meetings held at the homes of the members.

Mrs. L. J. Pettit, convenor of the Dramatic Club, reported for the work of her branch of the association. It was explained in the fall of last year that no extensive program would be given this season, so the activities were confined to a very entertaining Christmas program and a very successful social wind-up of the year by a dinner party.

Madam Sifroy Goulet, convenor of the Causerie Francaise, reported meetings held every Tuesday afternoon from January until Easter. From twelve to fifteen ladies were present at each meeting, when "The Romance of a Poor Young Man" was the subject of study. There were also many discussions and explanations with regard to the French language and its difficulties and an imaginary trip to Paris was taken. Several social meetings of the class were held also.

Was Badly Run Down, Suffered From Blood Disorders, Constipation—Tells How Dr. French's NU-ERB Brought Relief

"Dr. French's NU-ERB certainly did wonders for me," says Mr. Perrin Clark, 463 Bolivar St.

"For three years I suffered from severe constipation. At times I would go two and three days without relief. I took many strong cathartics and purgatives, but none of them seemed to help. I suppose naturally my blood became poisoned for my face began to break out with pimples and boils and all kinds of skin eruptions.

"I also felt tired and 'dopey' all the time and there seemed to be no life in me at all. My employer knew about Dr. French's NU-ERB and advised me to try it. At the end of the first week that I used this treatment I noticed a decided improvement in my case and now I am feeling much better than I have ever felt since I started to have this trouble.

"My face has entirely cleared up and I am no longer troubled with constipation and my habits are normal and regular. Thanks to Dr. French's NU-ERB, I am feeling entirely well again, and in my estimation I think this is a truly wonderful medicine. If you have any troubles similar to those I had, try it—you won't have them any longer."

PERRIN CLARK.

For those in need of a powerful reconstructive tonic there is nothing better than Dr. French's NU-ERB. It is made from pure vegetable extracts which are perfectly harmless but which act quickly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and the blood. Nothing equals Dr. French's NU-ERB to expel that tired, sluggish, worn-out feeling to which most people are subjected to occasionally would flow into the bank that it would be swamped. It must be remembered, however, that the bank would start with a great balance of gold. It would require a large quantity of silver before equilibrium was reached. But, even if silver did flow into the bank, the institution would have a power which no bank, not even the Bank of England, held to-day. It would have the power to raise the price of gold. Then gold would flow in just as silver had.

PLAN IS OUTLINED

If silver was stabilized, continued Mr. Darling, South American nations and other countries which had formerly been on a silver basis would be only to glad to return to it. In this event, the situation would be that the British Empire and all the silver currency countries would be united in the rehabilitation of silver.

His plan had been criticized on the ground that it would result in the British Empire going off the gold basis, Mr. Darling said. It would, he continued, but the British Empire would have done it deliberately, and that was a great deal better than being forced off it. The Empire would adopt a "bi-metal standard."

He hoped that the United States would come and join with the British Empire in the rehabilitation of silver. The gold resources of the United States and the British Empire combined totalled, he said, $5,000,000,000, and these two nations produced 84 per cent. of the gold of the world. If these two nations with these great gold resources determined that the legal value of silver was to be a dollar, who would think of selling it for less than a dollar?

If the British Empire and the United States declared that their international debts could be paid in silver, the very magnitude of those debts would so increase the price of silver that it would go back to parity.

That, briefly, was the plan. He believed that "it has dynamic power to lift the world out of the terrible morass in which it is sinking." He believed that if Canada took the lead and the British Empire followed, the United States would respond.

J. D. Chaplin, Conservative member for Lincoln, asked Mr. Darling if he did not think that with the sudden bringing of silver up to 80 cents or a dollar in value an ounce, production would be enormously increased.

Mr. Darling replied that silver production, he hoped, would increase. But it would be purchased as a money metal and its value would be increased.

Send Prices.

No one could say what the effect of his scheme would be on price levels, said Mr. Darling. He believed prices would go up and the only danger was that they might go too high. But this danger was a mere bagatelle to the danger of doing nothing. On the present scale of prices it was impossible to maintain money wage rates or to pay debts. The Government debts of the British Empire before the war were $8,000,000,000, and they were now $52,000,000,000.

The coming Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa would be an excellent place to start the scheme, he said, and he added: "I dont' think you could find a better leader for it than Mr. Bennett."

Hon. W. D. Euler (Lib., Waterloo North) asked if the scheme contemplated that any owner of silver would be entitled to go to a mint and have his metal turned into coin, and Mr. Darling replied in the affirmative.

Gordon's Again Win In S. H. Softball Loop

A doubleheader was played at the Sacred Heart grounds yesterday afternoon, when four Sacred Heart School teams tangled in two League fixtures. Gordon's defeated Canucks, 16 to 15, in a close and heavy hitting ten-inning game. In the second game, Canucks walloped Gilberts to win out 11 to 6. These games have a sizeable following, and the youngsters play some good games.

POOR SUPPORT GIVEN SMITH

Leafs' Defense Cracks in Pinches and Bears Win Second Game.

HURLERS HIT HARD.

TORONTO, May 15. — Art Smith who, when with Montreal, used to give some of his best pitching performances right here in Toronto at Maple Leaf Strium, made his first start of the season at the Fleet Street park yesterday afternoon and didn't earn any headlines.

"Smitty" was nicked for fifteen hits by the Newark Bears, who were not so docile as on the previous day. But it wasn't so much their hitting as the wretched support Smith was accorded by his teammates that earned the Bears a 6-to-4 decision and permitted them to even the series at one game each.

The men behind Smith committed four errors that show in the box score, but they were guilty of several more that a lenient scorer marked as hits for the visitors. It was a wierd performance all through. The Leafs' defensive system seemed to have several loose parts and the ball game was literally tossed to the men of Mamaux.

It was one of those games in which the pitchers were pounded hard and often. The Leafs collected thirteen hits off Leo Mangum, who lingered for the first two innings, and Myles Thomas, former Leaf, who went the rest of the route. But the Leafs wasted many of their blows and they were not assisted by loose fielding on the part of their opponents.

Come From Behind Twice

The O'Neillmen came from behind twice to tie the score, once overcoming a three-run handicap. The teams were tied from the fifth to the eighth inning. Then Richardson made a great stop on Zitsmann's drive, but pulled Davis off the bag with a bad toss. Zitsmann worked around to third on a sacrifice and a long fly to the outfield, but he would not have scored had Ray Morehart handled Myles Thomas's grounder cleanly. It was an easy chance to retire the side without a run, but Morehart "booted" it badly and the tie was broken and the Bears had what eventually proved to be the winning run.

GARAGE GIVES 24 HOUR SERVICE

Corner Service Garage is Open Day and Night.

EXPERT WORKMEN.

If your car is in need of repair the Corner Service Garage has every detail of equipment and the finest experts among workmen to give your car whatever attention it needs. This service includes gasoline and oils, battery and tire service, radiator repairing, etc. They carry a complete line of tires, tubes, batteries and Mazda house lamps. For the convenience of their customers the Corner Service Garage is open night and day, giving a complete twenty-four hour service of the highest character. A proper slogan for this up-to-the-minute service station and garage would be "Let us Keep Your Car in Repair and it Ceases to be an Expense."

At the Corner Service Garage and Service Station you may be assured that inexperienced, incompetent machinists will not be broken in on your car. The proprietors, Messrs. J. E. Hunter and J. H. Forsyth, value the high standing that their firm has attained too much to employ any but tested mechanics. The service men there are making automobile service and repairing their life work. They like it, their interest is in it, they are studying it all the time, and are ready to give the public the benefit of their experience and knowledge, and we are glad to refer the Corner Service Garage to the automobile owners in the community.

The owners of this concern belong to the growing class of progressive Peterborough business men that believe that the way to make a business successful is to please the public at all costs. Adequate accomodations, courteous service and the lowest cost consistent with work of the highest quality are necessary attributes to such policies. Do you know what tires and tubes are featured by Hunter and Forsyth at the Corner Service Garage?

$3.00 cash prize given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Seven in to-day's issue).

Yesterday's Stars.

Lou Gehrig and Charlie Ruffing, Yankees — Former drove in six runs with two home runs and a single, latter held Browns to four hits, all of them in eighth and ninth innings.

Rube Walberg, Athletics — Allowed White Sox seven scattered hits and beat them, 5-2.

Wiley Moore, Red Sox—Gave Tigers only three hits in four innings in relief role to protect Red Sox lead.

Sad Sam Jones, Senators — Pitched Washington to 5-4 victory over Indians and drove in two runs himself.

WASHINGTON CLUB BEATS INDIANS FOR 4TH TIME

Senators Have Climbed From Fifth Place to Third Since Hitting Their Stride in Present Western Cities Campaign—Pitted Against Stronger Clubs Than Macks and Yanks.

FIVE NATIONAL LEAGUE GAMES WASHED OUT.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Picked before the season started as the team which might win the American League pennant and almost certainly would cause plenty of trouble for the eventual winner, the Washington Senators had to go west to hit their stride in the current campaign. Playing against their strong Eastern rivals, the Senators could get no better than an even break and were in fifth place when they set out for their intersectional battles

In the West, Washington has won four games out of five—only a fair performance compared to the clean sweeps scored so far by the Philadelphia Athletics and New York Yankees—and has climbed up to third place. But Washington has been pitted against the two strongest western clubs, Cleveland and Detroit, while the Yanks and "A's" have been been knocking over St Louis and Chicago. The fourth victory yesterday, a 5—4 triumph over Cleveland, did not alter the standing, but it did give Washington the league leading pitcher; Sad Samuel Jones won his third straight game, allowing only eight hits and escaping trouble on various occasions by his skill Burnett's homer in the second inning brought the only Cleveland scores until Jones eased up a bit at the finish. With the tying run on base in the ninth, Jones born down to retire the last man.

The performances of Philadelphia and New York have kept Washington's achievements somewhat concealed. The Athletics won their sixth straight game yesterday, downing Chicago 5—2 on a fine pitching performance by Rube Walberg, and by winning they were able to retain their lead of a few points over the Yankees. Big Charley Ruffing added another great pitching performance to the list of this year's mound achievements and Lou Gehrig clouted his fifth and sixth homers of the year to head the attack that brought a 14 to 2 victory over St. Louis.

Walberg won his fifth game, against one lost, with only one bad inning. Al Simmons ended a possible pitching duel when he hit his sixth homer of the year in the fifth inning to join Gehrig at the top of the American League list and ruin the game for Vic Fraser. It was only the fourth triumph for Ruffing, who also had lost one, but for seven innings it looked like a no hit triumph. In the eighth Lin Stort touched for a single and he coasted through the final frame.

The Boston Red Sox, who have climbed from last place to sixth in their western tour, had only one good inning against Detroit but that was enough for a 4 to 3 victory. The Sox got to Waite Hoyt for five hits and four runs in the sixth inning, then stood off the Tigers' desperate attempts to come back.

Five National League games scheduled for yesterday were a complete loss as rain again swept the Eastern sector, bringing the year's total of postponements up to 33 for the elder league.

ARSENAL HAS MADE MORE PROFIT THAN ANY OTHER CLUB IN LEAGUE

Aldershot Seeks Vacancy in Third Division, Southern Section.

MANY NEW CANDIDATES

(By Bob Hayes)

TORONTO, May 15.—Last season winners of the English Cup.

This season, winners of the first division championship with a record number of points.

That, in brief, is the tale of Arsenal's success. It will probably be found when the final scores are available that the Arsenal have made more profit this season than any other club has made in one term.

Their gross gates have averaged around 3,000 per match, and it is roughly estimated that the balance on the right side of the term will be over 30,000.

Last season, the profits were only just over 5,000, including the greater receipts from cup ties, but this season there has been very little expenditure on transfer fees.

Teams Seek Promotion.

Aldershot will make another bid for league status at the annual meeting in June, and as they were unsuccessful by the odd vote twelve months ago hopes of a place in the southern section of the third division are not wanting.

They can certainly make out a good case with a civil population of 27,000 in the town, 30,000 soldiers in the Aldershot command, and about 200,000 residents within a radius of twelve miles, the nearest league club being over twenty miles away. (Reading).

The fact that they reached the third round of the F.A. competition to be beaten by Bradford, lends weight to their application and that particular tie furnishes a fact of financial significance that will not be lost sight of.

Northern aspirants number two—Manchester Central and Chester. Central could offer many of the inducements of the two premier clubs of the city and a ground which, for commodiousness and equipment, is not excelled in any third division club centre.

Many English Coaches.

Just how many English coaches and trainers there are on the continent it is impossible to say, but one is often reminded of them by the success of the teams of which they are in charge.

Jimmy Hogan, the old Bolton Wanderers and Burnely forward, for instance has done splendid work for the Dresden sport club during the last three years.

During this period they have won the two championships of East Saxony and Central Germany, in which 1,000 clubs take part, three times in succession, and with only one defeat and four drawn games.

By the way there is some anxiety on the continent regarding the situation of English coaches.

There cannot be any doubt, however, that the advance on the game has been largely due to British coaching, and results even now support the claim in any comparative case.

Many New Candidates.

There are now no fewer than nine candidates in the field for the vacancy on the management committee of the Football League caused by the death of Arthur Dickinson, of Sheffield, and together with the four retiring members who are seeking re-election, the ballot sheet at the annual meeting in June will present a more formidable appearance than it has done for many years. The members of the committee who retire by rotation are Messrs. J. McKenna (president), C. E. Sutcliffe (vice-president), P. Bach, J. A. Barcroft and W. C. Cuff and on the death of R. Dickinson the two Sheffield clubs came to an agreement with regard to filling the official positions which he had occupied.

The following are the candidates for the vacancy: E. Barker, Wolverhampton; G. F. Davis, West Ham United; H. Duckworth, Bury; A. Brook Hirst, Huddersfield Town; J. E. Jones, Aston Villa; C. Kirby, Chelsea; F. Platt, Oldham Athletic; J. Richards, Barnsley, and W. G. Turner, Sheffield Wednesday.

Inter-League Question.

The question that is being asked in Irish League circles is—will the Scottish League play the Irish League on Saturday?

It is felt that the Scottish League should give the Irish League a Saturday irrespective of whether the English League give the Scottish League a Saturday or not. Indeed, in Irish League circles the opinion is expressed that all these inter-league games should be played on Saturday.

It would be better to regulate this end, so that all parties would adopt the idea of a Saturday. The associations put up a great fight and they succeeded in gaining their point. Let the leagues of Scotland and Ireland put up a fight against the English on a Saturday. Tell them that the public who support the ordinary league games are entitled to see the best matches without having to lose a half a day's wages, as would be the case if these games are played in midweek.

Notes of Clubs and Players.

Glasgow Celtic's intended visit to Belfast Celtic has been put back until August in consequence of the Scottish club's U. S. A. tour.

The Ireland vs. England amateur International next season is likely to be played in January instead of the usual month, November.

The question of retaining players is going to be a serious one with Leeds with something like 46 players on their list—and relegation.

In the past 30 years only four English centre forwards have scored against Scotland—Vivian Woodward, Watson Cock and Dean.

Aberdeen are team-building quietly. All the regulars have been offered terms, and all are willing to accept them—Frank Hill, Adam McLean, and goalkeeper Smith included.

SPORTS by JIMMY THOMSON

It is interesting to note how many famous anadian athletes of yesterday are teaching their sons to carry on in some particular line of endeavor in the sporting world. Perhaps one of the most outstanding among veteran athletes is George Goulding, who takes great pride in seeing his son as undefeated champion. Last year at the inter-faculty meet of the University of Toronto, George, Jr., gained considerable recognition on his fine showing. Many old-timers who saw him perform claim that his style is identical to that of his father. Incidentally there are others being coached by their once famous fathers. Not so long ago, Joe Wright, Jr., won the world' most coveted prize by capturing the Diamond Sculls at Henley, which was in all probability due to the capable coaching of his dad. Now Tom Longboat is coaching his son in hope that he will carry on the same name in the annals of sport.

CENTRAL NINE AGAIN LOSERS

Smart Fielding Behind Sterling Pitching Gives Queen Mary 10-1 Win.

IN SCHOOL LEAGUE.

Snappy fielding behind first-class pitching gave Queen Mary an easy 10-1 win over Central on the westerners' diamond last night. The game only went five innings, and the victors had everything their own way from the start.

White, on the hill for the Q. M. team, let the other side down with four hits, and struck out eleven in the five frames played. He was never in trouble, and only allowed two hits in the second, which were converted into a run, the only one scored off him.

Wiley pitched for the losers, striking out four, but being touched for 11 hits. He worked hard, but the westerners were right on to his fast ball, and leaned on them, particularly in the first and the fourth innings. Seven errors were counted against the Central boys, while the others were only guilty of two misplays.

The visitors were blanked in the opening inning, and scored once in the second, and were blanked for the rest of the game. Three times, the Queensters tallied in the first, and once each in the second and third. They hit the apple hard and often to collect four more in the fourth, and got another in the fifth, when a batter got on through an error, reached second through another, stole third and came in on a passed ball. Wiley fanned the last Quen Mary batted to face him.

For three innings, the losers played nice defensive ball, but they had a bad two frames when they booted in a bunch. The winners looked good all the way, from the catcher out.

The teams:

Central: Wiley, p; Fair, as; Ascott, 3b; Wright, 1b; Marshall, c; Copperwaithe, lf; Currie, rf; Doherty, 2b; McLelland, cf.

Queen Mary: A. Clark, c; Hamley, 1b; White, p; D. Clark, ss; Mortimer, lf; Harding, 2b; Kelly, cf; Millard, 3b; LeClair, rf.

Umpire—P. E. Kerr.

HEID DOON LADDIE

(By Ivan Kirkhouse)

A short sketch of George Cumming, A master Golfer and Sportsman.

George Cumming is a great credit to Canadian golf and when thinking of the professional field, his name naturally comes first as he is the daddy of them all n point of service, having been thirty-one years at his chosen work in this country, and quite remarkable, this long span has all been at one club, the Toronto Golf Club. It is pretty difficult to decide on which side the greatest respect and affection lies, the club for George, or Goerge for the club, anyway the association has been mutually profitable.

Born at Bridge of Weir, near Glasgow, May 20, 1879, as a boy he went into the shop of the famous Willie Campbell, professional of the Ranfurly Castle Links, one of the outstanding cradles of the game. No one intending to take up golf as a lifework could have made a better start than to receive his early tuition under the eye of the great old player and master clubmaker. In those early days, clubs were made in their entirety right in the shop, and George put in a long apprenticeship at the bench. Nothing but the finest craftsmanship would do Willie, which is one of the reasons the Toronto Golf Club pro is among the few real judges of a golf weapon in America to-day. Golf was not so specialized then, and any spare hours of the assistants were spent at course work, cutting greens, etc., a real all-round golf training, and a great deal of the excellence of the premier Toronto course, incidentally one of the finest on the continent, may be largely attributed to their professional.

Finishing his time with Campbell George went to Dumfries as professional, from where he came out to the Toronto Club in 1900. Then there were but three professionals in Canada, Royal Montreal, Royal Ottawa, Rosedale and George made the fourth. A rather interesting sidelight here is that Davey Ritchie, now the Rev. Mr. Ritchie of the Presbyterian Church, Kincardine, was then the Rosedale Club's professional.

Cumming won the Canadian open in 1905 and claimed the runner-up championship of the world, being second by a stroke on five other occasions. His influence in golf has been tremendous. Bringing the best of the Scottish technique to this country, he imbued it into his pupils and assistants. Numbered among these latter, who learned their game from George, are many outstanding names in Canadian golf, Charlie Murray, of the Royal Montreal; Albert Murray, of Beaconsfield; Karl Keffer, of Royal Ottawa; Kearney Marsh, of London (Sandy Somerville's early teacher); Billy Freeman, York Downs; Willie Lamb (three time professional champion); Gordon Brydson (present Ontario open champion), and many others. It is safe to say that Cumming's principles and ideas of teaching are the foundation of Canadian golf to-day.

George has played with and studied every golfer of note to-day with the exception of Jones. That great old master, Harry Vardon, is an intimate personal friend, what a golfing education to get in on a discussion between these two!

Cumming is one of the most delightful of companions as his host of friends will quickly agree, and his colorful personality and his hospitality is most charming. In a technical discussion of any of the debatable point of golf, it is a privilege to hear his sound unprejudiced and experienced point of view, with which is coupled a most subtle sense of humor. If his conclusions do not coincide with another's, he has the happy faculty of impressing his views without arousing the slightest antipathy. One of his chief ambitions is to teach the grandchildren of the boys and girls he taught many years ago; he has started many of their sons and daughters off into the golfing world, and this splendid man, whose 52 years sit very lightly upon him ooks all set, not only to take on the third generation, but a fourth.

He has spent the last eleven winters in Jamaica at his profession and last year took over the new Constant Springs course, which, he claims, will soon be known as one of the very finest in the world. It is situated 700 feet above sea level, seven miles from Kingston, the tropical scenery and trees are magnificent and the splendid new hotel close by is patronized by a quickly increasing number of Canadians, as the delightful holiday-place becomes better known.

BISONS DEFEAT ORIOLES 3-2; TIGHTEN INTERNATIONAL RACE

Bill Gould Completes Record of 21 and One-third Innings Without Scoring.

ROYALS WIN EASILY.

BUFFALO, May 15.—The five consecutive game winning streak of Pitcher Monte Weaver, league-leading curver, was exploded here yesterday afternoon by the Buffalo Bisons when they defeated the Baltimore Orioles by the narrow margin of 3 to 2. It was the third consecutive victory for the Bisons and two straight over the league leaders.

Bill Gould, Buffalo's sterling young right hander, outpitched Weaver and completed the sensational record of twirling 21 and one-third consecutive runless innings against his opposition before the Orioles scored their first run in the seventh inning. It was the third consecutive victory running up by Gould. A wild throw by Heinie Sand gave the Bisons two unearned tallies off Weaver in the fifth inning.

SKEETERS PROFIT BY ERRORS

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 16.—Six unearned tallies, five of them in the first inning, were plenty enough for Jersey City yesterday, as it defeated the Rochester Red Wings 8 to 4. The Skeeters tallied five in the first off Grabowski, after Myers booted Walsh's slow roller for the third out. Fisher and Puccinelli hit successive homers for Rochester in the fourth off Nekola and Joe Hartmann was brought into the contest to pitch effective relief ball and hold the Wings to two hits in six innings.

ROYALS WIN EASILY

MONTREAL, May 15.—The Royals hammered four Reading pitchers for 15 hits and evened their series with the Reading Keystones here yesterday, 7-3. Griffin went the route for the Royals and blanked the Keys from the first to the ninth, pitching easily all the way. Urbanski, Gulley and Head, led the Royal attack with three hits apiece and Gulley starredd afield with two sensational catches. Legett had a perfect day at bat with four hits, two of them doubles, in four times up.

Raw silk shipped from Japan to the United States in a recent month weighed nearly 4,000,000 pounds.

Found with serious spinal troubles at the foot of a two-hundred-foot cliff, near Tobemory, Isle of Man, James Black was speeded in motor boat and ambulance 170 miles to a hospital in Glasgow, Scotland.

PACKERS GAIN LEAGUE POINTS AT EXPENSE OF SCOTS CLUB

Preston's Kick Beats Griffin, Caley Custodian, to Win the Tussle.

J. McCULLUM INJURED.

A good crowd of spectators witnessed the Caledonians go down to defeat last night, in a league match, by the score of two goals to none in favour of the Canadian Packing. In the first five minutes of the encounter J McCallum, from Lakefield on the right full back division of the Caley's team met with an accident that compelled him to forgo the rest of the battle. The left arm was injured at the wrist.

This is the second time that the Packers have been favoured with only ten men against eleven to come out on top. In fact, they were worthy of the win through the splendid goal scored by Preston.

The toss favoured the Caledonians in the opening exchanges. Two well balanced half-back lines concentrated in making break aways for the forwards. Twice in succession Burgess travelled down into the corner to find the going hard and had to concede defeat when two men tackled him fearlessly. In an attack on the Caley's goal, McCallum met with an unfortunate accident that compelled him to leave the field for the rest of the encounter. With only ten players, Carmichael took up the duties of full-back and half-back on the Scot's line-up. Taking advantage of the break, the Packers raised siege after siege on the Scot's goal to find Griffin, the custodian, unbeatable at close or long range. From one of these scrimmages, Emery carried the ball to the other end where his forwards endeavoured to break down the C.P.C. defense. Close tackling prevailed for a time with throwins being the attraction of interest. On mid-field play, Robb gained possession near the goal to pass along to McCracken who missed the upright by inches. He run the ball to the goal line where he lifted it into the goal mouth. Frick, the custodian for the C.P.C., grasped the ball in transit and sent his forwards away to the Scot's territory. Newt Downer running at a fast pace until he was right in front of the opposing goalie to finish with a feeble shot that rolled past the far upright. Interval—Canadian Packing 0, Caledonians 0.

Half Time

On resuming, the Scots were still minus their full quota. They changed the positions of the players so as to consolidate the defense. Rankin falling back into the full-back division and playing two half backs. It was evident as the game progressed that the added pressure by the winners would tell before long. Newt Downer broke away on the left wing with the ball at his toe. Whe he was in an advantageous position the ball left his foot like a shot to find Charlie Griffin throwing himself up in the air to prevent a tally. Nothing resulted from the flag-kick that he conceded. Raid after raid by the Caleys failed to bring anything tangible. Tommy Craig had hard luck with his parting shot that hit the outside of the upright to go out of play. Buchan, at centre half for the C.P.C. led a successful attack on the Griffin citadel to gain a successful flag-kick. Rickard placed a perfect corner kick in below the bar to deceive the goal-keeper as he tried to fist clear. It was a goal before his team-mate converted with a timely touch as the sphere dropped at his foot. The Caleys tried hard to redeem themselves but found the going too fast for them, owing to the ten men play. Ten minutes before the finish, Buchan dribbled his way into the Scot's area to let Preston grasp the opportunity. He did so smartly with a low grounder that beat Griffin all the way. Nothing interesting transpired until the final whistle was announced. Canadian Packing 2, Caledonians 0.

Goal scorers—For C.P.C., Rickard and Preston.

Caledonians—C. Griffin, goal; J. McCallum and J. W. Campbell, back; R. Carmichael, D. Emery and R. Robb, half-backs; G. Clark, W. McCracken, W. Rankin, T. Craig and A. Burgess forwards.

C.P.C.—A. Frick, goal; H. Hotson and T. Foster, full backs; F. Nicholls J. Buchan and A. Bromley, halves; W. Rickard, D. Evans, R. Preston, J. Fletcher and N. Downer, forwards.

Referee—Alex McKinley. Linesmen—D. Best and W. Curtis.

ANGLICANS ARE EASILY BEATEN

Westclox Continue Quest For City League Honors By Subduing All Saints 18-1.

The Westclox continued their quest for City Softball League honors at Central School grounds by an easy 18-1 victory over All Saints.

The Anglicans were never in the hunt. They had difficulty in hitting Forsythe, ten being retired on strikes during the six inning contest, and their outfield was full of holes.

Jack Hope was rapped by the Big Bens and with the ragged support the runs piled up. In the seventh Dyer took up the burden, but his team mates became even worse behind him. The game was called in the seventh with the Westclox with 11 runs in that innings and still but one out.

The Saints secured their single counter in the seventh. Foley allowed Frost's fly to get away from him. Jack Hope's single, one of two made by the Saints, scored Frost.

Score by innings:

Westclox .....4 0 0 5 6 3—18
All Saints .....0 0 0 1 0 0— 1

The teams:

Westclox—Dorrington, 3b; Smith, 1b; White, c; Ellis, 2b; Curry, lf; Goodson, cf; Foley, rf; Delahaye, ss; Forsythe, p.

All Saints—Olaveson, c; C. Frost, cf; J. Hope, p, rf; Sanderson, lf; F. Dyer, Jr., 3b; Palmer, 3b; W. Hope, R. Frost, ss; C. Evans, lf; F. Dyer, Sr., p.

Umpires—Galbraith and Laing.

C.G.E. VS. SCOTS ON SATURDAY

For the second time this week, the Caledonians will play an important league match on Saturday afternoon, when they meet the Canadian General on King Edward Park. Kick-off at three o'clock prompt. Referee Jack Hodson. Linesmen to be selected previous to the start of the game.

In the two previous encounters that the Electric boys have played, they have been unfortunate in the run of the play. This will be the first time that they have met the Scotsmen.

After the game last night, the Caledonian executive decided to make one change in the eleven so as to allow George Blowers back in the full back division.

C.G.E. team will be as follows—J. Bolton, goal; J. Lewington and D. Grant, full backs; R. Clyde; J. Stannard and J. Bruce, halves; J. Quinn, J. McMaster, B. McMaster, S. Clark and H. Darling forwards. Reserves, J. Murphy, J. Lovatt and B. Bolam.

Caledonian team will be: C. Griffin, goal; J. Pottle and G. Blowers full-backs; W. McCracken, W. Robb and D. Emery, halves; A. Burgess, R. Carmichael, T. Craig, J. Campbell and W. Rankin, forwards. Reserves, G. Clarke and I. McPhate.

LOPSIDED SCORES FEATURE OPENING OF C.G.E. LEAGUE

Test Men Defeat Fractional Motors 49-4 While Office Wins From Steel Men 31-11.

INITIAL CEREMONIES.

C. G. E. Softballers pried the lid off for the season last night when four teams clashed in two heavy hitting duels at the King Edward Park to chalk up rather lopsided scores. The Test Men took very kindly to the offerings of the Fractional Motors team pitcher by hammering out a total of 49 runs to the losers four while the Office No. 1 crew handed the Structural Steel Department the small end of a 31-11 decision.

J. A. Bell, Chief Accountant, Bob Cotton, Supt. of Power and Fred Reed, Production Manager participated in the opening ceremonies. Mr. Bell tossed the first ball but it never crossed the plate as Fred Reed at bat hammered it over the second baseman's head for a neat single.

The Test showed the effect of diligent practice in their tilt with the Motor Makers who were hopelessly outclassed in every department, while the winners showed snap and finish both in the field and at bat. Bennett started on the mound for the losers but retired in favor of Heffernan when the score was 25-1, but the latter failed to stem the barrage of hits from the bats of the Testers. Munro pitched the first three innings for the winners, fanning three and allowing three hits while his team-mates worked in two double-plays. Stan Lawrence finished the game, striking out four, walking two and allowing three hits.

MacKenzie lead-off man for the Test Men came very close to having a perfect night when he socked four home runs, three two baggers and a single in nine times at bat.

The teams:

Test—MacKenzie, c; Glassford, 1b; Munro, p; Harmer, ss; Tracey, 3b; Geldart, 2b; Litster, cf; Lawrence, lf; Jennings, rf.

Fractional Motors—W. Heffernan, 2b; Griffin, cf; McDonough, rf; Heffernan, ss; Hollingsworth, lf; Bennett, p; Blair, 3b; Houghton, rf; Murphy, 2b; Stewart, rf; Todd, c.

Umpires—Reeve-Newson at the plate, Kearns on the bases.

Gerry Routley stood the Structural Steel workers on their heads with a bullet-like delivery that held the latter aggregation to one run until the sixth innings when they countered six times. Murphy and Darling were no mystery to the Pen Pushers who got away to an early start by collecting six tallies in the initial frame, and pounded both pitchers for a total of 31 runs, being aided greatly by loose fielding.

The teams:

Structural Steel—Fee, 3b; Rogers, ss; Black, 2b; Grierson, c; Pilling, rf; Miller, lf; Howarth, 1b; Murphy, p; Johnson, cf; Darling, p.

Office No. 1—Weese, 3b; Playford, ss; Routley, p; Barry, 1b; Miller, lf; Gray, c; Wilson; 2b; Northrop, rf; Daniels, cf.

Umpires, Les. Calladine at the plate and Fred Martin on the bases.

a surprising story of young love

SECRET PLACES

BY

JOAN SUTHERLAND

When Toni, a modern young woman of the world, gave her love to Feodor Staire, brilliant young diplomat, the very intensity of her happiness alarmed her. . . . She was not mistaken. Through her beautiful sister Greta the cloud of tragedy descended. Greta was secretly jealous of Toni's engagement, and the wealth and position of Staire. . . . Out of pique and discontent, she flirted with Count D'Arblaye, a rich man of bad reputation. . . . In an effort to save her sister Toni brought worse than death to Feodor. . . . But when the shadows passed . . .

CASUAL COMMENT

Four teams will play in the East Peterborough League this summer. They are Cogs, Crescents, C.G.E. and Bethany. When the Rays dropped out last week, it looked bad for the E.P.L., but now they've got Doc Hamilton's Bethany entry, so they're all set.

• • • • • • •

The opening game in this league which was called for tomorrow, will have to be postponed a week or so, as the recent changing around of players has sort of got the teams balled up. But, everything will be straightened out soon, and they'll get going.

• • • • • • •

Two school games are listed for this evening. One of them ought to be some battle, and that's King Edward and Prince of Wales. The undefeated King George crew take on Queen Alex at the Oval in the other affair. These games have a big following.

• • • • • • •

Well the girls have their softball schedule all ready, and they'll be off to a start next Wednesday. The first local game will be Brintons and Westclox over at the Bowl in East City on May 22nd. They'll have some sort of opening ceremonies as the lid is pried off.

• • • • • • •

There'll be a lot of interest in the gals' attempt to revive the once-popular sport around here. We have no doubt, whatever, but the league will be quite successful, and that fans will come out in swarms to see the fair ones on the diamond.

• • • • • • •

Seven teams make up the Peterborough and District Girls' Softball League, and five of them are local outfits. Keene and Sixth Line are the district entrants. No line can be had on any of the teams until they've been seen in action.

• • • • • • •

To-night, the Men's City Softball League meets at Duffus' at eight bells. They'll make ground rules and discuss other matters pertaining to the league. All managers should be present.

• • • • • • •

What the Big Bennys did to the boys from All Saints last night was just too bad. The losers didn't look too terrible the first few innings, but they took it on the chin before the finish.

• • • • • • •

After two were out in the fifth, the Clockers become wound up suddenly and tallied six more runs before the alarm was shut off. At that, the Saints have three or four classy softballers on their lineup.

• • • • • • •

The Brinton girls are playing Westclox damsels in an exhibition game to-night down at King Edward Park. The south-end team has won two games so far, and will try to take the Armour Hill outfit this evening.

• • • • • • •

Eleven strike-outs in five innings isn't bad going for any kid. In fact, if we were not afraid of being accused of exaggeration, we would say it was darned good twirling. Anyway, that's what White did in letting Central School down with four hits in the Queen Mary 10-1 win yesterday.

• • • • • • •

The seniors will have another good workout to-night at six at the Exhibition Grounds. More players than before are expected to try out with them at this time. A number have already been signed, and another batch is thinking of it.

• • • • • • •

The Petes should have little trouble getting a nice defensive team, infield and outfield. They should also have as good a battery staff as any in the league. But what about hitters?

• • • • • • •

That's something that cannot be done without—heavy hitting. The outfielders, especially, should be taking a toe hold in the batters box and slapping the turnip for from .350 to .400 all summer. And your infielders, too, should carry some of the offensive punch. No team is any good unless it is hitting.

More than 5 Minutes Saved

on the average Long Distance Call

The average time taken to complete a Long Distance call is now 2 minutes flat. In 1925 it was 7.3 minutes.

It takes 5.3 minutes less time today than it did six years ago. In other words, you are saving more than two thirds of your waiting time through the efficiency of Bell equipment and employees and the cooperation of telephone users in placing calls correctly.

Average Time to complete Long Distance Calls

1925 ----- 7.3 minutes
1926 ----- 6.6 minutes
1927 ----- 5.8 minutes
1928 ----- 3.9 minutes
1929 ----- 3.4 minutes
1930 ----- 2.0 minutes

For speedy service place your Long Distance telephone calls like this:—

1. Call "Long Distance" and when the operator answers—
2. Give her the name of the town or city you are calling.
3. Then give her the number of the telephone you wish to call.
4. If it is a "Person to Person" call give her the name of the person you are calling.
5. Then give your own telephone number.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess.)

FLIP LOSES HIS BREATH AND HIS TEMPER

The meddler's bound to fall from grace;
For such there is in life no place.
—Old Mother Nature.

Flip the Terrier had been so surprised by the appearance of Longfoot the Kangaroo Rat that for a minute or two he had remained motionless. Then it had come to him that though this stranger was wholly unlike any Rat he ever had seen, that though he was handsome, and that though he was minding his own business and bothering no one, he still was a Rat and he, Flip, was death on Rats. So, recovering from his surprise sufficiently to realize this, he made a rush at the stranger. It was then that Flip discovered what those long hind feet and legs of Longfoot were for. They shot him through the air in astonishing jumps and in a jiffy he had reached another hole and disappeared, as had all his friends.

Flip yelped with disappointment and rushed to the doorway. There he began to make the sand fly. There was more than one Rat inside that big mound he knew, for he could smell them.

"Never before did I see such Rats, but Rats are Rats and I am going to get these fellows or my name isn't Flip," muttered he as he dug furiously.

Pretty soon he had to stop to get his breath and blow the sand out of his nose. He listened with one ear cocked at the hole where he had been digging. There was a strange drumming sound coming from inside. Yes, sir, there was so. He could hear it plainly. He never had heard just such a sound before but he was sure that it was being made by one of these Rats. This angered him and he again began to dig furiously. He felt that that drumming was an insult, and no one should be allowed to insult him without paying for it.

This time he had to stop sooner to rest, get his breath and blow the sand out of his nose. The instant he did so he heard that drumming again inside that mound. It suggested that the drummer was angry, and this was the case. Longfoot was drumming with his long hind feet and he was doing it to express his anger. It is his way of expressing his feelings when disturbed or upset.

Again Flip dug as if his very life depended on it. He was making a big hole in the rather loose sand but he wasn't getting anywhere. Anyway, he wasn't getting anywhere so long as catching Longfoot was concerned. You see, Longfoot and his friends had a whole lot of underground passages leading in all directions and Flip might have just as well tried to catch a flea in a haystack. But he didn't know it and he wouldn't have believed it if he had been told. He was losing his breath, his temper and his common sense all at the same time.

And Flip was getting thirsty. This was thirsty work. When he stopped to rest his tongue hung out of his mouth as he panted for breath. It seemed to him that he would give almost anything for a drink. Then he would hear that drumming faintly underground and he would forget everything else.

By and by he failed to hear that drumming. He listened and listened but no drumming did he hear. This was because Longfoot and his friends had left that mound by an underground passage and Flip was digging for nothing at all. He didn't suspect this and kept on just as long as he could. At last, however, he just had to give up. He must get a drink and the only place to get one was back at the ranch. He was tired, his coat was filled with sand, he was so thirsty that his tongue seemed to be swollen, and he was panting as if he never would be able to get his breath. He was a most dejected little dog as he slowly made his way back to the ranch. He would have felt ever so much better if only he had caught a Rat. But he hadn't and, what is more, he had a suspicion that he hadn't come anywhere near catching one, and he never would be able to catch one by digging.

Meanwhile Longfoot and his friends were most indignant because their fine big mound had been dug open for nothing but mischief by this meddler.

FRESHEST GOODS KEPT IN STOCK

Wholesome Food Products, Fruits and Confections Stocked By Howden.

MINIMUM PRICES.

At the R. H. Howden Grocery you find only the most wholesome and nationally known lines of provisions. A fitting slogan for all people who wish to keep their food bill at the lowest possible figure is "Buy it at Howden's." In this day and age the modern grocery store is a 20th Century service station where a thousand and one articles can be obtained. Grocery stores operated on a smaller margin of profit than any other line of business and this grocery and food store sells at minimum prices. Mr. R. H. Howden turns over his stock many times a year, thus insuring only freshest goods on his shelves.

In addition to staple and fancy groceries, the Howden Grocery carries a full line of fruits and confections. There also you find choicest cooked and cured meats. It is a local concern, owned and operated by Mr. R. H. Howden. When you are next tempted to spend your money where it will go to develop distant cities, consider that money thus spent makes your own property less valuable. Money spent at home tends to create the community spirit, and a percentage of each dollar comes back to you in some form. The Howden Grocery is under able and efficient management; people who have spent a great deal of their lives in the grocery business. They see that their stocks are always replete with food supplies that every housewife asks for and needs. Nationally known brands are carried, together with those of local manufacture. If it can be had at all you will find it there.

At your first opportunity stop in and see this store. The housewife is always cordially invited to drop in, look over the stock and get acquainted at the R. H. Howden Grocery, whether she be buying or only shopping. Do you know how long Mr. R. H. Howden has rendered service to Peterborough?

$3.00 cash prize given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Seven in to-day's issue).

Lakefield

Mrs. Henderson, who has been visiting relatives in the village and the vicinity leaves this week for her home in Carberry, Man.

Mr. G. G. Hendren of North Monaghan was in the village on Monday.

Miss Eileen Brown has returned from Toronto, where she spent the past few weeks.

Mr. Wellington Manning has returned from a visit to friends in Hamilton and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. George Charlton attended the graduation exercises at St. Josehp's Hospital on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Burrows and family were in Peterborough on Wednesday attending the funeral of Mrs. Burrow's uncle, Mr. H. M. Moore.

Miss Thelma Hendren was in Peterborough on Tuesday evening attending the St. Joseph's graduation exercises.

The closing meeting for the season of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Cameron, editor of the Auxiliary News. The meeting was a good one and was very well attended. Plans were made for an open meeting in the fall. A donation was voted to Peterborough for relief work.

Owing to the downpour of rain and the thunderstorm on Wednesday afternoon the meeting of the Junior Institute to elect officers was postponed till Friday afternoon when it will follow the coaching class held in the Town Hall by Miss E. M. Hopkins of Lindsay.

GIRL GUIDES.

First Aid Study and Games at Marmora Are Order of Gathering.

1ST PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

The meeting of the 1st Peterborough Company of Girl Guides on Monday, May 11 at 6.30 p.m. as usual. The patrols lined up in formation for roll call and prayer. A few changes were made in the patrols, some having been too small. A second class test was then held which took form in a game where all girls had to walk the entire length of the room, balancing a flat piece of cardboard on their heads and bow down to the ground in front of two girls, taking the part of King George and Queen Mary. This game was very amusing and nearly all of the girls passed in this test.

Then a circle was formed by the girls and two flowers, the trillium and the violet, were shown and explained to the Guides, after which another enjoyable game was played.

An announcement was made that on Saturday afternoon, May 16, at 2.30, the company's field day would be held in the Central school grounds. All girls of this company who were not present at the meeting to hear of this, are invited to be present. Another notice was given that on Monday evening, May 18, some Guides would be enrolled and all the Guides are asked to be present. Taps was then sung and the company dismissed for home.

LEAGUE COUNCIL OPENS MONDAY

GENEVA, May 15 (By The Canadian Press). — The sixty-third session of the League of Nations Council opens at Geneva on Monday, May 18.

A number of important questions are already announced for the agenda. The British Foreign Minister has stated his intention to give notice of his wish to compatibility of the proposed economic agreement between Germany and Austria with Austria's treaty obligations, particularly under the Protocol drawn up in 1922 in connection with the Financial Reconstruction Loan.

The German Government has asked for the inclusion in the agenda of the "preparation of an international agreement for the publication of information with regard to civil aviation." The Draft Disarmament Convention contains a stipulation providing for the regular annual publication of information with regard to civil aviation of States parties to the convention. During the discussions in the Preparatory Commission, certain delegations proposed the conclusion of a special international agreement with regard to such publication, and it is with reference to this that the German Government has taken action.

The Council will also have on its agenda the consideration of the developments with regard to the minority situation in Upper Silesia, upon which it adopted a report at its last session.

HIGHWAY EAST IS REAL GOOD ROAD

Road Between Peterborough and Tweed Is In Excellent Condition.

HOLES FILLED IN.

Maintenance men on the new highway east of Peterborough have already made a good road of it from Peterborough all the way through to Tweed. It is still as tortuous as ever following its original turns and twists, but the torture of pits and ruts has been removed. One car that came from Deloro a few evenings ago made the trip in one hour and ten minutes, suggesting a speed that might be dangerous in some of the narrower sections of the highway east of Havelock.

Graders have filled in the holes and levelled the surface and traffic has helped to bind the top. Some of the maintenance crews are doing their work exceptionally well. The road west of Norwood is greatly improved, and east of the village to Havelock there has also been a real accomplishment in maintenance. In fact it might be said that the highway through Belmont township is one of the smoothest stretches between Peterborough and Tweed.

The work that is being done by the Department of Highways this Spring should remind motorists of the plea of Premier Henry for careful driving and consideration for others. Sections of the road east of Havelock are too narrow for bursts of speed by those who may be tempted to make up time. Automobile communication between Peterborough, Norwood, Havelock, Marmora and Madoc has been materially improved over the road conditions in the eastern links of this highway since last fall.

CHURCH BANQUET A BIG SUCCESS

Reports Read at May Meeting of George Street Church W. M. S.

ROUTINE BUSINESS.

The May meeting of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church was held in the Board Room of the Sunday school hall. The president, Mrs. C. Coon, presided and opened the meeting with prayer. The devotional exercises were in charge of group D. with Mrs. W. McMillan as leader. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Hatherley. Mrs. Wasson read a devotional leaflet. Miss Might, the corresponding secretary read a letter from the Bay of Quinte Conference, thanking the members for billeting the delegates at the time of the Branch meeting in St. Andrew's Church. Mrs. F. Mather, supply secretary, reported on the number of articles needed for the bale. Mrs. H. Dulmage gave the report of the Mother and Daughter Banquet which had proved very successful both financially and socially. Mrs. J. A. Spencer, general convenor, thanked all who had in any way assisted in making it such a success.

A very educational and interesting number on the program was entitled, "An 'Aeroplane Trip to Canadian Missions," given by Mesdames Coon, McMillian, Batten and Miss McCamus. Mrs. J. B. Nelson and Miss Pearl Carruthers rendered a pleasing vocal duet, 'A Bird Song at Eventide," accompanied by Mrs. D. Howat.

Mrs. W. H. Morton gave a very comprehensive address on Echoes from the Bay of Quinte Conference and W.M.S stressing some of the most important features of the conference.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. A. I. Brown.

A large electrical power station is to be built in Valparaiso, Chile.

Germany expects to receive large orders for products from Russia.

THE SON OF TARZAN No. 65 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Morison Baynes's thoughts were certainly upsetting him. This lovely creature riding by his side—he had seen climbing and swinging through the trees and actually conversing with grotesque baboons! Beautiful she was and very desirable; yet after all what did he really know of her? Before he realized it he had blurted out: "I saw you in the trees with the baboons!" "Yes?" laughed Meriem, "the baboons are among my very best friends."

And then, because she saw the horror that the man felt at her answer reflected in his face, Meriem rather enjoyed shocking him further. "Yes," she said. "I lived among the great apes for many years. I dwelt among the tree branches and hunted the lesser beasts. Korak brought me fruits and flesh. He fought for me and was kind to me." There was a wistful note in her voice. She had not thought of Korak a great deal of late.

For a time the two rode on through the deep night, both silently absorbed in their own reflections. The girl was thinking of a god-like figure in a leopard skin who came nimbly through the trees. Behind him, shaggy and powerful, swung a huge anthropoid ape, while she, Meriem, laughing and shouting her welcome, swung form a swaying limb before her sylvan bower. Ah, the happiness of those sunny days! The freedom! And, best of all, Korak!

The man's thoughts were rather jumbled. He suddenly realized he had come mighty close to falling hopelessly in love with this girl who had voluntarily told him just now her weird story. And he had been about to offer her his honorable name A girl who by her own admission had lived among the apes! The Hon. Morison Baynes trembled at the narrowness of his escape. Yes, he loved her. Perhaps though, he would not have to propose.

TWO CHIMNEY FIRES

Two calls came in for chimney fires late yesterday afternoon. At 4.07 an alarm came in from 631 George street, and this was followed by another at 5.40, when a chimney started to burn at 539 Rogers street. Both fires were extinguished with foamite, and losses through fire are negligible.

KIWANIANS HEAR

of Kiwanis for Eastern Canada, and Kiwanian Dr. J. J. Craig, having just returned from the International Convention at Miami, brought to the club tanned smiles and maany cigars, which were secured on a visit to Havana and which they distributed to the club members with rare generosity.

The meeting was largely attended. Among the guests were His Honor Judge Huycke and Magistrate Langley.

In his address, Judge O'Connor said that Canada was one of the few countries which had a Combines Investigation Act, no such act existing in Great Britain, United States or Germany. In most cases, the defence offered in trials under the act sets forth that Canada has no jurisdiction over combines, but the act has been upheld by the Supreme Court of Canada and also by the Privy Council.

Price-fixing, he said, was one of the most frequent evils of combines. Prices should be reasonable to the purchaser, while allowing the manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer a fair profit above their overhead. Judge O'Connor stated that often business is forced to fix prices in order to protect itself. "As long as it does not tread on the toes of the public or harm the competitors there is no harm in price fixing under the Combines Act," he stated.

Price cutting was another evil which forced the merchants into combines in order to survive, he said. In larger cities it seemed to-day that merchandising had gone mad in a supreme effort to cut prices so that there remained no legitimate profit for anyone. "There is always some ulterior motive in this price-cutting. No one is out to make the public a present," Judge O'Connor declared.

Through such price-cutting, the buying public loses faith in the merchant and also in the goods he is selling, and the manufacturer suffers.

J. J. Turner was booster for Tom Mark, manager of the Manufacturer's Life.

Two Leaders Clash Over Ferguson, Massey

OLD INCIDENTS ARE RAKED OVER FOR HOT DEBATE

King Charges Bennett Put Thumb Screws on Massey, Forcing Resignation.

ESTIMATES AT STANDSTILL.

Accusations Hurled Across Floor on One Occasion Are Withdrawn by Both.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 17.—(CP)—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in Great Britain, was the central figure in a three hour debate in the House of Commons yesterday that at times bordered on being one of the most acrimonous of the session. Premier R. B. Bennett and Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Opposition leader, reviewed many incidents antedating and following the former Ontario's Premier's appointment to the London Post.

The one attacking and the other defending.

Estimates for the High Commissioner's officer were before the House at the time but they did not pass. It was imperative declared Mr. Bennett, that a man occupy the High Commissionership who held the confidence of the Government and who acquiesced in its aims and policies. For that reason, Hon. Vincent Massey, who was transferred from Washington, to London by the former administration, was not retained after the change in Governments.

Quotes From Reports

What being the case, asked Mr. King, did Mr. Ferguson reflect in his speeches the spirit and policies of the present Government? The Liberal Leader quoted press reports of of a speech attributed to the High Commissioner in which he said he was going to London not to sell wheat but to do what he could to remould and revive the spirit of the British people. British traditions, he was represented as saying, had broken down and the patriotic fervor of the people was missing.

The House was somewhat tense as Mr. King paused after reading one or more sentences of the speech and asked Mr. Bennett if this were a true reflection of the policies of the Government. No answer came from across the floor. The Liberal Leader proceeded for several paragraphs in the same manner, but the Prime Minister remained silent.

He (Mr. Ferguson) needs no defence from my hands, declared Mr. Bennett, later in the discussion. The principal difficulty of honorable gentlemen opposite is that he contributed something to their discomfiture on a number of occasions. I think he is rendering a great and useful service."

Details of the functions of the new tariff board were announced by Premier Bennett and a bill to establish it was given first reading. The board will consist of three members and, in addition to inquiring into tariff matters will take over administration of the Combines Investigation Act. It

FORT DEARBORN READY FOR FAIR

Little Cluster of Buildings Once Nearly All of Chicago is Dedicated.

BUILT TO SCALE.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 16 (C.P.). — A little cluster of buildings that was once nearly all of Chicago, old Fort Dearborn reconstructed on the lake front, was dedicated to-day as the first exhibit of the 1933 World's Fair.

The garrison that was destroyed after the famous massacre of 1812 had risen again to become a cherished bit of history in the midst of all the brilliant modernis that is to be the "Century of Progress Exposition."

In the ambitious plan of the fair management, the reproduction of the garrison erected in 1803 becomes comparatively insignificant. On the architects' model of the completed exposition the fort is about the smallest thing on the spacious grounds.

It was built exactly to scale Logs were shipped from Northern Wisconsin and old north woodsmen came down to teach the workmen how to cut and fit them. What little hardware was used was all hand-forged; shingles were made by hand.

Kaye Don Attempts Break Own Record

GARDONE, Italy, May 1 (A.P.)—Kaye Don, British holder of the world's motorboat speed record, reached a speed of 90.639 miles per hour on a mile run in his Miss England II to-day, but he failed to break his own world's record of 103.72.

On a second attempt he fell to 86.71 and abandoned any further attempt until to-morrow morning.

CONVICT ESCAPES IN FRIENDS' AUTO

Harry Mowat Dashes From Gang at Ontario Reformatory and Disappears.

POLICE ELUDED.

GUELPH, Ont., May 16. (CP)—Carried away in a large sedan which confederates drove to a point within a few yards of where he was working, Harry Mowat, 27, of Toronto escaped from the Ontario Reformatory to-day, and so far has eluded capture. The machine in which he was picked up was maroon colored, and police of many centres have been warned to watch for it. The car pulled up near where a gang was working on landscape gardening and Mowat, as soon as he saw it, broke into a run and reached the automobile in a few seconds. He jumped in, and the machine started off at high speed towards Guelph. He was convicted in Toronto on a theft charge last November, and is said to have a record of about nine convictions.

CHINESE TAKEN IN POLICE RAID

Six Prisoners Are Claimed to be Imported "Terrorists" For Laundry Strike.

KILLING WORTH $1,500.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 16.—Six Chinese, who police said had been imported as "terrorists" n a Chnese laundry strike here, were arrested in a raid early to-day. Several guns and a quantity of ammunition were seized.

After examining confiscated papers police announced they had forestalled the first excursion of the gunmen for which they were to be ad $1,500 for each non-union laundry worker or proprietor killed.

The laundry strike has been in progress here for several weeks, Chinese workers seeking among other things, shorter hours, more pay and weekly days off.

SUICIDE CLUB IS UNCOVERED ON LONG ISLAND

Tale Told By Spinster Starts Police Acting to Prevent Continuance.

WOMAN HELD FOR MURDER.

Cult Meets Every Sunday Night to Decide Who Dies Next.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 16.—Acting on a spinster's tale of a "suicide club" with 26 living members, the law machinery of two long island counties was set in motion today to avert what some detectives believe may be series of suicides.

District Attorney Edwards of Nassau and Blue of Suffolk, with a score of detectives, investigated a theory that three members of th cult of elderly, ailing persons took their lives in accordance with a ritual.

The supposed cult was described yesterday when Miss Louise Schwarz, 59, told of the death of her brother, Edward, 55, who was found shot in his home at West Amityville last Wednesday. She has been indicted for second degree murder in connection with the shooting.

Four Dead

"Every Sunday night," she said, "we meet at the home of a member to pray that one of us would be cured of our feebleness. There was 30 members. Four of them are dead. not receptive to our prayers, he was not receiptive to our prayers; he was bound to commit suicide. If he failed to end his own life before the next meeting, he was to be slain by a chosen member of the cult.

"On April 26 we met at the home of George Breitenbach, 59, who lived near us. He was not receptive."

The next day the body of George Breitenbach, was found hanging in the cellar of his home, authorities said. They would not disclose any other names of alleged members of the cult, living or dead.

Last Sunday, Miss Schwarz was quoted as saying, the club met and prayed for her brother. Because medical examiners said he could not have shot himself, she is accused of the slaying.

Arraigned today Miss Schwarz pleaded not guilty.

DIES IN HER 101ST YEAR

OWEN SOUND, Ont., May 16 (C.P.)—Mrs. Elizabeth White, Owen Sound's oldest inhabitant, died early to-day in her 101st year. The late Mrs. White was a highly esteemed member of this city's colored community and came to this district from Peel County about seventy years ago. She was born in Peel County on March 8, 1831, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Eddy. One sister, Mrs. Maggie Rex, is living in Toledo, Ohio. One son and three daughters also survive.

ELABORATE CEREMONY ATTENDS TONSORIAL OPERATION IN SPAIN

Dress Customers in Gold Braid, Robes and Call in Whole Staff.

ALL FOR 34 CENTS.

By GORDON A SINCLAIR

ALGECIRAS, Spain, April 14.—The routine job of having a shave and hair cut becomes a regal ceremony when the business is done right in Spain. They start off by decking you out like someone about to be made Supreme High Poo Bah or Royal and Exalted Kingfish. They finish uy by calling the staff to attention while you make a royal departure. It's lots of fun.

I bought myself a ticket for Cadiz today, climbed on the boat to Algeciras and expected to be far inland by noon. This was because I foolishly believed what the ticket said that, "busses connect with all steamers and leave at once." They don't. They leave when the driver jolly well feels like leaving, but I'm hoping to be out of the trenches by Christmas.

Dogs With Rabies Bite 12 People

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 16.—Twelve persons were bitten yesterday by three dogs which later were captured and found to be infected with rabies.

The injuries followed the death of Viola Shashine, 14, from a dog bite three weeks ago, and brought a statement from Dr. George Parrish, City Health Officer, that a "serious situation exists."

The victims were given the Pasteur treatment.

Ex-Speaker's Conduct Subject Of Question

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16. (CP) — Questions whether certain pieces of furniture, the property of the state, had been transported to the summer residence of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, and if so whether same has been returned to the state have been placed on the order paper of the House of Commons. Further queries whether Senator Lemieux when speaker of the house was authorized to use the automobile belonging to the state for the use of his family have likewise been placed on the order paper. Enquiries are also made regarding the servants employed at the home of the former speaker were paid by the state.

"Reds" Honor Lenin on May Day

In solid phalanx and martial array, with bands blaring and crimson banners waving, thousands of the soldiery and citizenry of the Soviet Republic assembled in Red Square in Moscow on May Day to observe the annual day of celebration of Communism. Lenin's impressive tomb can be seen in the left background with the hordes of the Red Empire surrounding it at stiff attention.

Child's Prank is Believed to Have Been Cause of Railroad Wreck—One Killed

CINCINNATI, O., May 16 (C.P.). — A child's prank was believed by Big Four Railroad officials to-day to have caused the derailment of a locomotive late yesterday, killing an aged woman and injuring five persons, none of them passengers.

Investigators said the engine of passenger train No. 124, en route from Cincinnati to Columbus, left the track when it struck a spike which probably had been placed on the rails by some thoughtless child. The speeding locomotive crashed into a home at Lockland, near here, killing Mrs. Rose Earhart, 76, as she sat eating her evening meal. Her husband, Frank, 77, suffered a broken arm.

BRIAND, CURTIUS CLASH AT GENEVA

French Statesman Refuses to Agree to Austro-German Customs Accord.

MEANS "TROUBLE."

GENEVA, May 16 (A.P.)—Julius Curtius, German Foreign Minister, and Aristide Briand clashed to-day over the proposed Austro-German custom accord as the Commission on European Federation resumed its sessions.

The German Minister, in a general discussion of the economic situation in Europe, praised bilateral and regional customs agreements as the best remedy for the prevailing economic distress. Briand declared that such a union as Germany and Austri propose means "trouble for the peoples," and should be avoided.

The customs issue is not the whole of the economic problem, said Briand, and it is a result, not a cause, of the present economic distress.

"Let us not abandon our efforts for a general tariff agreement," he said, "perhaps our efforts thus far have been to ambitious, too wide in scope. The French Government's new proposals on this subject will be presented for full discussion in due course. At any rate we must not attempt what it is forbidden to attempt."

Briand concluded with the assertion that he could not agree to the Austro-German proposal.

Herr Curtius retorted that he had not mentioned the Austro-German proposal specifically and that it was his understanding that the subject was reserved for discussion before the League of Nations council on Monday.

"Monsieur Briand has declared this plan for a customs Union forbidden, he said. "It is not the business of this commission to decide that. That is a point for the League council to consider."

The dispute was ended by an adjournment until later in the afternoon and it was not thought likely that it would be resumed before this commission.

Curtius and Briand were the only speakers to-day.

FAVOR REDUCING JAPANESE ARMY

TOKYO, May 16 (A.P.)—Reduction of the Japanese army by three divisions, abolition of various military institutions, and amalgamation of a number of military schools will be recommanded to the Government by leaders of the Government party with a view to reducing army expenditure.

Cat Being Blamed For Starting Fire

LONDON, Ont., May 16 (C.P.).—When a cat upset an oil stove last night, Mrs. A. De Groat, Horton Street, was driven from her home by flames for the second time in five weeks. Last night she and her sister-in-law and child escaped in scanty attire.

On April 7, when she lived in East London, her home was gutted by fire that started in the kitchen.

FREDERICKS CASE DRAWS NEAR END

Prisoner Charged With Murder of Two Companions Near Trembleau Lake.

POLICE FIND BODIES.

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C., May 16.—(CP)—The case of the crown in the trial of Carl Fredericks charged with the murder of Herman Peters and Max Westphal at the east end of Trembleau Lake last June, neared completion Friday night, and it was intimated the case may be given to the jury to-day.

The mutilated bodies of Peters and Westphal were recovered in a shallow and sand grave last November near a spot where the three men were thought to have camped together last June. Evidence against Fredericks largely circumstantial in character, and presented by Indians of the district is that the three men went into the Trembles Lake district together, and that later Fredericks appeared alone, stating he was ill and was heading for civilization for hospital treatment. He said according to the Indians, that he left his companions in the north country.

Fredericks made his way to Vanderhoof, bought a railway ticket to Edmonton and evidently disappeared. The Indians became uneasy at the long absence of Peters and Westphal and finally notified provincial police. The latter investigated and November 15, last found the bodies.

Fredericks was located and arrested at Moon Lake, Alta., on November 20.

TWO AIRMEN KILLED.

STOCKHOLM, May 16.—(A.P.)—Two Swedish army coroprals were killed and Sergeant A. Stevenson, a member of the Nobile Relief Expedition in 1928, received injuries which probably will be fatal when their airplane crashed at Vesteraas to-day.

FERGUSON GIVES OUTLINE OF AIMS AT GRAIN PARLEY

Claims Object is Not to Seek to Exploit Consuming Nations in Any Way.

Conference Opens Monday.

Main Problems Are Overhanging Surplus Stocks and Merchandizing in Future.

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
C. P. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, May 16.—"The object of the conference is not to seek to exploit consuming nations in any way whatever," declared Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, High Commissioner for Canada, when interviewed today on the eve of the opening of wheat conference of exporting countries here Monday next.

"Our object," continued Mr. Ferguson "is entirely to explore the possibility of methods of relieving the most unusual and abnormal situation that has arisen in the agricultural industry as the result of which wheat is selling very much below the cost of production. That not only affects the farmer adversely and seriously but by reducing his purchasing power it affects all business and has a very demoralizing effect on trade and industry generally."

Two Official Languages

Eleven wheat exporting countries will be represented when the conference opens in Canada House Monday. Two official languages, French and English, will be used. Several

FUEL PUMP BREAKS ON CRAFT, PILOT LANDING IN ROUGH FIELD SMASHES INTO CLUMP OF TREES

Woman Passenger of Four on Board, Proves to be the Only Casualty.

HAS NOSE CUT.

One of Party Was Bearing Invitation to Cleveland Air Meet for Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 16.—Forced down by a broken fuel pump a large Lockeed-Vega plane, flying from Cleveland to Hamilton was badly cracked up on landing in a field two miles east of Vineland between this city and Niagara Falls, today.

Pilot C. W. Meyers was in charge of the craft, and in the plane with him were James L. Hubbell, Mrs. Hubbell and Carl Brookins, all of Cleveland. Although the plane was a complete wreck, Mrs. Hubbell who suffered an abrasion to her nose, was the only casualty, the others escaping even a serious shaking up.

The plane is a very speedy type, and when the trouble developed in the fuel pump, Pilot Myers was forced to choose a landing place in a hurry. He selected a field about one mile east of Vineland but the craft hit the ground with such velocity that it was soon so wrenched and battered as to be almost a total loss, being stopped by trees.

Passengers Dazed

The passengers struggled from the cabin, slightly dazed by their experience, but little the worse for the thrilling landing.

The plane is a single motored cabin-type aeroplane of considerable size.

Myers is a pilot of long standing, being one of the N. C. 4 pilots on the around-the-world flight of 1919.

Mr. Hubbel was bearing an official invitation from the National Air Races Association of Cleveland to the convention here to attend the air meet in that city of September 1, 2 and 3 of this year. The plane was owned by the Goodrich Company and was known as the Miss Silvertown test plane number three.

Big Opium Haul Made in Belgium

BRUSSELS, May 16 (C.P.). — Four big boxes containing 1 600 pounds of opium sent from Istanbul by way of Holland to Belgium, destined for Paris, were seized by the police at Antwerp to-day. It was the largest quantity of the drug ever discovered here. The boxes were labelled as containing dried fruit.

HON. J. S. MARTIN IS LAID TO REST AT PORT DOVER

Members of Ontario Cabinet Act as Honorary Pallbearers.

PRIVATE SERVICE FIRST.

Masons From Many Lodges Form Guard of Honor for Cortege.

BRANTFORD, Ont., May 16 (C.P.). — Port Dover to-day honored in death its leading citizen, John S. Martin, many years ago principal of the Public School there, later chicken fancier, who later became known as the "White Wyandotte King of America." And still later a Minister of Agriculture for Ontario and Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons.

Business places closed early this afternoon when a private service was held at the Martin home crowning the hill east of Silver Lake Port Dover. Then the remains of the beloved native son were taken to St. Paul's Church.

Honorary Pall-bearers.

The honorary pall-bearers for the funeral services to-day were four members of the Ontario Cabinet, fellow-Ministers when he was a member, Hon. G. S. Henry, now Premier, Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, Hon W. H Price, Attorney-General, and Hon. T. L. Kennedy, his successor as Minister of Agriculture. The other two honorary pall-bearers were two old personal friends, William C. Noxon, Agent-General for Ontario in Great Britain, and W. Bert Roadhouse, chairman of the Ontario Agricultural Board, and former Deputy-Minister of Agriculture.

The Cabinet had additional representation in Hon. Leopold Macaulay, Provincial Secretary; Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare; Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb Minister of Health; Hon. Dr. J. D. Monteith Minister of Labor; Hon. J. R. Cook, Minister without Portfolio.

Brantford Masons in large numbers attended the funeral, as he was intimately connected with masonry in this district even before his elevation to the highest post in Masonry.

BICYCLE SHOP IS BROKEN INTO

Rifled Cash Register and Stole 32 Calibre Revolver From Carl Simpson.

DANCING UPSTAIRS.

While dancers made merry in the Paragon Hall last night Karl Simpson's bicycle repair shop, below and to the rear of the same building, was burglarized.

The robbers broke in the rear door of the bicycle shop leading off the stairway to the dance hall, using their bodies to break open the door. They rifled the cash register of more than two dollars in cash, and among other things stole a 32-calibre revolver, fully loaded.

The burglary is thought to have been made between 11 and 12 o'clock A clerk working in the confectionery store on the ground floor heard the noise of the door being broken in, but thought it was merely some of the dancers coming downstairs, and paid no attention to it.

INDIAN GETS PILOT'S LICENSE

200,000 PICKEREL FRY DEPOSITED IN CANAL BY LOCAL ASSOCIATION

20,000 Brown Trout Fingerlings Being Put in Eagle Lake.

KEEP WATERS STOCKED.

Two hundred thousand pickerel fry were deposited in the canal north of Smith street this morning, and twenty thousand brown trout fingerlings were expected this afternoon with Eagle Lake as their destiny. In this re-stocking of local waters it was recently reported that a large number of brook trout were placed in several streams around Bethany and Dranoel.

"We put the pickerel in the canal because they are quite small, and if they were dumped in the river a lot of them might be destroyed going over dams" J. W. Gravestock, president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association told The Examiner to-day. "From Smith Street the canal is open all the way to Nassau. That provides a long stretch of calm water in which the fry will have a chance to develop."

Mr. Gravestock said that the 20,000 five-inch brown trout were expected to be taken to Eagle Lake because that water is presumably protected although it is believed that no game warden has been appoint-

Entombed Miners Rescued To-day

CLEARFIELD, Pa., May 16. — (C.P.) — Seven young men and boys who were imprisoned for ten hours in a coal mine here were rescued this morning. None of them was injured.

The youths were caught behind a fall of slated mine late yesterday, and rescuers worked last night and early this morning to free them.

Broken Back Fatal To Young Motorist

OWEN SOUND, Ont., May 16 (CP) Thomas Lundy 21, died at the Bruce county hospital in Walkerton last night as the result of a broken back sustained in a motor accident which occurred early yesterday a short distance outside the town.

Harry, a brother is also in the hospital but is not seriously injured. The car went into the ditch as they tried to pass another car and was overturned. Dr. H. G. Joyce will conduct an inquest.

7-Pound Baby is Born in Taxicab ?

TORONTO, Ont., May 16 (C.P.)—Babies are born in railway trains, on steamers, in airplanes and in many other unusual places, but Toronto to-day can report an infant born in a taxi-cab. The incident occurred early to-day when Mrs. F. Senali became the mother of a 7-pound baby boy, while en route to the hospital.

The baby and mother are both reported as "doing well," at a local hospital.

CAMPBELLFORD TAX RATE LESS BY TWO MILLS

Rate Lowered at Special Meeting of Town Council Last Night.

PAY 50 MILLS.

J. D. Cummings Appointed as Collector—Police Agreement Discussed.

CAMPBELLFORD May 16. (By Examiner Staff Corresdondent). The tax payers of Campbellford will be lowered two mills on their rate for 1931, the rate being struck last evening at a special meeting of the council at fifty mills. Last year the figure was fifty-two mills. This total is made up of the following rates: County, 8.1; High School debentures, 5.5; town debentures 20.1; ublic and Separate schools, 11; High School, 1; Electric Light, 2.7; Town rate, 1.6; Total, 50. mills.

All members were present at the meeting which was held in the clerk's office, Mayor J. M. Bygott presiding.

The 1931 budget was presented to the council by Deputy Reeve N. Alex MacColl, this being the report of the Financial Committee, of which he is chairman.

The Budget

Receipts: Balance on hand, $404.-36; tax arrears, 5,500.00; 1931 taxes, 77,171.78; dog tax, 380.00; railway taxes, 75.00; grant from Water and Light Commission, 15,000.00; rents, 356.00; licenses 600.00; Water and Light Commission, re debenture, 4,-130.68; fines, 1,000.00; Misscc., 250.00; Seymour High School debenture, 435.80; W. J. Hall, costs, 150.00; ratepayers share of local improvements, 10,061.39. Total, $115,394.08. # Mrs. Snowden Denies All Peerage Rumors

LONDON, May 16 (C.P.. — Reports that Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, would be given a peerage were termed "pure fabrication" to-day by Mrs. Snowden.

He is not contemplating resigning either, the Chancellor's wife declared "The Chancellor has practically recovered all of his lost ground and I am glad to tell you that he has got back the use of his leg."

The Chancellor, however, is still taking it easy and it is not likely he will resume his full activity for some time yet, it was indicated at eleven Downing Street this morning.

WILL REBUILD TWEED PLANT

Reconstruction Work on Tweed Milling Company Will Be Proceeded With as Rapidly as Possible.

PLANS PREPARED.

TWEED, May 16.—Harold Purdy of the Tweed Milling Company whose elevator and mill was completely destroyed by fire on April 22 informs The Examiner that reconstruction will be proceeded with as rapidly as possible. Plans and blueprints have been prepared, the debris of the old mill is being cleared away, and the building of the new mill will be undertaken at once. It will be practically as big as the old one, although the elevator space may be somewhat less.

The company owns the water power at the dam beside the mill site from which it uses 150 h.p. The company's business extends over a broad section from Denby on the north to Mountain Grove and Enterprise on the east, Ivanhoe on the west and almost as far south as Belleville. Estimating the value of the old mill, Mr. Purdy said that he and his father would not have taken $50,000 for it, and this amount indicates the probable expenditure on the new building, although this outlay may be exceeded.

MAJOR J. M. BYGOTT PRESENTED MEDAL

Colonial Decoration is Awarded to Officer for 20 Years' Service in Militia.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—A very pleasing ceremony was held on Thursday evening at Colborne when, at a meeting and dinner of the Northumberland Regiment, Major J. M. Bygott was presented with a Colonial Medal by the Honorary Colonel of the Regiment, Col. R. E. Birdsall. In making the presentation, Col. Birdsall stated that the striking of this medal, which is awarded to officers who have completed twenty years' service in the Militia, was one of the last acts of the late Queen Victoria. Accompanying Major Bygott to Colborne were J. D. McEachern, G. H. Free and Alex. McColl.

Peter Veregin Leader of Community Group Lays Blame on Sons of Freedom.

CLAIMS HE WANTS PEACE.

Offers Sect 2,200 Acres, With Houses, at Crestovia if They Will Move.

NELSON, B. C., May 16. — (CP)—An ultimatum that the Doukhobors must stop defying the law, and warning that the Government would not stand for further outrages, was delivered yesterday by Inspector W. R. Dinwoody of the British Columbia Police to thousands of Doukhobors, both Community and Sons of Freedom, who gathered at Thrums to hear him.

The open air meeting was featured by an offer of Peter Veregin, leader of the Community Doukhobors, of 2,200 acres of land, houses, building and schools at Crestovia, in the Slocan Valley, to the Sons of Freedom if they would settle there in peace.

Will Pay Off Debts

He offered to pay off the existing debt against this land, and declared that while only 400 Sons of Freedom would settle on it, there was enough land to support 1,000 people. He declared he would move his own people from the Crestovia territory.

Veregin delivered a lengthy speech in which he blamed the Sons of Freedom for recent atrocities among the Doukhobors. He stated he would meet them halfway if they would live in peace. Their plan, he declared, was to arouse the people against him so he would be deported. Mr. Veregin declared he caught several culprits after recent outrages, but that police had freed them. Lack of evidence led the police to do this, it was stated later.

Issues Warning

The Doukhobor leader also addressed his followers, present from all over the district, and warned them against the Sons of Freedom and their ways. He declared if these people could be kept to themselves they could do as they liked and pray as they liked. The community, he stated, wished to pay taxes, debts and live peacefully. They wished education for their children and no molestation of women and property. This the Sons of Freedom would not agree to.

Sons of Freedom when called upon spoke mostly along religious lines and refused to commit themselves to any agreement. Friday morning several cases of disrobing among the sons was reported, but these occurred well away from the public highway. Ten provincial constables were present while the meeting was in progress, but they were not needed.

The Chamber of Commerce Committees and Staff do the work. They are the machinery maintained to do these things which individual citizens would otherwise be compelled to do at a sacrifice to their personal business.

DIVORCE ACTIONS SUPREME COURT

Non-Jury Sitting Will Open at Cobourg Before Mr. Justice Garrow.

TEN CASES ON LIST.

Three divorce actions and one for alimony are listed for trial at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario which opens at Cobourg on Monday before Mr. Justice Garrow.

David Archer, a Cartwright township farmer, is the plaintiff in one case in which Ernest Carveth, a motorcar salesman residing near Millbrook, is named as co-respondent.

Archibald Cochrane of Cobourg is plaintiff's solicitor, and J. A. O'Brien of Peterborough is solicitor for Mr. Carveth.

Harold Kincaid of Cavan township is seeking dissolution of his marriage to Laura Kincaid. In this action Sidney McLaren is mentioned as co-respondent. Gordon and Elliott of Peterborough are solictors for the plaintiff and Hall, Hall and Stevenson are listed on the docket as representing the defendant.

In the third case Clara Edith Clark, Hamilton township is applying for a divorce from her husband Samuel Clark. The plaintiff was married to the defendant in 1907 and alleges that he deserted her and married Carrie Greer Clark residing in Port Hope since 1930.

The court list comprises ten cases.

Program Is Ready For Officials' Visit

LONDON, May 16 (C.P.). — The program has been virtually completed for the visit next month of the German officials, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius.

First news of the proposed visit recently caused great interest in European countries. Official circles in discussing the visit confine themselves to saying that questions to be discussed will be "subject of mutual interet."

Observers, however, assert with some confidence that the proposed Austro-German customs union will play a large part in the discussions, and that the entire question of disarmament will be thoroughly reviewed preparatory to next year's Geneva meeting.

The German statesmen will arrive in London on Friday, June 5, and will be entertained that evening at a banquet at the Foreign Office.

Alfonso Is Angered At Spanish Reports

PARIS, May 16 (C.P.). — The Continental edition of the London Mail in a despatch from Fontainbleu to-day represented former King Alfonso as greatly annoyed at reports from Madrid that he had used his royal office to augment his personal fortunes.

He is said to contend that the bulk of his personal fortune was derived from economies made years ago by the late Queen-Mother, Maria Cristina. It was said to be not more than 30,000,000 pesetas (present exchange value $3,000,000), which when Alfonso left Spain, was invested principally in Spanish utilities.

COURTAULD TIRED OF EXPEDITIONS

Returning Home From Greenland on First Danish Steamer.

RESCUERS RETURNING.

ANGMAGSALIK, Greenland, May 16. (CP) — Augustine Courtauld, youthful British explorer who recently was rescued after a winter spent on the ice-cap, declared to-day that he was tired of Greenland expeditions and was returning home on the first Danish ship.

He will probably sail aboard the Gertrude Rash which leaves for Copenhagen in a few weeks.

Captain Albin Ahrenberg, who participated in one of the expeditions sent out to take Courtauld from his winter home on the ice-cap, was eager to-day to start his return for Sweden, but could not get the pontoons to his plane fixed in time. Working conditions and assistance at Angmagsalik are of the most primitive character, and it is very difficult to handle an aeroplane in the far northern climate.

The plane must be hauled from its shed by dogs and the intense cold makes necessary advance heating with a blow lamp. Formation of ice on the wings of the aeroplane also constitutes a grave danger and landing on the crystal hard ice is also a very serious matter because resiliency of the machine is tested to a breaking point.

Heavy fogs which hang over the water between Greenland and Iceland, the next stop, on his route home may delay him further.

Public Welfare Work Is Depicted By Martin

MONTREAL, Que., May 16 (C.P.). —Not by the erratic rule of the thumb of an earlier epoch, but by all means that modern science can provide, Ontario is meeting the problems of public welfare, Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare in Ontario, told the Montreal Social Workers' Club last night.

Mr. Martin began with a comprehensive sketch of the work done by the Ross Committee, headed by P. D. Ross, of Ottawa, lauding the accomplishments in many departments of social life and public welfare In Ontario, he said, crippled children as well as those who have suffered disabilities in some form or another are being looked after as never before.

FIRE HITS CAMP NEAR IVANHOE LOSS IS $4,500

Morning Blaze Destroys Fourteen Cottages, Their Contents and Library.

ORIGIN A MYSTERY.

Madoc and Volunteer Brigades of Little Use—On Standard Church Grounds.

(Examiner Correspondence)

IVANHOE, May 16. — Flames of mysterious origin broke out in a cottage belonging to the late A. B. Reid on the Standard Church Camp ground, just east of Ivanhoe station at 8 o'clock Friday morning.

By the time an alarm was given by Mr. A. Graham the fire had already gained a good start as there was a strong wind.

The men formed a bucket brigade till the Madoc Fire Brigade arrived on the scene. Despite their efforts fourteen cottages, their contents and the Library was burned.

The Tabernacle and four cottages to the south were saved. The damage is estimated at $4,500. As far as can be ascertained there was no insurance.

It is thought one of the cottages had been occupied through the night by tramps as four men had been seen on the track late on the preceding evening.

Blackburn Appointed Head Of Toronto Jail

TORONTO, Ont., May 16. (CP) — Clifford E. Blackburn, former Alderman of this city and prominent in Conservative party circles here has been reported slated to succeed Major G. Hadley Basher as Governor of the Toronto jail.

Attorney-General W. H. Price intimated in a speech here last night Blackburn would probably be appointed to the position. Basher has been transferred to the municipal farm at Langstaff.

CAR OVERTURNS IN DEEP DITCH

Several Occupants Suffer Minor Injuries in Accident Near Norwood.

RETURNING FROM HAVELOCK

While returning from Havelock last night, one of the cars which took members of the cast of "Martha" to give a performance in Knox Presbyterian Church, overturned in a deep ditch about half a mile from Norwood, causing minor injuries to several of the occupants.

The car was driven by John Hill, who had a part in the production of the romantic opera which was presented here last Friday evening at the Grand Opera House, under auspices of the choir and Men's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Other members of the cast in the car were Miss Margaret Reid, who was badly cut about the face and had to be taken back to Norwood; Miss Grace Thompson, who escaped with a severe shaking up; Harold Coulson and Horace Hope, both of whom were cut about the face. Mr. Hill had severe lacerations on both cheeks, his forehead and his ear, and also hurt his side.

The car, which gave a lot of trouble on the road down owing to brake binding, turned over in the ditch and was righted with considerable difficulty. The glass of the windshield and front windows was smashed, the doors were sprung and the top was cut almost to pieces. Driven by Hurrell Dodds, it limped into the city, with another car close in the rear.

Miss Reid, the most seriously injured of the party, has returned to her home on George street. Two stitches were taken in the cut in her forehead and her arms were severely bruised.

POLICE SEEKING TWO SWINDLERS

Former Tonsorial Artist and Associates Sought in $5,000,000 Fraud.

DEFRAUD LONDON FIRM.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 16.—A former tonsorial artist was sought to-day by United States agents and detectives for the British Government in connection with an alleged stock swindle in Great Britain, which may involve a total close to $5,000,000.

John Factor, known as "Jake the Barber," when he conducted a cut-rate barber shop in Halstead street, was the man. The officers were also seeking his companion, Harry Green, also known as Geen. The wanted men were accused of fleecing thousands of middle class investors in Great Britain through high pressure salesmanship of fraudulent stock shares.

A third man, alleged to have been involved with them, was reported under arrest in New York. His name was given as Harry Kline.

The specific complaints against Factor, alleged that he and his associates defrauded the firm of the Board Street Press, Ltd., of approximately $2,500,000. They were signed by Godfrey Haggard, British Consul in Chicago, who declined to discuss the case.

American talkies now lead in popularity in Rumania.

CADET INSPECTION SMART EVENT AT LAKEFIELD AND GROVE SCHOOLS

Both Corps Highly Commended on Performance by Maj. Cartmer, Kingston.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS.

LAKEFIELD, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Thursday morning at ten o'clock Major Cartmer, ordnance and ammunition officer of Kingston, inspected the High School Cadet Corps. The inspection took place on the new playing field, which is admirably suited for such an event, and is a valuable addition to the school property. The weather was ideal and there was a large attendance of parents and friends of the school.

Warden Tanner represented the Municipal Council and the School Board was represented by the chairman, J. W. Ridpath, and Rev T. M. Wesley, Dr. F. H. Lingwood, Dr. J. C. Smith, Mr. T. W. Chaplin principal of the Public School is the Cadet instructor, and is a capable and painstaking officer. The corps numbered 71 and was captained by Dominick White, with Robert Nicholls, Clifford Hurl, Vincent Graham, HHugh Morrison, and Roger Wannamaker the company leaders, with Hugh Morrison second in command and conducting the physical training.

The school does not yet boast of a bugle band or even a bugler, but Jack Hendren, the drummer, was of great assistance in the marching. The marching was good and the company drill was also a creditable performance. The physical drill was better than usual and was much enjoyed by the spectators.

Medals Presented.

Following the drill the corps formed up opposite the saluting base, which was marked by the Cadet flag, and Major Cartmer presented the medals and cups won by the boys in shooting.

The Strathcona medal was won by Percy Marsden, the silver cup for being the best shot in the Public School was won by Sherman Hill,

CANBERRA, Australia, May 16. — (C.P.)—The Government of the Commonwealth of Australia fully recognizes the importance of the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa, Canada, next August, declared Senator Barnes, one of Premier Scullin's assistant Ministers, in the course of a statement to-day Senator Barnes added the Australian Government would be adequately represented at the conference.

SEARCH FAILS TO REVEAL BODY

Fear Remains of Marmora Lad Are Caught on Bottom in Eddy.

MARMORA, May 16.— Examiner Corespondence.) — Though search was made all day Friday by a number of men in the hopes of getting a trace of the body of little Donald Dougall who was drowned on Wednesday evening nothing resulted. The general theory is that the body has become entangled at the bottom of the eddy below the old Vansickle dam in the Crowe river.

It was ascertained from the father of the boy that his son was clothed in a blue sweater with a red stripe, mackinaw pants and running shoes. It was recalled by one of Marmora's oldest residents that forty-eight years ago, Edward O'Hara, who was in a canoe with a clerk of the Rathbun Company, was drowned near the same eddy when the canoe upset and that the body was not recovered for several days.

Wide sympathy is being extended the bereaved family in the trying suspense which they are undergoing.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

He seemed to step out of the pages of an old book and walk right into the manse study. On him were all the marks of a man who had been journeying for a long, long while. The moment he appeared, he commenced an interesting, one-side conversation! It went something like this: "Every man should leave a monument behind him in the recollection of his own life by his neighbors. It has always seemed to me that there must be something very much amiss about a man who is not missed when he dies. I suppose tombstones are all right for those who like such things, but the best tombstone I have ever seen is a good character. It is a great pity that so many seem to forget that those who loved you, and were helped by you, will remember you when forget-me-nots are withered. It is better to carve your name on hearts than on marble. I want so to live towards others that they will keep my memory green when the grass grows on my grave."

Sleepy Hollow Cemetery.

What fugitive things our thoughts can sometimes be! As he was speaking, my fancy flew back a few years to a warm summer day when I wandered among the tombstones in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery at Concord, Massachusetts, and came upon the following inscription:

Samuel Hoar
Born in Lincoln, May 1st, 1778
Died in Concord, Nov. 2nd, 1856

He was long one of the most eminent lawyers and best beloved citizens of Massachusetts. A safe counsellor and kind neighbor, a Christian gentleman. He had a dignity that commanded the respect, and a sweetness and modesty that won the affection of all men. He practised an economy that never wasted and a liberality that never spared. Of proved capacity for the highest offices, he never avoided obscure duties. He never sought stations of fame or emolument, and never shrank from positions of danger or obloquy. His days were made happy by public esteem and private affection. To his latest moment of his long life he possessed his clear intellect unimpaired and full conscious of its approach he met death with the perfect assurance of immortal life.

Where Do They Bury the Bad?

Despite the fact that I am not a Quaker, I know that I am somewhat peculiar! Indeed, it would be peculiar if the same could not be said of most folks.

When I was a lad I used to spend the hour between the close of the morning service and the opening of the mid-day meal on the Sabbath Day in wandering among the tombstones in one of the loveliest cities of the dead it has ever been my lot to see. The inscriptions on the various monuments interested me greatly and impressed me deeply. With John Ploughman I could not help wondering where they buried all the bad people! Right and left in that cemetery, they seemed all to have been the best of folks, a regular nest of saints. Some of them seemed to have been so exceptionally good that it was no wonder they died—they were too fine to live in such a wicked world as this.

Better give bread to the poor than stones to the dead. Better kind words to the living than fine speeches over the graves of the dead. Some of the fulsome stuff on monuments is enough to make dead men blush.

Spurgeon once said in one of his John Ploughman's Talks something so good that I want to pass it on to the readers of this page.

Think of This!

"What heaps of marble are stuck over many big people's tombs! Half enough to build a house with! What a lift they will have at the resurrection! It makes me feel as if I could not get my breath to think of all those stones being heaped on my bones; not that there's any fear of it. Let the earth which I have turned over so often lie light upon my corpse when it is turned over me. Let John Ploughman be buried somewhere under the boughs of a spreading beech, with a green grass mound above him, out of which primroses and daises peep in their season: a quiet, shady spot where the leaves fall, and the robins play, and the dewdrops gleam in the sunshine. Let the wind blow fresh and free over my grave, and if there must be a line about me, let it be—

Here Lies the Body of
JOHN PLOUGHMAN
Waiting for the Appearing of His Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Oh, Spurgeon! Where shall we ever see or hear your like again? When God instructed Nature to make you it seems as if the mould must have been broken after you were produced.

More Inscriptions.

Sleepy Hollow Cemetery is a sacred spot to those who have some appreciation of that great period of New England history when a race of intellectual giants were making their imprint on their own and succeeding generations. You can read the names of such celebrities as Emerson, Thoreau—who refused to pay five dollars for his diploma or sheepskin from Harvard, saying that it was not worth it!—some of the Channings, and the Alcots.

On one monument I found the following which impresses me more the more I look at it:

THE PILGRIM

They laid in a chamber whose window opened toward the sunrising. The name of the chamber was

PEACE

There he lay till break of day, and then he awoke and sang.

Many years have come and gone since he was laid away, and the long night of the Redeemer's absence has not come to an end! The whole creation is groaning and suffering, as it were, the pangs of child-birth; and over all there is the suggestion of a waiting for something to happen. All creation, redeemed in part but not yet in whole, is waiting for the break of day and the redemption of the body. What a song it will be when the sleeping dead awake to sing the song of a complete redemption. After that hour there will be no more tears. Nor will there be any sorrow or suffering of any kind. Death will be abolished, and mankind will have reached the place of moral perfection.

Picked Up in Passing.

My musings seem to have taken a strange turn this week. To be quite honest about it, I had no idea of writing the things I have written when I first set out to write! However, there it is, and there it must stay! It may be good, bad or indifferent—but such as it is I send it on its newspaper way.

Most of those who know me, like me! It's only the ODD person who does not like me! Those who like me will "thole" this for my sake. We can't always "strike twelve!"—if, indeed, we are ever capable of doing that!

I wonder what Henry Kirke White was thinking of when he gave the following lines to the world. They are simple to the point of being sublime:

What is this passing scene?
A peevish April day!
A little sun—a little rain,
And then night sweeps along the plain,
And all things fade away.

I would be interested to know if any reader of this page has ever felt anything like this:

My youth was my old age,
Weary and long;
I had too many cares
To think of song;
My moulting days all came
When I was young.

Now in life's prime my soul
Comes out in flower:
Late, as with robin, comes
My singing power;
I was not born to joy
Till this late hour.

How often the hours that are spent in conversation, that not infrequently bring a cloud between the soul and God, would be enriched beyond all imaginings, did we but spare our words and sit quietly before the Lord.

Allan Fairbairn.

The Hour Of Prayer

LOVER of youth and Shepherd of the lambs, hear our prayer this day for our boys and girls: Give them clean hearts and honest eyes, a smiling mouth and the instinct to be kind. Suffer them to be happy in their play, making light of bruises, disappointments and rainy days. Make them game for a fair share of work and a little more, not spoiled by fortune nor turned craven by poverty. Grant them the grace to be humble, neither to sneer at the past, to be intolerant of old folk, to spurn the poor, to envy the rich, nor to make a mockery of the foreigner. Make them to practice some small sacrifice for sake of love, that prosperity may not overtake them with ill-trained souls incapable of generosity; and fill their young hearts with the fear of God and the love of Christ, that the years of the yellow leaf may be rich in happy memories.

What Think Ye Of Christ?

IT is said that, thinking to amuse him, his wife read to Dr. Judson some newspaper notices, in which he was compared to one or other of the apostles. He was exceedingly distressed: and then he added, "Nor do I want to be like them; I do not want to be like Paul, nor Apollos, nor Cephas, nor any mere man. I want to be like Christ. We have only one perfectly safe Examplar,—only One, who, tempted like as we are in every point, is still without sin. I want to follow Him only, copy His teachings, drink in His Spirit, place my feet in His footprints, and measure their shortcomings by these, and these only. Oh, to be more like Christ!"

• • •

If Christ is not Divine, every impulse of the Christian world falls to a lower octave, and light and love and hope decline.

• • •

It was before Deity embodied in human form walking among men, partaking of their infirmities, leaning on their bosoms, weeping over their graves, slumbering in the manger, bleeding on the cross; that the prejudices of the synagogue and the doubts of the academy, the fasces of the victor and the swords of thirty legions were humbled in dust.

"Of all work," said the Bishop of Exeter, "that produces results, nine-tenths must be drudgery. There is no work, from the highest to the lowest, which can be done well by any man who is unwilling to make

• • •

A man who can read the New Testament and not see that Christ claims to be more than a man can look all over the sky at high noon on a cloudless day and not see the sun.

A Wonderful Thing

O IMPATIENT ONES! Did the leaves say nothing to you as they murmured, when you came hither to-day? They were not created this spring, but months ago; and the summer just begun will fashion others for another year. At the bottom of every leaf stem is a cradle, and in it is an infant germ; and the winds will rock it, and the birds will sing to it all summer long, and next season it will unfold. So God is working for you, and carrying forward to the perfect development all the processes of your lives.

HANDFULS OF PURPOSE

"If the Lord be with us, where be all His miracles?" — Judges 6:13.

• • •

THE child moves in a wonder-world. To him we are as gods to whom nothing is hard, not to say too hard. He expects the marvellous, and is surprised by nothing save the failure to surprise. But our hearts are set on his growing up, on his outgrowing our supply of the wonderful and his own need of it. Jesus never needed the miracle for Himself. They took Him to Egypt when a cloud was enough to defy the soldiers of Herod; He was hungry when He might have made stones into bread; He was thirsty when a word would have started springs in the desert; He was weary when we had thought to have seen Him mount up with wings as an eagle; He was buffeted and wounded and cruel chastisement was laid upon Him, when there waited at His beck twelve legions of avenging and delivering angels He was the full-grown Son. He asked no extraordinary assurance of His Father's presence. He needed no crutch to help Him walk with God.

Do You Understand

I have seen men whose reverence for religion was so morbid that they could hardly lift up their eyes to heaven, but who made it up by the way they looked down on their fellow-men—men who yielded to no master here, who were touched by no name of friend or brother; but the moment the name of God was pronounced, they collapsed.

What You Cannot Do

YOU cannot live a day and not touch some other life. Wherever you go your shadow falls on others, and they are either better or worse for your presence. Our influence depends upon what we are more than upon what we do.

How Foolish We Are!

THERE is something very sad in the thought that we not only fail to value the rich blessings of God's love, but that we oft-times thrust them from us and refuse to take them, thereby both wounding the Divine heart and impoverishing our own souls.

Might Be More Thankful

IF in His gifts and benefits, God were more sparing and close-handed, we should learn to be more thankful. The very unbroken continuity of God's favors causes us to lose sight of the Giver, and to forget to prize the gifts themselves.

Sparks From Many Angles

OUR children that die young are like those spring bulbs which have their flowers prepared beforehand, and have nothing to do but to break ground, and blossom, and pass away. Thank God for spring flowers among men, as well as among the grasses of the field.

• • •

MEN plant prayers and endeavors, and go the next day looking to see if they have borne graces. Now, God does not send graces as he sends light and rain, but they are wrought in us through long days of discipline and growth. Acorns and graces sprout quickly, but grow long before ripening.

• • •

A man in the right, with God on his side, is in the majority, though he is alone, for God is multitudinous above all populations of the earth.

A wise man should aim at the control of the mind by clear, brave thinking, constant prayer, and every kind of bracing mental discipline.

GEMS FROM SPURGEON

LOOK UPWARDS.

CHRISTIAN! in all thy troubles, look unto God and be saved. In all thy trials and afflictions, look unto Christ, and find deliverance. In all thine agony, in all thy repentance for thy guilt, look unto Christ, and find pardon. Remember to put thine eyes heavenward, too. Bind round thyself a golden chain, and put one link of it in the staple in heaven. Look unto Christ; fear not. There is no stumbling when a man walks with his eyes up to Jesus. He that looks at Christ walks safely.

• • •

THE USE OF TRIAL.

TRIALS teach us what we are; they dig up the soil and let us see what we are made of; they just turn up some of the ill weeds on the surface.

Russian Proverbs

The Proverbs of a nation are not only an epitome of its wisdom, but crystallise for us much of its national temperament and popular habits of thought.

Go before God with justice, before the judge with money.

Call a peasant "brother," he will demand to be called "father."

• • •

A gipsy once in his life tells the truth, and then he repents of so doing.

• • •

A man without a wife is like a man in winter without a fur bonnet.

• • •

A great head has great cares.

• • •

It is a nuisance to go alone, even to be drowned.

• • •

A word of kindness is better than a pie.

No man can produce a great thing who is not strongly sincere in dealing with himself.

INCREASED RATES?

Reports from the United States say that American railways will seek authority to increase their rates because of their lowered earning powers.

If these rumors are true the railways would seem to be adopting the wrong policy—a policy that will never get them out of their present troubles.

All users of railway services, whether passenger, freight or express, will feel that to raise the rates at this time would be a serious mistake that would do nothing to prevent the railways from losing business to their competitors.

The railways, of course, are an absolute necessity, as a factor in opening up new country and in the all-year service they furnish, and the public is or should be vitally interested in seeing that their earning powers are increased and that other competing transportation agencies are given no unfair advantage over them.

The public, however, is not prepared at the present time to absorb increased rates, nor to look upon such a policy as a solution to the financial problems with which the railways are endeavoring to grapple.

The way out is not to be found in that direction.

A MASTER MIND OF THE STAGE.

In these days when the speaking stage is fighting for existence against the opposition of mechanized productions, the passing of a master mind in the stage world is a grievous loss.

The death, therefore, of David Belasco, the greatest figure of the old guard, a creator of unequalled stage productions, is a tragedy.

Of the genius of Mr. Belasco there was not the slightest doubt.

George M. Cohan, himself among the most successful of producers, refers to him as "the finest combination of genuine artistry and real showmanship," and that tribute was richly earned when it is remembered that Belasco produced over 400 plays, wrote 150 himself, created many stars, and gave to his productions a new color and realism that numbered them among the outstanding theatrical successes of the past thirty years.

The American stage—and consequently Canadian play-goers as well, for we have looked to the south for much of our stage fare—should hold this remarkable personality in affectionate memory.

Despatches from New York say that the whole theatrical world there is in mourning—it might well be, for there was only one Belasco, and his sevices to the theatrical profession had a value that cannot be overestimated.

POLICEMEN AND GUNS.

The Chief Constables' Association of Canada is thoroughly justified in protesting against proposed legislation to be introduced in the Senate that would disarm all police officers.

Under present-day conditions it would be an act of folly to take away from the police the weapons they need to protect themselves from the new type of gun-toting bandits.

There have, it is true, been cases in which constables have been too hasty in using firearms, and The Examiner in several instances felt it necessary to point out that all law-enforcement officers should be given very plain and definite instructions as to their duty and responsibility in this respect.

That ,however, is quite a different matter from suggesting that policemen should not be armed.

To enact a law that would send officers out equipped only with a baton would be to put them at the mercy of every crook who carries a gun—and, unfortunately, it would seem that practically every criminal nowadays includes a revolver among the essentials of his equipment.

We do not believe that police should be encouraged in the idea that they are quite within their rights to blaze away at people whose only crime may be that of running away at the sight of a blue uniform, but we do most emphatically feel that the conditions of the times call for officers to be armed.

The suggested legislation should be given short shift in Parliament.

COURTESY TO TOURISTS.

The National Revenue Review, the official publication of the Department of National Revenue, contains a suggestion to customs officers that is well worth noting.

It is as follows:

"Now the early summer season is with us, and tourists are beginning to throng the international highways, ferries and bridges, the department again reminds all officers brought into contact with the travelling public that assistance must be rendered to visitors with courteous despatch. Frequently in the pages of the Review this point has been emphasized, and on the threshold of the tourist season it is again brought to the notice of all concerned. Proper protection of the revenue can be maintained in a tactful and courteous way. Tourist business is big business, and it is the aim of the department to encourage it by simplified customs formalities, and a hearty welcome to all who enter the hospitable gates of the Dominion."

The Examiner feels sure that Canada is on the whole well served by its customs officers, and that their attitude toward tourists has been courteous and helpful—in fact, many American visitors have been heard to speak very appreciatively of the treatment received.

The instructions are published, not because of any feeling that they are necessary so far as the customs staff are concerned, but because they indicate a policy that might well be adopted by Canadians generally in their relations with tourists.

In this big business courtesy pays.

Friendly treatment means more than good roads, attractive scenery and adequate fishing facilities, and in this regard every Canadian who comes into contact with our tourist guests can help to create an impression of hospitality that will be invaluable in the de-expected, adjourned without having accomplished any

ONTARIO APPLES.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture is determined to follow up the success which Ontario apples achieved last season in the British markets by laying extensive plans for extending this valuable trade. It has generally been recognized that, when properly cultivated, Ontario apples are unsurpassed for beauty and flavor. It is regrettable, however, that too little attention has been paid to the cultivation of apples throughout the Province. In many places orchards have been neglected and allowed to go to waste until they have become entirely unprofitable. Yet those who have kept up the cultivation of their orchards, in accordance with the latest scientific knowledge, have been richly rewarded for their time and trouble. In order to promote the development of apple growing and marketing, the department has planned to establish adequate cold storage facilities throughout every district in Ontario where apples are grown extensively.

This is absolutely essential to the building up of a greater overseas market. The idea is to cultivate the varieties most in demand in the British markets, and by careful selection, storage and packing, ship them in the finest possible condition. The Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, who has charge of this department, is an enthusiast regarding the development of the apple trade. "We used to think," he said, "if we could only come up to Virginia and her apples that we would have reached our goal. Well, just let me tell you that last year our apples brought more money and were better in quality and pack than the Virginia products. Why, Virginia growers have even been after Mr. Fulton trying to get him to be their marketing representative in the British Isles." The department deserves commendation for its forward movement in this direction. There is no reason in the world why Ontario apples should not command the highest prices in the British markets. —Brantford Expositor.

COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP AUDITORS.

(From the Huron Expositor, Seaforth)

The county of Renfrew is suing its two county auditors to recover the sum of $116,000.

The auditors, of course, did not take the money, but the ex-treasurer did, and although the ex-official has been sentenced to a term of three years and six months, as a penalty for his misdemeanors, that does not put the money back into the treasury. And the county wants the money.

The defalcations have extended over a term of years and the contention of the county is that the auditors in failing to check or discover the shortages in their yearly audit, should be held responsible, or in other words, make good the loss to the county.

That contention may be correct, but it is a question which the courts will have to decide. As far as we know, this is the first time such an action has been taken in county or township affairs, which speaks volumes for the honesty of municipal treasurers.

At the same time, one would say, if the question was brought down to brass tacks, that the County Council of Renfrew was as much to blame in the matter as the auditors, perhaps more.

If that county is like a good many other counties in Ontario, the position of auditor is looked upon as a plum that should fall to the lot of some ex-councillor, rather than a position of real responsibility.

The appointee may or may not be a, man who is versed in business and financial matters. He may not be a business or professional man at all. That fact, however, usually has little bearing on his appointment.

And it has always been that way in township and county affairs, and with a good many towns as well. And the reason it has been that way is because the councils of these municipalities have never considered an auditor as a very necessary or a very important official.

Any man who can read and write, add and subtract is looked upon as being qualified. And as there are no lack of men who can do these things with more or less proficiency, councils do not consider their services as worth much. Say, fifteen or twenty-five or perhaps at the outside fifty dollars.

Well, any amount between fifteen and fifty dollars is a sizable sum these days, and the average municipal auditor is apt to look upon it as so much found money.

But if an auditor's time is worth as much as a county councillor demands for his time and services, no man who is capable of making a proper audit of municipal books, can afford to do it for any such sum. Nor should he be asked or expected to do it.

The old system under which municipal auditors have been appointed has been in force a long time, and more by luck than good management it has proved a fairly satisfactory one. Times, however, have changed. Township and county affairs have got into the column of business and the greater the business the greater need is there of conducting that business along business lines.

Economy is all right. Never has there been a greater need of practicing it than right now. But a penny-wise, pound-foolish policy, saving fifty and a hundred dollars here and there on petty things and, as in the case of Renfrew County, losing a hundred thousand dollars somewhere else, is not economy, neither can it, by any stretch of the imagination, be called good business.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Ald. Walter Stocker better be on his guard. Brantford reports the theft of 40 square yards of turf from a city boulevard.

DRESSMAKING AS AN OCCUPATION

Women, in these modern days, earn their living in almo t every conceivable way. Before the war they had tried most of the known occupations but there were still some that were considered beyond their weaker physical powers. During the war, however, in countries where nearly all the able-bodied men were away fighting, it was found, in cases of necessity, that the women could successfully undertake tasks previously thought to be suited only to the men. This has led to the belief that there is nothing that women cannot do so well as men. Be that as it may, women succeed best in work that, for long years, has been considered their own particular realm. There are exceptions, of course, and as curiosities one frequently hears of them but unless a girl has outstanding abilities or qualities, it would be better for her to leave some lines of work alone and seek her livelihood in those occupations for which women have proved that they are suited.

Women have been using the needle since the beginning of civilization. All through the ages we find sewing chief among the subjects taught the young girls. It is only in recent years that it has not been on every school curriculum. After a task has been performed by a people for many generations, it becomes more or less instinctive. So we may consider sewing a woman's natural heritage. There are always a few women who say they do not like to sew but they usually have not tried it enough or have attempted tasks beyond their powers and become discouraged.

For the young girl who really knows that she likes to sew there are many, many occupations open to her. Her succe s, of course, depends largely upon herself, her ambition, her perseverance, initiative and background by which is meant her general education and experience.

The most obvious of all occupations for the girl with the love of sewing is dressmaking. To be a successful dressmaker she must have considerable training in order to learn the methods which make for good workmanship and speed. These professional methods are always quickest and best. Besides this knowledge, she must have a feeling for line and colour, and a desire to keep abreast of the prevailing styles. Without these, a dressmaker will never pass from mediocrity. The private dressmakers are not so numerous as they used to be but at the present time they seem to be coming into their own again as many people now find it impossible to buy ready-made clothing to suit their needs or taste. For the private dressmaker there is unlimited possibility depending, of course, largely on herself. In the ready-made trade the girl goes in as a finisher and usually receives the minimum wage. The only requisite is to be quick with the needle but, with a good knowledge of dressmaking, she may quickly rise to a better position. If a dressmaker is ambitious she has ample opportunity to keep her mind alert though work in a ready-made establishment might have the opposite effect.

Millinery also offers an opportunity for the girl who, likes to sew. To be a success, an eye for line and colour, especially line, is essential. Like dressmaking it offers unlimited possibilities in both private or ready-made trade.

If a girl has originality along with proficiency in either dressmaking or millinery she may become a designer. In this case an art course of some kind would be beneficial but is not necessary. Designing dresses is a very lucrative occupation as well as a very interesting one.

In Canada there are many, many firms making ready-to-wear clothing. In each of them there must be one or more designers of patterns. This, of course, is not sewing but a thorough knowledge of how clothing is put together is necessary. Designing patterns calls for great accuracy and power to visualize finished results.

In the large shops there are many opportunities for the girl who knows clothing and materials. Will she not make a better saleswoman if she knows what she is selling or can she find a better way to gain her knowledge than in the actual making of clothing? The successful saleswoman has an opportunity of earning considerable money because, besides her regular wage, she is allowed a commission on all she sells above a certain amount.

From a saleswoman she may pass up to head of department, stylist or buyer, all of which are desirable positions carrying good salaries. The stylist perhaps needs a little explanation. Her duty is to see that the department to which she belongs keeps up to date in every way. This means that she must keep her eyes and ears open even though she is given opportunities to secure the knowledge necessary.

There is a tendancy, at present, in all lines to specialize and so we find women who have successful businesses making one type of article only. In the larger cities one will see the lamp shade shop, bed spread shop and so on. This line of work is fairly new but shows signs of becoming well established.

The education necessary for any of these occupations may be secured in the vocational schools of the province. If the school in the vicinity does not offer as complete a course as desired, more advanced work is given at Central Technical School in Toronto and there are also several private schools of design there.

The greatest advantage to be found in all these occupations is the opportunity for unlimited advancement depending, of course, largely on the individual's ability, energy and ambition. There is the interest side too to be considered. Clothing, from earliest times, has claimed a good deal of man's attention and should offer mental as well as financial advancement:

In the clothing world there are slack and busy periods but in spite of everything people must be clothed. So we may be assured of a certain amount of work at all times.

—Miss Helen Gerrard.

"DO YOU KNOW" PRIZE IS WON BY MISS MURIEL KENT

Six More Articles Appear in This Edition; More Prizes Awarded Daily By The Examiner.

Miss Muriel Kent, 493 King street, was awarded to-day's prize for submitting the best set of answers to questions in the "Do You Know" articles. Quite a number of letters were received in the last day or two by the "Do You Know" editor at The Examiner, thus making it more difficult to select a winner, but owing to the fact that Miss Kent made a special effort towards originality in the construction of her answers, as well as having her set complete and correct, she was justly selected as the one deserving of the three dollar prize, however, any one of the contestants who submitted answers could have won by spending five minutes extra time in careful construction when they were preparing their answers.

To those who are not acquainted with the contest and the rules—here's how: Every day there are several articles appearing in The Examiner concerning firms located in this district. The identification of these stories can made by finding the stories with the footnotes. Also the last sentence of each article contains a question which begins "Do You know....", the answer to which may be had by calling these firms, after obtaining the answers, write them down in a neat, orderly manner, using your own ideas as to construction, then bring or mail them to the "Do You Know" editor at The Examiner. A three dollar prize is offered each day by The Examiner for the best set of answers.

There will be no contest on Monday, but the "Do You Know" series will be continued in Tuesday's edition of The Examiner.

LILLOW'S SHOES ARE BEAUTIFUL

Style a Feature at Lowest Costs—Foot Comfort Assured.

COURTEOUS SERVICE.

It is absolutely essential to our peace of mind that our feet be comfortable, and while our feet are buoyantly supported by snug-fitting, flexible shoes, they also must have style, quality and durability. Nowhere in Peterborough do you find these combinations better suited to your needs than at the Lillow Shoe Store. There you find shoes that from the tips of their toes to their snug-fitting heels are beautiful, shoes in which there is no restriction to tire one's feet. In their flexible shoes you enjoy the cool comfort of feet that are free and well fitted, shoes shaped like the natural foot, and though the prices are most modest, the footwear from Lillow's is durable.

No part of our wearing apparel is subjected to more wear and strain than our shoes, and this store has realized the necessity of handling stylish shoes that wear, and through carrying only that kind of merchandise they have built a large, permanent, growing clientele. There is a completeness of stock at the Lillow Shoe Store that is seldom found anywhere. A Shoe for every foot. In them Peterborough may boast of a truly metropolitan retail shoe establishment. When one purchases boots or shoes they are assured of footwear with every good characteristic.

A personal service to every customer or prospective customer is one of the unique features of this local, home-owned establishment. Both ladies and gentlemen may be certain of an understanding and courteous treatment by salespeople at the Lillow Shoe Store, whether they go in to buy or simply to look around. We wish to call attention to the able management of this firm, under the personal management of Mr. Arnold V. Lillow, the owner. When you are in the market for shoes acquaint yourself with this store. Do you know how long the Lillow Shoe Store has served our community?

$3.00 cash prize given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Six in to-day's issue.)

GRAIN SHIPMENTS GROWING HEAVIER

Freight on C.P.R. From Port McNicoll Moving Eastward—C.N.R. Not So Brisk.

FISH PLENTIFUL.

LINDSAY, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence). — The spectacle of heavily laden C.P.R. trains passing through Lindsay and Peterborough from Port McNicholl indicates increased activity in western grain shipments to the east. Freights of 43 cars and a van, with approximately 2,000 tons of grain, have been passing over the line during the past few days. Freighters from the Upper Lakes have unloaded considerable grain at Port McNicholl, and railway officials hope that freight activity will continue.

Conditions have not been as brisk, however, on the C.N.R. from Midland to Belleville. An order went out a couple of days ago for one hundred cars for grain shipments, but the order was cancelled later.

Warden Windsor, in conversation with an Examiner correspondent, stated that in his opinion fish would be plentiful in his district during the summer. The stories of wholesale destruction of fish and of fish being sold out of season in Lindsay, were, he stated, manufactured out of whole-cloth.

Mr. Walter Free, local manager for the Imperial Oil Company, has been transferred to Peterborough. He has been manager here for the past fifteen years, and handled the first oil truck in this district.

Robert Patey, who is said to have victimized a number of local merchants last week with phoney cheques, has been placed under arrest at his home in Goderich. After his operatons here the police traced him to Peterborough, where, it is understood, he was unsuccessful in attempts to put over two cheques. He is said to have been in the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville for about a month. Later he worked on a farm south of Lindsay.

FARMER SUICIDES.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., May 16 (C. P.). — Samuel J. Poole, a well-known farmer living at Pelbank, a few miles west of here, took his life early to-day by hanging himself in a barn. Poole had been in ill-health for some time. Provincial Police are investigating.

S. Africa Qualifies For Davis 3rd Round

DUBLIN, May 16 (C.P.). — South Africa qualified to-day to meet Great Britain in the third round of the European zone Davis Cup play by winning the first of the final pair of singles matches with Ireland.

The matches stood 2 to 1 in favor of South Africa at the start of play to-day and P. D. B. Spence of South Africa, promptly downed E. A. McGuire, of Ireland, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, giving South Africa the third and deciding match regardless of the outcome of the one singles contest remaining.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16. (CP)—Word that an unidentified woman had thrown herself from the Chaudiere bridge into the rapids of the Ottawa river below, sent policemen hurrying to the scene of the tragedy about one o'clock this afternoon. particulars are lacking.

FAVORS DROPPING 2 DAYS IN YEAR

Way Found to Make Each Day Exact Anniversary of Corresponding Day in 30 A.D.

MUCH PROOF GIVEN.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 16 (A.P.)—The National Committee on Calendar Simplication has found a way to make each day an exact anniversary of the corresponding day in 30 A.D., generally regarded as Christ's last year of ministry.

The change was proposed to Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson by George Eastman, wealthy philanthropist. It was suggested by Charles F. Marvin, Chief of the Weather Bureau.

Back in 1852, Dr. Marvin said, Pope Gregory dropped 10 days from the faulty Julian calendar. But the error that had accumulated up to that time was 12 days; so the new Georgian calendar still was two days off.

Dr. Marvin proposed that before trading the present calendar for a 13-period year, the two superfluous days be dropped. He used formulas and charts galore to prove there still was a two-day error and to show how the change would make vernal equinoxes and whatnot come around when they should instead of "drifting."

Complete correction of the error, he said, would be significant to Christianity.

Hedge Is Lifted While Man Sleeps

SASKATOON, Sask., May 16.—John Nugent, living on the outskirts of Saskatoon, planted a Caraganna hedge about his lot last night and stuck a five-foot maple in the middle of the lawn. He awoke this morning to look on the old familiar half Prairie once more.. Someone had lifted the entire hedge and taken the maple tree along for good measure.

"Love's Labor Lost" was the comment of the desk sergeant, as he inscribed Nugent's complaint on the blotter and sent out divers bluecoats to look for the hedge and tree.

DOMINION CONVERSION LOAN TOPS OBJECTIVE BEFORE LIMIT

Was Feature of Market and Served to Strengthen Other Issues.

UTILITIES WEAK.

(Special to the Examiner.)

TORONTO, May 16.—(SNS)—Bond circles this week were concerned with the 1931 Conversion Loan, the refunding operation by the Dominion Government of the War Loan and Victory Loans maturing in 1931, 1932, 1933 and 1934.

Success of the loan was assured before the week had half gone and Friday night the total was well over the $300,000,000 mark, compared with an initial objective of $250,000,000. The response by the small holders was gratifying, assuring a wide distribution of the government bonds throughout the Dominion and no doubt was felt but that the Prime Minister would accept all applications for conversion received up until, and including, May 23.

The market had strengthened last week as soon as the terms of the Conversion Loan became known. This week the high grades continued to show strength, helped by the cheap money in New York and the lowering of the Bank of England re-discount rate to 2½ per cent. It was still a market in which buyers had to shop around for securities at current prices, offerings being scarce. The rails, Dominion, Provincials and Municipals moved up fractionally all along the line. Utilities were somewhat spotty, the most highly regarded utilities keeping pace with the government securities and the second grade utilities holding at last week's levels. There was no demand for industrial bonds and foreigns moved erratically. A few sales of the Conversion Loan issue maturing in 1959 were made at 104¼ to 105 but there was little activity in the Conversion Loan in Toronto Trading circles.

The Dominion Financing does not necessitate any new money and the market had only the City of Hamilton issue to absorb. These bonds were for 10, 20 and 30 year periods, carried interest at 4½ and 4¾ per cent, amounted to slightly more than $2,500,000 and were sold at a cost to the city of 4.51 per cent. Small municipal issues totalled between $100,000 and $200,000.

LONDON'S ACTION BOOST FOR B. C.

Will Buy Canadian Timber After Decision to Purchase Empire Goods.

ORDER YEAR AHEAD.

LONDON, May 16 (C.P. Cable) — Good news for British Columbia timber producers was contained in a recommendation of the general purposes committee of the London County Council to-day to the effect that after August, the London Corporation should use nothing but Empire timber in carrying out its great five-year building program, provided supplies of suitable quality can be obtained at reasonable prices.

Presenting its recommendation to the council, the committee stated that practically the only British timber source at present marketing any appreciable supplies of soft wood is the Pacific Coast of Canada. "We are advised the bulk of the council's requirements could be fulfilled from this source, particularly if orders could be given 12 months' forward," the committee said. "This does not appear to present any difficulty in view of the five year building program."

London's requirements will be mainly on account of its housing program. About 2,000 standards of British Columbia pine have already been ordered.

Question Is Settled In Regard To Farming

TORONTO, Ont., May 16.—(CP)—A woman may praise and sell poultry and still be engaged "solely in farming," Mr. Justice Sedgewick ruled in a judgment handed down at Osgoode Hall today in an interpretation of the bankruptcy act that has been a trouble question in rural districts for some time.

The point arose for determination on a petition by the Western Canada Flour Mills for a receivership order against Mrs. Emma Nerlich, who has a farm near Pickering.

"Now, while it is possible that a farmer may make an authorized assignment in bankruptcy, a receiving order may not be made against a person "engaged solely in farming or tilling of the soil," Justice Sedgewick declared.

Rain Dampens Sale Of Farmers' Produce

The rain dampened the sale of produce on the farmers' market this morning and prices were about as usual. Chickens sold at 30 cents a pound, with hens at 25 cents and broilers at 40 cents. Eggs were 15 to 20 cents a dozen and butter ranged in price from 25 to 30 cents a pound. Cream was 30 cents a pint.

Fresh whitefish was 20 cents a pound, potatoes were 75 cents to $1 a peck. Apples were 15 and 20 cents a peck.

Little pigs were $10 a pair.

700 Houses Destroyed In Japan's 5th Fire

TOKYO, May 16 (A.P.)—Another serious fire, the fifth in Japan within the past week, today destroyed 700 houses in Matsue City, Honshu, in what is known as the Lafcadio Hearn country. No casualties were reported.

Six hundred houses were destroyed by fire in the town of Atika on Friday night.

RAIL BREAK IS FEATURE AT NEW YORK

Nevertheless Advance in Bond Prices Carries Encouraging Significance.

RATE CUT AS AID.

(By John L. Cooley, Associated Press Financial writer)

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 16.—Strength in the investment market relieved the tedium of another decline in stocks this week, although it could do little to cheer sentiment in circles where interest is keener in more immediate prospects.

The bad break in railroad shares, carrying them to the lowest levels in years, was disconcerting for Wall Street regards selling of those equities at this stage of the deflation as representing a large de gree of rail liquidation.

Although this weakness is not being overlooked, the advance of bond prices carries an encouraging significance. Many bankers believe that best grade bonds, thanks to increasingly cheap money, are now fast approaching levels where yields will be so small that buyers will switch to less highly rated issues in their search for better returns on invested capital. However, bankers do not care to predict just how much time will be needed for this shift.

Further impetus was given the move to ease credit by a cut in bankers' acceptance rates, led by the New York Federal Reserve. There were also favorable long terms implications in the reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate of 2½ per cent. It is frequently pointed out that to be broadly successful an easy money policy must be international in scope. So that credit may become abundantly available in the world markets.

Softness of steel prices, notably scrap, make the situation in that industry confused despite the reduction of the decline. With automobile output holding up better than had been expected and a sustained inquiry for structural materials the stagnation in other lines has been offset and activity is currently showing little change. In some quarters an operating ratio of 40 per cent. by July is regarded as a probability.

WHEAT SUPPLY TO BE PLENTIFUL

Total Surplus for Export and Carry-over in Four Nations is 703,000,000 Bushels.

RUSSIA TO CONSIDER.

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 16. — The total surplus of wheat for export and carry-over in the four principal exporting countries of the world on May 1 is estimated by the Agriculture Department at 703,000,000 bushels.

The surplus on that date last year was 611,000,000 bushels, and in 1929, 701,000,000.

The Department said that on this basis there would be an abundant supply for next year, despite some indications of decreased acreage in the four countries—Canada, the United States, Australia and Argentina.

"Requirements of importing countries," the Department said, "during May and June are expected to be considerably larger than last year, and perhaps as great as in 1929. However, it is also be expected that some supplies will still be forthcoming from Russia, which was not an exporter in the spring of 1929. While their surplus appears to be smaller it is likely that exports from the Danube countries may be somewhat larger than the spring of 1929. Consequently, present conditions point to a world carry-over on July 1, 1931, about as large as that of July 1, 1929, somewhat larger stocks on non-European exporting countries being likely to be offset by smaller stocks in Europe."

Chicago Grain Weakens After Strong Opening

CHICAGO, Ill., May 16. (CP)—Grains turned downward to-day after a show of firmness at the start. Estimates that Canadian wheat acreage would show 12 percent decrease failed to exert more than a transient bullish influence as against reports that domestic winter wheat prospects were almost perfect. Starting unchanged to ¾ cent. higher, wheat afterward receded. Corn opened ½ off to ⅛ up and subsequently declined.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Sawif Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

The wheat market was dull and featureless yesterday with prices holding within a narrow range of about ¾ cent. Trade Volume was very light and practically all ocal, with offerings small throughout. Opening prices were about unchanged the market firming up half cent over the close. Thursday night with a little local buying based on the continued dry weather in Western Canada also with a little buying that was credited to seaboard houses. No export business in wheat could be confirmed, but at the same time there was no precipitation in the west, and no moisture was promised in the morning forecast by the weather bureau. The demand for cash wheat was more or less indifferent, offerings were not pressing but with the small business overnight, exporters and shippers are satisfied with odd cars or small lots. The Manitoba Free Press first general report of the season will be published tomorrow (Saturday) morning it is anticipated that it will show a decrease in acreage of about 12 per cent. with moisture urgently needed in many large important areas. The stock market was again weak with some leaders, such as Steel, making new lows.

Coarse Grains.—Outside of some further export business in barley these markets were rather dull. Prices were generally higher and held firm with perhaps a little short covering and very little being offered for sale. Eastern Canada continues to take the odd cars of oats for feeding purposes. Flax dull and featureless very little doing.

Liverpool Cables due unchanged based on Winnipeg.

TORONTO LIST CLOSES AT LOW

Selling Continues Unabated With Sales for First Two Hours Approximating 13,000.

OILS UNCHANGED.

TORONTO, Ont., May 16 (C.P.).—Toronto stock closed right at their bottom prices for the day, which incidentally represented for many the bottom prices since the present stocks were issued.

Selling, while not hurried, continued unabated to-day, with sales for the two-hour period approximating 13,000 shares. Among the pivotal stocks which touched record prices to-day were International Nickel at 12¼, Brazilian Traction at 13¾, Montreal Power at 52, C.P.R. down 1⅛ points to 26¾, Page-Hersey Tubes down 1 at 76, Walkers at 5⅛. Distillers equalled its former low of 10 Ford sold at 19, only a fraction above its low. Service Stations equalled its low of 15.

Oils were unchanged to a minimum fraction lower.

Canadian Bank of Commerce hit a new low at 212. The rest of the bank group was steadier, unchanged to 1 point higher.

NATIONAL BISCUIT WEAK AT NEW YORK

Losses in Rails More Moderate Than of Late—To-day's Session is Dull.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 16 (C.P.)—Although the tone of stocks was heavy to-day, weakness was rather selective. Notable soft spots were National and Loose Wiles Biscuits, both off 3 points to new lows; International Business Machines, down more than 5, and Lambert, with a loss of over a point.

Losses in the rails were more moderate than of late. Canadian Pacific dropped a couple of points to a new low and New York Central sold down nearly 2, also to a new minimum, otherwise the group was quiet. U.S. Steel and American Can got within fractions of yesterday's lows, but reduced their declines. American Telephone recovered a one point loss. There were moderate declines in Dupont, Eastman Kodak, Worthington Pump, Borden and Hersey Preferred.

The two-hour session was dull, and sales totalled well under a million shares.

HON. J. S. MARTIN

The cortege travelled the Prospect Hill Road, across the valley of the Lynn and to Main and Market streets, with Masons from many lodges forming a guard of honor along a considerable portion of the route and remaining at their posts during the church service.

The cortege was met at the door by the Rector, Rev. D. J. Cornish, accompanied by the Most Rev. David Williams, Archbishop of Huron and Metropolitan of Ontario. Preceding the casket up the aisle the Archbishop read the introductory sentences of the Anglican ritual. After the singing of a hymn by the augmented choir, Psalm 39 was read, commencing "I said, I will take heed to my ways." Archdeacon Cody delivered an eulogy. The Masonic Choir offered a number, and this was followed by The Dead March in Saul," by G. R. Martin, organist.

The active pall bearers were James R. Waddle, W. H. Barrett, C. W. Barwell, F. M. Bond, James Vokes, W. J. Thompson, John C. King, all of Port Dover, and Dr. Stevens, Woodstock.

The Dominion Government representative was Hon. Donald M. Sutherland, Minister of National Defence.

FURTHER DECREASE IN CAR LOADINGS

At 49,745 Cars the Total Was 3,356 Below Previous Week From May 9th.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16 (By The Canadian Press).—Another drop in car loadings on Canadian railroads was recorded for the week ended May 9. At 49,745 cars the total was 3,356 cars below the previous week and 11,281 cars below the corresponding week last year.

Compared with the week ended May 2, 1931, coal was down 1,219 cars, grain 903 cars, miscellaneous f eight 422 cars and merchandise 406 cars.

MINES DECLINE LIGHT SELLING

Prices Register Further Drops With List at Lowest Point for Session.

NORANDA FIRMER.

TORONTO, Ont., May 16 (C.P.). — Despite reduced rate of turnover prices registered further declines on the mining market to-day with the list at lowest point for the session.

International Nickel, holding for most of the period around $12.50, sold off near the finish to register a new low and a loss of nearly three-quarters. Noranda firmed a few cents and Hudson Bay was steady. Sherritt Gordon lost a couple, while other Lindsleys were quiet.

Wright-Hargreaves and Granada managed to close a few cents up from last night but McIntyre dropped another half, Lake Shore 30, and Teck-Hughes 10. In the cheaper golds Macassa, Missouri, and San Antonio recovered a cent or so. Kirkland Lake Gold was down 2, and Central Manitoba, St. Anthony, and White Lake a cent apiece.

GIVEN SIX MONTHS.

THOROLD, Ont., May 16 (C.P.).—Pleading guilty to the theft of a quantity of fence wire and various contractors' supplies, Frank Savage of Thorold was sentenced to six months definite and 18 months indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory.

SWEEPING DECLINE DURING WEEK CARRIES ISSUES TO LOW RECORD

Over-subscription For Conversion Bond Loan Has Strengthening Effect.

WALKERS SUFFERS MOST.

TORONTO, Ont., May 16 (By The Cnadian Press).—A sweeping price decline, which embraced oils, industrials, steels and utility stocks carried prices of many issues to new low levels for the year or longer on Canadian Stock exchange this week.

The recession was accomplished by easy stages yet the pressure of selling, with practically no interruption, only served to further discourage investors who have long sought for some indication that prices had reached the bottom.

Sustained export demand for Canadian wheat, indications that the drop in Canadian wholesale prices has lost its momentum, and the outstanding feature of the week's financial markets—the Dominion Government's 1931 conversion loan—were among the developments that indicated at least moderate improvement in the business situation. The conversion loan itself was a striking example of confidence on the part of Canadian investors in the fact that the initial offering, in exchange for victory bonds and war loan bonds maturing between 1931 and 1934, was oversubscribed.

Another result of unfavorable news was a definitely downward trend in shares of Hiram-Walker—Gooderham and Worts, the distillery leader sinking from 6¼ to 5½ coincident with the announcement that the annual dividend had been cut from $1 to 50 cents a share. Distillers Corporation—Seagrams closed the week at 10½.

Brazilian Traction's decline occured in somewhat heavier trading, liquidation being stimulated by continued weakness of the Brazilian milreis, in addition to the generally unsettled economic and political situation in various areas of South America. Brazilian entered new low ground for the year at 14, where it compares with 17 1-8 last week.

Canadian Pacific Railways resistance to the decline was a most encouraging feature of the Canadian market.

Bank issues were particularly sensitive to the general market down trend and most of the leading Canadian Bank issues entered new low price levels for the year or longer.

Unlisted issues and oils were no exception to the selling movement, losses being shown in the petroleum group by British American oil at 10, Imperial Oil at 12 1-8, International Petroleum at 11½ and supertest Petroleum ordinary at 20.

ECONOMIC REHABILITATION PLANS FOR EUROPE UNFOLDED BY FRANCE

Embody Relief Measures For Problems on Agriculture, Industry and Finance.

AID FOR AUSTRIA.

GENEVA, May 16.—(AP)—French proposals for the economic rehabilitation of Europe, an outstanding issue before the European Federation commission which is now in session, were made public this afternoon.

They embody relief measures for agriculture, industry and finance and recommend special treatment to put Austria back on her feet.

The first part of the French plan, which is regarded as a counter proposal to the projected Austro-German customs accord, deals with agricultural problems; the second covers industrial problems and the third problems of finance.

European preference for wheat from central and eastern Europe is proposed, with a central sales office and abandonment of the most favored nations clauses.

Industrial Section

The industrial section proposed organization for production and sale of steel, coal and chemical products, automobiles, textiles, wool, lumber and heavy electric plants, either through existing industrial groups or though new ones to be created. Close understanding among these various industries is characterized as imperative.

In the third part the French Government offers its financial co-operation in execution of the financial program, upon condition that the League of Nations Finance committee control state loans for public works and quotations on foreign securities listed on the Paris Bourse, under the leadership of the Bank of France a number of French banks would be grouped to study conditions under which they would participate in foreign investment operations.

The proposal asks that European states which are customers of Austria give her special facilities to increase her outlets abroad.

Will Hold Inquest Into Woman's Death

WOODSTOCK, Ont., May 16 (C.P.). — The inquest into the death of Mrs. Charles Thorpe, Ingersoll, who died on Friday under an anaesthetic for the removal of several teeth, is to be held on Tuesday evening. Yesterday it was announced by Dr. R. A. Williams, coroner, following a conference with Crown Attorney R. N. Ball, that no inquest would be necessary, but later, at the request of Dr. J. D. McDonald, who gave the anaesthetic, and Dr. J. M. Partlo who was doing the dental work at the time of death, it was decided that an inquest would be held.

PRESENT INDICATIONS POINT TO POOR CROP IN THE WEST

Question is Raised as to Whether This is Good or Bad Sign.

THAT HUGE SURPLUS.

By Thomas W. Ranton

"A blessing in disguise."

Just what may be a blessing in disguise, depends upon the point of view or as the old saying goes, "depends upon whose ox is being gored."

When a man meets misfortune of any kind, it is hard to convince him that it is all for the best.

Ignorance of one's own misfortunes is a clear gain, says some one. Put it the other way about, it may be equally true that ignorance of one's blessings is a clear loss.

It may be that the wheat producer is ignorant of his blessings, and therefore he is the loser.

It may be fairly said that generally speaking, the grain "trade," that is the grain dealer, and the speculator large and small, not actual wheat growers, are almost unanimous in the belief that the present threatened disastrous wheat growing season in Western Canada would, if the disaster really materializes be a blessing for the west, in disguise of course, as a blessing of such a nature must necessarily be, to be properly appreciated.

"The best thing that could happen to the West," is the way they generally put it.

Meaning, of course, that if the present great draught in the west but continues long enough and severe enough, to utterly destroy any hope or prospect for a wheat crop this coming season, such a disaster would give the west a chance to market its hundred million bushels or so of old crop wheat, and "carry over" from last year, at a fairly reasonable price.

"Too much wheat" in the world they say. "Over production" "A burden," and so on. Every one is familiar with the argument.

Therefore a bad reason or two, in order that the existing huge surpluses in Canada and across the border could be used up, would be not only a good thing, but a real blessing to—well to something or other, though just how such a calamity can be considered as a blessing, either in disguise or out of it to the actual wheat growers is a little hard to imagine or to believe, unless you happen not to be a wheat grower and farmer, but just a "trader" or speculator, or a little of both of these latter two large and more or less influential classes.

The big job however, will be to convince the western farmer who still persists in the obstinate believe that "to plow and to sow, to reap and to mow," is the most useful occupation to which he can apply his energies; to convince the honest and industrious farmer that the drying out and scorching up of his season's crops is a 'blessing in disguise," is a task which only the most dyed in the wool "economist" can ever hope to achieve.

"And yet, it may be that after all, the "economist" is right and the farmer all wrong. For juggle how you will, you cannot by a simple wave of the hand, get rid of the hard and solid fact that there are still huge surpluses of wheat from past seasons still on hand, and that present prospects are that within a few weeks from now probably over a billion bushels of wheat in the United States alone, will be available for marketing purposes.

So that it comes to this as our "economists" and statistians can easily prove, to the satisfaction of the "trader" if not to the farmer, that the latter unfortunate individual is, so to speak, between the devil and the deep sea.

If he harvests a good crop which he cannot profitably market, he faces ruin and starvation, and if his crops are burned up and destroyed, he is no better position.

In either case, it is still difficult to see where the so-called "blessing in disguise" comes in.

The truth of the situation must ultimately immerge from the present tangle of things, when it will probably be found that the whole existing system of production the world over is economically unsound and self destructive, and that nothing less than drastic, or even revolutionary changes in the whole economic system will ever suffice to put the agricultural industry on a sound and solid basis.

SELL MANY USED CARS.

Duffus Sells Fifty-two in Three Weeks.

During the last three weeks J. J. Duffus Limited has sold 52 used cars.

Asked how they account for such a splendid showing, Mr. Duffus said that, in the first place, they tried to get their cars at proper values and immediately they are received each car is reconditioned and reduced, which, together with attractive resale prices, has solved the used car problem and for this reason no difficulty is experienced to such an extent that serious difficulties have disappeared.

At the present time they have in stock about two dozen cars, various body types and nearly all makes. A special clean-up sale is on at the present time of such attractiveness that buyers are assured of satisfactory cars backed by splendid service.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 16 (C.P.).—Foreign exchanges irregular. Great Britain, 4.86 9-32; France, 3.91 5-16; Italy, 5.23¼; Belgium, 13.91; Germany 23.80½; Montreal, 99.90 5-8.

Unknown Body Found Floating On Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 16 (C.P.). — The body of a man was taken from the Niagara River to-day and removed to the Morse Morgue. Coroner Thompson decided an inquest is unnecessary. The body apparently has been in the water five or six weeks, but is so badly decomposed as to make identification impossible. The body is that of a man five feet six, 150 pounds, ancher tatooed on left wrist, wearing black shoes and light tan socks. The body was sighted in mid-stream by Maid-of-the-Mist men and grappled to shore.

'Fish Hogs' Prevalent Amongst Fishermen

"Fish hogs" are still prevalent in this district, many fishermen refusing to abide by the provisions of the Fish and Game Laws. The Examiner was reliably informed this morning.

A member of the local Fish and Game Association stated that it is known that many fishermen along the Otonabee river have been taking out more than the number of pickerel allowed in the daily catch. Brook trout less than six inches long are also being retained.

The Fish and Game Association is pledged to stamp out such illegal practices and will make a determined effort to catch the offenders.

RUM RUNNER TAKEN

ST. ALBANS, Vt., May 16. (CP)—Gordon Smith of Hudson N.Y., was arrested by the customs border patrol near Richford to-day as a rum runner. His automobile, which carried no registration plates contained 600 bottles of ale, the officers charged.

SECRET PLACES

BY

JOAN SUTHERLAND

INSTALMENT I.

Feodor Staire learned in his youth certain old-fashioned doctrines: among them one that said no matter what the cost might be to himself, a man must never give a woman away and he continued to hold that one through the vicissitudes and amusements of his youth and young manhood. The different code which the post-war years brought to many did not effect his opinions in a matter of this kind, and he still preferred not to discuss the women who in one way or another had entered his life and passed out of it again.

Paris a few years after the war the Paris of the Ritz Bar and the smart hotels and restaurants, the Paris of amusing and modern apartments and their cocktail parties, held no such creed for men talked and women did not seem to resent it and London, in a minor degree, followed suit. Staire—attached to the British Embassy there, after Madrid, unmarried, wealthy good looking in a powerful, rather hard way—was much sought after; and would have been extremely popular if he had had any use for popularity. Unfortunately for the women who wanted to marry him, he was more than difficult to entice to those same cocktail parties. Dinners of wealthy and pleasure-hunting foreigners appeared to bore him, and he showed a disconcerting predilection first for work, and secondly for the society of the corps diplomatique, the Faubourgs, and some only of the English and American residents—certainly not the most wealthy.

On the other hand a knowledge and appreciation of the arts, a real gift of human understanding when his interest or affection was aroused, had formed for him warm friendships in many different walks of life, and he had a wide acquaintance with very varied individuals. Those who had tried in vain to number him among their intimates accused him of intellectual snobbery, of narrow-mindedness, of conservatism carried to extremes; but Staire heeded not at all; he went his own way, indifferent to all that did not interest him, deeply loyal to his friends and secretly afire with ambition. He had great personal gifts and they would and should help him, great wealth and that, too, should be used for the same end. He would be Ambassador, and no person and no weakness and no affection should stand between himself and his goal.

For those of his friends who devoted their strength and their lives to passing pleasures he had a careless outward tolerance, an inward contempt cold and biting; and the more inaccessible he made himself the happier he was. He liked women, he had women friends for whom he entertained a warm and considerate affection—being a healthy normal man he had had lapses from the secretly stern code he set himself, thinking himself in love, playing for a little at intervals with the idea of marriage. But always, stronger even than the desires of the body came the desires of the mind the burning ambitions that will spur a man on through misery and sickness and poverty, more powerful when they ride their victim than sex or even the conscious desire of self-preservation.

As a young man of twenty-six, Feodor Staire, coming out from the miasma and fury of war, appointed to Stockholm, looked about him, weighing considerations, determining values, watching results.

The craze for pleasure he dismissed with scorn; the fight for wealth did not concern him since he was already a rich man; the marriages of his friends or acquaintances showed for the most part as failures or even worse, and the last resort of the brainless—an endless craving for physical indulgence—folly.

As he afterwards realized he was probably insufferable in those early days, yet even then he was wise enough to hide within himself these opinions of the world around him; he could ignore or dismiss without any outward unpleasantness or inward superiority, for it was not superiority he felt. It was something more radically simple—the determination that refused to occupy his time with that which did not interest him, and the vision of his goal always before his eyes.

On his thirty-sixth birthday he was sent to London on an important mission, and taking his place in the Calais train—he had been transferred to Paris two months earlier—saw that only one other seat in the compartment was taken, noted almost unconsciously that the pigskin dressing-case and walking-stick proclaimed that his fellow-traveller was a man, and settled himself for the journey with no further thought of who it might be, until just as the train was due to start, a voice uttered his name in unmistakable accents.

"Feodor! My dear fellow what great luck!"

Staire flung aside his paper, jumped up, his smile leaving no doubt as to his own answering pleasure.

"Ronald! You! You don't mean to say you are going through to London, too?"

"Indeed, I am. This is splendid. I've been cursing this journey for two days. Astley has sent me on some business he couldn't attend to. And you?"

"Much the same. Cigarette? How long shall you be over?"

"About two or three days. You're not staying?"

"A little longer. Maybe a week. Look here Ronald, what do you mean by getting married before I came to Paris? Rotten trick."

Ronald Halkett, a seven-months bridegroom, laughed, but his eyes were tender with a sudden inward glow not lost upon the other.

"I ought to have waited till your most important self came to France. In fact I quite realize I oughtn't even to have fallen in love without your advice. Seriously, Feodor, it was a damn shame you couldn't come to the wedding. I wanted Greta to meet you."

"Since I am going to live in Paris that can probably be arranged!"

Ronald laughed, his dark pleasant face aglow with that same feeling that had lit the tenderness in his eyes.

"It is possible. I'm damned lucky."

"Your wife is very beautiful, I hear?"

"She is exquisite. Haven't you met her mother?"

"Lady Alice Wareham? No; I don't think so, unless it was before the war. I've met her brother—very nice chap."

"She's charming. I met her first at the Astley's. I'm very lucky. When are you going to be sensible and follow my example?"

"Oh sometime I suppose," Staire said with sudden carelessness. "I'm not a domestic animal, Ronnie!"

"You never know. I didn't appreciate the fact that I was, either, until I married Greta."

"And now"—Staire's keen ice-grey eyes held an amused but kindly mockery—"now you are turning into a marriage bureau for your friends. Thanks for the warning."

Ronald laughed.

"You think I'm a fool, I suppose. Well, perhaps I am. Any man would be a fool over Greta. Wait till you see her."

Staire lit a cigarette, not denying the accusation.

"Lady Wareham lives in Paris?"

"Yes. Avenue Henri Martin. If you'd been here longer you must have met her. Colonel Wareham was killed during the last autumn of the war, and I believe she cannot bear to leave the country where he is buried. That is what Toni, my young sister-in-law, told me."

"Unusual loyalty these days? I hear she is a very attractive woman."

"Very. Great distinction."

"And another daughter, you say?"

"Yes; Toni. A very different type from my wife. Gamine Rather a delightful child, though, if Paris doesn't spoil her. She's going on a visit to America."

"At school, I suppose.II

"Good Lord, no! Toni is twenty-one or thereabouts. But she's a type. Modern, thinks she knows the last word in all sophistication, believes herself hard-boiled. Dances like a professional and considers love and marriage the pathetic illusion of the nineteenth century."

Staire made no further inquiries about Toni Wareham; if there was one human being who bored him to extinction it was the modern girl, who prided herself upon complete lack of all the old-fashioned virtues, and regarded the laws of civilized society as so many opportunities for outraging that society's code.

Calais was reached in due course, a calm and slightly foggy Channel crossed, and at Victoria the two separated, Ronald Halkett going to his club, Staire to the rooms he had always kept in St. James' Place.

He had a good deal to do and some delicate negotiations to carry out; his spare time was given to friends, and he forgot all about the Wareham family and his conversation with Ronald Halkett until just before the conclusion of his stay in London.

It was a brisk pleasant morning, and knowing he would get little chance for exercise later he went for a sharp half-hour's walk in the Park, and was just approaching the Albert Gate to go to his next appointment, when he saw a small Pekinese dog suddenly run out from the path and start to cross the roadway.

The policeman saw him too, his attention called by the sudden cries of his mistress who stood waving her hands helplessly as the little brown thing stopped, looked back, started to run and changed his mind. Staire uttered a stifled exclamation; he loved dogs and he hated to see one hurt, but he was too far away to help, and the policeman flung up his hand at the same moment to stop the traffic—too late—for a great limousine swerving violently in the effort to avoid the little creature, caught him as he dodged and rolled him over.

Everything pulled up with grinding of brakes and slipping of tires on the muddy road. The dog's owner making no attempt to see what had happened, shrieked and stood still. A crowd was collecting, when suddenly from a car somewhere behind, a girl leaped out, slipped in between the vehicles, knelt, then sprawled flat in the mud to stretch farther, and hauled out from under the car a small bedraggled dog, very frightened, very dirty and apparently not in the least hurt.

The girl got up, her light beige-colored coat and darker fox furs stained and wet, a smudge right across her cheek and her hat half off and soothing the terrified little animal, threaded an unconcerned way to the footpath and seized the distracted owner by the arm.

"He's anot hurt," she said in a clear scornful voice. "I've felt all his bones, but he's frightened to death and probably bruised, poor little chap."

"Tookoo—oh, my angel—Tookoo!" The other woman almost snatched the dog, barely giving his rescuer a glance, and cuddled him against her face in extravagant relief, whereupon the girl, pulling off her hat, gave it a shake to remove the mud and let a considerable splash fall on the other's coat.

"If you love him as much as all that why the devil don't you look after him in traffic?" she demanded sudden fury in her young voice. "All you could do was to stand and yelp! People like you aren't fit to have dogs!"

And faintly flushed, very muddy and rather amused at her own anger she swung under the railing, went to her own car, and got in, not in the least discomposed at the remark of a cockney loafer standing near.

"That's right miss. You give her hell!"

Rather an attractive type, Staire thought, as he walked on; he liked her quick, decided movements; her flare of temper with the silly half-hysterical woman who was by now in a finely indignant rage; her utter disregard of the staring eyes and amused smiles around her. She had poise as well as youth. Something vital about her, he wondered who she was, and saw her the very next day riding a fidgety bay.

"Who's that girl, d'you know?" he asked of his companion, one of the secretaries at the French Embassy.

Young Raoul Deschamps answered in a tone that betrayed wholehearted admiration: TTYes, indeed. She lives in Paris. That is Mademoiselle Toni Wareham. Her mother, Lady Alice Wareham, is a friend of my mother's. We dine there sometimes, and Mademoiselle Toni is a friend of my wife's."

So that was the young sister-in-law Ronald Halkett had talked about. Odd that he should have seen that little incident of the dog, somehow he could not get her out of his mind and the realization troubled him. Always before it had been easy to dismiss any personality from his thoughts, if he so desired; but this slip of a girl with her fair clean cut face, intolerant blue eyes and clear scornful voice entirely refused to be dismissed, and the way she kept intruding into his thoughts began to annoy him.

Ronald's words recurred to him.

"Entirely modern and considers love and marriage the last pathetic illusion of the nineteenth century."

Not a type to admire; merely another silly young girl, who thought that her particular set of equally silly and ignorant friends had solved the problems of humanity by disregarding its fundamental decencies they were not even clever in their contempt for everything but their own opinions and desires; they were stupid, and so young that they were appallingly dull. Deliberately, he refused an invitation to a dinner where he heard she would be, and invited himself to dine with his godmother an elderly semi-invalid who lived alone with her servants in an extremely dull Victorian house overlooking the Park from Prince's Gate.

Old Mrs. Prinsepp was half-blind and very lonely; she was not particularly rich nor particularly interesting, and Staire always wondered why his parents had asked her to be a godmother; but he was sorry for her loneliness, and invariably made a point of setting aside one evening to see her and give her the latest news.

She greeted him with such pleasure that, as always, he was touched; and they had quite a pleasant dinner despite the Victorian horrors of the gloomy dining-room, the acres of white tablecloth and the heavy breathing of the elderly and too fat butler. Mrs. Prinsepp knew good food and good wine, and tor the visit of such a beloved guest served both; also she was so much more cheerful than usual that Staire presently asked her what particularly pleasing thing had been happening to her lately.

She smiled, her tired old face lighting up.

"I've been having a delightful visitor, my dear, coming to see me every day for the last week. Dear me, I've been quite gay! She took me to Queen's Hall—you know I don't care to hear music with Raines"—Raines was her maid—"she's so unsympathetic; and I can't see well enough to go alone. Then she has taken me to a lecture by the great explorer—Cartier—and always she has come in the afternoon or early evening to read or talk to me. It's been wonderful! I feel refreshed in mind and body."

"You look it!" he said heartily. "I'm delighted you've had such pleasure. Do I know this friend of yours?"

"No, my dear; I don't think so. She is quite a young girl and you don't like young girls. I knew her father and talk to her about him. She is very modern, but I like the modern girl. She may talk of things we were almost shocked to think about, and she may be quite indifferent as to how much of her body she shows, but she is capable and generally sincere; she is not a cat and she has a mind of her own!"

"But godmother—" Mrs. Prinsepp liked the old-fashioned title and Staire used it to please her—"look at the result of the modern freedom! The divorces, the slackness of form, the disregard of others—there's no illusion left any more among them; and if women lose all their illusions it's a bad outlook for the world at large."

"My dear boy, you are speaking of the modern woman, not the modern girl. It's quite a different subject. The modern girl can see what the generation ahead of her has made of life, and take warning. She won't make the same mistakes if she can help it."

"But you've not told me the name of this new friend of yours who comes every day to see and read to you. I may know her after all."

"Her name is Antonia wareham, Toni is the name she goes by. Her home is in Paris, but she is over here just now."

Toni Wareham again! She was beginning to get on his nerves, and he felt irritated and yet attracted. He could not forget that gallant, muddy, slender figure soothing the frightened dog, or rid his memory of the sound of the young voice, so scornful and careless.

"If you love him so, why the devil don't you look after him?"

She was certainly original, this young sister-in-law of Ronald Halkett's, but he did not want to meet her. He disliked young girls, they bored him with their egotism, their naive assumption that they had experienced everything and found it eanting; they had neither worldly knowledge, nor poise. A woman must be mondaine or she did notinterest him.

He saw her once more, again riding in the Row, in a short covert-coat and Jodhpur breeches, astride a bay mare, and the picture of her teased his brain on the journey back to Paris so that once there—discovering she had not yet returned—he asked Ronald Halkett to take him to call on Lady Alice. Thus far he humored himself, but beyond that he would not go, and as luck would have it he was able to avoid meeting her al that winter, for her set was not his even in the comparatively small English group in Paris—their difference in years keeping them apart.

The fire of ambition burned so fiercely within him that he had no room for other fires, and he resented Toni Wareham's intrusion into his thoughts and memory. Working harder than ever, he sought to put her out of his mind, refusing even Ronald's invitations on the plea of stress of work, and staying solely with his friends of the diplomatic circle.

One night in the spring Staire was dining at the Ritz with a Russian friend of his, Princess Helena Ilensky, when a big loosely-made man came across the restaurant and was shown to a table close by. He was rather good-looking, but there was something singularly unpleasant about his face. Yet there was about him a sense of power that drew the eye and focused the attention, a power at once repellent, yet not without a possible fascination for some people, more especially those women who knew little of the unpleasant side of life, and sensed only his vitality and evident strength.

Staire, not yet conversant with all the gossip of Paris, looked at him and felt a little qualm of distate, yet was aware in some dim corneref his memory that he knew him.

"Who's the unpleasant individual at the next table on my right, Helena?" he asked in a low tone. "I've a vague idea I know him."

"Probably—but not very well I should imagine. His name"—her voice was barely audible—" "is Henru D'Arblaye. M. le Comte D'Arblaye. He's very well known here in a certain way."

Staire nodded. He remembered.

"Yes; I thought so. Four years ago in Madrid he got himself mixed up in rather an unpleasant scandal, and if it hadn't been for a good deal of wire-pulling he might have been arrested. Does he live here?"

"Most of the year, yes. He is very rich, so he is accepted in a certain set. Moi, je ne le connais pas."

"I imagine not," Staire said with a little smile. "You say he is very rich?"

"Very. And he can be amusing. He plays the piano marvellously. The American Colony like him, and probably do not know much about his habits. He is quite clever enough not to fluant any peculiarities. And he is, after all, of the Faubourgs."

"So? Shall we dance?"

The orchestra was playing a tango, and they forgot Henri D'Arblaye in the pleasure of rhythm and perfect movement, but Staire felt himself unpleasantly impressed by what he had heard, and resolved that D'Arblaye should be given a wide berth. He had none of the post-war tolerance of certain things, and he was sufficiently du monde to be able to take firm stand. If M. le Comte wanted the entree into any circle to which his, Staire's introduction, could pass him, M. le Comte would not get it.

Princess Helena Ilensky's remark—that in a certain set D'Arblaye was received and welcomed—was true enough however, for later that very evening, when she had left with Staire Ronald Halkett arrived with his wife to meet their American hostess who was collecting her guests at the Ritz and taking them on to the Florida; and among those guests was D'Arblaye. Mrs. Dorn was a kindly, handsome, gray-haired woman, with absolutely no sense of discrimination so long as the guest in question knew how to behave at table and was well dressed.

Greta Halkett, slender, exquisite, with a fair pale beauty that was arresting in its delicate perfection, looked around the group, deliberately appraising their capacity and will to amuse and admire her—and her eyes rested longest on D'Arblaye, who in his turn reading her veiled interest in himself felt his pulses quicken.

She was certainly lovely and soignee to the last hair of her pale golden head; he liked her well-bred indifference, her air of distinction, and foresaw an evening not devoid of interest; and among Mrs. Dorn's guests—many of them merely birds of passage through Paris—there was no one to whisper some unpleasant remark or word of warning about him.

He hardly spoke to Greta till after dinner, for they were not sitting together; but afterwards at the Florida he asked immediately for a dance and Greta relinquished herself to him for a tango.

Despite his weight—he was too heavy for his forty-two years—he danced superbly, and his great strength, so controlled and easy, pleased Greta. She determined to attach him to herself, and discover whether this man were susceptible to her beauty. For to Greta only one thing in the world was really of moment to her—herself. She believed she loved her husband and, in a lesser degree, her family; but deep beneath any other emotion was that of her inexhaustible vanity—a vanity that was almost unconscious so greedy was it, so much her second self. Naturally a cold woman she yet deliberatelyroused passion in men, solely to feed that flame of egotism that burned so eternally behind the Madonna-like beauty of her face.

Why she had married Ronald she did not know, unless it was because marriage gave her more freedom than girlhood, and at the moment when Ronald asked her she was more than usually bored. There, had been so many lovers, but all those who desired to marry her wanted something for themselves. They demanded a return for their love, warmth, response, ardor—and Ronald was different; his love was like his own character, selfless, asking only permission to serve and adore her.

If since marriage her utter coldness had destroyed his illusion, driven an iron into his soul no one knew; and Greta did not care to qnd out. She was pleasant tempered, again because her vanity demanded that everyone should fall under her spell; but she had no interest in probing beneath the surface, and whether Ronald suffered, or whether he was content, no one knew and perhaps only one person guessed Toni. And Toni kept her guesses to herself.

She Suffered With Painful Backache

Dodd's Kidney Pills Brought Her Relief

"For weeks I suffered with terrible pains in my back," writes Mrs. A. Ward, 37 Bristol St., Hamilton, Ont. "I couldn't find any relief from the medicine I was using. Seeing an advertisement for Dodd's Kidney Pills I tried them, and much to my surprise the pain started to disappear. Now I am as well as ever, thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become a family remedy all over the country because people have tried them and found them good. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy, that can be taken by old and young alike. Ask your neighbors about them. 669

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 16.—Butter and egg prices advanced, while potato quotations were lower and cheese prices held unchanged on the produce and dairy market here yesterday.

No. 1 finest pasteurized creamery, fresh and regraded, butter was a half a cent higher at 20c to 20½c a pound and to retailers solids and prints were unchanged at 21c and 22c a pound. Recepits were 1,369 boxes.

On the egg market carlot prices of fresh Ontario and Prairie extras gained a half a cent at 23c to 20½c, while firsts and seconds were unchanged at 17c and 15c a dozen, respectively. British Columbia fresh extras in carlots, also advanced a half a cent at 21c to 21½c with firsts unchanged at 18c a dozen. Quotations to retailers were unchanged. Receipts were 2,978 cases.

New Brunswick Green Mountain potatoes or Prince Edward Island Cobblers were 10c to 15c lower at 60c to 70c per 80-pound bag, or 90 pounds bulk, and to retailers were also down 10c to 15c at 70c to 80c per 80-pound bag. New No. 1 Floridas were unchanged at $7.50 per 160-pound barrel, but No. 2 stock lost a dollar at $5 a barrel.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 16.—Fears that Canadian drought conditions would be intensified and harvest yields would suffer gave and upward trend to wheat prices yesterday. Only scattered showers in Canada were reported, and the outlook was for rainless skies, high temperatures and renewal of dust storms. Average rainfall since April in Prairie Provinces, Canadas' main wheat belt, was reported as only 0.28 to 0.69 inches, compared with 1.81 to 2.70 inches this time last year.

Wheat closed nervous, unchanged to ½c higher, corn unchanged to ⅝ down, oats unchanged to 1c off and provisions unchanged to 10c decline.

BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., May 16.—Hogs, 2,200; active; mostly to packers; generally 15 to 25 higher; bulk, desirable 120 to 200 lbs, $7.75; top $7.85; plainer kinds, $7.65; 275 lb. butchers, $7.15.

Cattle 125; cows predominating; slow; steady; cutter grades $2.50 to $4.00; steers unsold.

Calves 800; dependable vealer trade; steady; good to choice $8.50 to mostly $9.00.

Sheep 1,700; lambs unevenly 50 to 75c lower; fairly active at decline; good to choice clippers mostly $9.00; some held higher; medium to good springers, $12.00; fat ewes 50c lower, $2.50 to $3.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 16. — Abnormally high temperatures in the Prairie Provinces exerted a steadying influence in dull trading on the wheat pit here yesterday. Values at the close were ½c to ⅝c higher than Thursday's closing level.

May closed at 62c, up ½c; July, at 62⅝c to ⅝c was up ⅝c, while October was up ½ cat 64⅝c to 64½c.

A wave of midsummer heat covers the Prairies with no relief in sight. Export trade did not enter the market as a trading factor, sales were small. Speculaitve interest likewise was dormant and pit trade as a consequence was uninteresting.

Cash and coarse grains in limited trading showed no appreciable change in price.

will be a court of record, will have the authority of examining witnesses under oath and compelling their attendance.

Board to Investigate

Investigation of all factors entering into the cost of production, including transportation rates and levels of raw materials both in Canada and elsewhere, will be made by the board. Recommendations designed to equalise production costs—Canada with those in other countries, through the medium of the tariff, will be made directly to the Minister of Finance.

Enumeration of these details led Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King to observe the Government, when assuming office, found a board already established. The need for the present legislation arose from the former board's abolition by the Government. The fact a new board was being set up led the Liberal Leader to believe Mr. Bennett had in mind his drastic tariff changes when he abolished the old board. The Premier, evidently did not desire a tariff board in existence when affecting the changes.

The former board, explained the Premier, was appointed by order-in-council and possessed no legislative authority. It was not a court of record; had no power to institute inquiries or to examine witnesses under oath. It was properly described as "a political body sitting in a Red Chamber." It was merely a gigantic bluff without power and without authority.

A. A. Heaps (Lab., Winnipeg North) said the only difference he could see between the two boards would be three good Conservatives in place of three good Liberals. Apparently the board was to determine what protection Canadian manufacturers should receive. Rather than this, what should be protected were the men and women engaged in industry.

When estimates for the Department of external affairs were before the House, Mr. King asked for an explanation from the Government of Hon. Vincent Massey's resignation from the High Commissionership. It was purely voluntary on Mr. Massey's part, replied the Premier, and it was necessary that a man in sympathy with the administration be in London where, actually he operated several Departments of the Government. The duties of a Minister and of the High Commissioner were not analogous.

Put Thumbscrews on Massey.

The Liberal Leader, however, charged Mr. Bennett with having put the thumbscrews on Mr. Massey and with forcing him to resign. If Mr. Massey had remained in Washington, he would not have been disturbed, countered the Premier, just as the Canadian Ministers to Japan and France had remained in those posts.

During the cross-chamber fire, both the Premier and the Liberal Leader drew ire from each other, and on one occasion, both withdrew statement they had made which reflected on the other.

Canada took another step toward abolishing war when a resolution calling for the approval of portions of the 1926 General Act of the League of Nations was endorsed unanimously. In effect, it provided for the Pacific settlement by arbitration of international disputes not justifiable by the World Court.

CADETS INSPECTED

Herrick Brown won the cup for being the best shot in Form I. of the High School, and Robert Nicholls for being the best shot in Forms II. and III. The medal for being the smartest Cadet in the corps was awarded to Bob Lennox.

Major Cartmer congratulated the staff of the High School, the Cadet instructor, the officers, and boys on their drill and marching, which was steady, and the general appearance on parade was good.

There were cheers for His Majesty the King, Major Cartmer, Mr. Harvey, principal of the High School, Mr. Chaplin, and Mr. Ridpath. Mr. Ridpath granted Major Cartmer's request for an afternoon's holiday, and congratulated the corps on their fine showing and appearance.

GROVE INSPECTION.

The annual Cadet inspection at The Grove was held on Thursday afternoon with a large attendance of friends of the school and parents of boys present. The weather was ideal and the big playground, bordered with trees fast coming into full leaf, with the lake in the offing, made a very attractive background. The inspecting officer was Major Cartmer of Kingston, who was accompanied by his son, who is one of the "army of old boys of The Grove," which is yearly becoming larger.

The Cadet Corps ,about seventy strong, was accompanied by the bugle band led by Beardmore. The Cadet captain, John H. Govan, was a smart, trim officer, who led the corps like a veteran. The drill and marching reflected great credit on the Cadets and on their instructor, T. W. B. Marling. The march-past was a feature and showed good training and a fine esprit de corps. The company leaders were the Carson brothers, Burgess was the officer of the colors, and Miall, the company sergeant-major.

Presentation.

The presentation of medals for shooting was a highly interesting part of the program. The D.C.R.A. medal was won by H. Le Bourgeois, while Miall received a second class medal, and seven second class junior medals were presented. The Laura Secord medals were not presented on Thursday, but were won by Miall (first) and Carter 1 (second).

The physical training was under the capable and efficient direction of Mr. J. W. Smith, an ex-Grove pupil and an R.M.C. student. Besides the bending exercises and the leap frog and "pig tail" exercises, which have been enjoyed by pupils and spectators in past years, the introduction of diving, cart wheels, somersaults, and stunt work kept the crowd thrilled and the spontaneous applause was just a small evidence of the appreciation. The grand climax came when a pyramid of boys gave the Grove yell.

Major Cartmer addressed the corps and their officers and instructors. He expressed his pleasure at being sent to Lakefield to inspect the Cadet Corps, and said: "At The Grove, you have one of the best headmasters in Canada in Dr. Mackenzie, and one of the best Cadet instructors in Mr. Marling and another in Mr. Smith. The corps was smart, and the marching, drill, and "p.t." exceptionally good." He stressed the need for appreciation of the service side of Cadet work as it helps in many ways. Go into the Militia and keep your hand in in rifle work. An old Bisley man once said he never saw a good shot go wrong in life. In closing Major Cartmer asked for a half-holiday for the school, which was granted at once.

There were rousing cheers for His Majesty the King, for Major Cartmer, Dr. Mackenzie, Mr. Marling, and Mr. Smith, and the corps marched off the field.

The guests were entertained at tea by Dr. and Mrs. Mackenzie.

CAMPBELLFORD TAX RATE LESS

by-law striking the 11-mill rate for both schools presented and passed.

Collector Appointed

A by-law appointing J. D. Cummings as tax collector for the current year at the same salary, which is $500.00, was presented by Reeve Stone. Speaking to the motion before its passage, Councillor McKeel asked if this position had been duly advertised in the press, to which he was given a negative reply.

Mayor Bygott stated that it had not been customary in the case of the tax collector to advertise unless a resignation was tendered.

Councillor Thompson agreed with Councillor McKeel in this matter, pointing out, however, that it would be hard to get a better man for the job than Mr. Cummings.

The clerk pointed out that the work of the collector was continuous, as the rolls were carried over from year to year; this year being later than usual.

The feeling of the council was in sympathy toward Councillor McKeel's idea, which he defined as a moral gesture; but it was felt that it was too late now to act upon the suggestion. On the question being put the appointment carried.

Constable Question

Reeve Stone brought before the council the matter of the motion which was passed at the last regular meeting, stating that Constable Hardy should sign the same agreement as the Chief of Police, namely a straight salary and no fees allowed. He stated that Constable Hardy refused to sign any such agreement. His fees were very small, he had stated, and he thought that he was entitled to a raise in salary. It was understood by him when he was hired that he should get fees.

Deputy Reeve MacColl pointed out that Hardy was in a different position to the Chief, being a night man and having to lose his day when called into court, and he thought that he should have the fees.

This matter was discussed by the council, and it was decided to let the matter stand as it was and to withdraw the signing of the agreement.

Councillor Thompson asked the council if the township of Seymour paid any money to the Campbellford Public Library for partial maintainence. Councillor McKeel pointed out that every user of the library from the township paid at the rate of $2.50 a year for a card, while the town were obligated at the rate of 50 cents per head per residents, in reality paying more than this amount. The matter of the Seymour users was all right he thought but what he objected to was that outside organizations used the library room for meetings and did not pay a fee.

Mayor Bygott asked the council to take action in regard to the renting of the old Town Hall to the Water and Light Commission. The commission had approached them on the subject, and he asked that some action be taken now. After discussion, Councillor Carr moved that the Commission Board submit plans for the improvement they were willing to put on the building if they were given the lease, at the next regular meeting of the council. This motion carried.

CONTRACTOR AND ALSO DESIGNER

Thomas C. Ephgrave Has High Standing as General Contractor.

LICENSED ADJUSTER.

Throughout this region Mr. Thomas C. Ephgrave has attained an enviable reputation as an able general contractor. He is also an appraiser and licensed adjustor. He takes great pride in his building and leaves nothing undone which will keep his work from holding a conspicious place in the community. The houses built by him are cleverly designed and well constructed. Inherent ability is manifested in the roomy, convenient, well planned and executed homes that he builds. Only expert building men, who carry out his instructions to the letter, are employed by Mr. Ephgrave. He is well informed and experienced in all classes of construction work and repairs, and is an accepted authority upon such subjects. No matter how large or small your building or repair job may be, you may be well assured of satisfactory results if you procure the services of this efficient contractor and builder.

If you are contemplating building you will find it distinctly to your interest to consult with Mr. Ephgrave. Call and look over designs or submit your ideas to him and let him incorporate them in designs for you. He will be glad to go over plans with you, whether you build at this time or not, and this service in no way obligates you. He is glad to furnish you estimates.

The name of Ephgrave stands for honest effort and reliability. He builds for permanence—a construction specialist, not merely a contractor. Only first class building materials are used by him, and to his efforts many of the fine residences and buildings of Peterborough are due. The work performed by him is done not only efficiently, but promptly. It is a pleasure to point out this able contractor as a foremost specialist in his line, and as one of our leading citizens. Do you know two outstanding contracts that have been handled by Mr. Thomas C. Ephgrave?

Harmony that mingles Beauty with Stamina

Brantford Asphalt Slates are unequalled in the richness of their colour combinations.

They are made in a wide range of treatments to harmonize with the outside of your home and its surroundings.

Yet for all their beauty Brantford Roofs have a ruggedness that can absorb years of constant warfare with the weather and come out unscathed even after the worst conditions of climate.

Probably you know their reputation for fire-resistance. That Brantford Roofs are not ignited by, nor give off, sparks or flaming brands is a well-known fact.

Brantford Asphalt Slates combine the three essentials of fine roofs—beauty, fire-safety and weather-resistance. Yet they cost little and do not require upkeep or repairs. Ask your dealer for an estimate.

And NOW the FUTURE Beckons

THE 42,500 ton Empress of Britain, due to arrive at Quebec on June 1st on her maiden voyage, embodies a superlative achievement which crowns the efforts of fifty years, and in her also Canada is typified, in her length and breadth and height, with ample room for her population.

On the Empress you might be living on a swift-moving island, where now and again you stroll by the sea. Your private apartments are roomily luxurious with all the pleasures of a country club a deck or so away. On no ship in the world has the individual passenger more living and play space, nor a greater number of diversions gathered closer for his enjoyment. Five days at sea are all too short, but next December the Empress of Britain will set sail to encircle the world on a cruise lasting over four months. What better way to spend a winter of leisure?

FIFTY years have welded the Canadian Pacific into one harmonious organization effective alike on land and sea. It is the significant transportation system of a nation that is becoming a world power, with an export trade which is being extended to every country on the globe.

The red and white chequer'd flag on Canadian Pacific Steamships carries around the world the story of Canada's growth.

CANADIAN PACIFIC TODAY

The Empress of Britain is Canada's Challenger on the Atlantic. For the first time in Atlantic history a ship has been built with every first-class bedroom an outside one with natural light and air. To Canada belongs this innovation . . . The Canadian Pacific Railway runs from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. Its liners sail from Vancouver and Victoria to Japan and China, and from Montreal, Quebec and Saint John to Great Britain and the Continent. It operates winter cruises to the Mediterranean, the West Indies and Round the World; summer cruises to Norway; a winter service to Bermuda, and a coastal service to Alaska. Its chateaux and hotels represent the latest word in comfort and luxury. Its telegraph service employs 225,000 miles of wire. Its express travellers' cheques are current all over the world. Canadian Pacific offices and agents are to be found everywhere.

IMPROVEMENT IN TALKER TECHNIC

Microphones and Cameras Now Movable Around the Set.

LESS SOUND TROUBLE.

In a little more than four years the technique of making talking pictures has advanced from confinement to freedom, from stiffness and rigidity to a flexibility and ease of movement that would have astonished the men who first experimented with audible films. The cumbersome old refrigerator type of camera booth has become a thing of the past; the microphone, once rooted to a single spot during the recording of a scene, now travels about the set at the will of the director; the mechanics of sound insulation have been revolutionized.

On every sound-stage, when talking pictures began to be produced, was a sort of wooden sentry-box 5 feet square and about 7 feet high. Within this box was the camera. The walls of the box were thickly padded. At one end was a large plate-glass window through which the camera "shot." The walls and the padding were there to prevent the grinding of the camera being caught and recorded by the microphone. The whole apparatus weighed anywhere between one and two tons. That is why, in the early "talkies", the old freedom of movement of the camera, with the resulting variety of "shots," had to be abandoned.

It was an unsatisfactory situation, and many months were spent by the technical engineers of the various studios in trying to restore the camera's lost liberty. Up to the present time it has been found impossible to make the apparatus absolutely noiseless, and the difficulty was met by the so-called camera "blimp"—a muffling apparatus made of celluloid, felt and cotton which fits over the head of the machine. It weighs only 100 pounds and is fire, water and sound-proof; and with its use the moving of the camera to whatever angles are desired has become perfectly easy once more, as in the silent days.

A similar liberation has come to the microphone, which at first, like the camera, was stationary. In those primitive days—which lasted, however, until less than two years ago—it was the practice to plant "mikes" "over the set. Frequently as many as six or eight were used to record a single scene.

"When you speak that line stand near that flower pot," the director used to say. "The mike that will pick up your voice is hidden there."

But nowadays, instead of the player following the microphone, it is the other way around; and the tendency more and more is for only one microphone to be used on a set. This is the case, for instance, in the filming of "Svengali." For the modern microphone is movable; it is mounted on the end of the arm of an inverted L, and this arm can be moved in any direction from a universal joint—up, down or sideways. Also the arm can be telescoped—that it, lengthened or shortened within a range of some thirty feet. And it makes no noise whatever.

The employment of one microphone instead of a half a dozen has greatly simplified the work of the sound engineer, or "mixer," who regulates the volume of sound as it is recorded. With six or eight mikes to handle, it was anything but easy to avoid the necessity of re-takes which ran into considerable time and money. Nowadays it is seldom necessary to retake a scene because of an error in recording.

The early "talkies" were all made indoors on heavily padded stages, sound-proof and air-tight. Echoes were a constant terror. One by one the producing companies ventured into the great outdoors, and found that the menace of extraneous sounds was much easier to overcome than had been feared. It is still necessary to take elaborate measurs to warn off airplanes, for instance, when an open-air scene is being made; but the technique of the microphone has proved equal to all the obstacles encountered.

SCREEN AND STAGE NOTES

The Brooklyn Vitaphone Studio has completed "The Bigger They Are," which will introduce Primo Carnera to the screen. It will be ready for showing before Carnera's bout with Jack Sharkey at Ebbets Field in June.

Erin O'Brien More, the young actress who played for two and a half years as the daughter in "Street Scene" in New York, London and Chicago, has been engaged by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for motion picture work.

"Alexander Hamilton," the picture which George Arliss is now making at the Warne studios in California, will probably be completed within the next fortnight. "Alexander Hamilton" is based on the stage play by Mr. Arliss and Mary P. Hamlin and is being directed by John Adolfi. Among those in the cast are Doris Kenyon, Dudley Digges, Alan Mowbray, June Collyer and Montagu Love.

The premiere of Maurice Chevalier's romantic comedy, "The Smiling Lieutenant," will take place at the Criterion, New York, May 22. Ernest Lubitch, who made "The Love Parade," is the director. Ernest Vajda and Samuel Ralphaelson wrote the story. Oscar Straus composed the songs and musical score. Claudette Colbert, Miriam Hopkins and Charles Ruggles are the chief supporting players.

The new Joe E. Brown comedy, "Broad Minded" is finished and will have an early Broadway showing. The story is that of a playboy (William Collier Jr.), whose father puts him in charge of his reliable, steady cousin (Mr. Brown), with orders to stay away from feminine entaglements. Most of the action takes place at a fashionable hotel thronged with such wily females as Ona Munson, Marjorie White and Thelma Todd.

Clark Gable, the young actor who apeared in "The Secret Six," "Dance, Fools, Dance," and "The Finger Points," will have the principal role opposite Greta Garbo in "Susan Lenox.' Mr. Gable was engaged on a contract by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer while playing in a stage production of "The Last Mile" on the Coast. The further news about the new Garbo picture is that Robert Z. Leonard who directed Marion Davies in "It's a Wise Child" and the newly completed "Five and Ten," has been assigned direction of the picture. "Susan Lenox" is an adaptation of the novel and play by David Graham Phillips.

Peggy Shanonn, the auburn-haired young actress, who recently invaded Hollywood's hills from Broadway, was awarded the leading role in "The Secret Call," which Clara Bow was preparing to play at the Paramount Studio. Not so long ago Sylvia Sidney had a similar opportunity in "City Streets," when the same Miss Bow was taken ill and forced to rest. Miss Shannon's brief stage career was climaxed with her appearance this season opposite Ernest Truex in "Napi." She went to Hollywood only a fortnight ago as one of the first arrivals among the ten youthful stage players recruited by Paramount and was awaiting an assignment to a small role in another picture at the time opportunity knocked.

Ann Harding and her husband, Harry Bannister, were weather bound in Wichita, Kans., two days on account of a low "ceiling,' which made travel to Los Angeles in their plane hazardous. Meanwhile Miss Harding received reporters and bevys of film fans who called at her hotel. Her attitude was made more noticeable because Ethel Barrymore, just previously playing at the Crawford theatre, denied herself to all newspapermen on the pretext that she was tired. In consequence the Barrymore was severely criticized by the press. It's an instance designating why pictures have so far outrun legit, and Miss Harding knows the legit end, too.

Arraigned for socking a process server who came to his home to serve him in a laundryman's suit to collect $20, Morton Downey, singer, was found guilty and given a suspended sentence in Yorkville Court. Downey pleaded he socked the process server for using obscene language.

"Motion Picture Classic," fan magazine, will launch a campaign endeavouring to bring Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle back to films. Campaign will start with a sympathetic article and calls fro mpicture goers for pro and con letters. Several months ago one of the comedy lots gave Roscoe Arbuckle a conditional five-year contract to be effective if it were found that public opinion was not still against the comedian. A four-line newspaper report to this effect brought a storm of protest from women's clubs, and the plan was dropped. Currently Arbuckle is directing at Pathe under the screen name of Will Goodrich, a version of his earlier cognomen, Will B. Good.

The adequately financed Chamber of Commerce provides the organization which can carefully weigh all matters pertaining to the City and its developments.

Youthful Bandits Nabbed

SHOOTS AND CAPTURES BANDIT

Here are two sturdy French-Canadian brothers, Cuthbert and William la Ferriere of Silver Plains, Manitoba. Bandits robbed their filling station whilst the proprietors slept. About a week later the robbers returned for a second looting. But when Cuthbert, with the gun, greeted them with a round of buckshot, the one dropped, shot in the thigh. The other escaped and was later picked up by Winnipeg suburban police and turned over to the juvenile court.

MASSEY PICKED BY FERGUSON

King Tells Commons Suggestion Was Made During 'Phone Message.

BEFORE ELECTION.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, now High Commissioner in London, urged the appointment of Hon. Vincent Massey to that post. This was one of the interesting bits of reecnt political history which came out during the debate in the House of Commons last night on the vote of money for the High Commissioner's office.

Mr. Ferguson did not make the recommendation to Premier Bennett, however. It was before the election and the suggestion was made to ex-Premier Mackenzie King. Mr. King told about it in the House last night in defending Mr. Massey's qualification for the post.

"Shortly after Mr. Larkin's death," he said, "I had a long-distance conversation with Mr. Ferguson, who was then Prime Minister of Ontario, on another matter. He said, 'I would like to make a suggestion if I may. That is that you appoint Mr. Massey to London. No better appointment could be made."

Bernstein Believes The Stage Is Doomed

NEW YORK, May 16.—"Talking pictures have elevated the screen to the point where there is no longer any doubt that they will completely wipe out the legitimate theatre."

That comes from a dramatist, Henry Bernstein, for the stage famous throughout the world. He has never writen for the screen or had any of his plays turned into pictures.

Bernstein, ranking French playwright, is in New York for his first visit, despite several of his plays have been shown here previously. He would like to live here forever if he could only understand "the strange way in which theatres are maanged in America," the Frenchman says.

KEYSTONE COPS

Mack Sennett's original Keystone cops have shaken the moth balls out of their tattered uniforms, polished the rust off their badges and are once more upholding the cause of cinema law and order in "Stout Hearts and Willing Hands," a burlesque on the ancient order of mortgaged farm melodramas. It is the first of a series to be made by the Hollywood Masquers, an organization of actors. Lew Cody is the villain of this film, and other principals are Mary Carr, Alec Francis and the Moore brothers—Matt, Tom and Owen.

ROMANCE AND REALITY

SOMETIMES, when you turn the pages of a book, your mind is seeking romance. You long to leave a too-familiar world...to travel with the speed of thought to far-off purple lands...to bathe in tepid, lotus-scented surf.

But your daily paper finds you in a more practical mood. Interested in real people, in the facts of the day. Looking for news of things that you may buy and enjoy—here and now.

You may find in the advertisement just what you want in the way of a better breakfast food, or a new radio, or an improved face powder. If the thing fits into your living, is practical and possible and promising—you are vitally interested. Because you are reading about yourself!

To-day, a great many things that were romantic dreams only ten years ago are common realities. Life has more color, more charm, more adventure. And the things that give it all these may be found in the advertising columns.

Advertising discusses realities—romantic ones often enough—but actual articles you can have for your own, new joys for your family, stepping stones to your happiness.

The advertisements in this paper are written for you. They are real. They are reliable. Take their advice.

An Artist Who Kept The Academy Waiting

Richard Jack

RICHARD JACK, the eminent Royal Academician, is one of the increasing number of British artists who have during recent years realized the possibilities Canada offers for land and seascape painting. From east to west, few can equal him in his knowledge of Canada's beauty spots, and during the last two years a large part of his time has been spent in putting them on canvas. Mr. Jack believes that the Rockies in particular offer unrivalled opportunities for landscape painting, and that they will attract an increasing number of British artists in the future.

This opinion is based on experience over a long period. Born in 1866 in the north of England town of Sunderland, Mr. Jack became a Royal Academician in 1900, although he first exhibited at the academy in 1893. His early training was obtained in England, but later he studied in Paris at the Academie Julian, where he was looked upon as the most brilliant student of his day. Two of his pictures, a nude and a model in costume, which hang in the rue du Dragon atelier, are not surpassed by any similar paintings at the Academie. In 1912 his "Rehearsal with Nikisch" was purchased by the Chantrey Trust.

In a general way, Richard Jack is best known as a portrait painter, although in his time he has devoted his great gifts to various phases of art. He is a member of the Royal Society of Portrait Painters, and he has done a great deal of black and white illustration work. A particularly happy experience befell him in 1926. The mayor of Fulham, a southwest suburb of London, commissioned him to paint a portrait of King George for presentation to the Fulham Borough Council. So pleased was the King with the picture that he bought it himself, allowing Mr. Jack to make a copy of it for the mayor. The picture had been painted from a uniform and decorations lent by his majesty, but when the King saw it he noticed he was wearing an ordinary badge of the Garter, whereas as monarch he wears the special jewel first worn by Charles I. This was pointed out to Mr. Jack by the King, who was also able to make a number of other helpful suggestions.

In 1927 Mr. Jack was engaged on a portrait of Queen Mary. This showed her majesty wearing a gown of gold brocade with the blue ribbon of the Garter across her corsage, ropes of diamonds and pearls, and a pendant consisting of the Koh-i-Noor diamond with two pieces of the Cullinan diamond. Mr. Jack was not quite satisfied with the effect of the light on the jewelry, and the Queen gave special permission for the artist's daughter to wear the pearls and diamonds and to pose in her place. This is probably the only occasion on which her majesty's jewelry has been worn by anyone but herself.

Royal Academicians are allowed until the first Monday each April to send in their pictures for the Academy, which is held in May, but neither the portrait of the King nor the one of the Queen could be finished in time. His majesty, fearing lest Mr. Jack might suffer professionally, himself approached the Academy authorities and secured an extension of the time limit.

Apart from the honor and pleasure of painting royalty, there is another side to the artist's life which Mr. Jack had brought home to him some months ago. It was suggested that the town council of Sunderland, the artist's home town, might like to purchase for their art gallery a picture he had painted called "Love Tunes the Shepherd's Reed." A protest, however, was raised on the ground that the lack of clothing on the figures in the picture made it unsuitable for young people. Mr. Jack treated the protest with amused exasperation. "It is so absurd," he said, "and I cannot conceive what possible objection anyone could raise to the picture. It does not even suggest nudity. It is a most innocent and proper picture; in fact, it is almost tame!"

The picture itself shows an Arcadian shepherd piping to three maidens before a background of mountains, the figures being draped from the waist downwards. Mr. Jack says he would like to see what effect there would be on the youth of Sunderland if the objectors solemnly told them that the picture was bad for their morals. He thinks they would rock with laughter. To attack a picture like this in these days of scant swimming costumes is absurd, Mr. Jack argues. "There is far more nudity in modern cinema shows and cabarets." Eventually the Sunderland council decided they could not afford the picture, but the publicity given to their attitude was probably not altogether unfavorable to the artist.

SHE WOULD ORGANIZE A WOMEN'S ORCHESTRA

MONA BATES, the talented Canadian pianist, is looking for a millionaire. She admits it quite frankly and with no apparent qualms of maiden modesty.

But this outstanding and vivacious Canadian musician, has sinister designs on her hypothetical nabob. She wants him to finance a symphony orchestra for her. It is, she hastens to explain, a brass-and-baton, rather than a butter-and-egg man that she seeks.

"I have an ambition," she says, "which I never expect to realize. And that is to build a Canadian symphony orchestra of women players. It'll never happen, because women are too vain. No one will ever succeed in bringing together in one place a sufficient number of first-rate women musicians who feel that it is not too utterly undignified to tootle a wind instrument!"

Small in stature, with slim wrists and hands that are incredibly little when one considers the prodigious things they can do to a grand piano, Miss Bates has a shrewd pair of blue eyes that take on an added twinkle when she pokes good-humored fun at her fellow-musicians, and sometimes fun of a much more acid sort at hostesses and society who try to steal the bread and butter from the mouths of artists by clinging free performances from them at meetings and entertainments.

"Of course," she continued, "women are learning. They're beginning to smoke in public, aren't they? Perhaps now that they've got on to drawing their breath in through cigarettes, they may be persuaded to blow it out again through trumpets. I'm sure I'd as soon be seen playing a bassoon in public as smoking a cigarette.

"However, I still despair of my orchestra. There is something about the distended cheeks and peering eyes of an habitual trumpet-puffer that chills the heart of the bravest lady musician. Mind, I'm certain that it would be possible to organize a first-class orchestra of women; but so long as society makes personal appearance more valuable to a woman than to a man, the brasses will be light and querulous. It's easy enough to get women who can play stringed instruments splendidly. And how divine a woman looks at a harp! Consequently we have a plethora of lady harpists. But until we women are ready to sacrifice beauty to art, I'll not have my symphony orchestra. And if that time ever does come I'll be so old that I'll have to be carried on to lead it. Perhaps by then we'll have the brasses blown by robots."

Miss Bates recoiled in horror at the suggestion that her interest in women musicians revealed her a feminist.

"Heaven's, no!" she exclaimed. "I believe that a woman's place is in the home — when she has one." And she quite frankly admits that much of her desire to organize an orchestra of women is due to her personal wish to conduct, and to the public unwillingness to appreciate a woman conductor.

"I know of no woman who has ever conducted a symphony orchestra in Canada," she said, "and but few in Europe. The male musicians who make up the orchestras object to being led by a woman — in public at least. Perhaps we could get lady horn-tootlers if we let them turn their backs to their audiences while they blow."

It was her desire to conduct that recently led Miss Bates into one of the most interesting of recent Canadian musical experiments, the formation of an orchestra of ten pianos. This performed with distinction in Toronto, a complete success.

But neither experimentation nor her gift of irony have placed Miss Bates in the forefront of Canadian pianists. Talent, developed by hard work has achieved that. An illustration of organized persistence falling little short of musical militarism is afforded by the summer school which she occasionally conducts, where pianos ring from half an hour after sunrise until sunset. Slackers are not welcome.

And because she knows thoroughly the price an artist must pay for even proficiency, Miss Bates can be very savage with the social profiteer who seeks to exploit musical guests for her own advancement. She tells several stories that illustrate this.

A pianist was the guest of a prominent manufacturer of shoes. The shoeman plagued him till he consented, much against his will, to play. Some time later the shoeman visited the pianist. After an interval, the latter gravely produced a pair of worn shoes and handed them to his astounded guest.

"I do so appreciate your great talent, Mr. So-and-so," he said gushingly. "It is a great privilege to exercise such skill as yours for the edification of humanity. Won't you please perform on these shoes for me? They've worn out, and I know you can fix them so beautifully!"

Another concerns a brilliant cellist who was invited out to tea. He arrived without his cello, but the hostess didn't know this till after the tea-cups had been passed around. Then:

"And will you play for us, Mr. Jones?" she asked.

"I'm sorry, but I did not bring my cello."

The hostess's jaw dropped. Here was disaster; her musical lion would not roar!

"What! You haven't brought your cello! But why not?"

The celebrity shrugged.

"My cello," he said softly, "does not take tea!"—Arthur Kent.

TAKEN IN

"I'VE been putting on weight, and this dress suit is rather too tight for me. Could you let it out?" said a man to a friend who occasionally did a little tailoring in his spare time.

"I've never done such a thing," was the reply, "but I'll see what I can do."

A week later the owner of the suit telephoned to ask how his suit was getting on.

"Better than I expected," said the friend. "I've let it out to four men this week!"

Probably more stories have been told of Sir James Barrie than of any contemporary author, not excepting George Bernard Shaw. The difference between the Irishman and the Scot, it has been said, is that Shaw sponsors most of those told about himself, whereas Barrie usually denies those told about him. Here is one, however, which he has never denied:

At a rehearsal of one of his plays a certain actor was far from word perfect, though presentation of the play was near. "Er-er-I-er," the actor floundered, till at last Barrie, his patience exhausted, stopped him.

"Excuse me," said the dramatist, but don't remember writing so many 'errs' in the dialogue."

The actor apologized profusely.

"Oh, well," murmured Barrie, "after all, as Pope said, 'to err is human, to orgive divine.'"

A Zealous Authority On Matters Financial

Frederick Goodenough

FREDERICK CRAUFURD GOODENOUGH is one of that select little group of bankers that guides the financial destiny of Great Britain and helps to keep London the centre of the world's money market. What he says to-day financial Britain says to-morrow!

He was born in Calcutta in 1886, but at an early age went to England to be educated. Learning was in his blood for his great-grandfather had been bishop of Carlisle, and his grandfather headmaster of Westminster school and afterwards Dean of Wells. It is not surprising, therefore, that young Goodenough was a success at Charterhouse and later at Zurich University.

But neither the church, a schoolmaster's job nor one of the learned professions tempted Frederick Goodenough as a career. He had visions of becoming a successful business man, and with this ambition as his goal he started his career by entering the service of the Hudson's Bay Company in London. There he learned much about Canada from studying the old books and records of travel, sport and adventure that were bound up with the company's business. There and then he made a mental note that Canada was a place to remember, and he did not forget to include the Dominion in his scheme for financing imperial trade, the large amount of British capital he has introduced here being evidence of his faith in Canada's future.

To-day, Frederick Goodenough is head of Barclays Bank, one of Britain's "big five," whose huge, Empire-wide organization he has built up step by step. With more than two thousand branches in England and Wales with a paid-up capital of $79,291,085, and with affiliated banks having a capital of $34,877,500 and eight hundred branches, the management of this $114,000,000 combine is a job for a superman. It is only within the last two years that Canada has been brought into Mr. Goodenough's scheme for Empire banking, but he remembered the mental note he made as a young man, and now Barclays Bank (Canada) operates in Montreal and Toronto.

Last January when the chairman of the Chase National Bank suggested that the United States should cancel her war debts in an endeavor to solve the present world depression, one of the first men to publicly back him up was Frederick Goodenough. Both these men know that war debts will probably never be paid in full.

Great Britain has already wiped out $12,750,000,000 of money owing to her, and the United States has considerably reduced the amounts due to her from Italy and France. None the less the balance is in figures that only confuse the ordinary man and stagger his imagination. When Mr. Goodenough advocates cancellation, he does so in no lighthearted way, for his experience teaches him that if a number of countries are freed from a burden that is weighing them down, they will start to live a new life in solvency and optimism and be financially equipped to go ahead.

In including Canada in an Empire-wide banking organization under the parentage of Barclays Bank in London, Mr. Goodenough said that his faith in the Dominion convinced him that the program of expansion planned by the Canadian people is one that will go forward uninterruptedly. "The Dominion," he said, "should be able to produce a great deal more as it grows and becomes populated and developed by a healthy, vigorous and progressive people. As the country is able to secure wider markets which would me prepared to purchase her products either for cash or in exchange for products from elsewhere, it should have unlimited power for expansion in the future." And, what Mr. Goodenough says he means.

While he is frequently called in to advise the British government on banking and financial questions, Frederick Goodenough does not hesitate to criticise them and to make speeches indicating a sound line of policy, although he takes no part whatever in party politics. On the condition of affairs in the old country, the government, he says, can help in various ways apart from legislation. They can set an example of drastic economy and they can deal with certain other matters which are hampering trade, such as the undesirable features of the unemployment insurance scheme — the "dole." To a very large extent, however, he believes that the solution of Britain's industrial problems lies with industry itself, that is with employers and employed.

On Indian affairs, too, Mr. Goodenough is an authority. He is a member of the India council, a very high and responsible position nowadays.

A Cosy Party With a Poisoner

A GOLDEN youth of literature — that is the only title that can be bestowed with any degree of appreciation on Richard Hughes, young English author and adventurer, who had again stepped into the limelight with his capture of the Femina Vie Heureuse prize, an award of international importance, with his novel, "A High Wind in Jamaica." For this young man has had fortune smile on his work, and his life is as colorful as his books. He has with much success played the roles of poet, playwright, adventurer, novelist and globe-trotter.

Literary London had caught a glimpse of this young man during his Oxford career, and on its completion expected that he would slip into a natural groove among those who write in the Empire's capital. But Hughes, with his flair for the unexpected, did nothing of the kind; he vanished instead into that happy hunting ground of melodrama, the Balkans. Paddling a small canoe down the Danube on a little exploration party all his own, he had the distinction of being arrested nine times in one week as a spy; and finding innocence a poor safeguard, rapidly got involved in the nearest conspiracy at hand. After a brief but glorious rebel career he made an inglorious but exciting exit from the country hidden under the seat of an automobile.

But if the Balkans did not welcome him, Morocco has. He has established a home in Tangier, the only European to buy property in the citadel.

His adventures in Morocco would fill a volume; indeed, some day they may. But here is one he is particularly fond of retelling, a tale of a tea party with the only guests himself and the town poisoner. It occurred in a tiny inland town in Morocco, and Hughes and the Arab poisoner, at one time fast friends, had quarrelled. Hughes was staying overnight at the other's home, and the quarrel brought about an unpleasant situation. The Arab sat glowering in a corner for a while, leaving the young author very undecided as to the amount of rancor he was harboring in his heart. Presently the little poisoner smiled invitingly, and said: "Would you like a cup of tea?

This seemed a bit too crude to Hughes, but there was no indication in the other's manner of whether or not he had forgotten the hot words of a few minutes past, and was offering the beverage as a signal that he was willing to make amends for his part in the dispute.

The tea was brewed and poured and then began a sort of macabre game between them; the one intent on slipping a few drops from a small bottle hid up his sleeve into the Englishman's tea, the other trying to detect it. The cups were interchanged with bows and compliments time after time. The poisoner's face showed no change of expression, and Hughes was completely at a loss as to whether his host had been successful in his deadly tactics. He would have overpowered his erstwhile friend and taken his leave immediately, but by now the game had begun to fascinate him and he felt he was capable of matching his wits against the Arab's. Finally the climax of interchanging the cups was reached, and both raised them to their lips, made loud quaffing noises, but drank no tea.

This was the signal for a swift smile on the Arab's face. He recognized he was beaten, but his malice had disappeared.

Enthusiasm Touches All Her Activities

SASKATCHEWAN is to have a real western woman for its new chatelaine at government house, Regina. Mrs. H. E. Munroe, wife of the newly appointed lieutenant-governor, was born in Manitoba, and has always lived on the prairies except for four years during the war, when she did canteen work in England, while her husband was in France. She possesses the characteristics of a western heroine, for she not only is exceptionally good looking—tall, dark, with expressive blue eyes — but excels in almost every outdoor sport. She rides, golfs, swims and skates, and is an enthusiastic hunter. Learning to use a gun at the age of 15 years, she has continued the practice, and every fall during the open season is seen returning with her share of canvas-backs and mallards.

Mrs. H. E. Munroe

Next to all forms of sport comes her love of gardening, and here she gives expression to her sense of the artistic in attractive arrangements and color combinations. At all hours of the day Mrs. Munroe may be seen examining new buds on a special rose bush or transplanting a group of gladioli to another bright corner of her beautiful Saskatoon gardens.

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Munroe have one son, William, who has recently received his commercial license for flying and expects to devote his future to this work. Their daughter, Maxine, is a first-year student at the University of Saskatchewan. Inheriting many of her mother's talents, this attractive young lady, who had previously attended Bishop Strachan school in Toronto, and St. Margaret's at Victoria, is a promising athlete, having won a place on both the swimming and track teams of the university.

When the new chatelaine of government house is not flying to some appointment in Edmonton or Winnipeg, a means of travel of which she is very fond, or touring the country about Regina in her car, she may be seen wearing a pretty rose or yellow frock—colors which are most becoming to her—presiding with charm in the picturesque red brick official residence near the Barracks as "first lady" of Saskatchewan.

He Has Linked Up Wit and Hard Work

ONE of Montreal's leading humorists has grappled with Montreal's most serious problem — that of the relief of unemployment — with at least a fair measure of success. Not in spite of his bubbling sense of fun, but because of it, his confreres assert. For a too serious man might break under the strain.

Norman Holland

But there are several reasons why Mayor Houde chose Norman Holland for the job of chairman of Montreal's industrial commission on unemployment, when that group was formed early in the winter.

Mr. Holland has a peculiar faculty of getting at the crux of a problem. He has a way of snapping red tape at once where such binder twine seems to be merely hampering to progress. To do this requires nerve. Mr. Holland has lots of that.

He is right out of politics and right out of business — a free agent.

Two years ago, though only 48 at the time, Mr. Holland retired from business, selling out all his interests, in order to devote the rest of his life to social service work—aiding all causes as they arose, Protestant, Catholic, Jewish with a fine impartiality. At the time of his retirement he had been working 14 hours a day; now he works only 16 per diem.

Holland's reputation for square dealing is well known and largely influenced his present appointment. Two highlights in his career, he often tells his friends, were when he walked into a bank in Montreal and borrowed $250,000 "on his face," and five years later when he paid back the last instalment on the loan.

Anyone delving into Norman Holland's record will note a great variety of interests and will observe, among other things, that he belongs to four golf clubs. And yet it is a fact that he has never played golf in his life. He never had the time to learn!

On the social side, Mr. Holland is rather a unique personality, having, among other things, an unusual facility for improvising—a verse, an epigram, a retort courteous, a flash of satirical wit or whatever the occasion calls for.

THE best illustration of the value of brief speech reckoned in dollars was given by Mark Twain. His story was that when he had listened for five minutes to the preacher telling of the heathen he wept and was going to contribute fifty dollars; after ten minutes more of the sermon he reduced the amount of his prospective contribution to twenty-five dollars; after half an hour more of eloquence he cut the sum to five dollars. At the end of an hour of oratory when the plate was passed he stole two dollars.

Right-Hand Man Of King George

BEHIND all the glamor of Buckingham Palace, the stately functions and the impressive ceremonies are a little corps of people whose function in life is to see to it that the wheels turn smoothly, and that the hundred and one little details of his majesty's social life are dutifully done. Sir Clive Wigram is captain of this little army. His official position is that of principal private secretary to King George.

Royal private secretaries are notoriously invisible people to the general public. And so to catch a glimpse of this man, his personal appearance and life are about the only means of bringing him into focus.

Sir Clive Wigram, above all, gives one the impression that many of his days must have been spent as a soldier; his very walk and attitude have an atmosphere of military alertness and concentration. The ghost of a uniform clings perpetually to his mufti, so to speak. He is of middle height, with brown hair and moustache. His eyes arrest attention. They are the eyes of a man who has trained himself to see things, not merely to look at them.

Of his career, the most important event that has yet befalled him took place in 1905, when Lord Kitchener was asked by the King, then Prince of Wales, to choose an A.D.C. for his Indian tour. Kitchener selected young Captain Clive Wigram, and in doing so laid the foundation of a brilliant court career which culminated in his recent appointment as the King's chief private secretary, in succession to the late Lord Stamfordham.

During the South African war he was with Kitchener's Horse, and was present at the relief of Kimberley. He was mentioned in dispatches and decorated for bravery.

During this long military career he has had war adventures in any number. But he has had others also, and one in particular remains engraved in his memory as the closest shave he has ever experienced, the one moment when his diplomacy was of no use, when he lost all his prestige as a figure of note in English life.

It occurred during the visit of the King and Queen to India in 1911. Sir Clive, always an ardent hunter, had taken the opportunity of bagging a tiger. The hunt had been successful; he had his wish fulfilled, and was returning mounted on the back of an elephant. Suddenly there was a furious stirring in the undergrowth and a berserk rhinoceros, appearing like a flash, attacked the elephant. The great beast, mad with fear, rushed wildly through the jungle with Sir Clive clutching precariously to its back. Rapidly he was loosing his grip; in only a few moments he knew he would slide off the elephant's back. Suddenly he felt himself slipping and in a moment fell to the ground, the prey of a crazed rhino. But in that moment the miracle had happened. The rhino had given up the chase and disappeared into the jungle, and Sir Clive, except for a pair of knees that shook badly, was unharmed.

EXTRA ATTENTION AROUND BROODER IS GOOD ECONOMY

Proper Start in Life Means Much to Newly Hatched Chicks.

WATCH TEMPERATURE

Place Temporary Fence Around Hover to Keep Flock Near Heat.

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S.

A proper start in life means just as much to the newly hatched chick as to a newborn babe. Even though a chick may inherit all the desirable traits of many generations of blue blooded avian aristocracy, its hereditary advantages may be completely offset by lack of proper attention during the days immediately following its exodus from the incubator. Correct brooding methods, on the other hand, will not only reduced the infant mortality rate in your flock, but will give you more robust and more productive members for your flock of the future.

Clean Quarters

Such care should start even before you are ready to receive chicks from the hatchery or to transfer them from your own incubator to hover. See that all parts of the hovers and brooder quarters are thoroughy cleaned and disinfected. Spray all parts of the room with a fairly strong solution of dip and disinfectant to guard against lice, mites and other parasites. Be sure the room is well ventilated but free from draughts. Then put sand and litter on the floor to give the chicks something to scratch in and to keep the floor covered.

See that heating units are in good order, burners clean and regulating mechanism working well. Then start your stoves, lamps or electricity running several days in advance. In this way you will be able to thoroughly familiarize yourself with operation and control of the devices. You will also have the quarters evenly warmed throughout. Place a temporary fence around each hover to keep the chicks near the source of heat making allowance for gradually enlarging it from time to time. This is usually managed by using a roll of one inch netting two feet high. Do not cut it, simply unroll a little more each time you feel that the growth of the brood demands more room.

Guard Against Chill

When the chicks are ready to be transferred or have arrived, carry them carefully in a well lined box or basket and place them gently under the hover The basket or box should be carefully covered to keep the chicks from getting chilled. After the chicks are installed in their new home, I give them some water, grit and milk. They are allowed to come out several times during the day for grit and water and each time I put them back under the hover. In this way they learn quickly and easily. My plan may mean a little more trouble at first, but my experience is that it saves time in the long run because chicks are more quickly trained to seek the hover for warmth and protection.

From this point on, detailed instructions cannot be given. Your exact procedure will depend on the kind of apparatus you employ. Follow the manufacturer's instructions carefully and watch the chicks at all times to make sure they are comfortable and growing at a satisfactory rate. A word about correct temperature will not be amiss. Many experienced poultrymen never look at a thermometer but are guided by the actions of the chicks. If they lie quietly in small contented groups, they are comfortable, but if they spread out flat, lifting their wings and panting they are too hot. Extend their fence so they can get away from the heat or if a canopy hover is used, lower the temperature. If they huddle together, they are too cold. Gently force them to hover closer to the stove by decreasing the circumference of your brooder fence or by using the brooder curtain.

Right Temperatures

These things are only learned by observation and experience If you do not care to trust your judgment in that respect, the following schedule will be found helpful. The first two or three nights the temperature at level of sleeping chicks' backs, should be between 95 and 100 degrees, but never over 100. As the chicks begin to excercise they require less heat. The latter part of the first week begin to lower the temperature gradually until it is around 85 at the end of the third week. As many chicks will be fairly well feathered by the end of the fifth week, the temperature may run between 85 and 70, being reduced until finally artificial heat is no longer required.

Avoid sudden variations at all times. An even heat is the ideal condition. The general temperature of quarters outside the hover should never be lower than 60 to 70 degrees. If it runs lower, some auxiliary means of heating should be provided.

Orchard Spraying Boosts Profits

The Economic Annalist, official organ of the Agricultural Economics Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, is authority for the following statement:

"Growers in the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia who obtained the highest receipts per acre of bearing orchard dusted and sprayed more than five times. The majority applied five or six sprays. The cost per acre of spray material in this group of frims was $11.50 and the receipts per acre $152.31. Twelve growers sprayed and dusted more than six times, but the increased return just about equalled the increase in cost per acre. The average expenditure per acre for spray and dust material on 124 farms was $11.42 and the average returns on these farms $135.92 per acre."

BARLEY IS GOOD POULTRY FEED

Vitamin A Which It Lacks is Easily Made Up By Using Cod Liver Oil.

BETTER THAN CORN

(Experimental Farms Note)

The extremely low prices obtainable for Canadian grown grains has brought the question of their use in poultry rations to the fore. Under average conditions where low prices prevail for these grains they may be marketed to much greater advantage through the medium of poultry products.

Ordinarily wheat and oats and their by-products make up the greatest percentage of poultry rations. The remainder consists of animal and mineral feeds, vitamin feeds and corn and corn products. Obviously, then, the greatest saving may be attained by substitution of a Canadian grown grain for the corn and corn products. The present relatively high price of corn serves to accentuate the desirability of such substitution.

Lacks Vitamin A

A study of the comparative analysis both total and digestible, of barley and corn shows the former to be the equal to if not slightly the superior of the latter in feeding value. In only one respect is barley markedly inferior to corn namely, in that it contains no vitamin A while corn is a good source of this vitamin. In so far as poultry is concerned a severe lack of this vitamin has a tendency to slow up growth in the young and to cause a deficiency disease known as ophthalmia (an eye disease) not uncommon to poultry. Fortunately the deficiency of barley in this vitamin is easily overcome by the use of cod liver oil, which is an excellent source of the vitamin, and which is an ingredient of most poultry mashes at the present time. Additional vitamin A may be supplied by feeding fresh cut greenfeeds, particularly alfalfa and clover, good quality alfalfa hay or alfalfa meal (leaves and blossoms).

A purely physical characteristic of barley, namely palatability, works against its value in so far as poultry are concerned. It is generally fed ground in the mash for this reason since it is then readily palatable. When used in grain mixtures, and particularly if hopper fed, the birds soon develop a taste for it, however. Contrary to general opinion barley is not particularly high in fibre, as are oats for instance.

A pamphlet, dealing with this subject in detail is available free on written request to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.—for poultry, pamphlet 128, New Series; for livestock, pamphlet 127, New Series.

AID YOUR MARKET BY CULLING OUT ALL BUCK LAMBS

Move in This Direction Means a Real Gain for Trade in General.

CO-OPERATION ASKED

Price on Buck Lambs Drops 2 Cents Per Pound Beginning July 6.

At one time practically all lambs were purchased from producers at markets at a flat price for all qualities. The price represented the average value of a load or lot.

However, the dressed product has nearly always been sold to retailers classified into various qualities; choice good carcasses bring top prices, medium, bucks, and common stuff selling at lower values. On the whole, the different qualities sell at corresponding prices in retail stores. The average of these prices for the dressed lamb corresponds to the former flat price when it was paid for the live lambs.

Selection Developed

It is difficult to make close selections according to quality of live lambs when massed in large numbers. But in the course of time some selection was developed. Better quality loads brought more than poorer, and cull lambs which were easily distinguished were taken out at lower prices. In the poorer qualities, buck lambs (excepting for the young lambs sent to the Easter and spring markets) were specially objectionable because they developed into poor quality carcasses, and as they advanced in age the meat had a strong taste which discouraged consumption of lamb meat.

As buck lambs were easily distinguishable in the loads or lots, the next development was to try to rid the market of this quality of product by separating them out and paying a lower price for them. There were two reasons for adopting this policy —first, there was no good reason whatever why male lambs should be marketed as bucks; second, the ridding of the market of this quality of meat would help greatly to increase consumption of lamb.

The effect of sorting out the poorer qualities of lambs has been to establish higher relative prices for the better qualities, equal or more than equal to the price cuts made on the poorer qualities. Equally important to the producer, the great reduction in the quantity of buck lamb meat that had to be marketed and its replacement with a corresponding quantity of high class wether lamb has strengthened demand for lamb meat.

Excellent Results

Work already done in Canada to better the quality of our lamb crop by eliminating the buck lamb has brought excellent results. The reduction of buck lambs to a small percentage of total receipts is a big factor in the growing popularity of lamb as a meat food. This year let there be no buck lambs; no loss to producers in consequence; no poor quality lamb from these bucks to help to depress the market for good quality lamb, but instead a real gain to the lamb trade in general.

The only method of insuring that the market is clear of buck lambs is to have all male lambs castrated early in the season. It is in the interests of all producers, and of the lamb trade in general, that this should be done There is, however, a minority of producers who will not do their duty unless pressure is exerted. For this reason lamb buyers have agreed to continue the cut on buck lambs during the present season.

Price Drops July 6

Beginning Monday, July 6, 1931, there will be a cut in price of 2 cents per pound on buck lambs of this season's lamb crop. This will continue throughout the season and apply to buck lambs purchased at stockyards, packling plants, or country points in the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta.

There is no reason why any producer should suffer any loss. There should be no excuse for any producer marketing buck lambs. There is every reason why the general quality of lambs should be made better by eliminating the buck lamb.

Only through very bad production practice does anyone market buck lambs after the very early lambs are ended. From the middle or at the end of June there should be no buck lambs whatsoever on the market. The man who has not tended to the male lambs long before that time is inviting trouble when he comes to market his product. All loss will be averted if farmer-producers work progressively with the handlers of dressed lamb. In fact, only as they co-operate in such ways can the market for lambs be extended.

96-Bed Sanatorium To Be Erected In N.S.

BATHURST, N. B., May 16—Announcement that construction of a 96-bed tuberculosis sanatorium, at a cost of between $250,000 and $300,000 would begin this summer was made here yesterday by Rt. Rev. P. A. Chiasson, Roman Catholic Bishop of Chatham, before a special meeting of the Gloucester County Council, and town officials.

The sanatorium will be built on the beautiful farm property three miles from Bathurst given to Bishop Chiasson some months ago by Sir James Dunn, of London, England.

ROSE BRAND ARE GOOD PRODUCTS

Canadian Packing Company is One of Peterboro's Flourishing Industries.

STRICT SANITATION.

The Canadian Packing Company, Limited, is one of our most progressive industries, and one of continual progress. They have spared no time, pains or expense in equipping their plant with the most modern machinery for the expeditious and sanitary production of quality meats and their various by-products. Their "Rose Brand" meats, lard and produce have gained renown over a wide territory because of these precautions and sanitary measures. This establishment, under the very capable management of Mr. G. S. Matthews, have made their products strike a popular chord in public approval. For general excellence Rose Brand smoked and cooked hams, cheese, eggs, sausage, breakfast bacon and Windsor bacon are unsurpassed.

The Canadian Packing Co., Ltd, has made greater strides than any other similar institution in all this territory and are steadily forging ahead. Every humane facility for the handling of their live stock has been installed and special care is given to the watering, feeding and care of the animals kept in their pens. They furnish a most convenient and dependable market for the farmers of this section, granting top market prices always. This is conducive to further expansion and growth of the live stock business here. Through business acumen and far-sighted vision, this institution was brought into reality. In so doing the men behind the organization have rendered a service that is to the mutual benefit of the shippers, stock raisers and consumers of all Peterborough and adjacent towns and country.

Visit the plant of the Canadian Packing Co., Ltd., that you may fully comprehend what rigid inspection and sanitary meat packing means. Every person who thus acquaints themselves with their health-giving products is sure to be a permanent consumer of their products. Do you know the number of people who are employed by this firm?

Poultry Grades

A supplement to the Canadian Standards for Dressed Poultry issued by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Live Stock Branch provides the following classification of kinds and sub-kinds: Chickens include squab broilers, broilers, fryers, roasters, poulards, capons and stags; Fowl include hens and roosters; the Turkey classes are young hens, young toms, old hens, and old toms; Ducks—ducklings and ducks; Geese, goslings and geese; Pigeons—squab pigeons and pigeons; and Guineas—guinea chickens and guinea fowl. Complete definitions and packing instructions are now available for distribution to interested parties through the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

NEWS IN BRIEF

(By Canadian Press)

SHRUBBERY ADDS CHARM

Carefully planted shrubbery adds charm and value to the home. Authorities agree that best effects are secured by confining the shrubs to the border and to the base of the dwelling, leaving an open lawn. In foundation planting shrubs of different heights should be chosen and the planting arranged irregularly and so placed as to conceal the alignment without completely covering the foundation.

Suitable shrubs are described by the Dominion Horticulturist in the federal Department of Agriculture bulletin No. 89, which also tells how to go about the planting.

KEEPS FEED COST DOWN

Succulent pasture and green feeds bring down the feed costs in hog raising. Not only do these feeds supply cheap nutriment but they give thrift, ensuring profitable gains from the richer feed.

According to the federal Department of Agriculture hogs turned into rape when six to eight inches high saves the farmer more than one hundred pounds of meal with every one hundred pounds of gain.

Alfalfa and red clover are both relished but according to Experimental Farm authorities alfalfa is more acceptable, particularly when fed in the quite young stage.

TOBACCO FOR THE SHEEP

Losses from unthriftiness due to internal parasites in sheep may be reduced by the feeding of tobacco to the flock. The tobacco is given with salt in the proportion of ten pounds of salt to one of crushed tobacco leaf. The leaf should be dried so that it may be broken up in a size equal to wheat bran. This when mixed with salt, slightly moistened, forms a cake which the sheep will lick when placed before them in the field pen. This recommendation is made by Dr. Lionel Stevenson, author of the federal bulletin "Common Animal Parasites Injurious to Sheep in Eastern Canada," in which he states that for a flock unused to the tobacco a slightly less proportion of tobacco should be used for a week or two at the beginning.

12 Headmistresses On Way To England

QUEBEC, Que., May 16.—(C.P.)—The party of twelve British headmistresses who have visited the principal cities and leading universities of the Dominion during the past few weeks, last night boarded the steamer Montclare on their return trip to England. Miss Thompson, who is in charge of the party, stated the teachers were favorably impressed with the universities and Public schools in Canada, where, she said, they had been warmly welcomed.

SEVERAL CROPS TO FALL BACK ON IF HAY IS SHORT

Millet Has Feeding Value Nearly Equal to That of Timothy.

CORN GIVES BIG YIELD

Many Farmers Been Getting Away From Growing Turnips and Mangels.

While meadows appear to have come through the winter in much better shape than was thought possible last fall, still the drought of 1930 and 1929 have had serious effect, and there is no doub; but that the present acreage in alfalfa, clovers and timothy is very much below normal. Heavy sales of seed this spring would indicate that eventually the shortage will be more than made up but, of course, these crops being biennial and perennial in nature there will be very little return during the present season. To make up the deficiency, one can turn to such annual crops as corn, millet and roots, all of which are sown in May or June.

It is fortunate that there is plenty of Canadian grown seed corn available this year, and as it is of excellent quality there need be no fear of results in using it. Corn is one of the best of our annual crops from the standpoint of producing abundance of roughage. It may be sown right up to the middle of June, though in most sections it is put in two or three weeks earlier. As it is usually handled as a cultivated crop, it is a splendid thing for cleaning the land. Most people put in a silo, but it may be cured in shocks in the fields and fed in that state all winter.

Millet Good

Millet has a feding value nearly equal to timothy which it somewhat resembles. Hungarian is one of the best varieties. This crop is sown in drills at the rate of three pecks per acre right up to the first week in July.

For some reason or other, many Canadian farmers have got away from the good old practice of growing roots, either turnips or mangels. In some quarters, it was thought that the labor cost was excessive, but W. J. Bell, of the Kemptville Agriculture School, a well-known agricultural authority in Eastern Canada, does not hold this view. Where the ground has been thoroughly cultivated before sowing,—and mangels do not go in much before the middle of May and turnips usually a month later, there is plenty of opportunity, —heavy yields have been secured at Kemptville at a very low cost. Last season Mr. Bell reports an average of 24 tons to the acre. Mangels should be sown while the ground still retains much of the early spring moisture, but the best turnips are produced from crops sown about the fifteenth of June. Roots are particularly valuable in adding succulence to the ration and making it more palatable. All classes of live stock thrive on them. Especially in a time like the present, when farmers are depending more on their own home mixed feeds, roots are essential for the reasons given above, and also on account of the mineral salts they contain. Where there is plenty of silage, Professor J. C. Steckley, of the Ontario Agricultural College, advocates feeding cattle at the rate of two pounds daily for every hundred pounds of live weight of the animal, and four pounds if no silage is used. Horses, sheep and poultry should be fed a moderate amount of roots, either whole or cut up.

Crops in District Beginning to Show

The seeding of spring grains is practically completed in Durham County and many are busy plowing down sod for their corn crop. One dairy farmer reports that he is putting in 25 acres of corn. His system is to feed ensilage the year round except possibly a week or two in June during the flush of grass.

In Hastings, canning peas, oats and barley are all showing through and spring grains in all sections of the county are starting off in good shape. In the southern part of the county potato planting is practically completed, but further north most of the crop still has to be sown.

HEDGES ADD BEAUTY

Forty years' experience with hedges on Experimental Farms has afforded a wealth of information on hedges. Of 136 species and varieties that have been tested 84 have survived the rigours of climate and test for suitability at the Central Farm. The information thus aforded has been set down in a bulletin of forty-four pages written by the Dominion Horticulturist. The lessons, drawn from experience, bring out the varieties useful for windbreaks, screens, property divisions, and purely ornamental purposes.

CUT CHORE TIME; BOOST PROFITS

Value of Early Cut Hay is Readily Recognized by Dairy Leaders.

KEEP UP GRAIN

Additional units for milkers on large herds to reduce chore time are advised by a special committee of outstanding New Hampshire dairymen as one means to "get by" in the dairy business in 1931. Other recommendations included the seeding of annual legumes such as peas with oats or vetch, or soybeans with Hungarian millet and the early cutting of hay. The value of early-cut hay was unquestioned by these dairy leaders, many having had the opportunity to check it since they have gotten down to the first hay put in their mows last summer. Some of the herds have shown actual increases of 8 to 10 per cent when put on good hay with grain kept the same.

Each Hour Less Counts

It is obvious that increased yields with fewer hours of man labor for each hundred pounds of butter fat are essential to profitable dairying. With cows of only average ability and without equipment it takes one hour of man labor or longer for each pound of butterfat produced. With well fed cows of good breeding and in a barn with modern equipment it is possible for a dairyman to increase the efficiency of his labor from two to three times. In the northern states, dairy cows must be stabled from 200 to 260 days out of the year. In a 25 cow dairy, assuming average conditions, more than three tons of materials must be handled daily when cows are stabled. These are as follows: 750 pounds of silage, 400 pounds of hay, 175 pounds of grain, 2,125 pounds of manure, 200 pounds of bedding, 600 pounds of milk and 2,000 pounds of water. The equipment available to handle these materials affects the labor efficiency and also the yield and health of the herd.

FREEZING CORN

Sharp freezing corn on the cob is the latest addition to the rapidly increasing list of "quick-frozen" fresh foods. The corn is frozen within three or four hours after it is taken from the field. When it is thawed out weeks or months later it possesses the fresh flavor that is much better than the ears of corn which are sent to the big markets fresh.

HALDIMAND TOWNSHIP OLDEST SETTLED IN THIS PART ONTARIO

By 1817 There Were 6,258 Acres of Land Under Cultivation.

EWING FAMILY.

Haldimand Township was settled early and by 1817 there was 6,258 acres under cultivation. Land was valued at ten to fifteen shillings an acre. Industry consisted of three grist mills and four saw mills.

Immigrants from Ireland numbered 1,000 and equaled the total of those from England and Scotland. The United States contributed some of the earliest settlers.

Ewing Family

Benjamin Ewing came from Vermont in 1798 to settle in the township. He held a post in the commissiarat in 1812 under Commissary Wilkins, of Murray, and obtained a grant of 500 acres in Alnwick township for his military service. He had five sons, Henry the eldest, being father of Elden Ewing in the customs at Cobourg. Another son, Benjamin, resided at Brighton was colonel in the volunteer militia and sheriff of the County of Northumberland.

Charles Ewing owned the old Benlock place, which was cleared and settled by his grandfather and was also proprietor of the Grafton harbour.

Another early settler was Bays M. Eddy who engaged in milling and farming. Elikim Earnum, came from Vermont and engaged in milling and distilling. As a magistrate and colonel in the militia as well as a man of considerable wealth he exercised a large influence in the district. He had two sons, one Smith Barnum, ex-warden of the United Counties, and James who occupied the old homestead just west of Grafton.

Charles H. Vernon, of Vernonville, farmer, magistrate and member of the Counties Council, was an early settler.

Wicklow post office is named after Wicklow County, Ireland, from whence came John Wilson, who early engaged in carriage and waggon-making with profitable success.

Thomas Heenan by sterling honesty, industry and careful habits became a prosperous man and a justice of the peace. He owned 1 000 acres in the neighborhood. Julius Richardson, son of a U.E. Loyalist, settled under Governor Simcoe's proclamation.

The Kelly family were very old settlers. It is claimed that a son, Colonel W. F. Kelly, was the first white child born in Haldimand township.

Thomas Lawless, Irish settler, built the first store in Grafton and left three sons to carry on the business.

Thomas McAuley was an energetic settler from Glasgow. Besides teaching school, he kept a store at Centreton.

The Macklins settled on the 8th Concession. The family of Isaac gained fame for raising improved breeds of prize cattle. M. Grimshaw, a settler of wealth, built saw mills, asheries, a store and a tavern and was the means of settling a large Roman Catholic population.

James G. Rogers, one of the earliest settlers was descended from a long line of soldiers. His grandfather, Major James Rogers, commanded "The King's Rangers" during the war with France in 1745. His son, David McGregor Rogers, was elected to represent Prince Edward County in the first Parliament of Upper Canada. James G. Rogers commanded the Northumberland troop of volunteer cavalry, which was on active service during the rebellion of 1837 and 1838.

MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS

Price 50c a box

Smothering and Fainting Spells Everything Would Turn Black

Mrs. Andrew Black, Harcourt, N.B., writes:—"I had been troubled with smothering and fainting spells and everything in front of me would turn black, and I would fall down in a faint and be unconscious for several minutes. I did not know what to do, until one day I was reading where Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills had helped so many people and decided I would give them a trial. I used four boxes and found they help me wonderfully."

WOMN'S INSTITUTEE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright.
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet
Or dims the radiant light.
No unkind word our lips shall pass
No envy sour the mind
But each shall seek the common weal.
The good of all mankind

MILLBROOK

An Institute branch tried out the plan of having responses to the roll-call in the form of a game, or contest, or, if desired, a menu for serving 'differently' at the close of an entertainment that took the form of a social evening as well as a program.

One of the replies, labelled 'An Institute Tea Party" won general favor, the requirements being that each person present was provided with a Brown Betty Tea-Pot, cut from stiff brown paper according to the pattern shown, on which was written the contest. The explanation given included the fact that if the tea-pot was ruled lengthwise for the writing, it would be found the best plan, T and a number of letters forming the answers to the questions which were:

1, T and four letters forming a cat; 2, T and three letters forming a drop; 3, T and three letters forming to lacerate; 4, T and four letters forming to vex; 5, T and four letters forming certain years; 6, T and four letters forming masticators; 7, T and seven letters forming a child's toy; 8, T and four letters forming a wild animal; 9, T and three letters forming an instrument; 10, T and four letters forming a household article; 11, T and three letters forming a sound.

The key for the above is: 1. Tabby; 2, tear; 3, tear; 4, tease; 5, three; 6, teeth; 7, tricycle; 8, tiger; 9, tool; 10, table; 11, tone.

Another response that had been tried out successfully, and that brought forth a request for its repetition that it might be copied in note-books, was "An Institute Book Evening", the replies being names of magazines. This is the contest:

What to give the robber who demands your money or your life: Punch.

A Scotch Clan: McLeans.

When Knights of the Bath Prevail: Saturday Night.

An Eminent Minstrel: Harper's.

Public Place in Rome—The Arena.

Veracity: Truth.

One Who Sketches: Delineator.

A Noted Fairy: Puck.

Sailor's Hoodoo: Black Cat.

Dispenser of Justice: Judge.

A Prospect: Outlook.

What We Cling To: Life.

A Citizen of the World: Cosmopolitan.

A Boy's Jacknife—Youth's Companion.

Hash: Review of Reviews.

Prosperity: Success.

Money the Trusts Want: Everybody's.

Resident of New York: Metropolitan.

The Suburbs: Country Life.

What We Should Take Every Year: Outing.

Our Coming Men: Canadian Boy!

The menu that won most favor, was of the "Conundrum" style, and as follows: First Course: Hidden fears—Onions; Dutchman's Delight—Cabbage Salad; Laborer's reward—Bread and Butter. Faggots—Tooth Picks; Two Seasons—Salt and Pepper; The home of the sucker—Water; An energetic old age—Cheese; Old Maid's delight—Tea; The beginning of evil—Apple.

Second course:

Forest Luxury—Chocolate Cake; A contradiction—Tarts; Loop the loop—Roll Jelly Cake; African Producer—Cocoanut Cake; Made in Heaven—Matches; What babies and brides desire—Kisses. A smile producer—Pie; An old story—Chesnuts; Just a bit of slang—Fudge; No grounds for complaint—Coffee.

It took more than one meeting to have the roll-call answered in the way intimated, but from personal letters from some of those present the novel idea was a success.

CAVAN.

At an Institute meeting among economy hints and discussion, the use of two staple articles; newspapers and kerosene was advocated.

Newspapers, save much soap and laundering, if used to cover the work table while preparing vegetables; to dust many things; to polish windows after washing to polish the nickel trimmings on the stove, to mop up spilled liquids, to cover the floor about the stove when polishing it or when doing any other work that is liable to make a mess. A thick newspaper or old catalogue makes a fair scrubbing-pad for the knees if you still go down on your knees.

It does very well to stand on, too, when washing the weekly accumulation of clothes, helping to keep the feet dry and warm.

A heavy pad of newspapers evenly spread under the mattress makes a bed warmer and helps to protect the springs

If the baby's mattress is covered with oilcloth the daily papers may be laid over the cold oilcloth and beneath the blanket. A newspaper takes the lamp black from smoked lamp and lantern chimneys, and by using a fresh paper then for cleaning and another for polishing the glass one can make a good job of it

Newspapers torn up and soaked and mixed with paste make a good crack-filler Everybody I take it, puts newspapers under both floor and table oilcloths.

Kerosene is one of the other things that saves us many a dollar. The coal-oil can is always at hand and generally efficient. Whenever we hear a croupy kind of cough in the night, we can apply a little kerosene and save the cost of a doctor's visit

Coal oil is a liniment and one of our most useful cleaners for all greasy surfaces, for washing windows and glass of all kinds.

Hemorrhoids
Or piles are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Ointment

It is a serious matter to have piles and one person in four has them at one time or another. The annoyance and distress is great. It is difficult to obtain lasting relief. So much so that a surgical operation may be considered necessary. That is unless your physician is familiar with Dr. Chase's Ointment for many doctors recommend this treatment to their patients.

For nearly half a century Dr. Chase's Ointment has been the never failing relief for itching, bleeding and protruding piles. It is now very generally known by the medical profession, and the public generally, as the standard treatment for this torturing ailment.

Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Ointment for "users are boosters" in this case. Relief comes quickly and you can obtain the ointment at any

Queensboro

QUEENSBORO, May 15. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The W.M.S. of the United Church met in the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. J. F. Everson, the president in the chair. The meeting was opened with singing 'Oh Master let me walk with Thee' followed by The Lord's Prayer in unison. The scripture lesson from St. Matthew 25:31-46 and St. John 12:1-8 was read and explained by Mrs. Everson, who spoke of the two ways of expressing love to God as exemplified in the lives of Mary and Martha. Mrs. C B. Hamm read a paper on 'Religion in Japan" showing the difference between Christianity and Shintoism and Buddhism. Mrs. John Alexander led in a temperance discussion and stated that alcohol is a depressant, a habit forming drug and weakens the power of will resistance. Mrs. William Cassidy read seven sentence statements which Marshall Feng Yu-Hsiang the famous christian general of China some years ago prepared for his soldiers and had posted on the walls of the barracks. Mrs. John O'Rourke read a paper on "Arming for Peace" setting forth the part the woman of the world are playing in helping to promote the success of the International Disarmament Conference to be held in 1932.

A letter was read from Mrs. Rev. Street of Morven, Presbyterial Secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance stating that the givings of the Presbyterial for the first quarter this year were in advance of last year and urging prompt remittance of all monies received to the central office. Mrs. C. B. Hamm read a communication from Mrs. Madoc also one from Mrs. A. H. Hoare, of Deseronto, Some discussion took place re the bale of second hand clothing asked from the society and the quilt which is to be made as assistance to northern paces.

Mrs. C. B. Hamm and Mrs. George Holmes led in prayer. The meeting was closed by singing, "Lord speak to me that I may speak" and the benediction.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN R. BURN.

LIFFORD LINE, May 15. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The funeral of the late Francis Hawe, relict of John R. Burn, took place from her late residence Janetville, on Wednesday afternoon and was attended by a large number of friends and relatives, gathered to pay a tribute of respect to a resident of many years, who in her quiet way had many warm friends.

Rev. R. M. Patterson, pastor of the United Church at Janetville, officiated at the services at the home and graveside and in his usual sympathetic manner conveyed a warm message of comfort to the bereaved.

Two favorite hymns were read with feeling.

During the past year Mrs. Burn suffered from failing health, at times being quite unconscious of her surroundings.

Besides her sorrowing husband three daughters Mrs. Newton Armstrong and Mrs. Evert Stinson, of Janetville, and Mrs. Purdens, of Toronto, who with her son, Harold attended the last obsequies, and two sons, Harold Burn of Toronto and Robert, General Merchant of Janetville. Three brothers Ned and Thomas of Toronto, and Daniel of Manitoba, also survive, the two former coming to Janetville on Wednesday.

A long procession of motors followed the remains ato Riverside cemetery Lindsay where little less than a year ago, a grandson of deceased, Kenneth Stinson, was laid to rest.

Pall bearers were two sons-in-law Evert Stinson and Newton Armstrong, two grandsons, Howard Stinson and Harold Purdens and two sons, Harold and Robert.

Floral tributes were unusually beautiful and numerous offering their silent tributes of love.

TRENT RIVER.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Christie, of Toronto are spending the week at their cottage.

The Women's Institute Convention for East Peterborough will be held at Trent River 'Whitehall Gardens" on June 19th. There will be two sessions, morning and afternoon. Representatives from eight Institutes are expected

The condition of Mrs. Jean Wight (who has been ill at the home of Mrs. A Wight, Cedat Isle) has improved the last few days.

HEADACHES

Needless pains like headaches are quickly relieved by Aspirin tablets as millions of people know. And no matter how suddenly a headache may come upon you, you can always be prepared. Carry the pocket tin of Aspirin tablets with you. Keep the larger size at home. Read the proven directions for pain, headaches, neuralgia, etc.

HOME TOWNERS

TIDBITS INTERESTING AND HUMOROUS FROM CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, May 16.—Mrs. Thomas Rutherford, who has been on an extended visit to her doughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Barren, has returned to her home here.

Don't forget "Summer's A-Coming," the play sponsored by the Hockey Club, to be presented on May 19, in the Regent Theatre. This production will be presented by the "Y" Men's Club of Belleville.

Mr. J. Townsend, who has been attending the School of Pharmacy at Toronto, has returned to his home here.

Mr. A. J. Meyers attended the funeral of his brother, the late Mr. J. S. Meyers at Listowel at Friday.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. G. MacTavish and family were the guests on Tuesday of the Rev. and Mrs. Clare of Norham.

SAVED IMPORTED DRESS

"After a little wearing a lovely green voile—an imported dress—lost color so completely that it was not wearable. A friend who had admired it asked me why I wasn't wearing it any more. On hearing the reason, she advised dyeing it and recommended Diamond Dyes. To make a long story short, it turned out beautifully. I have a lovely new dress that really cost just 15c—the price of one package of Diamond Dyes

"I have since used Diamond Dyes for both tinting and dyeing They do either equally well. I am not an expert dyer but I never have a failure with Diamond Dyes. They seem to be made so they always go on smoothly and evenly. They never spot, streak or run; and friends never know the things I dye with Diamond Dyes are redyed at all!"

Mrs. R. F., Quebec.

Warsaw

Among those who attended the commencement exercises of the graduating class of St. Joseph's Hospital, on Tuesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. G. H Crowe Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowe and Mrs. J. P McMurray, Misses Anna and Mary McMurray and Messrs. Archie Crowe and Garret McMurray all of Douro: Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. J A. Crowe: Dr. and Miss Jean Munroe, and Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, of Warsaw.

Mrs. George Weller was in Lakefield on Wednesday afternoon, to assist at the annual meeting there. They met the storm ere they reached Lakefied and there was not a quorum present.

Twenty-four girls attended the coaching class on Tuesday when twenty-three of these formed a canning club. They go for their tests in Lakefield on June 16.

Mr. David Miller was in Havelock on Wednesday.

What To-day Means To You.

"TAURUS."

If May 16th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:10 a.m. to 11:20 a.m., from 2:05 p.m. to 3:35 p.m. and from 5:30 p.m. to 7:10 p.m. The only danger period is from noon to 1:50 p.m.

The morning of May 16th will be productive of some change, which will be to your benefit, although the results may not be immediate. The afternoon and evening will be full of perplexities and misgivings. Do not let them worry you, and do not deviate from accustomed routine!

A child born in this May 16th will be original, impulsive and imperious. It will want its own way in everything it does or undertakes. It will possess a good brain, which will only need training in order to ensure success. It will love secrecy, and everything mysterious will make an appeal to it.

Born on May 16th, you are full of energy and "pep," forceful and compelling. You look down on easy jobs, and are at your best when called upon to clear up a situation, or solve a problem, that is beyond the capabilities of others. You are a clear thinker, and shrewd reasoner. Your methods, too, are your own. You refuse to be guided by convention or usage. You diagnose very carefully any situation with which you are confronted, and then do not prescribe, but apply, the remedies. Your treatment is generally very effective. If the area of your work is ever large enough for your proper development, you will become a great success. The only factor that can restrain you is the limitations imposed by others.

Your nature is sympathetic and your disposition affectionate. No matter how great the calls on your time may be for other interests, the home always occupies first place in your regard. More than anything else it produces the motive power for your efforts. In view of your strong characteristics, and your original way of thinking, you should work alone, or only associate yourself with those who are willing to carry out your instructions and do things "in your way."

May 17.

If May 17th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a.m. to noon, from 2:10 p.m. to 4 p.m. and from 7:15 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. The danger hours are from 8:10 to 10 a.m. and from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

The planetary aspects of May 17th denote ideal conditions for the observances and recreations of a Sunday. The atmosphere will be charged with a pleasant optimism, and there will not be sensed any great urge to work. You can sit back and dream of the coming week' successes.

Children born on May 17th will be impregnated with wanderlust, and most of them, if given the chance, will seek lives of adventure. They will never be satisfied with the humdrum. Not very amenable to tuition, they will be capable and courageous, both mentally and physically.

Born on May 17th, your outstanding characteristics are perseverance, tenacity, pride and conscientiousness. Fired by great ambition you tackle a job with vim, and work without watching the clock. Once, too, you have 'dug in," you never quit. Your pride arises from what you have been able to accomplish. In all that you do, you never hit below the belt, and always endeavor to live on a high plane of duty.

Although you never carry your heart on your sleeve you do, at times, when alone suffer from attacks of gloom and pessimism. These, however, instead of forcing you to give up, seem only to clothe you with renewed vigor and fresh determination. You have very little use for those "who toil not and neither do they spin" and when brought into enforced contact with them, you are apt to become unnecessarily bitter and caustic.

Your disposition is usually a kind one, and you are so occupied in attending to your own business that you have no time to meddle in that of others. In your home life you are very happy, as you always are considerate and unselfish although even here it worries you to see any member of your family wasting time.

Mrs. R. Stewart and little Miss Ona, spent Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jas. McKenzie.

Mr. Percy Fraser was a visitor to Baltimore, on Tuesday.

Mr. S. McBride and Mr. N. Gleason, were visitors to Cobourg on Tuesday.

The Y. P. S. met on Tuesday night. There was a splendid attendance of fifty present. Miss Hazel Blogett read the 46 Psalm for the scripture lesson followed by Prayer by Rev. M. F. Hawley.

The topic on "Chicago," given by Mrs. Hawley, was enjoyed by all. The meeting closed with the mizpah benediction.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

QUAINT NAMES

The by-gone years left names whose sounds are sweet
As tinkling music from a harpsichord,
And lingering echoes of calm lives still greet
The ear with many a quaint and singing word.
For Patience, Mercy, Prudence and the rest
Of all that gentle, vanished sisterhood
Were surely of rare kindliness possessed,
And went as pilgrims, vowed to all things good.
In some glad home Hope passed a tranquil life,
Her days unvexed by evil's doubts and fears;
In some man's heart Faith ruled as tender wife,
With love unchanging through the changeful years.
And Refuge, ah, what comfort in the name!
To her as harbor weary spirits came.

BRIDGENORTH

The members of the B.Y.P.U. of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church enjoyed a social envening on Monday evening when Mr. Gordon McGregor's group was in charge and Donald Telford acted as chairman. Mr. Reg. McMullen read a very interesting topic and Mesdames Grattan Telford and Elwood Faulkner contributed a duet. Following the devotional period, games and contests were enjoyed.

Ladies of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Max Archer on Tuesday to sew for White Cross work in India. Two quilts were quilted and other supplies for the Hospital there. Before leaving for their homes, the ladies enjoyed a Pot Luck Tea.

The Sunday School convention of Smith Township will be held in Gilmour Church on Tuesday, May 19, afternoon and evening, when supper will be served in the basement of the church.

The many friends of Miss Olive Sidey will be pleased to learn that she is progressing favorably after her recent operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jackson of Orange Corners, were guests on Monday of Mrs. J. Mann and Mrs J. G. Mann, of Smith.

Can't PLAY Can't REST —child needs Castoria

WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate sluggish bowels in an older child.

All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

CASTORIA

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Let us turn for discussion to-day, to the guest room!

• • • • • • •

A guest room should contain every comfort and convenience for a visitor that lies in the power of the hostess to provide.

• • • • • • •

The size of the room limits such provisions in many houses; but assuming that one room at least can be a "spare room" the problem is how to furnish it adequately.

• • • • • • •

The old-fashioned term "spare room" was once spoken of with pride by the homemaker. It indicated that her house was so large that there was an extra room that could be given over to the use of visitor, or remain idle when there were no guests.

• • • • • • •

In the early settler dwellings and the pioneer cabins of the West, was enough to have shelter for a family.

• • • • • • •

There could be no thought given to extra accommodations. When a living room was apart from the comfortable kitchen-sitting room, it was provided with a large bed covered with as handsome a quilt as the housewife had materials for and time to put together.

• • • • • • •

So appointed, the bedstead was a handsome acquisition to the seldom used room

• • • • • • •

Magnificent four poster bedstead, dressed with quilts that are the pride of their descendants to possess, lent decoration.

• • • • • • •

When time and money made it possible for a home to have a "spare room" it was off the parlor and was called the "parlor chamber" for use of guests, only

• • • • • • •

In the thousands of old homesteads over the country one finds these tiny "parlor chambers" often as small as the cramped bedrooms in modern apartments.

• • • • • • •

To-day we have beds in our apartment living rooms but they are disguised in the forms of davenports; daybeds, appointed like davenports; or any of the numerous folding furniture styles.

• • • • • • •

It seldom occurs to us that this is a return to the bed-in-the parlor vogue of our forefathers' era. The necessity for extra sleeping accommodations exists in every household where a family is hospitable.

• • • • • • •

Twin beds are preferable to a double bed. To-day each person expects a separated bed. Besides the furniture in the room, supply the closet with coat hangers and have empty bureau drawers if not an entire bureau for guests.

• • • • • • •

Among the appointments provide all toilet articles together with powder, plain and safety pins and hair pins and writing materials including stamps.

Roseneath Couple Are Given Shower

ROSENEATH, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—A delightful time was spent on Wednesday evening in the Orange Hall in honor of Mr. Orra Robins and his bride (nee Elva Sandercock) when about one hundred and fifty guests assembled together for a miscellaneous shower and dance. Among the numerous and beautiful gifts was a mantle clock, donated by the charivari boys and a lovely white, pure linen tablecloth, to the bride, from the Sunday School class, of which she is a member.

At 12 o'clock a delicious luncheon was served, after which Mr. Robins voiced his appreciation and thanked the friends for the many useful and pretty presents and hoped that everybody would enjoy themselves in dancing. This was surely carried out as the party broke up about 3 a.m. We are pleased to have Mr. and Mrs. Robins remain in our village.

Among the guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. C. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Ross McNabb, and daughter, June, Mrs. W. Adams and Mr. F. McGrath, of Peterborough.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D

HOW THE HEART IS PROTECTED IN EMERGENCIES

One of the things we are apt to forget is that while the stomach, heart or any other organ has a special job to do in the body, nevertheless other organs can effect its workings; actually hurrying or slowing up these workings or efforts.

As you know the heart has what is known as "reserve" a sort of extra power it can call on in an emergency; and it is this power that enables it to carry an individual through a severe illness, and still have enough power to keep up the circulation until he is well again.

At first it was thought that it was a juice in the walls or muscles of the heart that was responsible for heart reserve, as a juice made from the muscle walls of the heart injected into the heart stimulated it into more powerful action. However it was discovered that juices extracted from other organs, the stomach for instance, had the same effect.

That other devices are present in the body to protect the heart and thus keep it going as long as possible has been demonstrated by research physicians at the May clinic, at Harvard University West Virginia University and other places.

They have found that the sack in which the heart rests—the percardium—prevents the heart dilating or enlarging too much when it is under severe pressure from some infection in the system.

They have learned also that the nerve systems which act on the heart, one making it go faster, and the other slowing it up, or steadying it, oppose one another when the safety of the heart demands it.

Thus a heart that might beat as often as 150 beats to the minute can be speeded up to 225 beats if the opposing or slowing up nerve is cut.

Such ranges of operation of the two systems which control the heart show that the one mechanism or system serves especially to give the heart an opportunity to rest, whereas the other system acts in emergencies and anable the heart to work vigorously when there is need of physical effort or stress.

It is certainly gratifying and reassuring to know that the heart, the organ that keeps everything going in the body, has these "protective devices" always at hand when emergencies arise.

CONVENTION OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS IS HELD AT WARKWORTH VILLAGE

Campbellford District of East Ontario Conference Stages Two Day Rally.

INTERESTING TOPICS.

WARKWORTH, Ont., May 16. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The Campbellford District of the East Ontario Conference held their Sunday School Convention and rally in the Free Methodist Church here Wednesday and Thursday.

This convention was opened Tuesday night by Rev. J. H. Whiteman, Chicago Ill., General Sunday School Secretary who preached an excellent sermon based on the text from Matthew first chapter, part of the twenty-first verse—"And thou shalt call his name Jesus for He shall save His people from their sins. Wednesday morning consisted of a devotional service, address of welcome by Rev. A. F. Ball, Survey of District Sunday School work by Rev. F. A. Daw, conference Sunday School secretary and other interesting subjects.

The afternoon session opened at two o'clock with Rev. R. Sedore in charge of the devotional service.

What we owe Sunday School.

Following this Miss Elizabeth Allen of Sarnia, Sunday School Secretary of the West District, gave an instructive address on "What we owe to the Sunday School. In this the speaker stated that the three fundamentals of a childs life were home, public school and Sunday school.

Two little girls, Miss Vansickle and Miss Kay, of Marmora, sang very sweetly, "Saviour Hide Me."

Mr. L. Kellogg, of Campbellford, gave a ten minute talk on "Success in Superintending". To be a success as a superintendent, one must have a natural love for children, be a leader not a boss, be on time, both in opening and closing, also other helpful suggestions.

"Motives in Memory Work" by Miss Florence Glover, Frankford, showed careful thought and preparation, it was stated that God gave us this wonderful power of memory and expects us to use it for ourselves, as well as encouraging the children to learn the Bible.

After congreagtional singing, Rev. J. H. Whiteman gave an address on the "Activities of a good teacher." This was thoroughly, and cleverly gone into under the following heads. Teacher Training, Preparation, Worship, Co-operation, Punctuality, A good example Records, Fellowship, Methods and Special Requisites.

Rev. J. H. Whiteman Speaks.

Wednesday evening the session opened with a song service, after which Rev. J. H. Whiteman preached to a large congregation.

Thursday the morning session was presided over by Rev. F. Loft and opened with devotional service, conducted by Rev. B. Bobcock.

A talk on our Sunday School Standard by Miss Elizabeth Allan, The Country Sunday School twelve months in the year, by Douglas Young and 'Simple Psychology all teachers should know, by Rev. J. H. Whiteman were the special features of the session.

The closing session Thursday afternoon was presided over by Rev. A. B. Moffat and J. S. Martin, conducted the devotional service.

Rev. J. H. Whiteman gave a talk on Young Canada at the Mourners Bench and a talk to the public school children. Also there was an address by Miss Elizabeth Allan and a discussion period, where problems were discussed and solved.

ELDORADO W.M.S. HAS FINE SESSION

Mrs. S. Gay, Foxboro, President of Belleville Presbyterial Gives Address.

MANY DELEGATES ATTEND.

QUEENSBORO, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Stillman Gay, of Foxboro, president of the Belleville Presbyterial, addressed a well-attended open meeting of the Eldorado W.M.S., held in Fox's United Church on Thursday afternoon. Delegates were present from Madoc, Cooper, Hassards Corners and Queensboro, and were extended a welcome by Mrs. Albert Empey, president of the local auxiliary, who also had charge of the service.

Mrs. Gay emphasized the place of prayer and Christian stewardship in the work of the W.M.S. She defined a call to service as seeing a need and having the ability, one goes about the task. A Christian steward, she said, was a person who acknowledged God's ownership and their own responsibility to His work. She urged her hearers to make definite demands upon God, and to love Christ, live Christ and give Christ. Mrs. Gay gave a very enlightening and interesting explanation of the work of the different secretaries, Strangers, Associate Helpers, Temperance and Missionary Monthly secretary. She urged the members to loyalty to the work and to make use of the annual report and Missionary Monthly as sources of information and interest.

Vote of Thanks

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Gay by Mrs. Rev. I. N. Beckstead and seconded by Miss Francis Keene; Mrs. John O'Rourke spoke for Queensboro, society, Mrs. Arthur Wyatt for Cooper and Mrs. G. W. Rivers for the Madoc group.

Mrs. Frank Dafoe, of Madoc, sectional vice-president, also gave a brief address calling the members to vision, consecration and prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Huffman of Madoc, and prayer was offered by Mrs. C. B Hamm, of Queensboro. Mrs. Philo Harris and Miss Alma Keene, of Hassards, sang "Jesus is My Next Door Neighbor" very sweetly. A pantomine, "Rock of Ages," was rendered by Miss Vera Canniff, of Cooper. Mrs. J. F. Everson rendered a solo which was much enjoyed, "If the Lord Should Call for You." Miss Wilma Trotter, of Eldorado gave a reading, entitled 'Where is My Mite Box." Four members of the Eldorado mission band sang beautifully. 'Only a Little Baby Girl Dead by the River Side." Revs. J. F. Everson, G. W. Rivers and I. N. Beckstead spoke briefly. Miss Post and Miss Violet McCann received the offering. The hymns used were, "In the Harvest Fields There is Work to Do." "Work for the Night is Coming," and 'Master, Let Me Walk With You." Mrs. George Harris closed the meeting with prayer. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies of Eldorado.

HANGING MIRRORS.

Never hang a mirror so that the sun shines directly on it. Use mirrors, rather, where they will reflect light into dark corners and give you a sense of more space and sunshine.

TEACHER HONORED.

Miss J. Kearney Presented Gift By Girls of Young's Point Garment Making Club.

YOUNG'S POINT, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence) — On Wednesday afternoon the girls of the Garment Making Club and their mothers also, gathered at the school-house at the close of the duties of the day, and presented their sewing teacher, Miss Jennie Kearney, with a small gift and address in token of love and appreciation for what she had done for them in their sewing. The address was read by Miss Beatrice Kidd and the gift presented by Miss Mary Hatton, after which lunch was served by Miss Redpath and the girls.

Among those present were: Mrs. William Hatton, Mrs. Bruce Kidd, Mrs. Adrian Brooks, Mrs. William Young, her sister, Mrs. Tarte, of Hamilton, Mrs. Elmer Johnston, Mrs. Walter Young, and Miss M. Buchanan.

LEFT-OVERS.

Almost any meat, fish or vegetables left over from a meal can be made into appetizing ramekin dishes if a smooth white sauce with a bit of cheese in it is used to bake them with. Corn out off the cob is excellent mixed with bits of halibut or other fish.

Marmora

MARMORA, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—Following prayer and inspection, the Monday evening meeting of Marmora Girl Guides commenced with the patrol game "zigzag up," in which the Honesty patrol was successful. This was followed by roll call under supervision of Lieut. M. Leonard. Lieut. Phillips then took charge of the collection of fees. Patrol Corners was followed by a company game "Midnight Alarm" under Lieut. Gladney. Lieut. E. Rice again took First Aid with the girls. During discussion, it was decided to take up tracking on the Fair Grounds. Court of Honour was fixed for Thursday evening. Company was dismissed with singing of "Taps."

ROSENEATH

The many friends of Mrs. Ross McCracken are sorry to learn she is seriously ill.

Mrs. Delbert Adams, of Fenella, spent a few days with her mother, Mrs. E. J. Milne, who is confined to he bed through illness.

Mrs. Edwin Harvie is not enjoying very good health and suffering the effects of a sore foot.

Born.—At Cobourg General Hospital, on Thursday, May 14, to Mr and Mrs. Reg. Crego, a daughter.

The many friends of Mr. George Turner are pleased to have him home again, after his lengthy illness in the General Hospital at Cobourg.

FOR THE JUNE BRIDE

WEDDING INVITATIONS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS — in fact all printing for social functions— if procured at The Examiner, will be found conventionally correct in every detail.

Care in the selection of wedding printing is equally as necessary as in the choice of the bride's costume; and our work reflects that quiet dignity which the occasion calls for and modernity demands.

We shall be pleased to serve you in an advisory capacity.

ANNUAL MEETING SENIOR SOCIETY

Officers For Coming Year Elected by Warsaw Women's Institute.

REVIEW ACTIVITIES.

WARSAW, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence.)—The annual meeting of the Warsaw Women's Senior Institute, was held in the W. I. room on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. G. Weller, thanked the members and officers for their support during the year, and especially the secretary as she had always been pleasant and willing to do anything she could.

There had been twelve meetings held, including one picnic and one open evening meeting. The treasurer's report showed a fair amount on hand, considering the payments on the school for agriculture. The school fair was aided by being given a shield for domestic science.

The Institute had aided in sending a girl to McDonald Institute at Guelph for two weeks.

For relief, one family had been visited and found supplied with all needed and the father has had fairly steady work.

Clothing was sent to a boy and a girl. For health there had been a talk on care of children in convulsions and other emergencies, also on care of T. B. patients. Baby books were distributed where a chance of doing good.

For education there was a very instructive paper on self education in every-day life, showing that no one need be uneducated, with the books and magazines so easily procured, and the great world of nature all around. There was a travelogue of a trip through Ontario.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson gave a talk on Feminist Ideals, showing the great influence women have over young men, often unconsciously.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crow each gave a talk on their motor-trip to the coast, and return.

A short synopsis of Miss Powell's talk on textiles was given and a comprehensive report of the convention in Toronto.

Election of Officers.

Mrs. Weller, president for the past year asked Mrs. D. Miller to take the chair during the election of officers. The result was as follows: President, Mrs. Thomas Cooper; vice president, Mrs. W. S. Anderson; sec-treas., Mrs. Theodore Douglas; branch directors, Mesdames H. Batten, A. McQuaig, George Taylor, J. A. Crowe, auditors, Mesdames Roland and Arthur Payne; district director, Mrs. J A Crowe; district directors Mesdames T. Cooper, J. A. Crowe, George Taylor, A. McQuaig; organist, Mrs. Roland Payne, librarian, Miss Lizzie Crowe; flower and visiting committee Mrs. Weller, Mrs. W. N. McDonald Mrs David Miller.

Mrs. D. Miller was voted honorary president.

To Address Institute.

On Thursday June the 4th, Mrs [illegible] of Stoney Creek, will address the Institute on "How to conduct a successful meeting" as one of the theme among the members.

The annual district meeting will be held at Trent River on June 19, at ten o'clock in the forenoon. There will be an afternoon session Mrs Rades federation representative for district, Miss Hopkins, field worker Mrs. Walker, Provincial President, and Mrs. Grover in the interests of the League of Nations are expected. The Junior Institutes are asked to supply musical numbers.

Warsaw Juniors.

The Warsaw juniors held their annual meeting in the junior room on Thursday afternoon. Having been organized only since January they had not much to report, but they helped with the relief and procured some chintz curtains.

There are thirteen members. President, Miss Annabel Carlaw; 1st vice president, Miss Madeline Little; 2nd vice president, Miss Cora Drain; sec-treas., Miss Ellen Douglas; directors, Misses Laura Webster, Anna McMurray, Nellie Bullock;; district director Mrs. Milton Drain; district representatives, Misses Annabel Carlow, Mrs. Milton Drain, Miss Ellen Douglas.

Refreshments were served, when the young ladies did the serving.

King George and Queen Mary

UNDER THE SPELL OF THE PAST

Even royalty likes to look back upon the picturesque days of the past, here recalled by this interesting photograph of King George and Queen Mary, when they were the Duke and Duchess of York, attending the brilliant Devonshire House ball in 1897. The 20th anniversary of the coronation of King George is on June 22, next.

TRENT RIVER DANCE IS DRAWING CARD

Opening Function of Season is Sponsored by Women's Institute.

TRENT RIVER, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—The first dance of the season was held Wednesday night May 13th at "Whitehall Gardens" under the auspices of the Women's Institute and was largely patronized. The old-time square dance interspersed with popular fox trots and favorite waltzes, to music supplied by the "Goldiggers" orchestra of Havelock. The interior of the pavilion was prettily decorated with gaily colored paper streamers which showed up to splendid effect among the newly installed Hydro lights. For the square dances there were nine sets danced at one time throughout the evening. The members of the institute served lunch at midnight and the dancing resumed till two a.m. There were one hundred and thirty in attendance. The door receipts were $46.00. Miss Josephine Terry, owner of this popular place of amusement, has been under considerable expense having repairs and improvements made in and around the grounds. At the inside entrance three rooms have been partitioned off and will be used for dining room, restaurant and kitchen. Individual tables are to be placed in the dining room, which, when completed, will present a cozy appearance. Miss Terry interviewed the members of the council and secured her license for the dance Wednesday night. Further improvements are being made before the opening for the season.

ANNUAL QUILTING HELD AT MILLBROOK

Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of Saint Andrew's Church Conduct Event.

MILLBROOK, May 16. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The annual quilting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of Saint Andrew's United Church was held in the Sunday School hall on Wednesday afternoon, three quilts being set up in readiness for the workersduring the morning, and shortly after dinner thirty or more members were on hand, the task being so congenial apparently, and the work so swiftly accomplished that frames could be taken down soon after the tasbour, and the quilts taken home for binding.

The regular May meeting was combined with the afternoon's labors, the president, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, taking the chair and conducting the business and devotional period, during which Mrs. (Dr.) L. Rae, read an inspiring devotional leaflet on "Let there be Light," and Miss Johnston, of Montreal, who is a visitor in the community, led in prayer.

The treasurer, Miss M. E. Hetherington, gave a short report showing dues paid to date of $11.75; collections $20.67; donations $26.00; Easter Thankoffering $84.74; other sources $8.60; interest $2.21; making a total of $153.87. Some expenses having been deducted, there is now in the bank $145.22; the Auxiliary has as an objective each year the raising of $200 by the month of June.

The corresponding secretary read a letter from the Presbyterial Supply Secretary, Mrs. F. Waite, of Colborne, giving the allocation for the year, and Mrs. Muspratt generously promised to knit the required number of socks if supplied with the necessary yarn. The Mission Circle was asked for a layette, and the Band for Christmas gifts and toys. The bale must be sent early in September.

Miss Estelle Hetherington gave a most interesting report of some of the proceedings at the recent Branch Meeting held in Peterborough, confining her outline to the supply work for the Bay of Quinte Conference as given at the convention, and mentioning incidentally that the bales for 1930, "valued at rummage sale prices," reached a total of $8,090.00. The duties of the Strangers' Secretary, and the high privileges of the office, were included in Miss Hetherington's report, and also those of the Associate Helper's secretary.

The president announced that Mrs. J. A. Brown's group will be responsible for the June meeting and that the July gathering, by invitation, will be held at the Zion church. The Sunshine Mission Band, under its joint superintendents, Mrs. M. McDowell, Mrs. Ridge, and Miss Phyllis Kidd, served tea at the close, when an enjoyable time was spent.

REGULAR MEETING MILLBROOK C.G.I.T.

Closing Meeting of the Season Will Be Held on Tuesday, May 19.

MILLBROOK, May 16. (Examiner Correspondence.)—The weekly meeting of the Wide Awakes group Canadian Girls in Training was held on Wednesday evening, with the president in the chair, and during the discussion of business items the decision was arrived at to hold the closing gathering, until after the holiday season, on Tuesday, May 19, with a social hour as a concluding feature.

Practice of some of the bandaging taken up in the First Aid course took up part of the time, and committees appointed to look after special features of next week's meeting were Bryar Edmunds, Mary Burnham, Helen Mitchell, and Ruth Ball. A canvas will be made in an endeavor to have every member present.

The musical number, a piano solo, was supplied by Bryar Edmunds, and the current event was dispensed with owing to the absence of the member appointed for this purpose.

The devotional period gave everyone opportunity to take part in the hymn, and scripture lesson, Miss Phyllis Kidd reading a poem, "The Two Ways," and the leader continuing the talk on guidance, based on the words, 'He leadeth me," from the twenty-third Psalm.

The matter of having the group represented at one of the provincial C.G.I.T. camps this summer, and the raising of finances for this worthy object, will be dealt with at a special meeting to be called during June.

MADOC.

Mrs. T. L. Nickle and daughter, Jean, left on Friday at noon for Moundsville, West Va. where they will be guests of Rev. and Mrs. B. M. Spurr and other relatives. They intend to be away ten days or two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Ashley left on Thursday for Fort William to attend the wedding of their son, Archibald Thompson Ashley, which is to take place on Monday, May 18th, at high noon, to Miss Grace Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Phillips, formerly of Madoc.

The Standard Remedy for Headache

ZUTOO TABLETS are an efficient and harmless remedy for headache. Mr. Geo. Leggo, Editor of Granby Leader-Mail, writes: "Your ZUTOO TABLETS deserve to be known widely as a remedy that will stop headache." A box of these harmless little tablets in the office, home or pocket, are insurance against aches and pains. They stop them.

PREPARATIONS MADE FOR PLOWING MATCH

Promoters Plan to Make This Year's International Match One of Best in History.

The plowing enthusiasts of this section of Ontario are making a determined effort to "put across" one of the best international plowing matches on history this fall near Peterborough. Prize lists have now been prepared and final arrangements for the "big match" are going ahead rapidly.

In an effort to focus all attention on the great international event the Plowmen's Associations of Victoria, Durham and Northumberland and Peterborough met last week and decided to unite their efforts and finances to make an important item of the local classes on the first day.

A prize list of approximately one thousand dollars has been prepared to be competed for by plowmen from the four counties. Besides the regular events special green classes have been introduced to encourage the entry of men and boys who have never competed at matches before.

Arrangements are being made through the various agricultural representatives whereby men and boys who desire some "coaching" may receive this from expert plowmen.

Besides prizes for the actual plowing several hundred dollars in prizes are also offered for the best teams being used at the match. The special prizes for "local teams" will also be open to those from the four counties.

J. J. Duffus, of Peterborough, general chairman of the committee in charge of local arrangements for the match states the "prospect are good and it looks as though the 1931 international will be as great as any in the history of this event, which has always been the greatest feature of its kind in the world."

District Churches

AT MADOC.

Ascension Day service was held at St. John's Church, Madoc, at half-past seven p.m. on Thursday evening. The special preacher for the evening was the Rev. Mr. Levason of Bonarlaw, who took as his text, "Launch Out Into the Deep," Luke 5:4. The collection of the evening was for missions. The anthem was "O Worship the King," the solo taken by Mrs. Reynolds.

Mother's Day was observed in Trinity United Church on Sunday by the use of the prepared program, under the direction of the superintendent, Mr. James Keene. A pageant "The Spirit of Motherhood," was presented by Mrs. Lowery and Misses Jean Whytock, Phyllis Reid, Aileen Kelly, and Loreen Bennett.

Special music was prepared by the choir for both evening and morning services. The anthem for the morning was "The Songs Our Mother Sang." Miss Norma Fair gave a beautiful solo, "Mother o' Mine." The message given by Rev. G. W. Rivers was "A Mother's Wages." In the evening the sermon was to the young women, and the theme chosen was "Excellent Daughters." The anthem by the choir was "Faith of Our Mothers," and Mrs. Hulin delighted all by her solo, "That Wonderful Mother of Mine." Suitable hymns were used throughout the day.

At St. Peter's Church the Mother's Day service was held in the Sunday school, and every parent was invited to attend. At the morning worship the subject was "Some Thoughts About the Mothers of Yesterday and To-day." In the evening, Rev. T. G. Marshall chose as his subject "The Faith and the Love of Mother."

Special music was prepared by the choir under the leadership of Mr. E. Bedford, with Mr. George Maybee as organist.

Two infants were baptised at the morning service, Robert John Moore, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Moore, and Hughina Margaret Elizabeth Clarke, infant daughter of Mr and Mrs. R. Clarke, Madoc.

At the morning service, Mrs. Bedford sang "Tell Mother I'll be There," and at the evening service, Mr. Bedford gave a solo, "The Songs My Mother Sang to Me."

TRENT RIVER.

Mrs. McMaster and son Glen, of Hastings, are visitors with the former's sister, Mrs. Wilfrid Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ellis and family of Havelock, moved Thursday to Mrs. Wyldes' cottage for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. William Preston, Havelock Road, have as their guests, Mrs. Clark, Miss M. McWilliams, Mrs. R. Jones, Miss Shirley Hutchison and Mrs. Huffman, of Havelock.

"Whitehall Gardens" Pavillion will open for the season on May 23. Plans are being made to engage the music for the season from the Hastings orchestra, which played at Trent River last year.

The Chamber of Commerce not only provides the finances from its budget, and the staff, to direct activities, but it has committees made up of business men, studying and watching and solving the needs of the community.

Lakefield

Mrs. George Weller, of Warsaw, was in the village on Wednesday.

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie and Miss Mary Mackenzie, were in Toronto on Wednesday.

Thursday being Ascension Day, services were held in St. John's Church and St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, in the morning.

Mrs. S. S. Spence is visiting friends in Peterborough for a week or so.

Mrs. Steverison, of Bradford, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Creighton, at the Rectory.

Mrs. Digweed, of Warsaw, was in the village on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Grier and little daughter, were in Toronto this week, visiting relatives.

Mr. F. H. Richardson, of Lakefield, with the tug "Ajax", recently purchased from Mr. J. E. A. FitzGerald, Peterborough, took the first load over the lift lock for the season of 1931, bringing a scow load of wood down from Northey's bay, Stoney Lake. The Ajax went over on MThursday, May 14. The scow will remain empty at George Street wharf for freight going up the lake.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them inserted.

DON'T LAY OFF

To The Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:

The Montreal Star comes out with a big front page advice to the Government, "Don't lay employees off. Take more on."

Of course. Where's the relief if you just shuffle men about? When the workers of this country get on to it that a big loan was provided for the moneyed people but no work for workers they may do as Labour is now doing in the United States where it points its finger at Hoover and says, "No, you don't."

J. H. Burnham.

UNWRITTEN LAW

To The Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:

I wonder why! Don't you?
The reason why our neighbors
Think so little of the thinking few.
Who think, they think
And yet we know, they never do!

Beware, my friends, to-day you may voice your opinion regarding some political, religious or universal matter; in fact anything of topical importance. To-morrow the silent finger of unwritten laws points your exit from your place of employment.

You ask, why? Why should this be so? Answer—the truth of things hurt. It is not equity. You have been taught that if you push a pin into a balloon it shall burst. But if you put a "pin" into some "fat" person's opinion, well it hurts. When the mosquito bites we swat him. Then look out, "mosquito."

Reason.

SPOIL SYSTEM

To The Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir:

To our proud, unbiased Journal,
Which has printed in its page
The Voice of Worthy Readers
Towards Veterans, of the Passchendaele brigade:
It is our bounded duty,
Each man, each mother's son,
To show a cordial unity,
Right the wrong which has been done.

Think not of war-worn veterans
Who seek your leave to toil,
But of brave and gallant heroes,
Whose blood has dyed a foreign soil.
Whether Grit or Tory,
Just listen now to me,
This is not a football match,
Peck not the referee.

The Players were efficient,
I'm sure you will agree,
They scored a goal at Vimy
At Ypres, they scored three.
Should we as loyal spectators
Who know how tough's the game,
Stand idly by and not decry
These politics to shame.

Now is the System spoils the man
It also spoils the state;
So let us tell our Government
To wash it off the slate.
Just reinstate the players,
Who their duties know
'Twill satisfy the Voters,
Who put you in the show.

Reason.

Thirty-one French war veterans recently spent four days in London as guests of the British Legion, which has made them honorary members for their services in connection with Legion pilgrimages.

The Pride Of Craftsmanship

It takes more than rubber and cotton—more than labor of men working for a wage to build fine tires.

Pride of Craftsmanship marks the difference between tires built by SEIBERLING and tires of a Mass Production.

At Seiberling, little things count as much as big things—every detail is important—the finished tire is the pride of each workman who has helped to build it. And never has a Seiberling tire exemplified this pride of craft so strongly as the SEIBERLING TIRE of to-day.

See this tire at J. J. DUFFUS, LIMITED. Ask about AFFINITE—the wonderful Seiberling tread stock which is 50% tougher—that preserves the life of the tire—brings it to you as fresh as the day it was made.

IN SHERBROOKE OR SHANGHAI

It's Gillette!

FAR GREATER shaving comfort and convenience per dollar in open-minded Canada—or per tael in tradition-bound China—are the reasons the vast majority demands the super-smooth Gillette blade. More than a hundred million men—a huge world-wide army of critical judges—accept it as the highest standard of quality. Any unbiased shaver will acknowledge the tremendous significance of this universal preference. It proves the superiority and value of the blade that shaves the face of the earth. When you use the double-edge, double-service Gillette your shave is cool and pleasant. Your razor glides easily—without roughing or irritating the skin—and leaves your face clean and smooth.

ELINGTON WANTS $10,000 FOR SECOND A-A PICTURE

HOLLYWOOD, May 16.—Duke Elington's band is wanted again, with Amos 'n' Andy for their second Radio picture, but the colored jazzists are asking $10,000 a week, plus expenses.

Radio assures Ellington of better billing and prominence than in "Check and Double Check," where the band was only incidental.

Ellington received $5,000 a week and expenses for the first picture.

DELORO FORMING NEW SOCCER CLUB

Re-organization Meeting Will Be Held on Monday Next, May 18th.

EXPECT 16 GAMES.

MARMORA, May 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—A meeting for the reorganization of the Deloro soccer club takes place at the Hub on Monday evening. At this meeting the captain will be selected and the selection committee will be appointed. Among the number who are expected to do duty for the Smelters this season are G. Brooks, J. R. Hart, J. Hart, W. Brown, E. Bradley, T. Cousins, J. Sproul, N. Hipson, C. T. Nicholson, R. D. Murray, S. J. Sanderson, W. Shannon, P. Melville, W. Simmons, L. R. Rundle and W. Burridge. Deloro expects to have eight home and eight away games with teams in the Peterborough and District League.

Deloro's first home game will probably be on May 23. Deloro has also signified its willingness to compete for the Phelan and two other charity cups. Manager G. Brooks is also in touch with Madoc with a view to getting the Talc boys interested in membership in the Peterborough and District League. Madoc is hoping to raise a good team, and recruits were to be seen out at practice between the showers of Wednesday evening. The appearance of goal posts at the old ball ground in Madoc suggests to visitors that the soccerites of Madoc mean business. Deloro players wish their neighbors good luck in their venture.

Michael Corrigan has been appointed playgrounds managed at Deloro in succession to Jules Ethier.

FIFTEEN HORSES · KENTUCKY DERBY

Two Favorites Twenty Grand and Mate Draw 8th and 13th Positions Respectively.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16 (C.P.)—Fifteen three-year olds where nominated yesterday for the 57th running of the Kentucky derby at Churchill Downs to-day. They are: Don Leon, Up, Pittsburcher, Mate, Twenty Grand, Boys Howdy, Anchors, Aweich, Surf Board, Prince Diamour, Equipoise, the Monal, Spanish Play, Sweep All, Ladder and Insco.

Twenty Grand, ace of the Grentree stables and the favorite, drew 8th post position. Mate A. C. Bostwick's colt, second favorite, drew thirteenth position, while Equipoise was given second place from the rail. Pittsburcher, hope of the west, will start from twelth position. The rail position was drawn by Sweep All with Insco in the outside place.

The track was fast at Churchill Downs to-day and prospects were for good weather at post time. Approximately 5.15 p.m. Central Standard time.

LARRY FRENCH HURLS PIRATES TO 3-2 VICTROY

Dan Howley's Reds Defeat Phillies By Good Hitting in Double-header.

ROBINS BEAT SOX.

Athletics Maintain Winning Ways By Beating Indians for Seventh Win.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer)

So many games of baseball are played each season that it is not surprising that history should repeat itself occasionally, but there are few cases in which the duplication is as close as the one Larry French, Pittsburgh left hander, has to talk about to-day.

Just about two years ago French faced the New York Giants in his debut as a major league pitcher. After a great struggle the Pirates won out in the tenth 3 to 2, when Pie Traynor singled to drive in the winning run. Yesterday Larry made his first New York appearance of the 1931 season and battled Clarence Mitchell of the Giants to a 2-2 standstill in the regular nine innings. Then in the tenth George Grantam's grounder hit first base and bounded away for a double and Traynor rapped a single to centre, bringing in a run that spelled a 3-1 victory.

The Phillies also did a little duplicating but for them it meant only a double loss to the Cincinnati Reds in a double header. Chuck Klein hit a pair of homers in the second game and the Phils scored five runs in each clash but the final scores were 10 to 5 and 7 to 5 in favor of Cincinnati. The double victory made it three straight for the Reds and five victories in all.

Over in Brooklyn, Pea Ride Day, champion hog caller of Arkansas, finally had a chance to introduce his whoop to the home fans. Day started pitching in the first inning after the Chicago Cubs had knocked Babe Phelps from the mound and pitched nine good innings. The Robins recovered when Del Bissonette hit a homer in the fourth and scored four runs for a 6-4 triumph.

The St. Louis-Boston series became a total loss when the third straight game was postponed.

Yankees Halted

All but one of the numerous winning and losing streaks in the American League continued unchanged. The New York Yankees were halted after five victories when George Uhle, making his first start of the year, shut them out with five hits to give Detroit a 2 to 0 victory.

The league leading Athletics won their seventh in a row, beating Cleveland 4 to 0 behind Ed. Rommel's fine pitching. Clint Brown kept pace with Rommel for six innings but the A's came through to score all their runs in the last three. It was Cleveland's seventh straight defeat. The Chicago White Sox scored eight runs against Boston but made an equal number of errors and also lost their seventh in succession. The Boston Red Sox took the lead in the third with the aid of three errors and finished ahead by a 12-8 count.

Walter Stewart of the St. Louis Browns, who stopped Washington five straight times last season, found this year's Senators a different proposition. The Browns gave him a good lead but he lost it suddenly in the eighth when Washington scored five runs to win 8 to 5. Goose Goslin came out of a hitting slump to get the only American League homer of the day.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, this city is back in senior ball, or at least it was Thurs. when this was wrote. Over the week-end, just when the outlook was dull, what I mean, Mister Bill Kay and his Raybestos team, what looked all hooked up in the intermediate loop, comes to the rescue and sez, "If you folks ain't kidding about wanting a senior team, here we is," or words to that affect, and the berg was once more on the sr. map. The Rays saved the situation when the chances was practically all shot to pieces, and they deserve the thanks of all the folks what has been pulling for a team in the Central Ontario. They is plenty of material, and it looks now like the senior entry is going to get somewhere. Anyway the prospects is cheering.

In the big leagues, Mac, the line-up ain't a great deal different from last week, although Mister Connie Mack's Athaletics did climb to the top of the American League loop. The A's, however, has a lotta postponed games to work in, and it looks like Mister Grove, Mister Earnshaw and Mister Wallberg won't have no reason to complain about unemployment. Mister Mack needs 1 more pitching ace to feel safe, but you gotta admit he ain't been doing bad with what he has. In the National, Mac, the Cards was still out in front at the time of writing, but them pesky Giants wasn't far behind the band and going strong. Mister McGraw has been getting some super-fine pitching and the corpulent Freddy Fitzsimmons looks like the ace pitcher of the senior loop this season. Mister Fitz had 5 straight wins the last time I checked up, and at the rate he's going the lad should have a record well worth looking at along about Labor Day.

Lacrosse has really got underway here, Mac, and the Petes is organized and looking for opposition. She's a grand old game, and the customers who know its fine qualities is all het up at the prospects of seeing some action here this summer. The lads may stage a exhibition game on Victoria Day, and if they do the villagers should rally around and get the team away to a flying start. They deserve credit for reviving Canada's national pastime at a time when most local kids ain't never seen a game.

Well, Mac, things are brighter all round than when I last wrote. Hoping you are the same.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

KING GEORGE SCHOOL SWAMPS QUEEN ALEX BY 25-2 DEFEAT

Loescher, Burton and Darwin Are Heavy Hitters for Winners.

NICE DEFENSIVE WORK.

Pounding two pitchers hard, and playing a bang-up game all around, the league-leading King George team slapped a 25 to 2 defeat on the Queen Alex. outfit in a Public School League game at the Oval last night.

The winners could do nothing wrong, and the losers could do nothing right, or that's the day it seemed during the five innings played. Of the 18 hits collected by the King George batters, Loescher got a triple, and Burton banged out both a homer and a three-bagger. Besides these, there were several doubles. Darwin also knocked a home run in the fourth, but Burton's round-trip wallop came with the bases loaded in the fifth. Only three errors were checked up against the easterners.

Three hits were all the Queen Alex boys could squeeze off the other pitchers. They got one run in the first and another in the second, and they were blanked the remainder of the contest. Lipsett was on the mound for the victors the first three frames and struck out four batters. Williamson went in to start the fourth and fanned three in a row, using a sharp curve. He struck out the first two in the last inning, and threw the third batter out at first.

Lead From First.

The East City team scored four in the first, five in the second, and were held scorless in the third. They collected four more in the fourth, and ran wild to cross the plate twelve times in the fifth. Ash, doing the hurling for Queen Alex. ran into trouble early, but kept trying, backed by indifferent support. He was relieved by Clark in the bad fifth, but the latter had not much better luck. His teammates kicked in eleven bingles during the game.

The whole winning team played nice defensive ball, both the infield and outfield snarling almost every chance they had. Dorrington and Bradley in the Q.A. outfield made several nice catches, and Ellis, behind the bat, grabbed two smart foul flies.

The teams:—

King George.—Darwin, lf; Lipsett, p and 1b; Williamson, 1b and p; Burton, rf; Worboy, 2b; Anderson, ss; Loescher, c; Hopcroft, cf; Rowland, 3b.

Queen Alex.—Clark, 1b and p; Ellis, c; Ash, p and 1b; Morrow, 2b; Warton, 3b; Heard, ss; Dorrington, rf; Bradley, cf; Dainton, lf; Elliott, 3b.

Umpire.—O. Steer

| Score by innings:— | | | R. | H. | E. |

MANY SAVINGS IN USED PARTS

George H. Martin Wrecks Cars and Sells Parts at Low Prices.

BUYS OLD CARS.

Many people fail to comprehend the full value of that auto wrecking concern, such as the George Martin Auto Wreckers, Monaghan Road is to the community. It is one of the indispensable factors, whose activities aid, in no small measure, our progress and development. Mr. George H. Martin, the owner and general manager of this firm, will pay you a fair price for your old worn out car or one that has been in a wreck. It is taken to their place of business, bolts and rivets are out and good parts, such as fenders, engines of running order, tops, etc. are segregated into separate piles and the rest placed upon a scrap heap to be sold as junk. From these salvaged parts one may often find just the parts they need for replacing old worn parts of their car, and at very great saving. Then, too, a great deal of time is saved you, as they have the parts on hand and you do not have to wait for them to be sent from out of town.

At the George Martin Auto Wreckers you will also find a line of new parts for various makes of cars so that if you do not find something in used parts, or prefer purchasing the new, you may do so. Many dollars may be saved in your automobile parts when they are purchased from this concern and you will find it much to your interest to drive out to their place and look over their stocks. As one of the outstanding auto wrecking concerns of this section they have at all times a large supply of parts for automobiles and trucks. They make deliveries both local and out of town. Parts will be mailed to you by them, if you make your needs known either by phone or mail.

The George Martin Auto Wreckers is a most efficient and progressive establishment that has grown by leaps and bounds. Mr. George H. Martin's foresight in seeing the necessity for such a business, and his ability to make the business an asset to the community, is worthy of especial mention. Do you know two citations of price comparison of used parts sold by them, against the much greater expense of the same parts new?

$3.00 cash prizes given daily for neatest correct answers to questions in these articles. Call the above firm to assist you. (Six in to-day's issue).

HORNSBY LEADS LEAGUE BATTERS

National Loop Has Been Pitchers' Year So Far This Season.

1931 AVERAGES UP.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 16 (C.P.).—So far the 1931 National League Baseball season has been very much a pitcher's year. The semi-official averages in batting and hurling for the first month of the campaign, which ended Thursday, not only show the batting marks for below last year, but they reveal some surprising pitching performances as well.

Ed Brandt, of the Boston Braves furnishes one fine example. Last season Brandt won only four games. In one month this year he has recorded five straight victories to tie the big Fred Fitzsimmons of the New York Giants for the league lead. Neither of them has lost a game nor have 13 other pitchers who have from one to four victories to their credit.

On the other side of the picture, Rogers Hornsby and Wally Roettger are fighting for the lead among the regular batters, the Cub manager with a .462 average holding a one point lead over Roettger. A year ago the leaders were above the .400 mark. The team averages bring an even better example. The New York Giants top the list with a .293 batting average while at the end of the first month last season they led with a .344 average and five clubs were batting above .300.

SIMMONS LEADING

CHICAGO, Ill., May 16 (C.P.)—Al Simmons of the Athletics, who aims to be the first American League batting champion to repeat since Ty Cobb turned the trick in 1918 and 1919, rode into first place in the hitting depression of the fourth week of shelling.

Unofficial averages, including games of Wednesday, to-day placed the clean-up man of the world's champions in the first place with an average of .411, although his percentage of hits dropped like most of the others during the week. Dale Alexander of Detroit and Babe Ruth of the Yankees, former leaders in the race, were tied for second, just three small points away.

GROUND RULES ARE DRAWN UP

No City Softball Games Will Be Played Here on Holiday, May 25th.

GAMES RE-ARRANGED.

The officers and managers of the Men's City Softball League met at the Duffus Bowling Alleys last night and drew up ground rules, as well as discussing other business. There was a fair turnout, and the different rulings were pushed through in short order. No games will be played here on the holiday, May 25th.

The first ruling pertaining to Central School grounds, was that if the ball hits the wire crossing the field, it is still alive and the batter is entitled to all he can make. The fielder is permitted to catch the ball off this wore, for an out.

The same thing applies to the trees in fair territory. The ball may be caught off the trees, and the batter gets all he can make.

Only one base may be taken by a baserunner on an overthrow into the crowd.

Those present decided to call off the games scheduled for Monday May 25th, in order to allow any of the local softball teams that wanted to participate in the Lindsay softball tournament that day to do so. The Sugar Bowl-Examiner game will be played on May 22nd, and the Westclox-Dominion Woollens one on June 12th. There were the teams which would have played on the holiday.

Several other matters of minor importance came in for some discussion, before the meeting came to an end.

KING EDWARD NINE ARE EASY WINNERS

Winners Bunch Hits to Take 16-5 Decision From Prince of Wales.

King Edward nine handed the Prince of Wales the short end of a 16 to 5 score right on the latter's home grounds last night before a huge crowd of youthful rooters in a regular scheduled game.

Bunching hits and better base-running, as well as good defensive baseball won the game for the Kingsters. Jobe, on the winners' team, got a home run on a long hit over the outfield. Fourteen hits were garnered off McIlmoyle, while the two K. E. twirlers only allowed four between them. And the latter's outfield messed up five plays while the other team had eight errors, most of them in bad places, too.

McIlmoyle, pitching for the losers, went along in good style, striking out eleven, but being touched up for several hits in the second, the fourth, and the final two frames. Boyler struck out three while he was on the mound for King Edward, and Field did the same after relieving him.

The visitors were blanked in the first and third innings, getting four in the second, three in the fourth and sixth innings, two in the fifth, ad four more in the last. The homesters crossed the plate twice in the second, twice in the fourth and one in the final frame. They were kept off the score-sheet the other innings.

Each team got four free tickets to first. Jobe, in addition to counting a four-baser, made a beautiful catch of a seemingly impossible fly. His teammates also contributed some snappy fielding, and at times the Princes looked classy in the field, too.

The teams:—

King Edward.—Heal, ss; Mowry, c; Hall, lf; Dunkley, 3b; Boyler, p and rf; Jobe, cf; Todd, 1b; Field, rf and p; Watson, 2b; Fife, 3b.

Princes of Wales.—Robertson, 3b; Kingdon, c; Menzies, 1b; Roberts, lf; Ruzaw, 2b; Platt, cf; Williams, ss; McIlmoyle, p; Hope, rf.

Score by innings:— R. H. E.
King Edward .....0403234—16 14 5
Prince of Wales ...0202001— 5 4 8

Brinton Girls Lose First Exhibition Tilt

The Brinton girls' softball team lost their first exhibition game in three starts when Westclox lasses handed them a 22 to 14 trimming right on the southenders' own diamond last night.

A good-sized crowd of spectators watched the girls battle it out, with the score see-sawing back and forth. Both outfits hit hard, but there was considerable booting of the ball, being partly responsible for the big score. Most of the girls were in good shape, having apparently been practising for some time. Hilda Joyce was on the mound for the Clockers, and kept the hits pretty well scattered outside of two innings.

Another game may be arranged between these two well-matched outfits, before the local schedule opens May 22.

WILL SHARKEY BLOW UP AND SINK NEXT MONTH

Apparently Mr. Sharkey is working on the old theory that if "A" beats "B2 and "B" can beat "C", then "C" is duck soup for "A". He is well aware of the fact that he whipped Maloney and almost made him quit. Canera couldn't whip Maloney and Carnera couldn't make him quit. Even though he was a full head shorter and weighed 60 pounds less he tore into Carnera for the full twenty rounds of their two fights. There is little doubt that Sharkey will hit Carnera at will but whether he will be able to hit hard enough to upset the big fellow is another matter. Carnera is far from easy to knock down Stribling did succeed in doing it, but Carnera bounced up again and chased him all over the ring. Should this same thing again happen in the Sharkey-Carnera bout, it will no doubt be some race as Sharkey certainly knows his stuff. If you can recall to your mind's eye Jefferies, you will see a boxer with a big boney structure and massive jaw plus a large head that could take a punch that would floor the average boxer. Carnera is the same type of man. In the days when Jefferies was at his best he could take the hardest anyone could hit and it wouldn't shake him. To quote Bob Fitzsimmons after their second fight, Bob maintained that no man ever lived who could knock Jefferies out. Carnera has these big qualities but Jeff knew how to box and protect himself but Carnera doesn't. The Sharkey-Carnera bout therefore, boils down to just how long Sharkey can pound Carnera without becoming too tired to protect himself. In his bout with Schmeling, he showed effects of weakening in the fourth round. He is just as wiry and comes back better than the Italian. Should Sharkey under these circumstances lose his coolness, then it is not improbable that Carnera will surprise the world by punching Sharkey clean through the ropes.

Another angle to the affair is, should Sharkey KO Carnera in June a lot of complications would start. First, the New York Boxing Commission would probably proclaim Sharkey the Heavyweight Champion of the World and that will go for New York State, which officially dethroned Schmeling by a proclamation some months ago. If it turns out to be a good hot fight, and the Schmeling-Stribling affair isn't a waltz, a match between the two winners would make a big card for September.

CASUAL COMMENT

Representatives of every team or prospective team in the City Baseball League are urged to attend to-night's meeting at 7.30 in Duffus' Board Room. The session should start on time, as many of the fellows want to get away early.

• • • • • • •

There will be considerable business to be gone through to get the league set for a start. With several new entries in during the past week or so, we can't say yet just how many teams will comprise the loop. But it looks like there will be plenty.

• • • • • • •

There's been a promised entry in each division recently. Havelock will go into the junior section. "Scotty" Maudsley's team in the juvenile, and the Canucks in the bantam division. The league is shaping up in fine style, so far.

• • • • • • •

The Church Softball League has begun its schedule, playing up at the Queen Mary School grounds. There are ten teams in the league, six seniors and four juniors. They ought to pull off some snappy games.

• • • • • • •

Down in Belleville, the shortage of young ball players is gradually making itself felt. The "old guard" is still around and ready for another big year, but there are very few good youngsters coming up. To-day there are only two junior and one intermediate teams there.

• • • • • • •

Peterborough is much more fortunate, with plenty of to-morrow's stars on the many local teams. And this year's senior team will find a bunch of young fellows battling for every position. It's a good situation for any town to be in.

• • • • • • •

The Quinte sports writer commends the local baseball men and the Rays for their co-operation and civic spirit in bringing the Petes back into the Central League.

• • • • • • •

And he has a word for Al Heckman, too. He says: "Look who is to divide the managerial duties, none other than Al Heckman, the big blonde hurler, one of the best that ever appeared on C.O.B.L. diamonds." That's what we always thought, ourselves.

• • • • • • •

Ground rules took up most of last night's session of the officers and managers of the Men's Softball League which met at Duffus'. And it was decided to call off that double-header scheduled for the 25th. This is to permit any of the local teams wishing to do so to enter the Lindsay softball tournament that day.

• • • • • • •

Ira Dundas, who is coaching the Auburn girls' softball outfit, has ten of them working out at the Oval yesterday evening. The way they were hitting and fielding, they looked like a million—well, anyway, a quarter of a million dollars.

• • • • • • •

The Prince of Wales' nine couldn't seem to smack that old ball any to whisper about, at all, last night, and took it on the chin 16-5 from King Edward. However, McIlmoyle, the losers' big gun, whiffed eleven of the K.E. batters.

• • • • • • •

Queen Alexandra nine sort of blew up in their game with King George, and the final score was—but why bring that up? A few of the boys tried to rag the umpire, when they saw they were hopelessly behind. But "his umps" threatened to treat them to a big chunk of ozone, and as the kids didn't know what that was, they desisted.

• • • • • • •

Both Al Heckman and "Shiner" Johnston were on hand for the seniors' workout last night, and the fellows were at it hard all the time. Pretty much the same bunch were out as before.

Cricket

LONDON, May 16 (C.P. Cable).—Rain over most of England to-day interfered with cricket matches and small scores ruled as a rule. Runs scored in games at the tea interval were:

M.C.C. versus New Zealand at Lord's: New Zealand, 114 for four wickets. No play after tea.

Surrey versus Hampshire at the Kennington Oval: Surrey, 81 runs for two wickets. No play after tea.

Sussex versus Gloucestershire at Brighton: No play. Rain.

Worcestershire versus Lancashire at Worcester: Worcester, 159 for seven wickets.

Nottinghamshire versus Northamptonshire at Nottingham: Northants, 165 for nine wickets (Bakewell, 75).

Leicestershire versus Essex, at Leicester: Essex, 162 for two wickets (Outmore 69, Pope 58).

Yorkshire versus Warwickshire, at Leeds: Warwick, 190 for eight wickets (Bates, 54).

Derbyshire versus Kent, at Derby: Derby, 150 (Freeman, five wickets for 63 runs); Kent, 42 for two wickets.

Cambridge University versus Middlesex, at Cambridge: Cambridge, 139 for one wicket (Kemp Welch, 79 not out).

MARITIME PROMOTERS ARE DETERMINED TO WIN AMATEUR HOCKEY HONORS NEXT SEASON

Youthful Hockeyists From Western Canada and Ontario Travelling East.

WINNIPEG SUFFERS MOST.

To-day is Last Day Under Which Players Can Qualify Under Residence Rule.

TORONTO, Ont., May 16.—(By the Canadian Press)—Spurning the traditional advice "go west young man, go west," youthful hockeyists and others not so young, have been trekking eastward during the last few weeks in order to qualify under the residence rules as stipulated by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The players, men of class in their positions, have been plucked from many parts of western Canada, Ontario and Quebec, by amateur hockey moguls of clubs in the maritime provinces.

Undismayed by the action of the C.A.H.A. last season when three clever performers were barred from playing in the playdowns for the Allan cup, senior amateur hockey's highest prize, maritime lovers of Canada's thrilling winter sport, appear to be making a determined drive to round up players who will make most of the "down-east" clubs formidable contenders next season.

Winnipeg Suffers Most.

Winnipeg, home of Canada's national senior and junior title-holders, suffered most from the hockey migration. Ontario greatest producer of hockey talent in the world, suffered little, in comparison to the western province of Manitoba.

John "Hurry" Kane, flashing right winger of Hamilton tigers, eastern Canada champions, and Russell Bowman brother of "Scotty" Bowman, cyclonic defence star of Niagara Falls, Ontario Hockey Association juniors, are probably two of the most prominent players who have taken up residence in the maritimes. Kane will line-up with the Charlotte-town, as will his Tiger teammate, "Baldy" Schwab, also a fine forward.

A half dozen other players from various parts of the province have decided to accept eastern hospitality. They include Bill Walker, defenceman with the Ottawa Shamrocks last season, McCann, goalkeeper, Arnold Butterworth, centre and Graham, defenceman, all of the capital.

In addition to the fresh blood imported this year there are a number of players from this province who journeyed east a year ago. Three failed by several months to arrive in time to qualify under the residence rule but they will be eligible next season.

To-day is the last for migrating players. Any transferring their allegiance henceforth, will be barred from amateur hockey next season according to Jack Hamilton, Regina, president of the C. A. H. A., who has intimated the parent hockey organization will use an iron hand in an effort to curb the "tourist" player.

WESTERN FIRES DEFY CONTROL

Cool Weather Comes as Aid to Scores of Grimy Forestry Men.

SETTLER BURNED.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 16. (CP)—Scores of grimy forestry men to-day fought to control major bush fires in Manitoba and Saskatchewan and cooler weather aided them. In the Saskatchewan Government's poplar reserve, 100 miles east of Regina, and in the Dominion Government's Riding Mountain Park in northwestern Manitoba, menacing outbreaks still defied the man-attack after three days of destructive advance.

Most of the valuable mid-prairie reserve was a blackened, smoking area but fire-fighters succeeded yesterday in saving a threatened homestead. Iver Johnson, a settler, was severely burned in the struggle to keep the flames from his home and barn.

Rains are badly needed to check the destroying fire-forces in the two provinces. Grass fires east of Port Arthur were believed to be under control.

SHIP RUNS AGROUND

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., May 16 (C.P.)—The steamer Agassiz, upbound with a cargo of coal ran aground in the middle of Neebish Channel opposite lower end of Sugar Island. Tugs and a lighter left here to-day to go to the aid of the grounded ship.

BRITAIN BREAKS EVEN

PARIS, May 16. (AP)—Great Britain and France broke even in the first two matches of their annual dual tennis tournament to-day at Roland Garros stadium.

James Oliff gave Great Britain a victory in the opening match, defeating Antoine Gentien of France, 6-0, 7-5, but the young Frenchman, Maurice Bernard squared it up by beating C. H. Kugsley 6-4, 6-8, 6-3.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess.)

A FUNNY FIGHT IN THE MOONLIGHT.

When wrong doth triumph over right
The time has come for you to fight.
—Old Mother Nature.

Those who will not fight for their rights soon find that they have no right s to fight for. This is as true of the little people in fur and feathers as of you and me. So you will find that they are always ready to fight when they have any chance at all.

Longfoot the Kangaroo Rat had made a discovery. It was a very wonderful discovery. It was the most wonderful discovery he had ever made. He could hardly believe his eyes and nose when they told him what he had found. It was a handful of grain. How it happened to be there in a little heap on the desert a little way from one of the doorways of his home he didn't stop to consider. Never had there been such a thing before. But that fact didn't bother Longfoot. He didn't even think of it. It was enough for him that it was there and that he had found it. His only thought now was to get that grain to his storehouse before any one else found it. So he went to work stuffing the grain into the pockets in his cheecks. Outside pockets they were and he stuffed them with his little white hands or forepaws.

So busy was Longfoot that he didn't notice Farmer Brown's Boy sitting close at hand. If he had he might have suspected where that grain had come from. Farmer Brown's Boy had come out that evening purposely to watch Longfoot and try to make his acquaintance. During the day he had seen the mound in which Longfoot made his home and when he had thumped the ground just outside one of the doorways he had heard Longfoot drum an angry reply. But though he had waited and watched he had not caught so much as a glimpse of Longfoot. This was because the latter was too wise to come out in the brightness and heat of the day. So Farmer Brown's Boy had returned in the moonlight and here he was making the acquaintance of this pretty member of the Rat family without the latter knowing anything about it.

Presently another Kangaroo Rat appeared and at once discovered what Longfoot was doing. Of course he wanted a share. Longfoot stopped stuffing his pockets. The instant the other was near enough Longfoot leaped on him and kicked him with all his might. Those long hind feet were quite as good for kicking as for jumping. The other ran just a little way and then turned to face Longfoot. When he did so he sat up just the way a Kangaroo does. Longfoot did the same thing. Then they began to hop about in the funniest way. Farmer Brown's Boy had all he could do to keep from chuckling right out.

Each was watching for a chance to catch the other off guard. Suddenly the other leaped and kicked. His long hind feet landed with a thump on Longfoot and knocked him over. But in less time than it takes to tell it, Longfoot was up and hopping about, watching for his chance. In a moment he got it and his kick sent the other rolling over in the sand. They didn't use their teeth. They fought with kicks instead of bites, and the manner in which they hopped about was very funny to see. It was the funniest fight Farmer Brown's Boy had ever seen.

For a few minutes neither had the advantage. Then Longfoot managed to kick the other over three times without being kicked once himself. This was enough and ended the fight. The other Rat decided that he wasn't interested in that little heap of grain and he had business somewhere else anyway. Longfoot triumphantly turned back to fill his pockets with that grain. Guess how he felt when he discovered that while he had been fighting still another Kangaroo Rat had made the most of opportunity and was just leaving with his pockets full.

ELABORATE CEREMONY

Then the "barberia" hove into view. Quite a big ornate shop with six chairs. I went in. The chairs were all the same, of course, but the manager wanted to make me quite comfortable so he had me try a couple as a starter. I made motions at my hair and he caught on. Smart fellow. Two aides hurried out with the christening robe, or whatever the thing was. It was white with gold bars slashed up and down the centre and scarlet sleeves in kimono style. The man who was to do the actual haircutting fitted this on gently and eased me into the chair. A girl appeared from nowhere with a fancy cotton thing to go around my neck. A boy followed and started on my shoes. The girl returned with a Spanish paper but I didn't get much chance to read because every minute or so the barber would get his pocket mirror to let me see how well he was doing.

While he was snipping and shearing I read a couple of wedding stories and found that they always gave the ages of bride and groom. It seems that youthful weddings are frowned on in Spain with a big league frown because the stories I read married a bride of 27 to a groom of 36. All old enough to have passed through the necessary seven-year courtship.

With the hair cutting finished the barber went along his important array of bottles and poured out the contents of several for me to sample. The idea was for me to smell them and pick out the one I'd like to smell like. I picked one. It smelled like a South African Sunday school but nobody around here knows me anynow.

Afterward he combed me and brushed me and got me all fixed up but I needed a shave. This called for an entirely new uniform. They took off the white yellow and scarlet Kingfish robe and trotted out another cape-like affair in white and green. A delicate sort of lettuce green. By this time I looked and smelled like a gigolo. I was almost tempted to leave the whiskers on just to prove I could produce them. But it was too late. The lather girl had arrived.

I don't know whether you've ever been lathered up by a smiling senorita or not but its a silly fool sensation. I felt that the barbers were making fun of me and giving me the works but apparently this is routine stuff and there is none of this hot towel, cold towel business. Just the lather and razor. It might have been all right if the girl had just slapped on the soap with a brush and vanished. But she rubbed with her hands and flipped bits of soap here and there like an artist doing a portrait. She evidently thought I'd look better with a moustache too because the well known upper lip was left fuzzy.

No Regular Strop.

The barber was standing up all this time hacking at a piece of wood with his razor. There was a chunk of leather atop the wood but no regular strop. Then he started scraping while the girl stood hopefully back for no good reason at all. There was none of this tilting backward in this Spanish shop either. You had to take your shave sitting up.

When that part was over the barber took off the royal robes, handed me a face cloth and went away. The girl withdrew discreetly and it looked like I was due for a bath, and this only April. The only idea I could see was that I was to wash my face, so I did. The man came back and started petting me with lotions and powders and that sort of thing. Then he steered me over to the basin again, had me look down and a stream of ice cold water smacked me in the face.

My hair was fixed, my shoes fixed, my face fixed. One of those new men you hear about. The lather girl and the shoe boy had vanished so it didn't look like any ambush for tips. I asked for the bill expecting to lay out a dollar or more The whole thing was 34 cents to which I added a 01 cent tip. The lathering was worth 44 cents itself. What do you think?

INSURANCE IS A MODERN NEED

Dixon and Hurley Represent Largest Soundly Established Companies.

ALL CASUALTY LINES.

Insurance is a recognized necessity today. Modern busines methods and interests have made it essential for the responsible man. There are so many things over which we have no control, both of a personal and property nature, that no wise man will take a risk without insuring his family or his business of protection in the event of some unforseen disaster. To take care of these needs is the aim of Dixon and Hurley. They represent some of the oldest and most reputable insurance companies of the world, and are in position to write automobile, fire, accident, health burglary and all classes of casualty lines of insurance. In every form, they stand ready to take care of the people of Peterborough and vicinity in the branches of insurance.

Dixon and Hurley is a local, Peterborough institution, owned and operated by Mr. Roy A. Dixon. It is wholly unnecessary to go out of the city to purchase insurance. By purchasing at home, through a home owned and home-operated concern such as this one you receive personal service and definitely more promptness in the matter of claims or adjustments, and at practically the identical expense. When in need of insurance consult with Dixon and Hurley. Go over the grounds with them as you do with your lawyer. They make a study of your problems and tell you what your need is and how best you can meet that need at a minimum cost. They have built their large clientele on honest and efficienct service, second to none.

Innumerable people make Dixon and Hurley their insurance home and are more than enthusiastic in their praise of the courtesy and efficient business transactions of these general insurance brokers. We wish to congratulate Mr. Dixon upon the capabilities of his organization and feel happy to refer the general public to them. Do you know the names of three outstanding insurance companies that are represented by Dixon and Hurley?

CULTIVATING OF GLADIOLI TOLD

Charles Lane Addressed Members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society.

ORIGINATED IN AFRICA.

The planting and cultivation of gladioli was the topic of an illustrated lecture given by Charles Lane of the Canadian Gladiolus Society, before members of the Peterborough Horticultural Society last evening in the library hall. Mr. Lane comes from Valencia, near Lindsay, where he grows many thousands of gladioli and hundreds of varieties.

Before showing the colored slides, the lecturer discussed a few points in the planting of gladioli. He spoke of the three forms in which this species might be planted — as a bulb, a bulblet or from seed. To plant them he suggested making a trench and not adding manure until after the plants are up. When the new shoots show, then fertilizer can be strewn about the surface. As the roots of the gladioli shoot out feeders as long as three feet, the manure should not be placed too near the central stem of the plant, as the feeders are further out. He mentioned "Vigoro" fertilizer as being the quickest for results and at the same time producing good bloom.

As a precaution against scab, fungus, etc., Mr. Lane suggested a saturated solution of bluestone. Bulbs may be soaked for three or four hours in this, but when they have white shoots they must not be soaked for so long.

The speaker gave further pointers during the progress of the showing of the 50 odd colored photos of actual gladioli. A slide was shown of well-worked ground with manure turned into it. Mr. Lane said that the outer shell of the bulb should be cracked to let the water penetrate into it.

Came From Africa.

Gladioli were described as having originally come from Africa where they grew near waterfalls. Such flowers, one picture of which was shown, had a hood over their stameni to protect them from the spray of the fall. Through modern culture, gladioli has done away with their hood and drooping nature. There has been hybridizing and crossing, and hence all the colors from the original white.

As an aid to producing larger blooms, the lecturer advised the removing of the pistils, the appendage on an upper petal having three tongues, on the two lower blooms, thus making all the others better.

Mr. Lane spoke briefly of the method of crossing. The pistil of a bloom is removed, and pollen dropped from the pistil of another color or variety onto the stamen of the first. The petals are then removed, as these only serve botanically to attract insects who affect the flower's fertilization. The gladiolus expert concluded his lecture by showing other slides showing individual and groups of gladioli, including Orange Blossom, Morning Glory, and Break o' Day varieties.

The president of the society, A. J. Madill, acted in the capacity of chairman. Following the lecture, the meeting gave way to open discussion, and Mr. Lane was asked several questions regarding gladioli.

DRAGGIG RIVER FOR BODY

OTTAWA, Ont., May 16. (CP)—A deep section of the Ottawa river was being dragged this morning for trace of the body of Magistrate Charles Hopewell, who disappeared yesterday after leaving notes indicating an intention of taking his life. THE SON OF TARZAN No. 67 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Several evenings before the house party disbanded, the young Englishman again referred to Meriem's story of her life in jungle. There was one thing he wanted definitely answered before he committed himself to the plan he was considering. "Who was Korak?" he asked. Meriem laughed: "I used to think he was an ape—but now I know he is a MAN," she answered, with emphasis on the last word. "A white man?" persisted Baynes. "Was he your—"

This girl's clear, beautiful eyes looked straight into his. She was far too unsophisticated to guess what he was driving at. She laughed merrily: "No, he was not my brother. Korak—was just Korak!" and again she broke into a gay laugh as she realised that never before had she attempted to analyze the relationship that existed between herself and Korak. The Hon. Morison said no more. But he thought of a certain luxurious apartment he owned in London.

The last evening they were to be together Meriem sat out a dance with Baynes under the tropical moon bathing the veranda. She had been listening entranced to his stories of London and Paris, all like fairy-tales to her fascinated ears. After a short silence he drew closer and bent his lips close to her face. He put his arm about her and she did not draw away. "I love you!" he whispered. She did not reply. "Tell me," he said, "that you return my love."

His lips had almost touched her when a vision of Korak sprang like a miracle before her eyes. She saw Korak's face, she felt his lips hot against hers and then for the first time she guessed what love meant. She drew gently away from Baynes. "Let us wait," she said. "I am too young to marry." The Hon. Morison was perfectly sure he had not mentioned marriage. "Good night," she said, and left him. Baynes lighted a cigarette, blew the smoke toward the moon, and smiled.

Natty Blue Uniforms For Local Rangers

Visitors down town this afternoon noticed with evident interest the window display of new blue uniforms for Peterborough Rangers at Grafton's. These military uniforms, manufactured for the warrant and non commissioned officers, were produced in the Special Order clothing department of Grafton's at their factory in Dundas.

The uniforms are of a fine quality navy blue serge, with special sleeve, lapel and shoulder tailoring. The decorations on the uniforms are various. The gold crown appears on the sleeve of each, and the Rangers' badge at the throat band. There are uniforms for the Battalion Musketry Instructor, the Physical Training Instructor, and the Regimental Quartermaster Sargent. Ribbons, indicative of medals received, appear just above the breast pocket. These medals include the Mons Star the British Victory, the Allied Victory, the South African War medal of 1899 and one of 1901, the Croix de Guerre, the Military Cross, the Long Service medal, and the Imperial Long Service medal.

RELIEF CASH TOTALS $12,738.22

The total to date of the fund for the Peterborough Relief Association amounts to $13,060.71, which includes a donation of $30.95 from Fanning's Steam Laundry. Actual cash received to date totals $12,738.22.

THROWING AWAY REFUSE

More co-operation on part of residents with the Board of Works department in keeping the city's street clean, is the plea of Harry Evans, Street Commissioner.

The city has gangs out cleaning up the streets, stated Mr. Evans, but many citizens undo the work by throwing refuse onto the roads. Some even made a practise of leaving all the sweepings and raking from lawns and backyards on the roadway, he said.

importing countries have asked the privilege of sending observers to the conference and their requests will be submitted to the exporting country representatives when they convene. The conference itself will decide.

Britain has intimated it will cooperate but is not sending official delegates to the conference. "If they desire to have an observer and want to keep in touch," said Mr. Ferguson, replying to a question on this point, "they will have whatever opportunities are accorded any other nation."

.....

"Unless something is done to check the demoralising effect of the absurdly low prices," Canada's High Commissioner went on "there will be inestimable reaction. The pendulum will swing to the other extreme. Acreage will be reduced far below normal with consequent increase in price to an undue figure. My thought is if possible to devise some scheme for more equitable distribution of the wheat production of the world so that all may be fed, and the farmer get more equitable return for his investment."

Two Main Problems

Mr. Ferguson added there was no intention of upsetting the present wheat merchandising structure although perhaps "another wheel might be added to the coach." The two main problems were (1) Overhanging surplus stocks, and (2) merchandising wheat in future. The discussion must be full and frank, he said.

Questioned how the decisions of the conference would likely be reconciled with Russia's five year plan Mr. Ferguson replied—"If Russia accepts the decisions of the conference and the decisions are observed that is all we can expect of them."

Mr. Ferguson will entertain the delegates to dinner on Monday and the British Government has arranged entertainment for them on Thursday.

Vast Improvement In Unemployment

There has been a vast improvement in the unemployment situation in Peterborough during the past month, City Engineer Parsons stated to-day. The Board of Works department is not being besieged now by men seeking jobs, and many of those on file as out of work failed to turn up this week when notice that it was their turn on the city's shift.

One hundred and forty-five men are now on the payroll of the Board of Works department. The gangs are engaged in preparing Hunter street east for paving, in laying storm drains in East City, cleaning up the streets, and at the gravel pit.

CHOIR PRESENTS OPERA MARTHA IN HAVELOCK HALL

Havelock Audience is Delighted With Presentation by St. Paul's Choir.

CLEVER PRODUCTION.

The members of the cast of "Martha," the comic, romantic opera presented on Friday last at the Grand Opera House, motored to Havelock last night and gave their entertaining production in the town hall, under the auspices of Knox Presbyterian Church. An audience of nearly three hundred people attended the performance and applauded enthusiastically the clever production.

"Martha" was presented so well here that it would be hard to improve on it, but there seemed to be a quality of free and spontaneous enthusiasm about last night's performance that made it quite outstanding. The principals were splendid in their roles and the choruses were extraordinarily good, the gay, bright music of this attractive opera ringing out with zest and vigor. The Fair scene, which was so outstanding here, with Hurrell Dodds as the bright particular star of the episode, was hampered somewhat by the smaller stage, but the whole effect was very fine, considering the handicaps under which the performers labored. The colorful, appropriate costuming, the splendidly trained choruses and the hard-working principals who had to sing and act at the same time, and carry most of the action of the piece, along with the melodious, attractive music of this bright composition, makes it linger in the memory as one of the worth-while efforts in the history of the choir and the Men's Association.

M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O. director of the production, acted as pianist, taking the place of the orchestra and working straight through the production, in choruses, solos and incidental music. Hurrell Dodds, president of the Men's Associaton, had the managing of the affair and carried it out with splendid finish in the same fashion in which he brought the local production to such a successful issue. Horace Hope did the stage managing. The enthusiasm with which the Havelock audience received the opera was a demonstration of its worth and fine presentation.

The list of the entire cast which had not been given previously, is as follows: Mrs. Bruce Munro, as Martha—Lady Harriet Durham, maid of honor to Queen Anne; Miss Jessie Pattison, as Nancy, Lady Harriet's confidante and attendant; Harold Coulson, Sir Tristang Mickleford, cousin of Lady Harriet; William Grieves, as Lionel; ward of Plunkett; George Coleman, as Plunkett, a wealthy farmer; George East, as the Sheriff of Richmond; H. L. Hope, R. Cobbold and Dr. J. C. Smith, of Lakefield, as three farmers; Adam Sands, as footman to Lady Harriet; the Misses Lily Kay, Mary Sedgewick and Daisy Reid, as three maid servants; Miss Grace Thompson, as a minor character; the Misses Lily Kay, Laura Reid, Sara Sands, Mary Sedgwick, Daisy Reid, Grace Thompson, Marion Armstrong and Mrs. Ada Strong, as ladies-in-waiting to Lady Harriet; Mesdames Jno. Fowler, G. Coleman, Hemphill, J. C. Smith, Board, Barrie, the Misses Ingram, O. Cullen, A. Hunter, as Farmers' wives; The Misses Mignonne Mayneord, Lulu Smith, Anna Archibald, Mary Sedgewick, Daisy Reid, Margaret Reid, Marion Armstrong, Sara Sands, Emily Hemphill, Kay Isbister, Phyllis Coleman Grace Thompson, Lily Kay, Laura Reid, Margaret Duthie, Helen Veitch and Isabel Hamilton, as Maid servants; the Misses Mary Sedgewick, Kay Isbister, Emily Hemphill, Marion Armstrong, Olive Cullen, Lily Kay, Mesdames A. Strong, J. C. Smith, G. Coleman, Board, as Ladies of the court and huntresses; H. L. Hope, E. Watson, A. Sands, S. Willis, Jno. Hill, S. Hall, H. McFee, Cockvan, Jno. Anderson, R. Cobbold, R. Wilson, W. Lyburn, H. Marsh, H. Matthews, and Dr. Smith, as Farmers; H. Macdonald, G. Broadley, J. Clayton, D. Snelgrove, J. Fowler, R. T. Currie, E. Searight, McElroy, A. Sands, F. Linton, H. Chenhall, H. Taylor, H. Morgan, as Farm Hands; W. L. Ferguson, as the showman of the Boxing tent, and Grant Clarke, Allen Clarke and Ross Pulkinghorn, as boxers; H. Dodds, as the Quack doctor; R. Taylor and H. Taylor, as clowns; G. Butler, as the peddler; Mrs. A. E. Strong, as the gypsy fortune teller; H. Dodds as the inn keeper.

Miss Chrissie Milby acted as accompanist for rehearsals, and Jno. Hornsby was transportation officer, and H. Dodds was property man.

Radios Unruly Child Has Finally Grown Up

Born in the trenches in France, the baby super-heterodyne, now the oldest child of the great radio family, and one of its most unruly offsprings, has finally grown up, ready to take its place as a leader in the industry that has fostered it.

Because its good qualities were early recognized, millions of dollars have been spent the world over in an effort to control it and thousands of hours devoted to a study of its idiosyncrasies. At times those interested in super-heterodyne development almost gave up hope that it had any future.

The Bad Boy Mastered.

However, the good little bad boy of radio has finally been mastered, according to an announcement this week by Mr. B. A. Schwarz, an internationally-known radio engineer, who states that by the introduction of a new principle in radio, developed in the research laboratory of De Forest Crosley Limited, Toronto, the super-heterodyne, with its sensitivity and selectivity for which it is noted, is now being utilized most successfully, and faithfully reproducing the full harmonic range desirable in good radio reception.

Interference Reduced.

So a new type has been developed, announced by Ye Olde Firme, Heintzman & Co. in Thursday's Examiner, and christened "The Symphonic Series De Forest Crosley Radio of ideal tone beauty, which not only eliminates the ear-splitting blasting of local stations when tuning in on distant ones, but also removes the necessity for critical manual control. Fading is also lessened. Combined with this is the ability of super-heterodyne to eliminate greatly the interference of stations both near and far. Listeners can also adjust the tone, not to three or four different shades, but to a thousand nuances, until it suits each individual taste.

Featured at Heintzman Hall.

This new series, embodying the new principle of super-heterodyne, comes in eight models—one for every purpose—and is now being featured by Mr. Haddow, local manager of Heintzman Hall, Royal Bank Building, George and Hunter streets, Peterborough. Mr. Haddow intends conducting an intensive summer campaign to widely introduce in Peterborough and district this 1931 marvel in radio reception and selectivity. For, owing to many improvements in recent years, radio entertainments are no longer confined so largely to the winter months, but can be enjoyed the year round.

B. A. SCHWARZ
Radio Engineer, who introduced Super-heterodyne, a new principle in radio

Super-heterodyne was first developed during the war by radio engineers of the U.S. Army, who conducted fairly successful experiments in an effort to communicate with Washington direct from the trenches in France.

Outstanding Contribution.

After the war when radio started to come into its own, super-heterodyne was chosen by many manufacturers as the radio receiver to be developed, because of its sensitivity and selectivity. But the very qualities for which it was selected became their stumbling block. The results were squeals, station fading and image response, or other stations coming in on the one being listened to. In overcoming these difficulties, Mr. Schwarz and his associates, it is believed, have made an outstanding contribution to radio, as found in the New Series De Forest Crosley Model—an All-Canadian machine built by Canadians in the De Forest Crosley factory at Toronto.

Radio lovers will find this new Symphonic Series worth while inspecting at Heintzman Hall, when they can have the utmost confidence in all representations made by Heintzman & Co. and their local staff.

The Tuxis and Trail Ranger groups of this city and district will have an excellent opportunity to acquire their badges through attendance at the Boys' Camp at Clear Lake. The local Boys' Work Board have made satisfactory arrangements with the Rotary Club for use of the camp site from July 4 to 11. A program director will be secured from the C.S.E.T. headquarters at Toronto to take care of badge work. Other experienced leaders will be in attendance.

Peterborough and District Tuxis and Trail Ranger Groups and any other organized boys' group wishing to take advantage of this splendid opportunity are asked to file their application for registration at once with Jim McClenaghan at the Y.M.C.A.

ed to look after that lake. These local deposits of fish are evidence of the efforts of the Fish and Game Protective Association to keep the Peterborough district waters stocked, and also indicate the co-operation of the Ontario department. Meanwhile, local fishermen are hunting up trout streams, scanning maps and canvassing their friends in the country for tips on trout streams any distance up to fifty or sixty miles from the city.

KING'S OWN BIBLE CLASS HOLDS SUCCESSFUL BANQUET IN HALL

Play Cast of "Mammy's Lil' Wild Rose" Are Guests of Evening.

INTERESTING PROGRAM.

The large auditorium of St. James' Sunday School was the scene of a splendid banquet last night, under the auspices of the King's Own Class.

The guests of the evening included the play cast of Mammy's Lil' wild Rose, with the assisting artists.

The daughters of class members, acted as the very efficient waitresses and included Misses Dorothy Drysdale, Marjorie Hogan, Jean Meeks, Norma Dunbar, Muriel Moorhouse, Eva Spurway and Marjorie Stewart. Many old favorite songs were enjoyed in the community singing, with M. Drysdale leading and Miss Aileen Rose presiding at the piano. The chairman and toastmaster of the evening, was the pastor, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, who spoke in humorous vein in a brief opening address.

The toast to "Our Church" was proposed by Mrs. Alvin Davis, the class president, who told of the many worthy activities engaged in by the church and its organizations.

A. E. Prest, superintendent of the Sunday School responded to the toast to the Church He deemed it a pleasure and a privilege to be present as a guest and to enjoy the repast and the social hour with this class.

The toast to the play cast was brief and witty in the capable hands of Mrs. Alex Meeks.

Earl Eakins, as director of the play responded, speaking of his pleasure in working with the cast, which he considered was well balanced and most efficient as evidenced in the success of the play.

This part of the program was interspersed with fine musical selections and readings.

Charming little Betty Irwin sang "Telling it to the Daisies" and "The song without an end." While Miss Margaret Pitchford captivated her audience with her clever readings "Driving from the Rear" and "The Seven Ages of Man."

Exceptionally well rendered was the duet "Life's Dream is O'er," by Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Cutmore, who responded to the hearty applause with an encore "I Love a Lassie."

Miss Olive Prest delighted all with her brilliant execution of the piano solo "Sprites of the Glen."

Another variation in the program was the jolly hour of games and contests, eliciting the skill of all those entering, in many different ways.

The first testing of wits came with the "flower" and "base ball" contests won respectively by Mrs. E. Kitney and Miss Alice Scott and Mrs. Fairbrother.

A group of College stunts provoked much merriment with McGill the winning team. A relay race and an Alphabetical contest completed the merry evening, which was brought to a conclusion with "Good-night Ladies."

New York Market Breaks--New Lows Set

SEVERAL ISSUES DROP TO LOWEST IN MANY YEARS

American Telephone Sells Under $169 a Share for First Time Since 1927.

OTHER MARKETS FOLLOW.

Sharp Declines in Railroad Stocks Also Outstanding Feature of Session.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 18 (C.P.). — Common stocks of the country's largest and oldest corporations broke severely on the New York Stock Exchange to-day, establishing new lows which in many instances had not been seen in several years.

Heavy selling of American Telephone, which sold under $169 a share for the first time since 1927, and sharp declines in most of the railroad issues were outstanding features of the session. Trading, however, was not unusually active, and the day's sales were about 2,500,000 shares.

.....NEW YORK EXCHANGE.....

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 18. (CP)—Stock reacted severely to-day, with losses of 2 to 9 points in leading industrials, rails and utilities. The market rallied at mid-afternoon but trading was dull on the upturn and prices again sagged again in the late dealings. U.S. Steel and American Can both broke, the former selling down to 90, the latter to 98¾, for respective losses of 2 and 3 points. American Telephone showed pronounced weakness, dropping 7 points. Atchison lost nearly 9, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and American Tobacco "B" 6 and New York Central, National Biscuit, Southern Pacific and Lambert 4. Trading was largely quiet and sales were less than 2 500,000 shares.

TRAIN HITS CAR THREE MEN DEAD

Triple Crossing Tragedy at Woodstock Where International Limited Hits Car.

TWO OTHERS INJURED.

WOODSTOCK, May 18. — Their car struck by the westbound International Limited at the Wilson street C.N.R. crossing at 11.30 Saturday night, three young men living in the vicinity of Holbrook Village, about 10 miles south of Woodstock, met instant death.

Clifford Foster, 27, was the owner and driver of the car, the other two victims being Frank Francis, 23, and Austin Simmons, 20, farm laborers, who were boarding with him.

The trio had been in Woodstock for the evening and were starting their journey home at the time of the accident. It is said that they drove on to the crossing without diminishing their speed, apparently not seeing the approaching train.

The engine hit the car squarely on the side, demolishing it and scattering the wreckage along the track for a city block as the train was being brought to an emergency stop.

Foster leaves a young wife and two small children. He and Simmons, who is survived by his parents, six brothers and a sister, were life-long residents of the district, while Francis was a young Englishman, who had been employed on farms in the district for the past four or five years. His only known relative in this country is an uncle, Frank Lambert, of Freeman street, Toronto.

The Weather

On Sunday morning the thermometer was down to the freezing point, namely 32 degrees. If the reader notices some of his early-sown vegetables looking sickly, he may safely ascribe it to his haste in sowing his garden. The highest temperature was 64 degrees. This, Monday, morning was also cold, 33 degrees being reached. The maple trees are now almost in full leafage, while other varieties are approaching full dress.—W.P.

LABOR PREMIER DECLARES WAR ON UPPER HOUSE

Claims Lords Return to Life of Hostility When Gov't Unfolds Policy.

LETTER TO CANDIDATE.

Refers Specifically to Virtual Rejection of Agricultural Land Utilization Bill.

LONDON, May 18—(AP)—Premier Ramsay Macdonald today made an open declaration of war on the House of Lords in a letter to the Labor candidate in the Rutherglen by-election which takes place on Thursday.

"Servile to every whim and proposal of the Conservative Party," the letter said, "the Lords return to a life of hostility as soon as a labor government begins to unfold its policy."

"We have built up the Labor Party, we have asked the people to trust to the ballot box and political methods; we have spent time and money in elections, and when we have done everything which a political democracy can do, a body of irresponsible political partisans which keeps the Tory party always in power is in a position to defy a Government so elected and a majority so declared.

Must Face Challenge

"If this country is to escape the turmoils through which others have gone the menacing challenge of the House of Lords must be faced and the mass of the electors must be assured that representative democracy is not a combination of words but an effective power."

In the course of the letter Mr. Macdonald refers specifically to the virtual rejection by the Upper House of the Government's agricultural land utilization bill which, in the opinion of many commentators, has made relations between the House of Lords and a majority in the House of Commons more bitter than they have been for many years.

ROTARY PLANS FOR BIG FAIR ARE MATURING

Chairmen of Various Sub-committees Are Announced at To-day's Luncheon.

MAKING OVALTINE.

Rotarian C. J. Glaspel Tells Fellow Members of Latest Peterborough Product.

Interesting information in regard to Peterborough's latest industry was given the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon to-day, when Rotarian C. J. Glaspel, general manager of A. Wander Limited, initiated his fellow-members into some of the mysteries in connection with the manufacture of Ovaltine, the firm's chief product. Sample tins of Ovaltine manufactured in Peterborough, were furnished each member to supply a practical illustration of Rotarian Glaspel's remarks.

Rotarian John Hornsby, manager of the Rotary Street Fair, to be held next month, outlined some of his plans for the carrying out of this big event. A general committee, composed of chairman, vice-chairman, secretary, the directors of the club and the chairmen of the various sub-committees, was announced by Rotarian Hornsby, who also appointed the following officers and chairmen:

Vice-Chairman of the general committee—Rotarian C. G. Graham.

Secretary of the general committee—Rotarian L. A. Potvin.

Chairman Automobile committee—Rotarian Jack Gillespie.

Chairman Publicity committee—Rotarian R. M. Glover.

Chairman Booths committee—Rotarian C. H. Rogers.

Chairman Booth Personnel Committee—F. L. Roy.

Chairman Purchasing committee—Rotarian James Juby.

Chairman Finance committee—Rotarian S. R. Armstrong.

Chairman Decorations committee—Rotarian J. H. Seels.

Chairman Lighting committee — Rotarian R. L. Dobbin.

An estimating contest as to the distance covered in a certain period with an automobile as a prize, will be again a feature of Rotarians' Street Fair.

When the matter was introduced to-day, Rotarian J. K. Hughes, one of the two automotive dealers in the club membership, remarked that instead of having a draw to see which dealer would furnish the prize car, he would withdraw in favor of Rotarian Gillespie, who was an older member of the club in point of service.

This was hailed as a very sporting gesture, and Rotarian Hughes's suggestion was accepted.

Introduced by Rotarian S. R. Armstrong, Rotarian Glaspel remarked that the principal product manufactured by his firm was Ovaltine, a mixture of malt extract, eggs and milk

ST. THOMAS, Ont., May 18. (CP) In a statment issued to-day regarding the report that he may be the Liberal candidate in Norfolk county in the by-election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. J. S. Martin, Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P. for West Elgin and Ontario Liberal Leader said to-day, "At the time of the convention in Toronto, when I was selected as leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario I stated very definitely to those who were backing me that I regarded myself as being under an obligation to the people in Elgin as much as they had just re-elected me, by a very large majority as their representative in the fifteenth Parliament of Canada. I further declared at the complementary banquet that was tendered to me by the people of Elgin in St. Thomas in honor of my election to the Ontario Leadership, that when I contested a provincial seat it would be one of the two Elgins. Of course one cannot say what the exigencies of the situation may be, but at the present time I have not altered my stand nor am I contemplating any other move."

ENGINEER DIES OF STAB WOUNDS

Former Boarder at Gloucester Home Held on Charge of Murder.

REMANDED WEEK.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 18. — (CP)—A domestic tragedy resulted to-day in the death of Frederick Hutchinson, engineer of a fishing vessel, and the holding of a ship mate, Stephen Geer, formerly of Charlevoix, Mich., for his murder. Geer was held without bail, and his case was continued a week.

Hutchinson died shortly after neighbors called police to his home. They found him on a couch bleeding from stab wounds in the chest, and he died soon after arriving at a hospital. Greer who had formerly been a boarder at the Hutchinson home, was found outside the house, bleeding from a wrist wound which police believed self-inflicted.

Native Sons Oppose Restoring Of Titles

OTTAWA, Ont., May 18.—(CP)—Disapproval of the proposal for restoration of titles in Canada, contained in a private member's bill introduced in the House of Commons is strongly expressed in a resolution adopted by the Ottawa Assembly of the Native Sons of Canada. The assembly "deeply regrets to learn an effort is being made to re-establish the practices of the Government of the day gratifying its friends with positions of social prestige and right of social prestige," says the motion.

Bestowal of titles is referred to as "a noxious relic of feudalism with depraving attendants—snobberies and sycophancies."

After the 140 Native Sons assemblies scattered throughout the Dominion have expressed their views on the resolution, it will be forwarded to the Federal Government.

TORONTO MAN HERE.

Amendment Will Probably Be Made to the Fish and Game Act.

"Disgraceful" was the term used today by J. W. Gravestock, president of the local Fish and Game Association, in describing the fish slaughter taking place along the Otonabee River south of the city.

"Dead fish line the shore from the locks right down the river," stated Mr. Gravestock, explaining that he had traversed the river yesterday to Campbellton in company with Inspector Rivill, of the Fish and Game Department.

"Gaffing" or "snagging" — the method widely adopted by local fishermen in catching suckers—was responsible for the wanton destruction of fish, declared Mr. Gravestock. "I do not mind a poor man going out and catching suckers that way, but our investigation proved conclusively yesterday that the fishermen do not want suckers. The locks had many fishermen and all were bringing up suckers, but only a few were kept. The majority of the fishermen threw the suckers back into the water and they floated away dead."

Mr. Gravestock stated that he had no objection to suckers being "gaffed" but he observed small bass and pickerel being caught. The fish were ripped open by the big hooks of the "gaff" and when thrown back floated down to add to the thousands of dead fish along the shore.

Mr. Gravestock declared that Inspector Rivill was absolutely opposed to "gaffing" of suckers in view of the destruction accompanying it among game fish. Conditions here existed nowhere else in the province, Mr Gravestock reported the inspector as saying.

It is probable that an amendment will be made to the Fish and Game Act at the Fall session of the Legislature, prohibiting "gaffing" of fish of any kind and at any time, Mr. Gravestock said.

20,000 Trout Fry Are Placed In Pond

Twenty thousand speckled trout fry arrived in Peterborough yesterday and were immediately conveyed by members of the local Fish and Game Association to the association's specially built pond on Samuel Carver's farm in North Monaghan.

The fry will be kept in the pond until next fall, and then be placed in streams around the district. They will be fed daily by members of the Association so that they may develop.

The fry arrived from the Government's hatchery near Picton, and form another successful effort on the part of the local Fish and Game Association to restock local waters with "speckled beauties."

Representatives Of 11 Countries Gather in London

Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain Outlines General Conditions to Delegates From Over World Present in Canada House.

FARMERS' PROSPERITY MEANS ADDING MILLIONS OF CUSTOMERS TO PURCHASING POWER OF WORLD

Claims if Deliberations Are to Prove of Greatest Value it Will Be By Keeping in Mind Not Alone Each One's Special Country But Our Fellow Men.

LONDON, May 18. — (By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent)—With representatives of the 11 great wheat exporting nations of the world gathered about the conference table, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, today opened the wheat conference at Canada House.

"Our deliberations," said Mr. Ferguson, who is chairman of the conference, "should be directed in an earnest endeavor to devise if possible an improvement in the methods of bringing the producer and consumer together on more equitable terms."

There were two essentials in the maintenance of the business of wheat growing, Mr. Ferguson argued. In the first place it was necessary that wheat should reach its customer as the customer required it. In the second place the producer must receive a reasonable price for his product.

Like any other industry the wheat growing industry must languish and fail if those engaged in it found themselves unable to make a living, Mr. Ferguson went on. As business declined acreage decreased and the supply of wheat diminished. And when the supply became insufficient to meet the demand the price went up and the consumer must pay higher prices to satisfy his wants.

Result is Dearer Bread.

"The result," Mr. Ferguson added, "is that we have dearer bread. We certainly want neither of these conditions to obtain. Our effort should be directed to helping the farmer to get a fair wage for his labor, so that he may continue to maintain himself and his family in his calling without exploiting or overcharging his fellow-worker in a different occupation who must buy bread for his family.

"Our deliberations therefore should be directed in an earnest endeavor to devise if possible an improvement in methods, bringing the producer and consumer together on more equitable terms. It is said there is overproduction of wheat. On the other hand there is much evidence to substantiate the view that the increase in world production has scarcely kept pace with the increase in world population, and it is argued in some quarters that the present abnormal situation is not due to production of more wheat than the world can absorb, but to faulty methods of distribution that do not carry the crop to the consumer in an orderly way.

"This is the question that must have careful and exhaustive study during the conference, and if it is found that improvement can be made in this direction, this conference should be prepared to make helpful suggestions.

Important Phase.

"There is a further important phase of the problem," Mr. Ferguson continued, "that must not be overlooked. The man who must buy food has some product of his labor to sell. He is unable to dispose of it unless he can find a purchaser. Every farmer is a potential customer. If the wheat grower can sell his wheat he will be able to purchase the products of other industries. The prosperity of the agricultural industry means the addition of millions of customers to the purchasing power of the world.

"Without suggesting any restriction of the comprehensive discussion of this world-wide problem it may be dealt with under two general headings:

"First, disposition of the present accumulated stocks in various countries;

"Second, improved methods for handling the distribution of the wheat surpluses of the future.

"I am sure you are fully seized of the gravity of the present crisis. A serious responsibilitiy rests on our shoulders. Your presence here is abundant evidence of that. We are dealing with a matter that seriously affects every section of the world and we should approach it as a world problem. If our deliberations are to prove of the highest value it will be by keeping in mind not alone the condition in our own several countries and seeking remedies that will ameliorate our own immediat difficulty, but by taking abroad unselfish and public-spirited view that all mankind is suffering and we should lend our best efforts to assisting not ourselves alone but our fellowmen.

Great Satisfaction

If we pursue our discussions with an eye single to that end I am sure our conclusions, reflecting as they

FIRE THREATENED TERRACE BLOCK SUNDAY MORNING

Blaze Started In A Shed At Rear Of 229 George Street

SPREAD RAPIDLY

Damage Is Estimated At $1000 Many of Residents Removed their Furniture

Residents in the terrace block, 221 to 229 George street, were rather rudely awakened from their Sunday morning sleep by a $1,000 fire which swept the rear of the building at about 7 o'clock. The terrace, owned by M. Fine, is situated on the west side of George between Sherbrooke and Dalhousie streets.

The fire started in a shed at the rear of 229, but its origin has not been determined as yet. Remains of a gas stove suggest that as a cause, or the ash cans full of hot coals might have been the cause. At any rate, with a strong northwest wind blowing, the flames were quickly fanned towards a nearby shed behind 227. The flames shot up so high that the attic and roof of the terrace caught fire. When the firemen arrived at the scene the flames were mounting to a height of about 30 feet.

All the tenants were aroused and as much as possible of their furniture was ordered out. The rest was covered with tarpaulins. Fortunately, however, the fire never spread to the ground or second floor, and so damage within the terrace was caused entirely by water.

Three 2½-inch hose totalling 900 feet were laid from two hydrants. When the fire in the sheds was checked, two hoses were reduced to 1½-inch hose for the attic and roof. In order to get at the fire in the attic the firemen had to chop a hole out of the ceiling of the second floor and send a ladder through the opening. The fire was completely extinguished at 9.15, and damage estimates are in the vicinity of $1,000.

FARMERS ORGANIZE RIFLE CLUB TO GUARD CHICKENS FROM THIEVES

Whole West Missouri District Angered as Flocks Continue to Disappear.

CLUB ACTIVE BEFORE WAR.

LONDON, Ont., May 18. (CP) — Thoroughly aroused by recurrent cases of chicken stealing, farmers in West Missouri are reorganizing the Thorndale Rifle Club, an organization that was active before the war, to protect their flocks and, if need be, patrol the roads against poultry pilferers.

In pre-war days the Thorndale Rifle Club was one of the best known in the country, boasting among its members some of the finest shots in Western Ontario. Many of these men served overseas as snipers, making good use of the skill which they gleaned at target practise in peace time. Several were in the Canadian militia and have returned to the peaceful occupation of chicken farming in their home district.

Now that the menace of the chicken robber has become so keenly felt in West Missouri these same men, or as many as remain, are about to reorganize the old gun club.

Two new cases of hen roost robbery were reported to-day. The victims were Wesley McCutcheon of Thorndale, who lost half of his flock of birds, and George Smith, fifth concession, West Missouri, who had over a dozen chickens stolen.

Not Seeking To Modify Liquor Traffic Pact

LONDON, May 18.—(AP)— Hugh Dalton, undersecretary for Foreign Affairs told the House of Commons today that Great Britain would not seek to have the liquor traffic treaty with the United States modified so as to substitute definite distance from shore for the present provision of one hour's steaming by a suspected vessel.

Commander Southby has asked if the Government would not consider advisability of giving notice of such a proposal under article five of the Anglo-American convention "In view of doubt and uncertainty occasioned by the present arrangement."

"The question of fixing definite distance was very carefully considered at the time the convention was negotiated," said Dalton. "But this plan was found to be impracticable."

BUT "WHAT OF IT"

By GORDON A. SINCLAIR

CADIZ, Spain, April 14.—(Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1931).—The business of crossing an imaginary border line into this sun swept kingdom is just about as simple as brushing your teeth. Simpler than for any other European country except Monaco. But once you cross the frontier in other countries, you are in, and have no other official dealings unless you go gunning for trouble. Here the fun is just starting. It's a game of hide and seek with the Customs boys in the patent leather hats. If they catch you it means one more look at the spare shirt.

In Gibraltar, which is British in name, appearance and rule but not speech, I went to book passage for Malaga in the heart of the grape country. The ticket experts stood aghast at such a thought. # New Revolution Under Way In China

200 NATIONALIST SOLDIERS SLAIN IN CANTON CITY

Aim of Southerners is to Oust Ruling General Chiang Kai-shek

WAR CLOUDS SPREAD

Loyal Troops Fighting Reds In Kiangsi and Hunan Ready to March South

SHANGHAI, May 18 (C. P.). — The birthplace of two successful revolutions, Canton, to-day proclaimed by open fighting the commencement of a third insurrectionist movement.

Two hundred loyal Nanking soldiers have been killed within the last few days there, insurrectionist leaders said, when they resisted attempts to disarm. A Provisional Government is expected to be established in opposition to the role of General Chiang Kai-shek within the next few days

The late Dr. Sun Yat Sen marched from Canton to sweep the old dynasty before him a score of years ago and establish the first Republic in South China. After troubles had beset the young Republic Chiang Kai-Shek led from Canton an expedition that resulted in 1927 in the establishment of the National'st Government as the dominant power in China.

Sun Fo Is Hiding.

Sun Fo, son of Sun Yat Sen, is expected to play an important part in the insurrection at Canton. Sun, who has been Minister of Railways in the Nationalist Government, is hiding here despite requests from the Nationalists that he return to Nanking. He was expected to proceed to Canton shortly.

Meanwhile the ominous clouds which have been gathering over China for several weeks apparently had been rent by the first flash of arms. The split between the Conservative elements of the Kuomintang (people's party) and the Nationalist Government led by Chiang arose late in April when the southerners denounced Chiang and accused him of harboring desires to establish an autocracy in China. Although Nanking has denied such reports, preparations have been made by the Government for hostilities.

Throughout Kiangsi and Hunan provinces where Nationalist forces have been opposing groups of marauding Communists preparations were made for a military thrust against Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces, seat of the southern insurrection. Along the Tientsinpukow railway Nationalist troops were mobilizing awaiting a call to march southward. In addition, twenty-five Chinese coastal steamers have been commandeered by the Nationalists to carry troops to Canton if necessary. They are being assembled here as transports awaiting orders.

Forces Gather in Canton

Meanwhile southern forces have not been entirely quiet. Military leaders favoring the southern Conservatives have gathered at Canton to outline a campaing while their political constituents are fostering rebellion and reiterating their demands that Chiang retire. Throughout Kwangtung and Kwangsi insurrectionist forces were moving toward the provincial borders of Hunan and Kwantsi, their ranks being swelled by thousands of recruits.

Former Mine Worker Is Again Church Head

LONDON, May 18 (C.P.)—James Brown, the former mine worker, with his wife, will take up residence for the third time in Holyrood Palace at Edinburgh this week, when Mr. Brown enters his third term as Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly, Church of Scotland, representing his Majesty the King in this august office.

The most important subject to be discussed by the Assembly is the claim of women for admittance to the ministry and eldership, and also a proposal by a special committee for the preparation of a brief popular statement regarding the Church's faith, although it is not suggested this be done until the Presbyteries save been consulted and their criticisms and suggestions considered.

The Assembly will also consider arrangements for a great forward movement in home missionary efforts, to commence in October.

BRITISH LABOR NOW IN ALARM OVER THE DOLE

Rumor Commission About to Recommend Reduction in Scale of Benefits.

BOOST CONTRIBUTIONS.

Daily Herald Claims Report Will Creat First Class Political Sensation.

LONDON, May 18 (By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Correspondent).—British labor—the workingmen, not the political party—is in alarm over the dole. The Royal Commission which has been investigating the workings of the Unemployment Insurance, is said to be ready to recommend reductions in the scale of benefits and increased contributions to the insurance fund from the worker, the employer and the State alike.

Forecasts also have it that the commission will recommend severe curtailment of the transitional benefit—in other words those dole payments not strictly coyered by the statutory contributions.

Political Sensation

The semi-official Government newspaper, The Daily Herald, said editorially to-day that the report would create a first-class political sensation. "The proposals foreshadowed are ruthless in their disregard of the welfare of the workless and their dependents," The Herald said. "Sooner or later the country will be driven back on the necessity for scrapping the present system and replacing it by noncontributory schemes with the benefits on equitable lines."

The Royal Commission on Unemployment Insurance was set up last December "To enquire into the provisions and working of the Unemployment Insurance scheme, and to make recommendations with regard to (1) Its future scope, the provisions which it should contain and the means by which it may be made solvent and self-supporting; and (2) The arrangements which should bem adeo utside the scheme for the unemployed who are capable of and available for work."

His Honor Judge Holman Gregory, K.C., is chairman, and the Commissioners are Councillor W. Asbury, Professor Henry Clay, Dr. H. J. Hetherington, Mrs. C. D. Rackham, E. C. Lascelles and H. M. Trouncer.

Airport Manager Dies In Airplane Crash

SAGINAW, Mich., May 18.—Joseph E. Behse, manager of the Saginaw Airport, and President of the Paramount Aircraft Corporation, was killed with his mechanic late Saturday afternoon when his seaplane plunged into the Saginaw River.

The mechanic, Whitney Merritt, was 26 years old. Behse was married and 30 years old.

The two were testing the machine when it fell. The plane was the only one built by the corporation of which Behse was head, and was finished in January. It was flown for the first time in April and then was taken to the aircraft show in Detroit for exhibition purposes.

To celebrate her one-hundred-first birthday recently, Mrs. Ann Stansall, who has lived in the same house in Mansfield, England, for 60 years, started from the place on her first week's vacation away from home.

CUSTOMS ACCORD WILL BE SETTLED BY WORLD COURT

Move on Austro-German Scheme is Proposed by Rt. Hon. A. Henderson.

LEGALITY IS QUESTIONED.

Austrian Minister Agrees But Makes Spirited Defense of Country's Integrity.

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 18 (A.P.)—Germany and Austria, France, Great Britain and Italy to-day agreed to submit the proposed Austro-German customs accord to the World Court at The Hague for an advisory opinion as to its legality.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, British Foreign Secretary, proposed the move, pointing out that legality of the accord was questioned under the Treaty of St. Germain and the Geneva Protocol of 1922.

Dr. Johann Schrober, Austria's gray-haired Foreign Minister, agreed to the proposal, but placed a spirited defense of Austria's integrity on the record.

Denies French Charge

He denied the French charge that his country was violating the Geneva Protocol guaranteeing Austrian political independence when she negotiated with Germany for the projected union. He denied also that the Austro-German arrangement threatened the most-favored nations clause, and he denied that the negotiations had been conducted in secret.

The projected treaty, he said, does not leave it to Germany to regulate the economic policies of the two contractingstates, for the respective parliaments retain equal authority to arrange customs agreements with other nations. Throughout their negotiations, he declared, Germany and Austria had constantly in mind both the Geneva Protocol and the St. Germain Treaty.

"I must declares trongly," he said, "that our announcement that this agreement was constructed upon an exactly equal footing of both nations must be taken seriously. Austria will by no means surrender her economic independence.

"If the powers are so greatly concerned over this matter as to infringe Austria's sovereign right to negotiate treaties, then indeed is our economic independence destroyed."

The two Germanic States agreed also to go no further with their negotiations pending the World Court decision, which is expected some time during the summer, before the Council meets again in September.

Exporting Nations At Wheat Parley

LONDON, May 18 (C.P. Cable).—The following, all the principal wheat exporting nations of the world, were represented when the Wheat Conference commenced at Canada House to-day under the chairmanship of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain:

Australia, the Argentine, Bulgaria, Canada, Hungary, India, Poland, Rumania, Soviet Russia, Jugo-Slavia, and United States.

The conference is expected to last more than a week, and observers have come to London from most of the principal wheat-importing countries.

Chicken Thieves Active In Hastings District

HASTINGS, May 18 (Examiner Correspondence).—Local residents and farmers in the immediate district of the village are up in arms owing to the many robberies of chicken houses that have taken place the last few nights. Two farmers losing practically their entire flocks, while a lady on the edge of the corporation lost a valuable Holstein cow. The local constable is co-operating with the Provincial officer to clean the matter up.

MANY JOINING RIGHT-OF-WAY ASSOCIATION

Another Meeting is to be Called In Near Future by the Executive

FARMERS SIGNING UP

Settlement Experiences With Hydro are told by Several Land Owners

The membership of the Farmers' Right-of-Way Association is gradually increasing, Reeve Fred McIntyre of Otonabee, president of the Association informed The Examiner to-day. Voluntary subscriptions have been paid to both Mr. McIntyre and to Deputy-Reeve Huston since the last meeting of the Association, and by way of showing his interest in this organization of farmers in this district, Mayor Denne recently paid the regular fee of one dollar that makes him a member.

"I have received a number of telephone calls from different farmers asking me how we were getting along," said Mr. McIntyre, "and everything indicates that there has been no falling off in the people's interest. I think we will hold another meeting of the executive in the near future so that we can all keep in closer touch with one another, add to the membership and find out what is being done in regard to some property owners signing up with the Hydro-Electric Commission. We will announce the date of the meeting as soon as we decide about it."

From another source a report of one farmer's experience with agents of the Commission reflects a more generous disposition of settlement. This farmer was one of the very few who had refused to accept the proffered settlement for the first line of towers. Eight of them were erected on his farm and he declined to accept settlement on the basis of $25 a tower. At present there is a total of eleven towers and twenty-three telephone poles, either all constructed or located on his property, and Hydro agents have offered him $1,330 with the promise that the Commission would be willing to add another hundred dollars to the total indemnity.

This farmer had estimated the Hydro depreciation of his farm at $3,000, and that is the sum which he feels he should receive. Whether he accepts the new offer or not, it is cited as a substantial improvement upon the original rate of $25 a tower.

This incident has been mentioned by some members as an example of what the farmers have been contending for and also of what they may expect to receive from the Hydro-Electric Commission by a concerted movement to press their claims, especially in view of the reassuring promises made by the Hon. J. R. Cooke.

Seven Sunday Fires In Quebec Village

QUEBEC, May 18 (C.P.) — The eighteenth fire within a year broke out last night in the Parish of L'Ange Gardien, fifteen miles below Quebec, on the north shore. As a result a request was made to the Attorney-General to post Provincial Police officers to investigate the origin of those fires. The parish church, sixteen houses and three barns have been the prey of flames in the municipality in less than a year. On seven successive Sundays houses have been destroyed by fire in the course of the evening, and in each case the origin of the fire remains a mystery. The population is terror-stricken. In several cases the lives of residents were threatened by the fires, and the total loss exceeds $300,000.

No city, like Topsy, ever "just growed," and it is also true that no individual either ever "just growed" and justified his existence. Growth is accomplished through the concentrated, concerted and collective efforts of individuals through the Chamber of Commerce.

BOMBS HURLED IN LISBON CITY INJURE FIFTEEN

Blasts Occur in Crowds Celebrating President Carmona's Achievements.

UNDERWORLD RAIDED.

Infuriated Citizens Wreck Newspaper Offices Before Police Arrive.

LISBON, Portugal, May 18.—(AP)—Fifteen persons were injured in the explosion of three bombs on the streets of Lisbon early today as crowds celebrating achievements of the dictatorship of President General Carmona returned to their homes.

The first bomb was thrown into the heart of a great crowd in the Praza de Rocio, and wounded thirteen people. The infuriated crowd chased the man supposed to have thrown the bomb, but he escaped in the confusion. There was some firing of revolvers for several minutes as the injured were removed and taken to hospitals.

While the excitement was at its height a second bomb exploded in the neighboring Rua Nova Trinidade, within a stone's throw of headquarters of the Republican Guard.

People Infuriated

The fury of the people rose to high pitch. They gesticulated with their fists and shouted "down with the Communists" "Down with the revolution" and "Down with the Free Masons". A procession, in which students predominated, formed and marched on the newspaper Republic., shouting wildly.

The doors were broken down and the mob rushed inside, wrecked the plant, and set piles of papers afire. The police, arriving at last, turned out the rioters and took charge of the building, establishing a heavy guard.

A third bomb exploded in Abire Alto and injured some property there.

The police in motor cars immediately began a roundup of the city's underworld characters.

The Man Who Made Modern Motor Traffic Possible

JOHN BOYD DUNLOP conceived and built the first pneumatic tire in 1888. In doing this he provided the foundation for a world-wide chain of research laboratories which, more than any other agency, is responsible for modern tire performance.

This chain of laboratories still bears the inventor's name. In these DUNLOP laboratories there have been developed or tested every single worthwhile improvement in tire building . . . and through this research every one of these advances has been incorporated in DUNLOP Reinforced Cable Cord Tires.

That's why the late Sir Henry Segrave used DUNLOP Tires.

That's why Sir Malcolm Campbell chose DUNLOP Tires to set a new world's speed record of 245.7 m.p.h.

And that is why millions of DUNLOP Tires are in use today the world around.

You will reap the advantages of this unparalleled tire building knowledge and experience in the form of long, safe tire mileage by seeing to it that you ride on DUNLOP Reinforced Cable Cord Tires.

TRACTION-BALLOON:
The finest general purpose balloon tire science can build.
PACEMAKER:
An exceptionally strong, long mileage balloon tire, slightly lower in price than Traction-Balloon.
MULTIPLE-BEAD BUS-TRUCK:

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 18. — Absence of foreign interest and forecast of precipitation over the week-end on the Prairie wheat fields had a bearish effect on the wheat market here yesterday. At the close values were 1¼ cents to 1⅝ cents lower for the day.

May closed at 60½ cents, down 1½ cents; July closed at 61¼ cents to 61⅝ cents, a decline of 1⅝ cents; while the October figure slipped a like amount to 62⅞ cents to 63 cents.

Pit trading was dull and featureless. Export demand in Canadian wheat was disappointing. Spreading operations between here and Chicago were almost negligible.

Coarse and cash grain experienced a lull in trading activity. Prices were unchanged to a shade easier.

Egg quotations also advanced, while potato prices declined, and cheese quotations were unchanged. On Saturday butter and egg prices were higher, with cheese and potato quotations holding unchanged.

Export inquiry and improved local buying sent No. 1 finest pasteurized creamery, fresh and regraded butter, in carlots, up ½c to 20½c pound. Solids and prints to retailers gained a cent at 22c and 23c a pound. Receipts last week were 14,898 boxes.

On the egg market, fresh Ontario and Prairie extras, in carlots, were ½c higher at 20½c to 21c, while firsts and seconds were unchanged at 17c and 15c a dozen. Carlot prices of fresh British Columbia extras also advanced ½c at 21½c to 22c a dozen, with firsts unchanged at 18c. To retailers, quotations, in cartons, will be 1c higher to-day, it was announced. Fresh specials will be 27c; fresh extras, 25c; fresh firsts, 22c; and fresh seconds, 20c a dozen. Last week's receipts were 21,341 cases.

Ontario colored cheese was quoted at 9c a pound, and receipts for the week were 4,817 boxes.

On the potato market, New Brunswick Green Mountains were quoted at 60c to 70c per 80-pound bag, or 90 pounds bulk, and to retailers 70c to 80c per 80-pound bag. New No. 1 Floridas were $7.50 per 160-pound barrel. New No. 1 Bermudas were $2.25 per 50-pound box.

In the United States, not to mention Canada, during the first six months of 1930, 208,000 passengers were carried on scheduled air lines—39,000 more passengers than were transported during the entire year of 1929. During these same first six months transport planes flew 17,000,000 miles as against 9,000,000 miles during the same period for 1929. The Chamber of Commerce as an organization and many of its individual members, has long believed that Peterborough should have a municipal airport on a moderate scale. The above figures are released in the hope that they will give some food for thought.

CANADA LEADS IN SEA LINERS

Empress of Britain Will Complete Maiden Voyage on June 2.

IN QUEBEC PORT.

QUEBEC CITY, Que., May 18.—(By the Canadian Press)—When the majestic new Empress of Britain arrives at this ancient port on June 2, on the completion of her maiden voyage from Southampton, Canadians will have a new source of pride—the fact that the Dominion remains in the very front rank of high-class ocean travel. The Empress of Britain, large, luxurious and fast, will put Canadian ports on equal terms with New York in the matter of super-accommodation for fast trans-Atlantic crossings.

The Empress of Britain is a quadruple-screw turbine, 42,500 ton steamship, 758 feet in length, with a designed speed of 24 knots which has been exceeded in her trials. She is built to do the voyage from Quebec to England in five days and this time will probably be reduced further when her great engines have been "run in." The Empress of Britain will rank with the most powerful of the ocean giants out of English, German or United States ports.

From keel to wireless aerial the newest of the fleet of the Canadian Pacific Steamships is the most up-to-date on the high seas, incorporating many radical improvements in design in the multitude of specialties that go to make up the modern "floating hotel." Engines, wireless equipment, electrical installation, general design, luxury of appointments for private and public accommodation reach a new peak of excellence in the Empress of Britain.

Of her engine-room, the most notable feature is the single platform from which all four engines driving her propellers are controlled. This of course provides ease of manouevre and great facility of control. The engine and boiler rooms are built on the spacious lines that characterize the passenger accommodation and are a model in this respect. Two large engines are in the forward engine room and two smaller ones in the after engine room.

The Empress of Britain is a gigantic picture in glittering white, with three funnels. The third one is par of the ventilation system, designed to keep fresh air warm or cool as may be demanded by the latitudes in which the big liner will find herself during her summers on the St. Lawrence route to Europe, or her winter cruises around the world.

Educationalists Fear Bad Effect of Movies

MONTREAL, May 18.—(By the Canadian Press)—Alarm is being raised among educationists of the Province of Quebec concerning the malignant influences of the more sensational type of movies and literature imported into Canada from across the border, the matter coming up for discussion at a recent session at McGill of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Education.

It was reported that smaller boys in at least one school on the Island of Montreal, have become the victims of a new variety of racketeering. The racket is described at the meeting, consists in the larger boys bullying the smaller ones, who, if unable to "come across" with a nickel, get a kick on the shins. "Another results of the influence of movies and tabloid literature from across the border," was the comment by a member.

Hon. Walter G. Mitchell, who presided, stated he had made an unofficial survey of movies during the past year. In his experience he found that there was a tremendous amount of trash being shown on the screens of theatres. The unfortunate part of the whole matter, he said, was that many of the more sensational type of films glorified the Chicago type of gangster and racketeer.

The result is, as he and other members of the council pointed out, that the youth of Canada is rapidly being caught in a maelstrom of sensationalism. It is now frankly recognized, they said, that many juvenile crimes and delinquencies are the result of just such films. "What could be worked in Chicago could be worked here," was the impression often gained by juveniles after witnessing gangster films.

No definite action was taken by the council in regard to the far-reaching effects of the entrance into Canada of gangster films and tabloid literature but the matter is certain to come up at a subsequent meeting.

Japan is Adverse Sponsor Congress

TOKYO, Japan, May 16 (C.P.).—At a meeting of officials and leading Japanese business men called by the Minister of Finance, Jennosuke Inouye, to discuss the lowering price of silver, it was decided that circumstances rendered it inadvisable for Japan to undertake promotion of a world silver conference.

Among the reasons given was that Japan is adverse to accepting responsibility for promoting the conference, the success of which is regarded as extremely doubtful. After considering the views of this meeting, which was informal, the Government is expected to inform the United States of its unwillingness to promote such a conference.

YUGO-SLAVIA IMPORTS FRUIT TREES.

The possibility of Canadian nurseries developing business in the exportation of young fruit trees, is indicated in the fact that Yugo-Slavia has already imported from the United States nearly $50,000 worth of young trees and scions for grafting, according to information received by the Canadian National Railway's department of agriculture.

Wins Poetry Prize

Mrs. Mary Josephine Benson, of Port Hope, Ont., who won $25 prize for best poem offered by the poetry group of the Canadian Authors' Association, Montreal branch, with her poem "Resurrection."

Comparatively few civic leaders go into such activities as the Chamber of Commerce encompasses from deliberate choice. They are busy men absorbed in their own affairs and they doubtless would prefer to stay that way; but they know that no man lives unto himself alone; that society, using the term in its best sense, is a co-operative affair; and that if he expects to live in a good town he will have to help to make it good.

AMERICANOS PAY REST ENTER FREE

covered on arrival that the fight was a week ago. But you get used to that. It's all part of the merry little game called "What of it?" Trains and busses never think of leaving on time, the hot water is usually cold but the cold is sometimes hot, the hotel bill seldom includes the text as you ordered and if you big heartedly point this out they'll say they are sorry. Too late to change it now. You just consider that a gift from the manager. The request you give to be called at seven in the morning usually means ten, but who cares? In Cadiz the hotel people were charming. They asked me if I'd like a nice outside room. "Yes," I answered. "That's too bad," they said, "the outside rooms are all full." But I get ahead of the story.

At Algeciras, jumping off place for Spain, swarms of gendarmes, ordinary cops, customs men, immigration men, government officials, income tax experts and all sorts of unidentified gentry from common porters to uniformed commissionaires climbed aboard the vessel to view things with alarm. A gay lad with names plastered all over his uniform asked of me, "You go to Cadiz senor?" "Yes." "Leave everything to me. It will be all right.' So I left everything to him.

We were shepherded into a Customs room. Experts pawed through this and that. Among my stuff they found 10 cigars, 50 cigarettes and a leather writing case bought in Morocco. These and my typewriter they laid aside as "contrabandisto" and then went on with the more important duty of stripping the corsets from outraged Spanish women. Observe at this point that I write "women" not "ladies."

A Spanish woman, it seems, is nowhere without her corsets. They provide her with a shape, a hiding place for bottles, cigarettes, perfumes and a cause for getting the wind up. But Spain is not a modest country and corsets have to be publicly and completely unfastened, whether the senoras like it or not. So a gay entertainment was provided for all while the smuggling experts did their stuff.

Apparently the whole show was just for fun because I never saw any duty collected from anybody although the pile of stuff that can go around masquerading as a feminine abdomen was astonishing.

Smelled My Cigars.

After the show the expert came back to me. He smelled the cigars, he twisted the writing case. He weighed the typewriter. Then he asked, "how long do you plan to stay in Spain?" "A month—perhaps more." "A month. Dios, a month. You may go. There is no duty." I was delighted. He was delighted and that was that. The man who was to "look after everything" was nowhere to be seen.

Then came the immigration man. Without asking for my passport, which I had mislaid, he said "Ten Dollars." "What for?" I asked. "why ten dollars?" "A rule" he said evasively. "But why? They told me at home in Canada I should pay no head tax." "Americanos must pay ten dollars" he said with finality. "Americano! But I am not Americano. Not Americano? Oh, very well. You may go." It didn't matter a hoot what I was so long as it was not one of these millionaire Americanos. I was free and welcome as the sunshine. He never even asked for the passport.

After hours of delay during which a dozen or so porters moved my luggage from one corner of the storage room to another corner of the same room and for this demanded one peseta each (and didn't get it) we were loaded on the bus. The porters came around again willing to take half price and some people kicked in. As my friends will testify, however, I come by three Scotch names honestly, and they got nothing from me. We rolled up through the beautiful Nevadas, around hair pin turns, over ancient roman bridges and past great herds of bulls. We climbed great hills with big drops on either side. There was no protection of any kind so that if the heavily loaded bus had felt like plunging down to the blue Atlantic below there was nothing to stop it. From time to time we passed big herds of sheep and at the approach of the bus the shepherd called them. His voice was soft and musical. The sheep instantly responded and followed him out of danger.

Luggage Seized and Opened.

Towns began to appear now. Clean whitewashed little towns manned by inquisitive garrisons. As a passenger alighted his luggage was seized and opened again just to make sure he hadn't picked up a machine gun along the way.

We rolled in Cadiz, capital of Andalusia, across great salt marshes and a causeway. The sea was on both sides and quite like the Florida keys. Ahead was a great radio-telephone station for calls to America, the inevitable bull ring and the inevitable cathedral.

We circled the Plaza de Isabella, became surrounded by troops and called it a day. The troops seized my stuff and again pawed through it, again seized the ten cigars, again said everything was all right and with a sigh of relief turned me loose in Spain. Some fun, eh keed?

Glad She Took Neighbour's Advice

Dodd's Kidney Pills Helped Aching Back

"I had such a terrible lame back that I could hardly straighten myself up," writes Mrs. Stanley Jackson, Plainfield, Ont. "I was advised by a neighbour to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, which I did, and was greatly relieved, so now I recommend them to all my friends."

It is statements like this that have made Dodd's Kidney Pills a household remedy all over Canada. For more than a third of a century people have been telling each other of the benefits received from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. If your kidneys trouble you, take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are the remedy you need.

IRISH DUTY ON BUTTER.

The Irish Free State Tariff Commission has recommended a permanent import duty of four cents per pound on imported butter, according to information received by the Canadian National Railway's agricultural department.

IF YOU OWN WAR OR VICTORY BONDS

Read this . . . it is Important

WHEN you bought them—why did you buy them? You bought them to help Canada, and because you felt that they would be a good investment . . . You lent Canada your money and . . .

Canada has kept faith with you! You have received your interest with unfailing regularity, and have seen the market value of your Bonds remain almost constant—yes, actually increase.

You know now that there is no better security than a Dominion of Canada Bond.

The time has come to renew your investment by converting your Bonds into Bonds of the 1931 Loan; and so enjoy your care-free, peace-of-mind investment for another fifteen and possibly twenty-five years. That, briefly, is the opportunity presented to you in this Conversion Loan.

You might say, Why doesn't the Government wait until my Bonds mature and let me convert them then? To do so would not be good business or sound financing. Every country must plan ahead. And that is what your country is doing in offering this exchange now. No new money is being asked for.

Remember, you receive the interest (with tax exemption, if any) that you have been getting on your present Bonds until the date of their maturity. After that, you get income at the attractive rate of 4½% per annum for at least fifteen or maybe twenty-five years.

But there's another and an urgent reason for converting now.

The success of this Loan should give a needed impetus to business. It will let Canadians in particular and the world in general see that our faith in Canada is unshaken and that the credit of Canada is as high as ever.

Conversion applications are invited to a total of $250,000,000, but the Minister of Finance reserves the right to increase or decrease this amount. Subscription lists will be closed on or before 23rd May, 1931. Bondholders who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity for re-investment should therefore act without delay.

Bonds of the following issues are exchangeable for Bonds of the 1931 Conversion Loan:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| War Loan | 5% | due 1st October, 1931 |
| Renewal Loan | 5½% | due 1st November, 1932 |
| Victory Loan | 5½% | due 1st November, 1933 |
| Victory Loan | 5½% | due 1st November, 1934 |

Your Bond Dealer, Broker or Banker will arrange for the conversion of your Bonds without expense to you.

RELIEF EXPENDITURES.

Figures issued by Premier George S. Henry in regard to the amount spent on relief in Ontario during the past eight months show that up to the present $11,835,480 has been already expended in this way, not including Northern Ontario, and that before the operations are completed the total will exceed $14,000,000.

Expenditures in Northern Ontario will bring the total at the end of this month to $18,500,000.

The Premier's report indicates that 206 municipalities, including all Ontario cities, most of the towns and many of the suburban townships, have participated in the relief scheme, and that of the accounts for relief work received up to now the municipalities themselves have contributed $4,392,929, while the Provincial and Federal Governments have each paid half that sum.

As to the results secured it is interesting to note that it is estimated that 43,000 men have been given employment for an average of 56 days each, and that in addition 17,000 have been given direct relief.

It is not possible to estimate the number of dependents benefitted by the relief scheme, but the total will be undoubtedly large.

The figures are eloquent as to the amount of unemployment in Ontario during the past winter, and they suggest how serious would have been the situation had not the federal, provincial and municipal authorities come to the rescue.

HIGHWAY SAFETY.

In a message to motorists on the subject of highways and highway safety, Premier George S. Henry announces that the Ontario Department of Highways is about to publish in the press of Ontario a series of educational advertisements "in which an effort will be made to keep drivers and pedestrians alike alive to the necessity for the continuous exercise of care, courtesy and common sense in the use of our highways."

The public should watch for and carefully read these advertisements, for to go on killing hundreds of people every year through sheer carelessness and recklessness in a tragedy that challenges the attention of every citizen.

Last year the Ontario Department of Highways stressed in a series of advertisements the danger of passing other cars on hills or curves, the folly of cutting-in and other hazardous practices, with the result that an analysis of recent accidents shows that by far the greatest number occurred not at dangerous points, such as outlined, but rather on the straight highway.

That condition would seem to suggest the advisability of this year urging motorists to be careful at all times, not merely at points where accident hazards are the worst.

There seems to be a tendency to drop the guard when conditions appear to be reasonably safe, and thus through lack of ordinary care and vigilance we find a ghastly list of accidents, the greater part of which are undoubtedly avoidable.

The Department of Highways is right in giving prominence to the necessity of "care, courtesy and common sense" on the part of all who use the highways, for as the Premier points out, these improved roads "are not only a remarkable convenience but as well they are a responsibility."

THE NEW TARIFF BOARD.

While the new Tariff Board to be appointed by the Federal Government is similar to that created by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, it is to have much wider powers than the former Advisory Board.

The new organization will have all the authority, in fact, of a court of records, with extensive jurisdiction as to enquiring into all factors entering into the production and sale of goods in Canada, and as to studying the costs of raw materials, manufacture and distribution—in fact, everything that goes to make up the cost to the consumer.

It will take over the functions of the present Customs Board and may, in addition, be called upon to carry on investigations under the Combines Act.

Different from the old board, it will hear evidence under oath and will have the power to summon witnesses.

It will be, the Premier has made clear, simply a fact-finding body, and will not only have no power to make changes in the tariff rates, but will not submit recommendations in that direction to the Government.

The board's responsibility, in short, ends when it has secured all the information possible and relayed its facts to the administration, upon whose shoulders the onus of making alterations in the tariff will necessarily rest.

Continuity of policy is provided for by the fact that members of the board are to be appointed for ten years.

The appointment of such a body will be greeted by the majority of Canadians with approval, inasmuch as it should guard against snap decisions as to tariff changes and dodge some of the pitfalls into which hasty action has been known to have led the Government on several occasions in the past few months.

THE WHEAT CONFERENCE.

The conference of representatives of wheat-exporting countries which assembled in London to-day under the chairmanship of Hon. G. H. Ferguson, High Commissioner for Canada, is of great significance to the Canadian people generally.

The fact, as Mr. Ferguson has pointed out, that wheat is selling below the cost of production not only affects the farmer seriously but by reducing his purchasing power affects all business and has a demoralizing effect upon trade and industry generally.

Eleven wheat-producing countries, including Russia, are represented, while several importing countries have asked permission to have official observers in attendance.

In a statement issued on Saturday the Canadian High Commissioner declared that the two main problems were overhanging surplus stocks and the future merchandizing of wheat, and emphasied the fact that the object of the conference was not to seek to exploit consuming nations in any way whatever.

That declaration should help to clear the air in Great Britain where the conference has been objected to in some quarters as an attempt on the part of the wheat-exporting nations to increase the cost of the "working man's food."

If the present situation can be relieved and more orderly marketing of the world's wheat supply ensured, the results will have a very marked effect upon economic conditions generally.

READJUSTMENT OF WAR DEBTS.

Whether or not the United States will ever consent to a readjustment of the war debts, payable by the allied nations, is a problem, but there is an increasing volume of opinion in the United States among leaders of industry, commerce and finance in demanding a reconsideration of the whole question. Professor James W. Angell, of Columbia University, in a report made to the Foreign Policy Association on Reparations and Interallied Debts, declares that hard times, if prolonged, may compel the United States to reopen the question. Just recently a spokesman of the Washington administration declared that the Government did not intend to discuss the question of war debts at the present time. "If the anticipated revival in world trade fails to reach satisfactory proportions," Professor Angell declared, "it may therefore easily become of great practical importance to the United States to reconsider the question of its claims against European countries."

Even if the ethical question be entirely disregarded, which many leaders in the United States consider dominant, the material welfare of the country may require the United States to make some concessions in order to recover its export trade. There are many who express the opinion that the increase which would result in export trade would easily compensate the United States for any direct loss to the treasury entailed by a readjustment of the war debts. It is sometimes said that justice is eternal, and that nothing is ever settled until its is settled right. It may be that the question of the repayment of war debts to the United States by the allied nations in the Great War may ultimately come under this category. The present unreasonable exaction of repayments, particularly in the case of Great Britain, has undoubtedly injured international trade. When these economic factors are more perfectly understood, it may be that concessions will be made.—Brantford Expositor.

IMPROVED METHODS IN FARMING.

This is a world of keen competition. In every business the one who wishes to compete successfully with others in his own and other countries must take advantage of every possible scheme to increase the efficiency of his plant. The agricultural business is no exception. The Canadian farmer is showing that he realizes this fact by his willingness to take advantage of facilities offered by governmental, co-operative and other enterprises for the purpose of improving his knowledge of the most recent and effective methods in the various lines of agricultural activity.

During 1930, and the first month of the present year, six demonstration and lecture trains, which were run over the lines of the Canadian National Railway in different parts of the Dominion, were attended by 45,700 farmers. The trains were operated in co-operation with the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture and other institutions interested in better farming. A poultry and dairy demonstration train operated in Saskatchewan, another on the sheep industry in Manitoba, one on general agriculture in British Columbia, one for soils and crops in Ontario, and one for the improvement of soils in Quebec. All these made their tours in 1930. In January, 1931, another train operated in Saskatchewan.

Perhaps in no country has the farmer, largely by his own efforts, advanced so far in the matter of marketing efficiency as in Canada. The success of the agricultural demonstration trains, as well as of other enterprises of a similar aim, is an indication that he is likewise determined to keep informed in the matter of production. The employment of the railroad as a means to this end is in keeping with the new conception of its possible uses which has developed in Canada in recent years. The Ontario school cars and the Canadian National hospital cars are other examples of instances in which co-operation with the railways has made possible direct benefit to various communities in matters which at one time were not considered to come within the scope of the transportation companies.—Brantford Expositor.

TRAGEDIES OF THE FRONTIER.

Just as the tireless labor, self-sacrifice and dauntless faith of the early pioneers made possible the Canada of to-day, so even now the same qualities of those who are throwing their efforts into the development of the new frontier regions, are laying the foundations of the greater Canada of to-morrow.

Another promising young life was offered up on the altar of duty when R.C.M.P. Constable Donald McDonnell, 22, perished on police patrol in a little lake in the Hudson Bay Railway region. Special Constable M. Masseau, an Indian guide, also lost his life, the two men falling through rotten ice while travelling during the period when it was getting soft. News of the tragedy reached Le Pas some time later, and the bodies were brought out via the new railway for burial. The perils of police service in the newest regions of Canadian activity are as real as ever, and the intrepid men who undertake and so efficiently discharge that service deserve the sincere appreciation of a grateful country.

In spite of the great difficulties of the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway and the port of Churchill, there have been remarkably few fatal accidents, but inevitably there have been some tragedies on the frontier. The description recently published in a religious paper of the funeral service at Churchill for one workman who lost his life, is indeed impressive. The missionary conducted the service from a flat-car switched upon a siding, and grouped around were some eight hundred men and on woman, the missionary's wife. Of all races, of all creeds and of no creed, representative of every type familiar to the roughest sort of construction camp, the men, with bared heads reverently bowed, paid tribute to their departed comrade, and acknowledged the presence there of Him who watches with a fatherly eye over the destinies of His children in all the needs of the earth.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Mr Ferguson is able to keep on the front page of Canadian newspapers even when he is absent from the country.

Canada's conversion loan subscriptions will close to the $400,000,000 mark on Saturday. There is no whisper of despair in that total.

Is Canada to take the lead in a movement to increase the price of silver? The attention given the matter at Ottawa would seem to indicate important developments.

SECRET PLACES

BY

INSTALMENT II.

D'Arblaye devoted himself to Greta's entertainment with a skill that pleased her, and when they parted he had asked if he might call, and before the week was out had taken her to luncheon and to a dinner and dance; and it was Toni, quite casually mentioning his name when at a gathering, who heard in a modified manner what certain people thought of him.

"Maman won't receive him at all," Lucille de Vaurigard, one of Toni's intimates, remarked, blowing rings of cigarette smoke into the air. "She says he has simply made himself an outlaw from all decent society."

"Why?" How?" Toni asked. "Don't be mysterious, Lucille!"

"But I don't know. I think it's odd. Drugs, perhaps. Anyway Papa agrees, and he's pretty broad-minded, as you know. If he won't receive a man he must be absolutely pernicious!"

"Oh, well; it's not my funeral," Toni said with a shrug; "I never interfere with Greta. Besides she's got a husband to look after her."

"Perhaps he's too much in love with her to look after her," Lucille said shrewdly.

Toni stared, then laughed.

"Meaning that if you're in love you are an abject fool? Very probably. I've never been in love and don't pretend to be. People talk so much about it, but I don't believe it exists. Not for us moderns. We've torn all the veils aside. There aren't any mysteries in love for us, and, if we're sorry sometimes, well anyway, we're saved a darned lot of mystery, too."

"You're very cynical. I mean to fall in love just as quickly as I can."

"In love with the idea, you mean. Don't be absurd, Lucille. You're still early-Victorian. It was all part of that rubbish that said legs didn't exist, and pretended to children that babies grew on cabbage beds or whatever it was, or that the stork brought them; taught women to look up to their husbands and reverance them as superior things. You know the kind of bunk. 'Thank Heaven fasting for a good man's love.' Why should we, indeed? Why shouldn't he thank Heaven just as much for ours?"

"But, Toni!" Lucille's eyes were wide; "don't you believe in love?"

"Not that kind. Love's just sex. You like a particular person, and he likes you. That's all."

"But, Toni——"

"Oh, don't be sentimental! If it were all these marvelous things it would last, wouldn't it? Well, it doesn't. How many marriages go on the rocks? Half we know—and there are plenty that we don't know among the other half that are just as wretched, only for one reason or another it's kept quiet."

"It's a dismal philosophy!" Lucille said with a sigh. "I hope you're not right."
